27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Although LUBA may not apply technical pleading requirements that have no statutory basis, that prohibition is not violated by requiring that a petitioner correctly identify the part of the challenged decision that is challenged and the legal theory for that challenge. Doherty v. Morrow County, 44 Or LUBA 141 (2003).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Even though granting a motion for voluntary remand would give a local government a second chance to respond to issues that it failed to respond to in the appealed decision, a motion for voluntary remand will not be denied for that reason alone, because forcing the local government to defend a decision that it does not believe is defensible would not serve the ORS 197.805 goal of quickly reaching finality in land use matters. Doob v. Josephine County, 43 Or LUBA 130 (2002).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Denial of a motion for voluntary remand may be warranted if it is shown that a local government is making only half-hearted attempts to respond to relevant issues and then seeking serial voluntary remands to correct those half-hearted attempts. Doob v. Josephine County, 43 Or LUBA 130 (2002).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where two appeals concern the same decision, but the petitioner in one appeal will raise different issues than the petitioner in the other appeal, LUBA will not consolidate the appeals or suspend the second appeal while the first appeal is suspended for settlement discussions, where LUBA will ultimately have to reach the issues that will be raised in the second appeal in any event and the parties in first appeal agree not to take any action that would moot the second appeal while it is still pending at LUBA. Doherty v. Morrow County, 43 Or LUBA 627 (2002).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. While reply memoranda are not expressly provided for in LUBA's rules, and LUBA may strike such reply memoranda where they expand on or raise new issues not presented in the original motion, LUBA will not grant a motion to strike a reply memorandum that merely reiterates arguments made in an earlier motion, where granting the motion to strike would delay resolution of the underlying dispute. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 41 Or LUBA 553 (2001).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA will not reschedule oral argument to allow an intervenor to observe oral argument where intervenor's attorney can appear at oral argument as scheduled and rescheduling oral argument would result in a hardship on petitioner and would likely prevent LUBA from issuing its final opinion within the deadline established by ORS 197.830(14). Farrell v. Jackson County, 40 Or LUBA 601 (2001).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. When LUBA grants a stipulated motion for voluntary remand, LUBA leaves it to the parties to ensure that the procedures they agree to employ on remand are adequate to accommodate the rights of any persons who are entitled to participate in those proceedings on remand. LUBA does not review and approve those procedures in advance. Boly v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 537 (2001).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Although parties to a stipulated voluntary remand may be bound by an agreement to limit the issues on remand concerning a disputed parking lot, non-parties are not bound by the stipulation and such non-parties have not waived their right to raise issues under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153-54, 831 P2d 678 (1992), where the notice of hearing that preceded the only local hearing on the remanded decision failed to refer to the parking lot. Boly v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 537 (2001).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA's rules do not require that we automatically provide copies of all pleadings and orders that were filed and issued before a party's motion to intervene is received. Pereira v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 760 (2001).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where a brief includes as an appendix two letters that post-date the challenged decision and are not included in the record, LUBA will grant a motion to strike the letters but will not strike the brief in its entirety. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 743 (2000).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Although LUBA's rules do not expressly authorize the filing of replies to responses to motions, LUBA's practice is to allow such reply memoranda when they are limited to new issues raised in a response memorandum. Frevach Land Company v. Multnomah County, 38 Or LUBA 729 (2000).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA may allow a party to submit a memorandum of additional citations of relevant authority with brief summaries. However, the memorandum will not be considered if it contains additional arguments, replies to issues raised in the response brief, or does not allow other parties adequate time to address the additional citations. Stockwell v. Benton County, 38 Or LUBA 621 (2000).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. While not obligated to do so, LUBA will consider replies and responses to replies to motions where appropriate and where such consideration will not unduly delay the appeal process. Cedar Mill Creek Corr. Comm. v. Washington County, 37 Or LUBA 1011 (2000).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA will grant a seven-week delay in oral argument at the request of petitioner and respondent, over the objection of intervenors-respondent, where the parties requesting the delay demonstrate that the local proceedings that will occur during the delay may result in a more expeditious resolution of the issues presented in the petition for review. Genstar Land Company Northwest v. City of Sherwood, 36 Or LUBA 765 (1999).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. In deciding whether to grant a request for voluntary remand over petitioner's objection, LUBA considers whether (1) all issues presented in the petition for review will be considered on remand and (2) the proceedings on remand will be capable of providing the petitioner with everything he would be entitled to from LUBA. In such circumstances, LUBA will grant a motion for voluntary remand over a petitioner's objection unless LUBA concludes that its review to narrow the issues is more important or that the motives for the motion for voluntary remand are improper. Quest International, Inc. v. City of Silverton, 36 Or LUBA 259 (1999).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. A Board member is not obligated to recuse herself from participating in an appeal, where the party who requests recusal has not shown that the Board member is biased or otherwise disqualified from participating. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 758 (1998).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. A motion for voluntary remand will be denied where the local government does not propose to address arguments that the challenged decision is prohibited as a matter of law or arguments that the local government improperly shifted the burden of proof. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 35 Or LUBA 732 (1998).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. A motion to strike arguments presented by petitioner for the first time at oral argument will be denied where petitioner's new arguments were presented in response to arguments presented in the respondent's brief. Goddard v. Jackson County, 34 Or LUBA 402 (1998).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA allows parties to submit simple demonstrative handouts at oral argument. However, where such a handout is lengthy and complex and reformulates arguments contained in a lengthy petition for review, the handout will not be considered. Sanders v. Yamhill County, 34 Or LUBA 69 (1998).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Generally, where the legislature fails to express any intention concerning the retroactivity of a statute, the statute applies only prospectively if the statute will impair existing rights, create new obligations or impose additional duties with respect to past transactions. Gutoski v. Lane County, 33 Or LUBA 866 (1997).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where petitioner fails to demonstrate that its substantial rights have been prejudiced, a motion for voluntary remand filed by the local government one week prior to oral argument will be allowed. Smith v. Douglas County, 33 Or LUBA 682 (1997).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA's rules do not permit additional submissions beyond the answer to a record objection or motion, and a party that relies on LUBA's leniency, particularly when that party provides no explanation of why leniency is justified, takes a risk that additional submissions will not be read. Village Properties, L.P. v. Oregon City, 33 Or LUBA 206 (1997).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. The city's filing of a corrected response to record objections does not justify the filing of supplemental record objections well beyond the deadline for filing record objections. Village Properties, L.P. v. City of Oregon City, 32 Or LUBA 475 (1996).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Although LUBA does on occasion refer to the Oregon Rules of Civil Procedure when the Board's rules do not address procedural issues, those rules are not binding on LUBA. Pfeifer v. City of Silverton, 32 Or LUBA 463 (1996) (unpublished headnote), rev'd and rem'd on other grounds, 146 Or App 191, 931 P2d 833 (1997).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Although LUBA's rules do not expressly provide for the filing of reply memoranda in support of motions, LUBA may exercise its discretion to allow the filing of reply memoranda that address new issues raised in response memoranda. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 31 Or LUBA 441 (1996).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. A party may not assign error in a motion to dismiss. Young v. Douglas County, 31 Or LUBA 545 (1996).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. When a party makes a colorable claim that it will be substantially prejudiced by LUBA's failure to enforce its rules, LUBA will enforce the rules. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Motions to dismiss do not suspend the time limits for other events in LUBA's review process, and a combination of factors determines when during the appeal process LUBA decides such motions. Pilate v. City of Banks, 30 Or LUBA 433 (1995).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. OAR 660-10-025(1)(c) requires the local record submitted to LUBA to include minutes and tape recordings of the proceedings conducted by the governing body, regardless of whether such minutes and tapes were actually placed before the decision maker below. Under OAR 660-10-010(4), "governing body" includes a commission whose decision would become the local government's final decision if no local appeal were filed. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 742 (1994).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA is not authorized to reject a document filed on behalf of a represented party because the attorney filing the document did not first obtain specific authority from that party to file the document. Gettman v. City of Bay City, 28 Or LUBA 121 (1994).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA's administrative rules were amended on June 22, 1994. These amendments apply to any appeal proceeding initiated by a notice of intent to appeal filed after June 30, 1994. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 730 (1994).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Allegations that a local government decision should be reversed for failure to follow local code provisions governing deadlines for holding a public hearing and issuing a final decision are properly presented in the petition for review, not in a motion to reverse. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 27 Or LUBA 713 (1994).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA does not have authority to deny respondent the right to appear and defend its decision in an appeal before LUBA. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 26 Or LUBA 631 (1994).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA no longer has authority to defer its review of appeals challenging decisions submitted for LCDC review under the pre-1991 periodic review process, because Oregon Laws 1993, chapter 435, repeals the statute authorizing LCDC continuation of previously initiated periodic reviews under the pre-1991 periodic review process. Williams v. Clackamas County, 26 Or LUBA 612 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA proceedings are not contested case proceedings governed by ORS 183.482 and the Attorney General's Model Rules of Procedure. DLCD v. Klamath County, 26 Or LUBA 589 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Judicial review of LUBA decisions is governed solely by ORS 197.850. ORS 197.850 does not authorize LUBA to consider petitions for reconsideration or to stay its final opinions and orders. DLCD v. Klamath County, 26 Or LUBA 589 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. In considering an applicant's request for voluntary remand of a decision granting development approval, where petitioner objects to the request, LUBA will not infer bad faith or improper motives from the potential economic return the applicant may receive if the proposed development is ultimately approved. Hastings Bulb Growers, Inc. v. Curry County, 25 Or LUBA 558 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Unless the particular circumstances of a case make narrowing the issues on remand clearly more important than allowing a local government's request for a voluntary remand of its decision to address each of the issues raised in the petition for review, a motion for voluntary remand should be granted. Hastings Bulb Growers, Inc. v. Curry County, 25 Or LUBA 558 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA has no authority to reconsider or clarify its final opinions and orders. Caine v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 785 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where a motion to dismiss is filed on the basis that petitioners failed to exhaust local remedies, but an appeal of a local government decision not to accept petitioners' local appeal of the decision challenged at LUBA is pending below, LUBA cannot determine whether petitioners failed to exhaust local remedies, and will suspend consideration of the motion to dismiss until the local government makes a final decision on whether to accept petitioners' local appeal. Hart v. Jefferson County, 25 Or LUBA 773 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA may satisfy the requirement of ORS 197.850(11) that it "respond to the [appellate] court's mandate within 30 days" either by issuing a final opinion and order, or by taking some other appropriate action, such as requesting the submission of additional briefs, memoranda or oral argument, where desirable to aid LUBA in addressing the issues that provide the basis for remand by the appellate court. Schrock Farms, Inc. v. Linn County, 24 Or LUBA 649 (1993).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Reversal of a local government land use decision approving a permit application means the subject application cannot be approved under the applicable criteria as a matter of law, and that a new or amended permit application is required to correct at least one allegation of error sustained in LUBA's final opinion. Seitz v. City of Ashland, 24 Or LUBA 311 (1992).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where a local government imposes an improper condition in granting land use approval, but does not rely on the improper condition in finding applicable approval criteria are met, LUBA will reverse the condition and otherwise affirm the decision granting land use approval. Olson Memorial Clinic v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 418 (1991).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. ORS 183.450 is not applicable to review proceedings conducted by LUBA. However, under ORS 197.805, LUBA has the authority to take official notice of judicially cognizable law, as provided by Oregon Evidence Code Rule 202. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 21 Or LUBA 149 (1991).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where the Court of Appeals reverses or remands a LUBA decision, the 30-day period specified in ORS 197.850(11) for LUBA to respond commences on the date the appellate court judgment becomes effective. Byrnes v. City of Hillsboro, 20 Or LUBA 408 (1991).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where a city comprehensive plan policy provides that "[d]evelopment intensity will be limited to that allowed under" a particular document, that policy incorporates development intensity limits in the document into the plan, and LUBA will take official notice of such standards in the document. Hoffman v. City of Lake Oswego, 19 Or LUBA 607 (1990).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. If it is demonstrated, through citations to the record or to documents of which LUBA may take official notice, that the city adopted a particular document as regulatory standards applicable to the appealed city decision, LUBA may take official notice of that document. Hoffman v. City of Lake Oswego, 19 Or LUBA 607 (1990).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. LUBA will not accept a memorandum of supplemental argument filed by petitioner 24 days after the conclusion of oral argument, if accepting such a memorandum would delay the issuance of LUBA's final opinion and, therefore, adversely affect other parties' substantial rights to "the speediest practicable review." East McAndrews Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Medford, 19 Or LUBA 604 (1990).

27.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Generally. Where the parties in an appeal proceeding contend the appeal should be dismissed, LUBA will dismiss the appeal, even though the parties contend the appeal should be dismissed for different reasons. Kirpal Light Satsang v. Douglas County, 18 Or LUBA 795 (1990).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies two decisions that were adopted on different dates as the subjects of the appeal, but the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed with regard to only one of the identified decisions, the appeal may proceed with regard to the decision for which the notice of intent to appeal was timely filed. Lifestyle Ventures v. Clackamas County, 73 Or LUBA 388 (2016).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. An amending order that merely corrects a property description included in a prior annexation order does not replace the prior order and therefore petitioners did not have to appeal the amending order rather than the prior order. Miner v. Clatsop County, 46 Or LUBA 467 (2004).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. When (1) the local government's record does not clearly show who was mailed written notice of a land use decision; (2) a petitioner asks the local government who was actually mailed written notice of the decision; and (3) the petitioner serves the notice of intent to appeal on the persons the local government states were mailed written notice of the decision, then petitioner has complied with LUBA's rules and LUBA will not dismiss the appeal. Copeland Sand & Gravel, Inc. v. Jackson County, 46 Or LUBA 653 (2004).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. Where ORS 197.830(4) applies it provides a right to appeal directly to LUBA, within certain time limits, notwithstanding that the deadline for filing a local appeal has expired. In such circumstances, there is no local appeal available to be exhausted pursuant to ORS 197.825(2)(a). Neighbors for Sensible Dev. v. City of Sweet Home, 39 Or LUBA 766 (2001).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. Where the challenged decision is an intergovernmental agreement that must be signed by representatives of both the county and the city, the decision becomes final under OAR 661-010-0010(3) when it bears the signatures of necessary decision makers. The unilateral signing of the agreement by the county commissioners does not render the decision final until the city's authorized representatives supply their signatures. Sparks v. Polk County and City of Monmouth, 34 Or LUBA 731 (1998).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. For purposes of OAR 661-10-010, a signature is an essential element for finality of a decision only if another statute, rule or ordinance provides that a signature is necessary. North Park Annex Bus. Trust v. City of Independence, 33 Or LUBA 695 (1997).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. Petitioner's failure to serve a timely notice of intent to appeal on other interested and essential parties warrants dismissal of the appeal where a party establishes substantial prejudice from the delay in service. Winner v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 420 (1996).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. Where a local government makes a permit decision without a hearing, pursuant to local procedures implementing ORS 215.416(11) or 227.175(10), the provisions of ORS 197.830(3) allowing a person to appeal a decision to LUBA if the local government does not provide a hearing do not apply, because the local government did not fail to provide a hearing or the notice of such hearing required by state or local law. Tarjoto v. Lane County, 29 Or LUBA 408 (1995).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. Where ORS 197.830(3) applies, it provides a petitioner with a right to appeal directly to LUBA, within the time limits established by ORS 197.830(3)(a) and (b), notwithstanding that the deadline for filing a local appeal may have expired. In such circumstances, there is no local appeal available to be exhausted pursuant to ORS 197.825(2)(a). Beveled Edge Machines, Inc. v. City of Dallas, 28 Or LUBA 790 (1995).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. ORS 197.830(3) imposes a requirement that a reasonable person be able to tell from the notice of public hearing that the local government might take the action that the local government ultimately takes. Kevedy, Inc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 227 (1994).

27.2.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Generally. While changes in the proposal described in a notice of public hearing can be of such a degree that the notice "did not reasonably describe the local government's final [decision]," not every change in the proposal described in the notice of public hearing necessarily implicates ORS 197.830(3). Kevedy, Inc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 227 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where LUBA issues two orders (1) providing the correct address for the local governing body's legal counsel, (2) requiring petitioner to file an amended NITA that complies with OAR 661-010-0015(2), and (3) notifying petitioner that failure to file a compliant NITA will result in dismissal of the appeal; and where the amended NITA fails to comply with LUBA's orders and OAR 661-010-0015(2), LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Wendt v. City of Klamath Falls, 81 Or LUBA 266 (2020).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government's notice of a quasi-judicial hearing indicated that the decision-maker would consider a conditional use permit (CUP) application for "transitional housing" at an upcoming meeting and that the application would be reviewed against the relevant zone and CUP provisions in the local code, and where the final decision explained that it approved a CUP for "transitional housing," an argument that the phrase "transitional housing" did not adequately describe the use that the final decision approved does not demonstrate that the local government made "a land use decision that is different from the proposal described in the notice of hearing to such a degree that the notice of the proposed action did not reasonably describe the local government's final actions" for purposes of ORS 197.830(3). Lincoln Woods Apartments v. City of Lincoln City, 81 Or LUBA 269 (2020).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Pursuant to ORS 197.835(2), LUBA may make its own factual findings as to whether an appeal was timely filed, which is a jurisdictional question. Accordingly, LUBA may consider evidence outside the record for the limited purpose of resolving disputes regarding whether an appeal was timely filed, even in the absence of a motion to take evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 151 (2019).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A zone verification is subject to LUBA's jurisdiction and a person adversely affected by the decision may appeal the decision to LUBA "[w]ithin 21 days of the date a person knew or should have known of the decision where no notice is required." ORS 197.830(5)(b). The city was not obligated to and did not provide notice of the zone verification decision to petitioner. Petitioner was put on inquiry notice of the zone verification decision when the city provided petitioner multiple notices of a subsequent land use application, review, and approval for site review, traffic impact analysis, and adjustment review for the same subject property and development described in the zone verification decision. The city invited petitioner to participate in that subsequent land use action and to review public planning documents at the planning division and online. The appeal was untimely filed and must be dismissed because petitioner failed to make such inquiries and the 21-day appeal period expired before petitioner filed the appeal. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 151 (2019).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A zone verification is subject to LUBA's jurisdiction and a person adversely affected by the decision may appeal the decision to LUBA "[w]ithin 21 days of the date a person knew or should have known of the decision where no notice is required." ORS 197.830(5)(b). The city was not obligated to and did not provide notice of the zone verification decision to petitioner. Petitioner was put on inquiry notice of the zone verification decision when the city provided petitioner multiple notices of a subsequent land use application, review, and approval for site review, traffic impact analysis, and adjustment review for the same subject property and development described in the zone verification decision. The city invited petitioner to participate in that subsequent land use action and to review public planning documents at the planning division and online. The appeal was untimely filed and must be dismissed because petitioner failed to make such inquiries and the 21-day appeal period expired before petitioner filed the appeal. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 151 (2019).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The timely filing of a notice of intent to appeal is required for LUBA to have jurisdiction. Pursuant to ORS 197.830(3)(b), where the time for filing a notice of intent to appeal runs from the date a petitioner knew or should have known of the decision, and petitioner was in possession of the challenged decision, the 21-day appeal period runs from the date the petitioner received a copy of the decision, not from the date that the petitioner was notified by its attorney, after providing the decision to its attorney, that the decision could be a "land use decision" within the meaning of ORS 197.015(10)(a). PGE v. City of West Linn, 79 Or LUBA 213 (2019).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) operates to potentially allow a petitioner a delayed period of time to file a LUBA appeal, but it is not a source of procedural requirements that a local government approved development that differs from the development described in the notice of hearing is not procedural error. Elenes v. Deschutes County, 78 Or LUBA 483 (2018).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. At one time the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal a statutory permit decision did not begin to run until notice of that decision was mailed to a party who was entitled to mailed notice of the decision. However, Wicks-Snodgrass v. City of Reedsport, 148 Or App 217, 939 P2d 625 (1997), overruled the Court of Appeals decision that established that rule, and now under OAR 661-010-0010(3) that deadline begins to run when the is reduced to writing and signed and become final, "unless a local rule or ordinance specifies that the decision becomes final at a later date * * *." McGrew v. Yamhill County, 75 Or LUBA 247 (2017).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the text of an order requiring petitioner to file an amended notice of intent to appeal states the order is dated December 15, but the order is date stamped December 16 and was mailed December 16, the order is "dated" December 16, for purposes of calculating the seven-day deadline for filing an amended notice of intent to appeal. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 75 Or LUBA 481 (2017).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3)(b), a petitioner must file an appeal to LUBA within 21 days of the date the petitioner "knew or should have known" of the decision. Where the petitioner gains information indicating that the local government may have made a decision approving development, the petitioner is placed on "inquiry notice," and must make timely inquiries with the local government to discover the decision. If the petitioner makes timely inquiries, the 21-day clock begins running on the date the petitioner obtains a copy of the decision. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 74 Or LUBA 38 (2016).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where respondent moves to dismiss an appeal, alleging that petitioner failed to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the county, and after five weeks petitioner has neither advised LUBA that a copy of the notice of intent to appeal has been served on respondent nor filed a written response to the motion to dismiss, LUBA will dismiss the appeal for lack of jurisdiction. Mann v. Marion County, 74 Or LUBA 73 (2016).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Filing a notice of intent to appeal (NITA) using an overnight delivery service is not the same as filing the NITA by certified mail, which is the method that OAR 661-010-0015(1) requires in order for a petitioner to rely on the date of mailing as the date of filing of a NITA. Chapman and Chapman LLC v. Coos County, 73 Or LUBA 123 (2016).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal is delivered to LUBA by an overnight delivery service more than 21 days from the date the city's decision became final, the appeal is untimely filed, and LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Chapman and Chapman LLC v. Coos County, 73 Or LUBA 123 (2016).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies two decisions that were adopted on different dates as the subjects of the appeal, but the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed with regard to only one of the identified decisions, the appeal may proceed with regard to the decision for which the notice of intent to appeal was timely filed. Lifestyle Ventures v. Clackamas County, 73 Or LUBA 388 (2016).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a hearing is held, ORS 197.830(3)(b) cannot operate to expand the time for filing an appeal, because ORS 197.830(3)(b) applies only "where no notice is required." The "notice" that is "required" refers to notice of all quasi-judicial hearings under ORS 197.763(2). Phillips v. City of Happy Valley, 72 Or LUBA 196 (2015).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-010-0015(1)(b), the date of mailing the notice of intent to appeal is the date of filing the appeal to LUBA only if the notice of intent to appeal is mailed by certified or registered mail to LUBA's address as published in its rules. Where a petitioner mails the notice of intent to appeal to a different address than published in LUBA's rules, the notice is not "filed" with LUBA until the date LUBA actually receives it. Bartlett v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 408 (2015).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will dismiss an appeal filed more than 21 days after the date the appealed decision was signed and became final under county code, notwithstanding an erroneous statement in the notice of decision that the decision became final on the date the notice was mailed. Carver v. Washington County, 71 Or LUBA 1 (2015).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedure/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The petitioners fail to demonstrate that they are entitled to notice of the hearing required by ORS 197.763(2)(a), and that the city's failure to provide the notice allows petitioners to appeal the decision to LUBA under the alternative deadlines set out at ORS 197.830(3), where petitioners do not demonstrate that they own property within 100 feet of the "property which is the subject of the notice" for purposes of ORS 197.763(2)(a). Mackenzie v. City of Portland, 71 Or LUBA 155 (2015).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal filed more than 21 days after the post acknowledgement plan amendment decision was mailed to DLCD under ORS 197.615(1) is untimely, where the petitioner was not entitled to notice of the decision under ORS 197.615(4) because he did not "participate[] in the local government proceedings that led to the decision to adopt" the PAPA or request in writing that he be given notice of the decision to adopt the PAPA. Clarke v. Coos County, 68 Or LUBA 261 (2013).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The deadline to appeal a post-acknowledgment plan amendment to LUBA is 21 days from the date notice is mailed to parties entitled to notice under ORS 197.615. A party entitled to notice under ORS 197.615(4) who receives that notice must appeal within 21 days of the date notice is mailed, and that deadline is not tolled simply because the local government failed to submit a copy of the decision to DLCD as required by ORS 197.615(1). Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 265 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A petitioner receives "actual notice" of a decision for purposes of ORS 197.830(3)(a) on the date the local government mails a letter to petitioner informing petitioner of the decision, not on the date that the petitioner obtains a copy of the decision from the local government's files. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 66 Or LUBA 369 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner receives actual notice of a decision issued without a hearing and pursues a local appeal, any right to directly appeal the decision to LUBA pursuant to ORS 197.830(3) may be lost if it turns out no right of local appeal exists and the petitioner delays longer than 21 days from actual notice of the decision to appeal the decision to LUBA. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 66 Or LUBA 369 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An order that simply adopts additional findings following a LUBA remand, but does not "change" any acknowledged comprehensive plan or land use regulation, is not a post-acknowledgment plan amendment, and the deadline to appeal the order to LUBA is therefore 21 days from the date the decision became final, pursuant to the first sentence of ORS 197.830(9), not 21 days from the date that notice of the order was mailed. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The 21-day period to appeal to LUBA under the second sentence of ORS 197.830(9) commences on the date notice of the decision is mailed to "parties entitled to notice under ORS 197.615." The "notice" referred to in ORS 197.830(9) is the written notice that ORS 197.615(4) requires the local government to mail to participants, not the copy of the final decision that ORS 197.615(1) requires the local government to submit to DLCD. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner participated in the proceedings leading to adoption of a post-acknowledgment plan amendment, and received timely notice of the decision, the deadline to appeal the decision to LUBA is 21 days from the date the notice was mailed to petitioner, not 21 days from the date the local government submits a copy of the decision to DLCD. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ODOT v. City of Oregon City, 153 Or App 705, 959 P2d 615 (1998), the deadline to appeal a post-acknowledgment plan amendment to LUBA under the second sentence of ORS 197.830(9) is 21 days from the date the local government mails notice of the decision to parties entitled to notice, even for persons who did not participate in the proceedings and thereby become entitled to notice. However, ODOT does not suggest that notice failures to some parties tolls the 21-day deadline for a petitioner who did receive notice but failed to appeal the decision to LUBA within the 21-day period. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a decision to allow or deny further review of a hearings officer decision is within the unfettered discretion of the board of county commissioners under the county code, and a decision to deny review has the legal effect of making the hearings officer decision the county's final land use decision, the notice of intent to appeal should not have identified the board of county commissioners' appealed decision and instead should have listed the hearings officer decision as the subject of the appeal. However, where the county clearly understood that it was the hearings officer decision that petitioners sought to challenge on the merits and the county submitted a record that was consistent with that understanding, any error on petitioners' part was technical and provides no basis for dismissing the appeal or striking any assignments of error that challenge the hearings officer's decision. Resources Northwest Inc. v. Clatsop County, 65 Or LUBA 313 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A petitioner's affidavit, stating that petitioner first learned of the challenged decision less than 21 days from the date the notice of intent to appeal was filed, is sufficient to demonstrate that the appeal was timely filed for purposes of ORS 197.830(3) within 21 days of the date the petitioner "knew or should have known" of the decision, and mere speculation that petitioner might have known of the decision at an earlier date is insufficient to controvert the affidavit. Bratton v. Washington County, 65 Or LUBA 461 (2012).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where there is a reasonable dispute regarding which of two documents or decisions is appealable to LUBA, the notice of intent to appeal identifies both documents, but mistakenly identifies the wrong document as the appealable decision, LUBA will regard that mistake as a technical pleading error, treat the appealable decision as the subject of the notice, and not dismiss an otherwise properly filed appeal. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Curry County, 63 Or LUBA 538 (2011).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the notice of intent to appeal mistakenly identifies a planning commission decision as the county's final decision, but it is clear that the petitioner wished to appeal the county's final decision, the governing body's decision on petitioner's local appeal of the planning commission decision, dismissing the appeal based on that mistake would amount to dismissing the appeal based on a technical pleading error. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Curry County, 63 Or LUBA 538 (2011).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will not dismiss an appeal based on mistaken identification of the county's final decision, where the appeal has proceeded from its beginning and the record was settled under a shared understanding regarding the subject of the appeal, and no party identifies prejudice to any party's substantial rights from the petitioner's error in mis-identifying the appealed decision in the notice of intent to appeal. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Curry County, 63 Or LUBA 538 (2011).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A local ordinance that provides that a decision becomes effective 14 days after mailing notice of the decision means that the decision is effective at that date. The ordinance does not delay the date the decision becomes final for purposes of appeal to LUBA under OAR 661-010-0010(3). VK Northwest, Inc. v. City of West Linn, 60 Or LUBA 39 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even though the language of a final decision is somewhat misleading in stating that it becomes final at a later date, a misstatement of fact and law in the decision does not excuse a petitioner from filing a timely notice of intent to appeal. VK Northwest, Inc. v. City of West Linn, 60 Or LUBA 39 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A motion to dismiss an appeal because the notice of intent to appeal inadequately described the appealed decision will be denied, where that motion is based on a hyper-technical reading of the notice of intent to appeal and the notice of intent to appeal adequately described the comprehensive plan and zoning map amendment that the petitioner wished to appeal, even though the notice of intent to appeal did not refer to the enacting ordinance by number and erroneously referred to a resolution that adopted supporting findings but did not adopt the appealed amendment. Just v. Linn County, 60 Or LUBA 74 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a notice of intent to appeal (NITA) is filed on behalf of a "corporation or other organization" by a person who is not an active member of the Oregon State Bar and LUBA allows seven days for an attorney to file an amended NITA, failure to file an amended NITA within that time requires dismissal of the appeal. Sending a letter stating that an attorney will represent the corporation or organization is not a sufficient substitute for filing an amended NITA. Waluga Neighborhood Association v. City of Lake Oswego, 59 Or LUBA 380 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a party appeals a decision on a permit and that party was not entitled to notice of the permit, the appeal to LUBA must be filed within 21 days after the expiration of the period for filing a local appeal of the decision established by the local government under ORS 215.416(11). ORS 197.830(4)(b). Where the appeal is filed approximately 18 months after the expiration of the period for filing a local appeal, the appeal must be dismissed. Thalman v. Marion County, 58 Or LUBA 23 (2008).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner is a neighborhood association, petitioner must be represented by a member of the Oregon State Bar. Russell Neighborhood Assoc. v. City of Portland, 58 Or LUBA 397 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(9) and OAR 661-010-0015(1)(a), the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal began to run either on the date the decision became final or on the date notice of the appealed decision was "mailed to parties entitled to notice under ORS 197.615 * * *." ORS 197.830(3) through (5) provide exceptions to the general 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal with LUBA, which is established by ORS 197.830(9). Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Procedural errors a city may have committed might provide a basis for reversal or remand, if there is a timely appeal of a land use decision. However, any such procedural errors do not have the legal effect of preventing a land use decision from becoming final or delaying the date of finality. Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Local laws that only delay the date an ordinance takes effect do not also delay the date an ordinance becomes final for purposes of appeal to LUBA. Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-010-0015(1)(b), a notice of intent to appeal is filed on the date it is mailed, provided it is mailed by "registered or certified mail." A notice of intent to appeal that is mailed on the last day to timely file the notice of intent to appeal and is received five days later by LUBA is not timely filed, where the notice of intent to appeal was not mailed by "registered or certified mail." Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a petitioner is placed on inquiry notice that a land use decision or limited land use decision has been made and makes proper inquiries to the local government, a petitioner cannot be faulted when the local government takes the position that no such decision has been made. If a petitioner makes the proper inquiries, the 21-day time limit for filing the NITA begins when a petitioner learns of the decision. Biggerstaff v. Yamhill County, 58 Or LUBA 665 (2008).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where applicable law requires that the local government's proposed land use action be accomplished by ordinance, each ordinance the local government adopts with respect to the proposal is a separate "land use decision" for purposes of appeal to LUBA, requiring separate notices of intent to appeal, even if the local government processed the decisions together and issued a single notice of decision. Woodard v. City of Cottage Grove, 56 Or LUBA 806 (2008).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Nothing in ORS 197.830(1), (2) or (9) explicitly requires that a notice of intent to appeal filed with LUBA identify only one decision as the subject of the appeal, or explicitly prohibits using a single notice of intent to appeal to challenge multiple decisions. Woodard v. City of Cottage Grove, 56 Or LUBA 806 (2008).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Because no statute assigns jurisdictional significance to the filing of an otherwise proper notice of intent to appeal that challenges more than one land use decision, OAR 661-010-0015(1)(c) is not inconsistent with the statutes governing LUBA's review. Accordingly, a notice of intent to appeal that improperly challenges more than one decision may be remedied as provided in OAR 661-010-0015(1)(c) by filing additional notices of intent to appeal and, if so, LUBA retains jurisdiction over each of the individual appeals. Woodard v. City of Cottage Grove, 56 Or LUBA 806 (2008).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where LUBA issues an order directing petitioner to file a supplemental certificate of service to establish that the notice of intent to appeal was served on the local government's legal counsel, and petitioner fails to do so within the deadline specified in the order, petitioner's appeal will be dismissed. Althauser v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 656 (2008).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. For the purposes of OAR 661-010-0015(1)(a), a timely filed notice of intent to appeal is sufficient to establish LUBA's jurisdiction despite failing to comply with one or more of the requirements for the content of notice under OAR 661-010-0015(3). O'Rourke v. Union County, 54 Or LUBA 758 (2007).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Partial noncompliance with the content requirements of an otherwise timely filed notice of intent to appeal is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that is not jurisdictional and is not a basis to dismiss the appeal, unless shown to prejudice other parties' substantial rights. O'Rourke v. Union County, 54 Or LUBA 758 (2007).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Technical violation of LUBA's rules pertaining to the content of a notice of intent to appeal does not require dismissal unless it prejudices the substantial rights of the parties. A party's substantial rights have not been prejudiced where the party was timely served with the original yet technically flawed notice of intent to appeal but was untimely served with the amended notice of intent to appeal. O'Rourke v. Union County, 54 Or LUBA 758 (2007).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Petitioners' arguments on the merits of an appeal that are included in their notice of intent to appeal are presented prematurely. Petitioners' arguments on the merits of an appeal are properly presented in their petition for review, after petitioners' record objections are resolved and after LUBA settles the record. Robson v. City of La Grande, 53 Or LUBA 604 (2006).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. While it is possible that LUBA might grant a petitioner's request that a notice of intent to appeal be treated as the petition for review, a petitioner may not wait until over two weeks after the deadline for filing the petition for review has expired to make such a request. Bleu v. Clackamas County, 52 Or LUBA 606 (2006).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where an individual files a written appearance on behalf of an organization before a local government opposing a permit application, it is the organization that must advise LUBA that the individual was not authorized to make the written appearance on behalf of the organization. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 51 Or LUBA 363 (2006).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The requirements in OAR 661-010-0015(3) that the notice of intent to appeal include a caption identifying the "governing body" as the respondent and that the notice include the name and telephone number of the governing body and its counsel serve important purposes, including notifying the local government responsible for compiling the record and defending the decision before LUBA that its decision has been appealed, but those requirements are not in themselves jurisdictional. Stoloff v. City of Portland, 51 Or LUBA 812 (2006).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where pursuant to an intergovernmental agreement a city acts as the final decision maker for a county, compiles the record, and defends the decision before LUBA, the purposes of OAR 661-010-0015(3) are better served by naming the city rather than the county as the respondent. Stoloff v. City of Portland, 51 Or LUBA 812 (2006).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Failure to satisfy the content requirements for a notice of an intent to appeal is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that does not provide a basis to dismiss the appeal, absent a showing of prejudice to the parties' substantial rights. Where no prejudice is shown, LUBA will allow the notice to be amended to name the correct parties. Stoloff v. City of Portland, 51 Or LUBA 812 (2006).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal that is placed in an envelope that is addressed to and mailed certified mail to an address that is not LUBA's is not "filed" with LUBA for purposes of OAR 661-010-0015(1)(b), and therefore cannot be relied upon for the date of filing. Ford v. Jackson County, 50 Or LUBA 359 (2005).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner notices construction activity on property, promptly investigates, discovers a building permit posted on the property, obtains a copy of the building permit and files an appeal with LUBA 14 days after first discovering the building permit posted on the property, the appeal is timely filed under 197.830(3)(b). Jebousek v. City of Newport, 50 Or LUBA 724 (2005).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. While service of the notice to intent to appeal is jurisdictional under ORS 197.830(9), the timing of that service is not. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 50 Or LUBA 735 (2005).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The statutes governing review of land use decisions are sui generis, and caution is appropriate in extrapolating to or from other statutory contexts and the statutes and rules governing LUBA's review. That the Oregon Supreme Court has interpreted statutes and rules governing civil appeals to require that timely service of a notice of appeal is jurisdictional does not lead to the conclusion that LUBA's rules, which do not make timely service jurisdictional, are inconsistent with the statutes governing LUBA's review. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 50 Or LUBA 735 (2005).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA's rules require the petitioner to timely serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the respondent, and to certify such service, but do not assign jurisdictional consequences to whether the respondent actually receives the notice. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 50 Or LUBA 735 (2005).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where it is clear that the land use decision that is identified in a notice of intent to appeal is an administrative conditional use permit approval that is also the subject of a local appeal, LUBA must dismiss the appeal and will not interpret that notice of intent to appeal as an appeal of other possible land use decisions. Doyle v. Coos County, 49 Or LUBA 397 (2005).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner mails a notice of intent to appeal on the twenty-first day after the local decision becomes final by first-class mail with a "certificate of mailing" rather than by certified or registered mail, as provided in OAR 661-010-0015(1), the notice of intent to appeal is "filed" on the date it is received by LUBA, not on the date of mailing. Where LUBA receives such a notice of intent to appeal more than 21 days after the local decision becomes final, the appeal must be dismissed. McKnight v. City of Portland, 48 Or LUBA 292 (2004).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even assuming that a county decision in response to a periodic review work task includes matters within LUBA's scope of review, LUBA has no jurisdiction to review the county decision where petitioners fail to appeal the county decision to LUBA within the time specified in ORS 197.830(9). Colony v. Wallowa County, 46 Or LUBA 586 (2004).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An error in the name of the petitioner is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and may be cured by substituting the name of the real petitioner. Concerned Citizens v. Malheur County, 46 Or LUBA 827 (2004).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a notice of intent to appeal mistakenly identifies the wrong decision as the subject of the appeal, and that mistake is due to a local government's procedural error with regard to the petitioner, LUBA will treat the petitioner's mistake as a technical pleading error, read the notice to appeal the correct decision, and not dismiss an otherwise properly filed appeal. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 45 Or LUBA 758 (2003).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Local proceedings on remand from LUBA are not "decisions made without a hearing" within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3) and, therefore, in order to file a notice of intent to appeal that remand decision with LUBA, the notice of intent to appeal must be filed in accordance with ORS 197.830(9). Friends of Jacksonville v. City of Jacksonville, 44 Or LUBA 379 (2003).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A city's erroneous statement in its notice of decision that the LUBA appeal deadline fell on a particular date does not have the legal effect of extending the appeal deadline. Friends of Jacksonville v. City of Jacksonville, 44 Or LUBA 379 (2003).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under LUBA's rules, an organization must be represented by an attorney. Where an unrepresented organization is a named petitioner in an appeal to LUBA, but fails to obtain counsel within the time set by the Board, that party will be dismissed from the appeal. Ziemer v. City of Florence, 43 OR LUBA 1 (2002).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal filed within 21 days after the date an earlier tentative decision was made final by a second decision is timely filed under ORS 197.830(9). Dead Indian Memorial Rd. Neigh. v. Jackson County, 43 Or LUBA 597 (2002).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3)(b), where a petitioner does not have knowledge of a land use decision but observes activity or otherwise obtains information reasonably suggesting that a land use decision has been rendered, that petitioner is placed on notice to make inquires regarding the nature of the land use decision. The 21-day appeal deadline begins to run on the date that timely inquiries are made and the decision is discovered or, in the absence of timely inquiries, on the date the petitioner is placed on inquiry notice. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Evidence in the record that petitioners knew an application for a proposed subdivision was pending before the local government is not sufficient to establish, for purposes of ORS 197.830(3), that petitioners knew or should have known that the subdivision application would be approved or that the application included a proposal to develop a lot within petitioners' subdivision as an access street for the proposed subdivision. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. In accordance with OAR 661-010-0075(6), LUBA will dismiss an appeal where a corporation's notice of intent to appeal was filed by a person who is not an attorney, and an amended notice of intent to appeal signed by an attorney was not filed within the deadline set by the Board. Qwest Wireless, L.L.C. v. City of Medford, 42 Or LUBA 174 (2002).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal that is filed by first class mail 21 days after the appealed decision became final is not timely filed under ORS 197.830(9) and OAR 661-010-0015(1), where the notice of intent to appeal is not actually received by LUBA until 22 days after the appealed decision became final. Larner v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 471 (2002).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will not dismiss an appeal of a letter that provided notice of an earlier land use decision, provided the notice of intent to appeal adequately identifies the land use decision being appealed, and the notice of intent to appeal is filed within the period allowed by statute for appeal of the land use decision. Kent v. City of Portland, 39 Or LUBA 455 (2001).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the notice of intent to appeal challenges a governing body's decision determining that petitioner has no standing to file a local appeal of a planning director's decision, but the petition for review assigns error only to the planning director's decision, the petition for review provides no basis to reverse or remand the governing body's decision. Doob v. Josephine County, 39 Or LUBA 301 (2001).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Failure to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the applicant's attorney in a timely manner is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that does not require dismissal unless the substantial rights of the applicant have been prejudiced. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 932 (2000).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8), the time for appealing an amendment to an acknowledged plan or land use regulation is measured from the time the decision was mailed in accordance with ORS 197.615 and OAR 660-018-0040. Where a party files a notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of the date the decision was mailed in accordance with the statute and rule, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed. Craig Realty Group v. City of Woodburn, 37 Or LUBA 1041 (2000).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.615(1) and OAR 660-018-0040 require that a local government send a copy of an ordinance amending local land use regulations and the findings supporting the ordinance, "accompanied by appropriate forms provided by" DLCD. Failure to submit the appropriate form with the decision and findings tolls the time to file a notice of intent to appeal with LUBA until 21 days after the proper notice is given. Craig Realty Group v. City of Woodburn, 37 Or LUBA 1041 (2000).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A planning director's letter determining that a driving range is a permitted use is the decision that triggers the 21-day appeal timeline to LUBA, not the date the developer began construction. Davis v. City of Ashland, 37 Or LUBA 224 (1999).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal is timely filed where the county code specifies that land use decisions become final when mailed to the parties entitled to notice, and petitioner filed the notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of the date the county mailed the decision. Warrick v. Josephine County, 36 Or LUBA 796 (1999).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The failure to serve all persons required to be named in the notice of intent to appeal as required by OAR 661-010-0015 is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, when intervenor's only alleged prejudice is that the violation prohibits other parties from contributing resources to support his position. A person need not have intervenor status to contribute to the preparation of a brief, financially or otherwise. Multi/Tech Engineering v. Josephine County, 36 Or LUBA 774 (1999).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will not accept an amended notice of intent to appeal that identifies a different decision than that which is the subject of the original notice of intent to appeal, unless the amended notice is accompanied by the fee and deposit required by OAR 661-010-0015(4). Where LUBA accepts such an amended notice, LUBA will not dismiss the amended notice until petitioner has had an opportunity to submit the required fee and deposit. McKy v. Josephine County, 36 Or LUBA 769 (1999).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Whether petitioner had "actual notice" of the decision under ORS 197.830(3)(a) depends on whether petitioner has received written notice of the decision. That petitioner knew or should have known of the challenged decision more than 21 days before filing the notice of intent to appeal is a dispositive consideration under ORS 197.830(3)(b), but not under ORS 197.830(3)(a). Bowlin v. Grant County, 35 Or LUBA 776 (1998).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An evidentiary hearing is not warranted to establish that the county orally advised petitioner that the county had approved the challenged application more than 21 days before petitioner filed the notice of intent to appeal, when the relevant issue under ORS 197.830(3)(a) is when the petitioner received actual written notice of the decision. Bowlin v. Grant County, 35 Or LUBA 776 (1998).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. For purposes of starting the ORS 197.830(3)(b) appeal period for appealing a county decision rendered without a hearing, petitioner "knew or should have known" of a decision approving a grading permit authorizing a retaining wall where petitioner knew that the applicant was building a retaining wall and placing fill behind it and that the county had approved a grading permit for the subdivision authorizing 76,000 cubic feet of fill. Abadi v. Washington County, 35 Or LUBA 67 (1998).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Whether multiple enactments constitute a single decision for purposes of appeal to LUBA depends on the relationship between the enactments. Where a decision on reconsideration reenacts the original decision together with a supplemental enactment that is characterized as an "integral part" of the reconsidered decision, there is a single decision for purposes of appeal of the decision on reconsideration to LUBA. Barnard Perkins Corp. v. City of Rivergrove, 34 Or LUBA 660 (1998).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The parties to an appeal at LUBA may not by agreement stipulate that LUBA has jurisdiction to review a separate decision that was not appealed to LUBA. Mountain Gate Homeowners v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 169 (1998).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An appeal will be dismissed where petitioner failed to "appear" below and therefore lacks standing to appeal to LUBA. In that circumstance, the LUBA appeal will be dismissed notwithstanding the intervention as a petitioner of a party who did appear below, where that intervenor-petitioner did not also file his own timely notice of intent to appeal. Waters v. Marion County, 33 Or LUBA 751 (1997).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The timely filing of a technically flawed notice of intent to appeal satisfies LUBA's jurisdictional requirements; and properly serving an amended notice of intent to appeal that corrects the technical violations in the original notice, although not expressly allowed by LUBA's rules, may avoid dismissal on the ground of prejudice to the substantial rights of the county. Markham v. Coos County, 31 Or LUBA 529 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will not grant the county's motion to dismiss based on petitioners' failure to timely serve a notice of intent to appeal on interested parties, when those parties have not moved for dismissal. Markham v. Coos County, 31 Or LUBA 529 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Numerous technical violations of LUBA's rules pertaining to the form and content of a notice of intent to appeal do not require dismissal unless they prejudice the substantial rights of the parties. The inconvenience to the county in having to search its records to identify the subject of the appeal does not amount to prejudice of the county's substantial rights. Markham v. Coos County, 31 Or LUBA 529 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Because of flooding during the week of February 5, 1996, which created de facto "holidays" at various state offices, a notice of intent to appeal delivered to LUBA on the first business day after the flooding will be considered timely under ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-015(1). Younger v. Jackson County, 31 Or LUBA 521 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The timely filing of a notice of intent to appeal a local decision is jurisdictional, and an untimely filed notice of intent to appeal mandates dismissal of the appeal. Winner v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 420 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. While timely filing of a notice of intent to appeal is jurisdictional, violations of the requirements for the content and service of a notice of intent to appeal are technical, and warrant dismissal of the appeal only if another party is prejudiced by the violations. Winner v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 420 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a document submitted as a notice of intent to appeal wholly fails to satisfy the requirements of OAR 661-10-015(1), to the point where LUBA cannot process the appeal and other parties cannot effectively participate, the document does not constitute a notice of intent to appeal. Winner v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 420 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. If a petitioner's failure to comply with the OAR 661-10-015(3) requirements for the content of the notice of intent to appeal precludes other parties from effectively participating in the appeal, the other parties are per se prejudiced by the violations. Winner v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 420 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies more than one decision as the subject of the appeal, LUBA will not dismiss the appeal, but rather will require petitioners to submit the appropriate additional filing fees and deposits for costs for each additional decision identified in the notice of intent to appeal, and will treat the proceeding as a consolidated appeal. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 459 (1996).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Until the requirements of ORS 197.615(2)(b) are satisfied, the time for filing a notice of intent to appeal a comprehensive plan amendment does not begin to run. When a final decision has been made, but petitioners have not received the notice to which they are entitled under ORS 197.615(2)(b), their notice of intent to appeal is timely filed. Barton v. City of Lincoln City, 29 Or LUBA 612 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a challenged decision is an amendment to an acknowledged comprehensive plan processed under ORS 197.615, the date of mailing, not the date of the final decision, establishes the deadline for filing the notice of intent to appeal under ORS 197.830(8). Barton v. City of Lincoln City, 29 Or LUBA 612 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government's notice of decision is not accompanied by a certificate of mailing or service, and the date of mailing is critical to determining whether the notice of intent to appeal was timely filed, LUBA will rely on other evidence, including affidavits, to decide when the notice of decision was mailed. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Columbia County, 29 Or LUBA 597 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 12.140, a 10-year statute of limitations for initiating civil actions in Oregon courts, does not apply to LUBA's proceedings. Nehoda v. Coos County, 29 Or LUBA 251 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) applies only where a local government makes a land use decision without providing a hearing, and petitioners subsequently attempt to challenge that decision in an appeal to LUBA. Where a local government did not previously make a land use decision concerning the legality of an existing use, petitioner's timely appeal of the local government's new land use decision is not precluded under ORS 197.830(3)(b), because petitioners allegedly knew of the use's existence for several years. Penland v. Josephine County, 29 Or LUBA 213 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where determining whether a notice of intent to appeal was timely filed under ORS 197.830(3) depends on determining which code notice of hearing provision applied to the local proceeding, and LUBA can infer from the challenged decision which notice provision the local governing body believes governs the local proceeding and agrees with that interpretation, even without the deference required by Clark, LUBA is not required to remand the decision for the governing body to make its interpretation explicit. Orenco Neighborhood v. City of Hillsboro, 29 Or LUBA 186 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Failure to serve the notice of intent to appeal on a respondent within the time required by OAR 661-10-015(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, which is not grounds for dismissal unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Where the notice of intent to appeal was served on respondent, at most, two days later than required by OAR 661-10-015(2), respondent's substantial rights were not prejudiced. Williams v. City of Philomath, 29 Or LUBA 563 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government approved a conditional use permit for a nonforest dwelling in 1992, and petitioner's notice of intent to appeal simply identifies the local government's 1994 building permit approval as the appealed decision, petitioner's appeal has the legal effect of appealing only the 1994 building permit decision. Broderson v. Jackson County, 28 Or LUBA 645 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner was entitled to notice of the hearing on a development proposal and was not given such notice, but was not entitled to notice of the local decision, under ORS 197.830(3)(b), petitioner's notice of intent to appeal the local decision to LUBA is timely so long as it is filed within 21 days after petitioner "knew or should have known" of the local decision. Beveled Edge Machines, Inc. v. City of Dallas, 28 Or LUBA 790 (1995).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. It is petitioner's obligation to establish LUBA's jurisdiction, including that petitioner's notice of intent to appeal was timely filed. Bowen v. City of Dunes City, 28 Or LUBA 324 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The failure of a notice of intent to appeal to include "[t]he full title of the decision to be reviewed as it appears on the final decision," as required by OAR 661-10-015(3)(c), provides no basis for summarily affirming the challenged decision where respondent understood which decision was being challenged and submitted the local record supporting the challenged decision. DLCD v. Douglas County, 28 Or LUBA 242 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the notice of public hearing given by the local government is inadequate, such that it does not "reasonably describe the local government's final [decision]," ORS 197.830(3) potentially provides a person adversely affected by the inadequate notice a right to file an appeal at LUBA long after the local decision is reduced to writing, notice of the decision is given, and the decision otherwise becomes final. Kevedy, Inc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 227 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local hearing is provided, and petitioner appears at that hearing and becomes entitled to notice of the challenged land use decision under ORS 215.416(10) or 227.173(3), the filing of petitioner's notice of intent to appeal is governed by ORS 197.830(2) and (8), not ORS 197.830(3). Ramsey v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 763 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner appeals local government decisions issuing a building permit and denying a request for a local appeal of the building permit, and petitioner's notice of intent to appeal is filed more than 21 days after petitioner had actual notice of the building permit decision but within 21 days of the decision that there is no right to a local appeal, the notice of intent to appeal is untimely filed with regard to the building permit decision and the only issue to be resolved in the LUBA appeal is whether the local government determination that there is no right to a local appeal of the building permit decision is erroneous. Mills v. City of Yachats, 28 Or LUBA 736 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal filed at LUBA is later withdrawn, the LUBA appeal must be dismissed. Davis v. City of Bandon, 28 Or LUBA 38 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal states the challenged decision is a planning commission recommendation to the governing body, the local government moves to dismiss the appeal on the ground the challenged decision is not final, and petitioner fails to respond to the motion to dismiss, the appeal will be dismissed. Braun v. City of La Grande, 27 Or LUBA 581 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner files a notice of intent to appeal within 21 days after the decision maker's oral vote to adopt the challenged decision, but before the final written decision was adopted, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed under OAR 661-10-015(1), and petitioner will be permitted to amend the notice of intent to appeal to identify the correct date the challenged decision became final. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 27 Or LUBA 713 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the identity of the decision petitioner seeks to appeal was, or should have been, understood by respondent, and the notice of intent to appeal was timely filed under OAR 661-10-015(1), that petitioner identified respondent's tentative oral decision in the notice of intent to appeal rather than the final written decision is, at most, a technical violation of LUBA's rules and provides no basis for dismissing the appeal. Fraser v. City of Joseph, 27 Or LUBA 695 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Allegations in a notice of intent to appeal that the challenged decision is a land use decision do not constitute a judicial admission that the challenged decision is a land use decision. Salem-Keizer School Dist. 24-J v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 351 (1994).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner's notice of intent to appeal identifies the challenged decision as the governing body's decision to dismiss his local appeal, but his petition for review alleges error in the planning commission's decision to approve the subject application, rather than the governing body's decision dismissing his appeal, LUBA will affirm the challenged decision. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 26 Or LUBA 22 (1993).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The appeal deadline provisions of ORS 197.830(3) requiring that a notice of intent to appeal be filed within 21 days after petitioner "knew or should have known or had actual notice of the decision" apply only where the local government fails to provide a hearing. DLCD v. Crook County, 25 Or LUBA 826 (1993).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where, under ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-015(1), a notice of intent to appeal is due on a legal holiday, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed if it is filed on the next business day. ORS 187.010(3); OAR 661-10-075(7). Garrigus v. City of Lincoln City, 25 Or LUBA 767 (1993).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. After a local government withdraws an appealed decision pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b) and files a decision on reconsideration with LUBA, if no amended notice of intent to appeal is filed or original notice of intent to appeal is refiled within 21 days after the decision on reconsideration, then the appeal will be dismissed. Gregg v. City of Lake Oswego, 23 Or LUBA 564 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal identifying one land use decision may not later be amended to include a second decision, where no notice of intent to appeal the second decision was filed within the time required by statute and no filing fee or deposit for costs has been paid to challenge the second decision. Hood River Sand v. City of Mosier, 23 Or LUBA 701 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. That a notice of intent to appeal (1) fails to include the date the local decision became final, (2) fails to include petitioner's address and telephone number, and (3) incorrectly identifies the city attorney, constitutes a technical violation of LUBA's rules. However, unless technical violations of LUBA's rules affect the substantial rights of a party, they provide no basis for dismissal. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 23 Or LUBA 679 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8) and 197.615, a notice of intent to appeal a post-acknowledgment plan amendment must be filed at LUBA within 21 days of the date parties who requested notice of the post-acknowledgment plan amendment decision under ORS 199.615(2)(a)(B), were mailed such notice. Crew v. Deschutes County, 23 Or LUBA 148 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal is filed with LUBA more than 21 days after the date the challenged decision became final, under OAR 661-10-015(1) LUBA must dismiss the appeal. Crew v. Deschutes County, 23 Or LUBA 148 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where LUBA receives a check in the amount of the filing fee and deposit for costs required by OAR 661-10-015(4), accompanied by a letter stating petitioner's notice of intent to appeal was mailed separately, and receives the notice of intent to appeal the following day, the date the notice of intent to appeal was received is the date it was "filed." Pilling v. Crook County, 23 Or LUBA 51 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-10-015(1), so long as a notice of intent to appeal is filed before the expiration of the twenty-first day after the decision becomes final, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed. Rabe v. City of Tualatin, 22 Or LUBA 832 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(1), the maintenance of a validly filed notice of intent to appeal is required for LUBA to have jurisdiction over an appeal. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 535 (1992).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where an organizational petitioner timely files a notice of intent to determine in its representational capacity, it is only necessary to determine whether petitioner also filed the notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of the date it, as an organization, is deemed to have actual notice of the challenged decision, if there were a dispute concerning the member's standing upon whom petitioner's representational capacity to bring the appeals and its representational standing depend. Tuality Lands Coalition v. Washington County, 21 Or LUBA 611 (1991).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies more than one decision as the subject of the appeal, LUBA will not dismiss the appeal, but rather will require the petitioners to file an additional filing fee and deposit for costs for each additional decision identified in the notice of intent to appeal, and will treat the proceeding as a consolidated appeal. Union Gospel Ministries v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 557 (1991).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Technical defects in a notice of intent to appeal provide no basis for dismissing an appeal, where such defects cause no prejudice to any party's substantial rights. Tice v. Josephine County, 21 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. If the petitioner's notice of intent to appeal is withdrawn, LUBA must dismiss the appeal. National Advertising Company v. City of Portland, 20 Or LUBA 79 (1990).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner and respondent have settled the disagreement concerning a land use decision which led to the petitioner's filing of a notice of intent to appeal, it is consistent with the policies of ORS 197.805 favoring timely resolution of land use matters and consistency with sound principles governing judicial review to allow the petitioner to withdraw its notice of intent to appeal. National Advertising Company v. City of Portland, 20 Or LUBA 79 (1990).

27.2.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Unlike other documents, which are considered filed when mailed to LUBA, a notice of intent to appeal is filed when delivered to or received by LUBA. OAR 661-10-075(2). Oak Lodge Water District v. Clackamas County, 18 Or LUBA 643 (1990).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. LUBA's rules do not allow LUBA to waive fees. LUBA is not a circuit court, and ORS 21.682 does not apply to LUBA. Dunzer v. Clatsop County, 76 Or LUBA 393 (2017).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. Where a petitioner fails to remit the required fees in the time set pursuant to OAR 661-010-0015(1)(c), LUBA must dismiss the appeal. Dunzer v. Clatsop County, 76 Or LUBA 393 (2017).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. LUBA will not accept an amended notice of intent to appeal that identifies a different decision than that which is the subject of the original notice of intent to appeal, unless the amended notice is accompanied by the fee and deposit required by OAR 661-010-0015(4). Where LUBA accepts such an amended notice, LUBA will not dismiss the amended notice until petitioner has had an opportunity to submit the required fee and deposit. McKy v. Josephine County, 36 Or LUBA 769 (1999).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies more than one decision as the subject of the appeal, LUBA will not dismiss the appeal, but rather will require petitioners to submit the appropriate additional filing fees and deposits for costs for each additional decision identified in the notice of intent to appeal, and will treat the proceeding as a consolidated appeal. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 459 (1996).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. Because petitioner's notice of intent to appeal was accompanied by a check made out to the wrong agency and the error was not corrected before the expiration of the appeal period, LUBA has no jurisdiction over the appeal. Ray v. Douglas County, 30 Or LUBA 238 (1995).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-015(1) and (4) require that a notice of intent to appeal be accompanied by a filing fee of 50 dollars and a deposit for costs of 150 dollars. LUBA will not refund filing fees or deposits for costs when appeals are consolidated. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 23 Or LUBA 715 (1992).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. A notice of intent to appeal identifying one land use decision may not later be amended to include a second decision, where no notice of intent to appeal the second decision was filed within the time required by statute and no filing fee or deposit for costs has been paid to challenge the second decision. Hood River Sand v. City of Mosier, 23 Or LUBA 701 (1992).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies more than one decision as the subject of the appeal, LUBA will not dismiss the appeal, but rather will require the petitioners to file an additional filing fee and deposit for costs for each additional decision identified in the notice of intent to appeal, and will treat the proceeding as a consolidated appeal. Union Gospel Ministries v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 557 (1991).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. LUBA's rules do not require that the notice of intent to appeal contain a statement that the required filing fee and deposit for costs have been paid. Under OAR 661-10-015(1), LUBA will not accept a notice of intent to appeal for filing, unless it is accompanied by the required filing fee and deposit for costs. Tice v. Josephine County, 21 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.2.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Perfecting an Appeal – Payment of Fee and Deposit for Costs. Where petitioner is the prevailing party in a LUBA appeal, LUBA will return petitioner's 150-dollar deposit for costs and petitioner is entitled to an award of costs, in the amount of the filing fee, to be paid by respondents. Sokol v. City of Lake Oswego, 19 Or LUBA 521 (1990).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. When the county submits pre-decision documentation to DLCD in accordance with ORS 197.610(1) which requires local governments to provide information specified in ORS 197.610(3), including a copy of proposed amendments to DLCD, that material is properly included in the record. Also, when the county submits the post-decisional notice and information required by ORS 197.615(1) and (2), the county must either identify their location in the present record or submit them as part of a supplemental record. Additionally, if DLCD sent the county a substantive response to the information the county sent to DLCD, the response should be included in the record. VanDyke v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 1036 (2018).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where one of the bases for a party's motion to consider evidence outside the record is to resolve disputes over the content of the record pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1), such disputes arise and ripen before briefing on the merits, and therefore such motions may be filed prior to the briefing for that purpose. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. To succeed in a motion to take evidence outside the record and pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1), and (2)(a) and (c), regarding an alleged violation of petitioners' rights under the privileges and immunities clause of the Oregon Constitution, and the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution, the movant must develop a legal theory and a set of factual assertions sufficient to allow LUBA to determine how consideration of the proffered evidence would "affect the outcome of the review proceeding." Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. In a motion to take evidence outside the record pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1), and (2)(a) and (c), petitioners' argument—that two city employees violated petitioners' rights under the privileges and immunities clause of the Oregon Constitution, and the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution because the employees engaged in the "unequal" application of the applicable standards in processing two similarly situated planned unit development (PUD) projects—fails to demonstrate that the proffered evidence would concern "procedural irregularities not shown in the record and which, if proved, would warrant reversal or remand of the decision" because petitioners do not allege that the final decision maker violated petitioners' constitutional rights. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(a) a local government may clarify its understanding of all the documents a final decision maker adopted as supporting findings, by collecting all those adopted findings together at the beginning of the record. Rawson v. Hood River County, 75 Or LUBA 200 (2017).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. While LUBA and other public bodies have a statutory obligation to protect confidential archeological information in the record from public disclosure, LUBA lacks statutory authority to order private parties to the appeal to keep confidential information in their private possession from public disclosure. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 75 Or LUBA 534 (2017).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will deny a request for a 90-day extension of the deadline to transmit the record, and conclude that granting the requested extension would be inconsistent with the legislative objective that "time is of the essence in reaching final decisions in matters involving land use," given (1) the petitioners' objection to the extension, (2) the probable brevity of the record, and (3) the petitioners' offer to assist the county in preparing the record. Agnew v. Josephine County, 75 Or LUBA 556 (2017).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A single e-mail to the county discussing the omission of one document from the record is sufficient to satisfy the OAR 661-010-0026(1) obligation to attempt to resolve record objections with the local government's legal counsel prior to filing an objection with LUBA with respect to the identified document, but not with respect to other allegedly omitted documents. Neil v. Columbia County, 74 Or LUBA 614 (2016).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will consider a reply to a response to record objections, where the reply is limited to legal arguments raised in the response to the objections, and does not state additional record objections. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 638 (2016).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where a party objects that the record should include a transcript, attaches the transcript to its record objections and the county thereafter submits a copy of the transcript as a supplemental record, and that transcript has formatting errors that complicate use of the transcript but do not render it unusable, LUBA will deny the party's objection that the county should be ordered to submit the transcript a second time without the formatting errors. Rawson v. Hood River County, 74 Or LUBA 668 (2016).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA interprets OAR 661-010-0025(2)(a) and 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B) to require that all record documents that are retained by the local government until oral argument must be identified on a list at the end of the table of contents. This requirement applies, even if reduced copies of oversized originals or black and white copies of retained color originals are included and indexed in the record that is transmitted to LUBA. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) provides in part that "[w]here an item listed in the table of contents includes attached exhibits, the exhibits shall be separately listed as an exhibit to the item." As a general rule, OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) does not require that exhibits to exhibits must be separately listed in the table of contents. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) provides in part that "[w]here an item listed in the table of contents includes attached exhibits, the exhibits shall be separately listed as an exhibit to the item." Where a record table of contents does not separately list the attachments to a document that is included in the record and identified in the table of contents, but the record table of contents includes a specific or general description of all the attachments, any failure to fully comply with OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) is not a basis for ordering that the table of contents be revised to separately list the attachments. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Including hyperlinks in a document that is submitted for the record in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding is not sufficient, without more, to make the documents that can be accessed via those hyperlinks part of the local government's record. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where a record is transmitted to LUBA in electronic instead of paper format, and the records exceeds 100 pages, the electronic copy of the record must be in the form of a searchable PDF, so that terms and phrases can be easily located. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 71 Or LUBA 409 (2015).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will treat as a belated supplemental record a document attached to the local government's response brief, where there is no dispute that the document was inadvertently omitted from the record transmitted to LUBA, the petition for review assumed the document was in the record, and accepting the belated supplemental record neither prejudices a party's substantial rights nor delays LUBA's review proceeding. Save Downtown Canby v. City of Canby, 70 Or LUBA 68 (2014).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A supplemental traffic impact analysis is included in the local record where it (1) was submitted to city staff to supplement a land use permit application, (2) was submitted in the same way that many documents in the record were submitted, (3) was available to all parties and city council throughout the proceedings, and (4) is referred to in a number of documents in the record and the findings adopted to support the decision. Zian Limited Partnership v. City of Tualatin, 68 Or LUBA 560 (2013).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. OAR 661-010-0025(1) is not exhaustive in its listing of the contents of the record, because it provides "the record shall include at least the following[.]" Save Downtown Canby v. City of Canby, 67 Or LUBA 480 (2013).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Paper or media copies of visual presentations by planning staff to the land use decision maker are properly included in the record that is transmitted to LUBA, even if media or paper copies of that visual presentation were not presented for the record below. Save Downtown Canby v. City of Canby, 67 Or LUBA 480 (2013).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. In determining whether a document was placed before a planning director and therefore part of the record of a planning director's land use decision, documents that were placed before the planning director or a designee in one land use proceeding, but were not separately placed before the planning director or a designee in a second, albeit related land use proceeding are not part of the record of the second related proceeding. Schnitzer Steel Industries, Inc. v. City of Eugene, 67 Or LUBA 484 (2013)

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where three appeals filed by two parties are consolidated together, the local government is required to serve one copy of the record to each of the two petitioners, and is not required to provide two copies to the petitioner who filed two appeals. The number of copies served is based on the parties, not the number of appeals. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 494 (2013).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Notwithstanding OAR 661-010-0025(1), which requires that all "documents or other written materials" that are placed before the decision maker must be included in the record, a local government's consideration of a land use regulation in adopting a land use decision does not, by itself, require that the land use regulation be included as part of the record that must be submitted in a LUBA appeal, unless there is some reason to believe the local government intended to make a copy of the land use regulation part of the record of the local government's proceedings. However, LUBA routinely takes official notice of comprehensive plans and land use regulations under ORS 40.090(7) and OEC 202(7). Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Dunes City, 65 Or LUBA 452 (2012).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A statement in a city council decision that adopts amendments to city septic system regulations that in considering the amendments the city council considered original septic system regulations is not sufficient to incorporate the legislative record of the original septic system regulations as part of the record of the amended septic system regulations. Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Dunes City, 65 Or LUBA 452 (2012).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where a local government has already served the petitioners with a copy of the record during a previous LUBA appeal, in an appeal of the local government's decision following LUBA's remand in that first appeal, the local government is not required to serve on petitioners a second copy of the record it compiled in rendering the initial decision. Sane, Orderly Development, Inc. v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 578 (2011).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Just as a local government errs by refusing to accept relevant evidence, a local government errs if it accepts relevant evidence that is submitted in accordance with local law and then fails to provide that relevant evidence to the local decision maker. Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 60 Or LUBA 274 (2010).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. The OAR 661-010-0026(2) authorization for precautionary record objections was adopted to encourage collaborative resolution of record problems which can eliminate the possibility that LUBA will erroneously resolve complicated record objections or resolve them in a way that will have unintended consequences or complicates resolution of an appeal on the merits. Hoffman v. Deschutes County, 60 Or LUBA 451 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. ORS 661-010-0025(1)(b) requires that the record that a local government transmits to LUBA must include "[a]ll written testimony and all exhibits, maps, documents or other written materials specifically incorporated into the record or placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker, during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker." However, where a city's land use code provides that "[t]he record shall contain all testimony and evidence that is submitted to the City, the Planning Commission, and the City Council and not rejected," testimony and evidence that is submitted to city planning staff must be included in the record, even if it was never actually placed before the city council, which was the final decision maker. Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 59 Or LUBA 519 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where a local government land use code requires that "testimony and evidence" that is transmitted to city planning staff must be included in the record, even if that testimony and evidence was never placed before the ultimate city decision maker, e-mail messages that were sent to planning staff need not be included in the record where the objecting party does not establish that the disputed e-mail messages constitute "testimony and evidence." Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 59 Or LUBA 519 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Local governments that seek additional time to compile and transmit the record to LUBA should contact the other parties and advise LUBA whether any party objects to the requested extension of time. Catholic Diocese of Baker v. Crook County, 59 Or LUBA 530 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Local governments that seek additional time to compile and file the record should advise LUBA of the expected length of the record and any other factors that might have some bearing on the reasonableness of the requested extension of time. Catholic Diocese of Baker v. Crook County, 59 Or LUBA 530 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Parties that object to requests for extensions of time to compile and transmit the record should provide relevant information that will allow LUBA to determine the reasonableness of their objections. Catholic Diocese of Baker v. Crook County, 59 Or LUBA 530 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Parties that object to requests for extensions of time to compile and transmit the record will improve their chances of prevailing if they suggest ways to shorten or simplify the record or offer to assist the local government in compiling and transmitting the record. Catholic Diocese of Baker v. Crook County, 59 Or LUBA 530 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A city may decide that the record of its legislative land use proceeding began when notice was given of the hearing before the planning commission, and does not include earlier scoping and prioritizing proceedings, where that decision is consistent with local law. Such a decision is within any implied limits imposed by ORS 197.830(10)(a) and OAR 661-010-0025(1). Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Documents that were placed before the city council during a scoping and prioritizing stage that predated the commencement of a city legislative land use proceeding need not be included in the record that is filed with LUBA. Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Simply making documents available on a local government's website does not make them part of the record of a legislative land use proceeding. However, where the local government expresses an intent that specified documents that are available on the city's website should be considered by the decision makers and parties to be part of the record, the fact that the city only provides paper copies of selected website documents to the local decision makers does not mean that the other website documents are not also part of the record. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 58 Or LUBA 703 (2009).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Notes taken by the recording clerk at a hearing conducted by a hearings officer are not "minutes" of the hearing for purposes of the OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c) requirement to include minutes of the local proceedings in the record. Ford v. Jackson County, 54 Or LUBA 434 (2007).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA's scope of review is not limited to the local government record under ORS 197.835(2)(a) when LUBA is considering whether the decision on appeal is a land use decision that is subject to LUBA review. Making that threshold jurisdictional inquiry does not entail "[r]eview of the decision," within the meaning of ORS 197.835(2)(a). Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 54 Or LUBA 692 (2007).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. OAR 661-010-0025(2), which allows local governments to "retain any large maps, tapes, or difficult-to-duplicate documents and items until the date of oral argument," attempts to strike a balance between the parties' need to have easy and convenient access to the record to prepare their briefs and the difficult and costly burden a local government may face in making the required number of copies of a record that includes documents that for some reason cannot be duplicated or cannot easily be duplicated using standard office copying equipment. Walker v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 752 (2007).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Although OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b) allows a local government to incorporate documents into the record, even though those documents are not physically placed before the local government in a land use proceeding, the local government must actually incorporate such documents. Acknowledging that a party has requested that a document be incorporated as part of the record is not the same thing as granting that request. Rhinhart v. Umatilla County, 53 Or LUBA 601 (2006).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Proceedings after remand from LUBA are a continuation of the original proceedings. Therefore, if the local government has already served the petitioners with a copy of the record from the previous LUBA appeal, the general rule is that the local government is not required to re-serve the petitioners with another copy of the previous LUBA record. Foland v. Jackson County, 53 Or LUBA 629 (2007).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will make an exception to the general rule that a local government does not need to re-serve petitioners with a copy of the previous LUBA record when the local government already served those petitioners a copy of the previous LUBA appeal, when the decision on remand was made more than 10 years after LUBA remanded the local government's decision. Foland v. Jackson County, 53 Or LUBA 629 (2007).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where a motion to take evidence is filed regarding an outstanding record objection and the content of the local record, the motion will be denied as moot where the motion and pleadings provide sufficient information to determine the content of the record. Rickreall Community Water Assoc. v. Polk County, 52 Or LUBA 772 (2006).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Under OAR 661-010-0026(1), before filing a record objection, a party is required to consult with the governing body's legal counsel. Where a party does so and the local government thereafter submits a supplemental record three days after the 14-day deadline for filing record objections expires, the party's failure to file a record objection provides no basis for rejecting the supplemental record. Jaffer v. City of Monmouth, 51 Or LUBA 803 (2006).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. While mere reference to a document in testimony is an insufficient basis to conclude that the referenced document is incorporated into the record, where the decision itself refers to a document in a manner that suggests the document was considered by the decision maker, absent some reason to conclude otherwise the document is part of the record. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 51 Or LUBA 826 (2006).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where the challenged decision refers to and requires specific changes to existing storm water management manuals, that is some indication that the decision maker reviewed those manuals, and the burden shifts to the respondent to substantiate its assertion that the manuals were not in fact before the decision maker. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 51 Or LUBA 826 (2006).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Documents may be incorporated into a land use decision only if the decision maker clearly indicates the intent to do so and adequately identifies the document incorporated. Statements that a stormwater permit includes "best management practices" does not mean that documents described under federal regulations as "best management practices" are incorporated into the permit. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 51 Or LUBA 826 (2006).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where the record was mailed to and received by petitioner and LUBA, the deadline for filing the petition for review expires 21 days after the record is received by LUBA, and petitioner's claim that he did not receive a letter from LUBA advising him of the date LUBA received the record does not affect that deadline. Cunningham v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 58 (2005).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will not summarily deny record objections based on the objectors' failure to first consult with the local government's counsel under OAR 661-010-0026(1), where although it appeared that one of the objecting parties consciously violated the consultation requirement, it was not clear that another of the objecting parties was aware of the consultation requirement, and the county had already caused a 77-day delay by filing the record late. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 756 (2005).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where LUBA can understand a party's presentation and arguments, the local government's failure to provide oversized exhibits for use at oral argument does not prejudice the party's substantial rights. McCulloh v. City of Jacksonville, 49 Or LUBA 345 (2005).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where the final decision maker dictates that the city will accept additional written submissions only until a prescribed date, and city staff acts under that dictate to reject a document submitted after the prescribed date, the final decision maker has "rejected" the document, for purposes of determining the content of the record. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA 712 (2005).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where a local government conducts a single combined hearing on two separate permit applications, documents that clearly relate to only one application are not part of the record of the other application. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA 712 (2005).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where the evidentiary record has closed and a local appeal to the city council is limited to the evidentiary record that was compiled before the initial local hearings body, an attorney's reference to a deed to "illustrate" his argument to the city council is not sufficient to place the deed before the decision maker, so that it would become part of the city's record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Nash v. City of Medford, (2004).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Although the local government record may be necessary to determine whether a city improperly failed to follow applicable procedures in issuing a building permit, the local record may not be needed to determine whether LUBA has jurisdiction to consider an appeal challenging that building permit. Where the local government moves to dismiss the appeal contending that LUBA lacks jurisdiction to review the building permit and petitioner makes no attempt to explain why the record is necessary to determine whether that building permit is a land use decision or limited land use decision, LUBA will not require that the local government file the record until after LUBA rules on the jurisdictional question. Wetzel v. City of Eugene, 47 Or LUBA 631 (2004).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. That LUBA may take judicial notice of an ordinance, comprehensive plan or enactment pursuant to OEC 202(7) does not mean that that item is or should be part of the record. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Medford, 47 Or LUBA 650 (2004).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA's rules do not specify whether the copy of the record that local governments are required to file and serve must be paper copies. Where petitioner does not contend that he is unable to access a part of the record that is provided in electronic format only or that the electronic format of part of the record hampers his ability to prepare for the appeal, LUBA will allow a record that is provided, in part, on a compact disk. Ramsey v. Multnomah County, 44 Or LUBA 828 (2003).

27. 3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A city's motion to extend the time for filing the record pending LUBA's resolution of its motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction will be denied, where LUBA determines that the city's record is necessary to resolve the jurisdictional question. Dean v. City of Springfield, 43 Or LUBA 632 (2002).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where a local government concedes that documents identified by petitioners are properly included in the record, LUBA will require that the city submit a supplemental record to include the documents. Petitioners may not submit a supplemental record; only the respondent may submit the record in a LUBA appeal. Tirumali v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 565 (2001).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Mail service of the notice of intent to appeal is complete on deposit in the mail. That the county did not receive the notice does not waive its obligation to file the record with LUBA, particularly when it had actual knowledge that the notice had been filed with LUBA. Petersen v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 799 (2001).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A lengthy delay in filing the local record with LUBA does not substantially prejudice petitioner's right to the speediest practicable review, where the delay was partially attributable to petitioner's failure to bring the local government's noncompliance to LUBA's attention. Petersen v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 799 (2001).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA may consider evidence outside of the local record for the limited purpose of determining whether it has jurisdiction without the necessity of granting motions to take evidence outside of the record. Neighbors for Sensible Dev. v. City of Sweet Home, 39 Or LUBA 766 (2001).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Under OAR 661-010-0025(4)(b) the record in a LUBA appeal may be incorporated by reference in the record of a subsequent LUBA appeal. However, where this is done, any parties in the subsequent LUBA appeal who did not receive a copy of the record in the first LUBA appeal must be provided a copy of that record. Waibel v. Crook County, 39 Or LUBA 749 (2000).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will consider documents that are not included in the record in deciding whether an appeal is moot. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 743 (2000).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to consider evidence that is not included in the record, where the moving party fails to demonstrate that any of the criteria for granting such a motion under OAR 661-010-0045(1) are met and the evidence the moving party seeks to have included does not render the appeal moot. Dept. of Transportation v. City of Eugene, 38 Or LUBA 814 (2000).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A county attorney's decision to forward certain letters from petitioners' attorney to the county attorney to the board of county commissioners is not sufficient to establish either a common practice that all letters to the county attorney are included in the record or a reasonable expectation on the part of petitioners' attorney that such letters would be included in the local record. Western States v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 987 (1999).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Petitioners' attorney's letter to the county's attorney is properly excluded from the record where the letter is not submitted for the record in the manner specified in the notice of hearing, and the letter does not include a request that the letter be included in the record. Western States v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 987 (1999).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A motion to supplement the record filed after the petition for review and respondent's brief have been filed will be denied where it is not clear whether the document to be added to the record was placed before the decision maker, and no "unique circumstances" are identified to warrant supplementing the record at such a late state of the appeal. Root v. City of Medford, 36 Or LUBA 778 (1999).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will reject a supplemental record submitted after the petition for review has been filed, where the city fails to explain why the material in the supplemental record is properly part of the local record, and fails to establish that any "unique circumstances" exist justifying untimely filing of the supplemental record. Terra v. City of Newport, 36 Or LUBA 754 (1999).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA will grant a motion to strike documents attached to the petition for review, where those documents are neither part of the record submitted to LUBA nor documents of which LUBA may take official notice. Friends of Clean Living v. Polk County, 36 Or LUBA 544 (1999).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. In addressing a substantial evidence challenge, where the response brief provides no transcripts or partial transcripts and provides no assistance in locating the portion of the audio tapes in the record where relevant testimony is located, LUBA will not search for testimony on audio tapes. Best Buy in Town, Inc. v. Washington County, 35 Or LUBA 446 (1999).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Under OAR 661-010-0025(2) and (3), a local government is not required to include copies of audiotapes with the record served on petitioner. The local government is only required to make the tapes available to petitioner for copy or transcription at petitioner's expense. Beaman v. City of Hillsboro, 34 Or LUBA 779 (1998).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A local government is not required to include a verbatim transcript of tape recordings in the record if such a transcript was not actually prepared for the proceedings below. Beaman v. City of Hillsboro, 34 Or LUBA 779 (1998).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. In deciding jurisdictional challenges, LUBA will consider material attached to the parties' briefs if no party objects. If a party does object, the appropriate means to introduce evidence from outside the record is through a motion for an evidentiary hearing. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 31 Or LUBA 126 (1996).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A request to supplement the local government record made at the time of oral argument is untimely and will be denied. Lyon v. Linn County, 28 Or LUBA 402 (1994).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. The local record must be submitted to LUBA by the local government, rather than by other parties to an appeal. OAR 660-10-025(2). Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 28 Or LUBA 749 (1994).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A local government may specify the methodology for making documents that are not submitted at the local hearings part of the local record in the local code, or may identify the methodology during the course of the local proceedings. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 725 (1994).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. If LUBA allows the record to be supplemented after the petition for review is filed, petitioners must be given an opportunity to file a new petition for review. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 715 (1994).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. In determining whether it has jurisdiction over an appeal, absent some objection from the parties, LUBA will consider materials from the record of a related LUBA appeal that are attached to parties' briefs, as well as other material in the record of that related appeal. Leonard v. Union County, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. The local record consists of those items physically placed before and not specifically rejected by the local decision maker. Forest Highlands Neigh. Assoc. v. Lake Oswego, 23 Or LUBA 723 (1992).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. LUBA's review is limited by ORS 197.830(13)(a) to the record of the proceeding below, except in instances where an evidentiary hearing is authorized by ORS 197.830(13)(b). Therefore, local government enactments of which LUBA takes official notice under OEC 202 do not thereby become part of the local record which may provide evidentiary support for the challenged decision. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 291 (1992).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Words spoken during the proceedings before the local decision maker are considered part of the local record, even where tapes of the local proceedings are not submitted to LUBA with the local record. Transcripts of the tapes of such local proceedings may be submitted to LUBA by the parties. Citizens for Resp. Growth v. City of Seaside, 23 Or LUBA 100 (1992).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where respondent's motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction is based solely on the legal nature of the challenged decision, and petitioner does not explain why the local government record would provide any assistance in determining the legal nature of the challenged decision, LUBA will grant respondent's motion to delay filing the record until after the motion to dismiss is resolved. Goose Hollow Foothills Assoc. v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 555 (1991).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Local governments may list record items which are difficult to duplicate, such as photographs, slides, maps and videotapes, as "exhibits" in the record table of contents and submit them to LUBA at the time of oral argument. Local governments are not required to serve petitioners with a copy of such items. OAR 661-10-025(2),(3) and (4)(a)(B). Eckis v. Linn County, 20 Or LUBA 589 (1991).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. A document appended to a party's petition for review or brief becomes part of the record of LUBA's proceeding. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 20 Or LUBA 246 (1990).

27.3.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Generally. Where there is no dispute concerning the authenticity or identity of a document a party believes was improperly excluded from the record by the local government, the parties may stipulate that the document be included in the LUBA record for the limited purpose of reviewing the correctness of the local government's decision to exclude the document from the local government record. Alternatively, the document may be attached to a party's brief, and if any party objects to LUBA's consideration of the document, the party offering the document may move for an evidentiary hearing. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 19 Or LUBA 548 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a state agency is required to satisfy overlapping state and federal public participation requirements in adopting a facility plan, where the agency forms a planning advisory committee (PAC) to satisfy those requirements, where the PAC holds a number of meetings, where the agency gives an update on the PAC's meetings before adopting a public facility plan, and where the agency includes summaries of those meetings as an appendix to the plan, LUBA will conclude that documents and materials generated by the PAC were "placed before" the agency, for purposes of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), and are therefore properly included in the record in an appeal of the agency's adoption of findings in support of its adoption of the plan eight years later. Schaefer v. OAB, 81 Or LUBA 1053 (2020).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A several-hundred-page record that is an unbound collection of loose documents fails to comply with the requirements in OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(A) and (C) that the record be "filed in a suitable folder" and "securely fastened on the left side," and that noncompliance is not merely a "technical violation" under OAR 661-010-0005. Waveseer of Oregon, LLC v. Deschutes County, 81 Or LUBA 1029 (2020).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(E) requires that items in the record be arranged in inverse chronological order, unless the Board grants permission for a different organization. Where the record includes three large groupings, within which are a number of sub-groups, and some of the subgroups are not organized in inverse chronological order, to the extent some items are not located in inverse chronological order, but the defects are not material and do not prevent the parties from locating specific items in the record with reasonable effort and the reorganization might well result in a less accessible record than the present organization, LUBA will not require the county to organize the record to strictly comply with the rule. DLCD v. Douglas County, 79 Or LUBA 1029 (2019).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where staff in a proceeding on a legislative decision (1) provide to the final decision maker hard copies of selected portions of a document, (2) advise the decision-maker that the full hardcopy version of the document is in, or was previously placed in, the record, and (3) the final decision maker does not thereafter reject or limit the staff offer, a reasonable person would understand that the staff has thereby successfully "placed before" the final decision maker the full hardcopy version of the documents within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). DLCD v. Douglas County, 79 Or LUBA 1029 (2019).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(ii) allows the county to retain large maps and other difficult to duplicate items until oral argument, as long as such items are listed at the end of the table of contents. Where large maps displayed during the county's hearings were retained by the county, and the county offers to bring the oversized maps to oral argument, but the county failed to list those maps in the table of contents, the county has failed to prepare an accurate listing of retained items in the table of contents consistent with the rule, and LUBA will order the county to revise the table of contents. DLCD v. Douglas County, 79 Or LUBA 1029 (2019).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Arguments that testimony is inadequately or inaccurately reflected in the minutes of the local proceedings may be adequate to justify requiring a local government to prepare a transcript of the proceedings where the objecting party demonstrates with particularity why the defect in the minutes is material. However, where petitioners' argument is merely that it is challenging to identify the testimony in the local government's voluminous record, and therefore LUBA should allow the documents to "resolve disputes regarding the content of the record," and where petitioner states it "is not clear that the document was actually submitted," there is no dispute regarding the content of the record, and petitioners have provided no basis for LUBA to allow the documents to be part of the record pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1). Restore Oregon v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1041 (2019).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will sustain petitioners' record objections where the local government's only response is that it could not verify that the documents were part of the record due to the lack of a date, signature and/or addressee, and petitioner provides evidence that petitioners sent the documents in question to all city commissioners in writing on April 4, 2018 by providing an email from one of the petitioners to each of the city commissioners with the documents in question attached, prior to the final decision. Restore Oregon v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1041 (2019).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the document to which petitioners object as having been improperly omitted from the record is an email sent by one of the petitioners to some, but not all, members of the city council, and no evidence in the record indicates that the email was submitted into the record by any of the recipients, the record was not "placed before" the final decision maker pursuant to OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Restore Oregon v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1041 (2019).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. When the county submits pre-decision documentation to DLCD in accordance with ORS 197.610(1) which requires local governments to provide information specified in ORS 197.610(3), including a copy of proposed amendments to DLCD, that material is properly included in the record. Also, when the county submits the post-decisional notice and information required by ORS 197.615(1) and (2), the county must either identify their location in the present record or submit them as part of a supplemental record. Additionally, if DLCD sent the county a substantive response to the information the county sent to DLCD, the response should be included in the record. VanDyke v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 1036 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioner does not assert that the media recordings were "specifically incorporated into the record or placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker, during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker," OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), petitioner has not met its burden to demonstrate that the city improperly excluded the disputed items from the record. The city is required to transmit a record to LUBA that includes "all materials included as part of the record during the proceedings before the final decision maker." OAR 661-010-0026(2)(a); OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c). In this proceeding, the city council was the final decision maker. Accordingly, neither OAR 661-010-0026(2)(a) or OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c) require the city to include media recordings of the planning commission hearings in the record. Oster v. City of Silverton, 78 Or LUBA 1079 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A media recording of a planning commission hearing that the city council, the final decisionmaker, did not incorporate into the record is not required to be included in the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c). Oster v. City of Silverton, 78 Or LUBA 1079 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. While the city's failure to include media recordings or transcripts of the planning commission hearings may be a basis for an assignment of error in the petition for review, that does not change the fact that the media recordings and transcript are not part of the record. For purposes of identifying the contents of the record required under OAR 661-010-0025, it does not matter whether the decision maker erred in accepting or excluding evidence. Oster v. City of Silverton, 78 Or LUBA 1079 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0025(1), documents that are "placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker" are part of the record. No additional action by the local decision maker to formally admit such documents is required. Rawson v. Hood River County, 77 Or LUBA 415 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will not require correction of a record that is organized topically rather than in inverse chronological order by date of document as required by OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(E), where the topical organization reflects how the record was presented to the decision-makers below, and provides an equal or better means of accessing and understanding the role of individual documents in the proceedings. Michaelson v. City of Portland, 77 Or LUBA 579 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Audio recordings of preliminary meetings with planning staff that occur prior to the date of application are not part of the record of the decision on the application, unless those recordings are later incorporated into the record or placed before the final decision maker. Michaelson v. City of Portland, 77 Or LUBA 579 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), documents are properly included in the record at LUBA if they were "placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker, during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker." That an updated buildable lands inventory (BLI) was (1) available on the city's website, (2) given to some property owners, and (3) discussed at planning commission and city council meetings is not sufficient to establish that the BLI was "placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker, during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker." Bender v. City of Nehalem, 77 Or LUBA 592 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. If an updated buildable lands inventory (BLI) was placed before the final decision maker and was not rejected, the BLI is part of the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). That the BLI may have erroneously been placed before the final decision maker after the final public hearing was closed may provide a basis for remand but that does not mean the BLI should not be included in the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Bender v. City of Nehalem, 77 Or LUBA 592 (2018).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Deeds that transferred title for property that is the subject of some but not all of the property line adjustments that are the subject matter of the challenged decision, but that nevertheless post-date the decision, were not "placed before" the planner who approved the property line adjustments within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), where the deeds were not actually provided to the planner prior to the decision. Simply because other deeds that also post-date the decision were included in the record, possibly erroneously, does not mean the remainder of the post-decision deeds must also be included in the record. Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 470 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Absent a motion to take evidence outside the record pursuant to OAR 660-010-0045, LUBA has no basis for considering diagrams that illustrate an entire series of property line adjustments that are the subject matter of the challenged decision, but that nevertheless contain hand-drawn lines, text, and other information which indicate at least some of the notations post-date the decision, and therefore the diagrams could not have been "placed before" the planner who approved the property line adjustments. Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 470 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A petitioner's general assertion that all black and white copies of color originals should be replaced with color copies is an insufficient basis to require the local government to further amend the record, absent identification of specific items and some argument that specific black and white copies fail to provide material information present in the color originals. Crowley v. City of Hood River, 76 Or LUBA 475 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although a petitioner's attachment of a self-prepared transcript to portions of an audio recording of the city council meeting illustrates that the local government erroneously characterized petitioner as reaffirming testimony by an advocate in favor of proposed rezoning, petitioner has failed to demonstrate with particularity why the defect in the minutes is material, and therefore failed to establish any reason to delay settling the record to correct immaterial defects in the minutes pursuant to OAR 661-010-0026(3). Crowley v. City of Hood River, 76 Or LUBA 475 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioner may not rely upon a project opponent's attempt to incorporate content into the record by reference before the city council because such an attempt is not a sufficient basis to include the referenced material in the record. Pursuant to OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), only the final decision-maker can "specifically incorporate[]" items into the record by reference. Crowley v. City of Hood River, 76 Or LUBA 475 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioner offers some additional deeds and diagrams from a 2017 legal lot verification proceeding, in a challenge to a 2016 application for multiple property line adjustments, LUBA may not consider the additional post-decision deeds and diagrams where the parties agree that the 2016 application approved more than a single property line adjustment, and thus the deeds and diagrams do not offer anything material as to a "disputed factual allegation in the parties' briefs" pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1). Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 485 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In a motion to take evidence outside the record filed before the parties have submitted briefs, LUBA considers it axiomatic that a document rejected from the local record is not part of the local record, for purposes of settling the content of the record, even if LUBA later concludes, after briefing on the merits, that the document was erroneously rejected from the local record. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0045(1) provides that LUBA may take evidence to resolve disputes regarding the content of the record. Under OAR 661-010-0045(1), LUBA will grant a motion to take evidence to consider evidence regarding the submission of testimony to the decision-maker, where there is an unresolved dispute regarding whether the decision-maker rejected the proffered testimony. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 75 Or LUBA 534 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a party submits confidential information to the local decision-maker and requests that the information be kept confidential, and the decision-maker directs staff to keep the confidential information separate from the public record, the decision-maker has not "rejected" the information from the record, but rather accepted the information, and granted the request to keep the information confidential. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 75 Or LUBA 534 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the petitioner agrees to accept an electronic copy of the record on compact discs pursuant to OAR 661-010-025(2)(a) on the express condition that the electronic copy be searchable, but the first record the local government serves on the petitioner is not searchable, the local government must serve petitioner with a searchable copy of the record on compact discs or the equivalent medium, and cannot fulfill its obligation by simply providing a link to an on-line site that includes a searchable copy of the record. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 75 Or LUBA 534 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Providing the parties with a link to an on-line site that includes an electronic copy of the record, along with a supplemental record developed in response to record objections, is a problematic means of serving the record on the parties and resolving record objections, because on-line links are unreliable, and the documents at the end of those links can be modified without notice. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 75 Or LUBA 534 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents that are only referred to in testimony but not actually placed before the decision maker are not part of the record. Loftis v. City of Beaverton, 75 Or LUBA 558 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A party who gives a PowerPoint presentation in a land use hearing and wants that PowerPoint presentation to be part of the record must place a paper or digital copy of the PowerPoint Presentation before the decision maker. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 75 Or LUBA 561 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A video recording of a land use hearing by a community television station is not properly included in the local government record, because the local government did not make the recording and has no control over the television station. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 75 Or LUBA 561 (2017).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a party discusses a deed during her testimony below, but fails to submit a copy of the deed to the local government, in the mistaken belief that the deed had already been submitted, the deed was not placed before the final decision maker, and is not part of the local record. Neil v. Columbia County, 74 Or LUBA 614 (2016).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will consider an uncontested affidavit that a hearings officer considered only portions of the record of a lot-of-record decision provided by the applicant, and did not consider the entire record, to resolve an objection that the entire record was placed before the hearings officer. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 638 (2016).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Planning staff e-mails with the applicant regarding writing the final decision are not part of the record of a decision by the county board of commissioners, unless the e-mails are "placed before" the commissioners. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 638 (2016).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A photograph that is shown to but not given to the final decision maker is not "placed before * * * the final decision maker" within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b) and is not properly included in the record that is transmitted to LUBA. Rawson v. Hood River County, 74 Or LUBA 668 (2016).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will accept a record organization that consists of the challenged hearings officer's decision with all other documents attached as exhibits to that decision, notwithstanding that the documents within the exhibits are not organized in inverse chronological order as required by OAR 661-010-0025(4)(E), where the record was organized in that way before the hearings officer, and the table of contents lists each document, so locating individual documents requires little effort. Frewing v. City of Portland, 73 Or LUBA 392 (2016).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. As a general rule, OAR 661-010-0025(4)(B)(i) does not require that exhibits to exhibits must be separately listed in the table of contents, although an exception to that general rule may be warranted where an exhibit is made up of many unrelated documents. Pinnacle Alliance Group, LLC v. City of Sisters, 72 Or LUBA 480 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA interprets OAR 661-010-0025(2)(a) and 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B) to require that all record documents that are retained by the local government until oral argument must be identified on a list at the end of the table of contents. This requirement applies, even if reduced copies of oversized originals or black and white copies of retained color originals are included and indexed in the record that is transmitted to LUBA. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) provides in part that "[w]here an item listed in the table of contents includes attached exhibits, the exhibits shall be separately listed as an exhibit to the item." As a general rule, OAR 661-010-

0025(4)(a)(B)(i) does not require that exhibits to exhibits must be separately listed in the table of contents. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) provides in part that "[w]here an item listed in the table of contents includes attached exhibits, the exhibits shall be separately listed as an exhibit to the item." Where a record table of contents does not separately list the attachments to a document that is included in the record and identified in the table of contents, but the record table of contents includes a specific or general description of all the attachments, any failure to fully comply with OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) is not a basis for ordering that the table of contents be revised to separately list the attachments. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Including hyperlinks in a document that is submitted for the record in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding is not sufficient, without more, to make the documents that can be accessed via those hyperlinks part of the local government's record. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 482 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where LUBA finds a development agreement is a precondition for the local government's application of special spacing standards to a proposed truck stop and remands the decision, the record in a subsequent appeal of a decision approving the development agreement includes the record of the appeal that led to the original remand, at least in circumstances where LUBA cannot tell whether the prior record will be needed to allow LUBA to review the development agreement. Space Age Fuel, Inc. v. Umatilla County, 71 Or LUBA 378 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the minutes of a city council meeting state that a party read aloud and submitted a letter, and further state that the letter "will be included as part of tonight's record copy," the letter should be included in the record because it was "placed before, and not rejected by" the city council at the city council hearing on an application, within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(2). Harrison v. City of Cannon Beach, 71 Or LUBA 422 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0025, the "course of proceedings before the final decision maker" includes any public hearing or public meeting on an application held by the final decision maker, even where the evidentiary record is closed and no public testimony or other evidence is allowed. Although the evidentiary record may be closed, that does not mean that any documents that are generated during the post-evidentiary phase of the local proceedings in order to adopt the final decision and provide required notices of that decision need not be included in the record. Harrison v. City of Cannon Beach, 71 Or LUBA 422 (2015).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the local code provides that the final order being appealed is part of the record of an appeal of an administrative decision to the city council, the initial city manager decision on an application is included in the record by operation of law. Smith v. City of Gearhart, 70 Or LUBA 519 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will deny a record objection asserting that a newspaper clipping in the record was not placed before the city council, where the minutes of the city council hearing reflect that a city council member read from the clipping as part of her disclosure of ex parte communications, which supports the city's position that the clipping was placed into the record. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will deny an objection that the minutes of a city council hearing are incomplete, because the minutes fail to summarize the oral arguments of petitioner's attorney, where the same arguments are found in writing elsewhere in the record, and petitioner's argument that the defect in the minutes is "material" rests on speculation that petitioner will advance assignments of error to which, petitioner speculates, the respondent might raise waiver challenges. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will require a local government to provide a partial transcript of the city council's deliberations, where the minutes provide no summary at all of the deliberations, and petitioner demonstrates that the defect is material to a key issue in the appeal. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Any error in the record table of contents in describing a city council proceeding as a "hearing" rather than a "meeting" does not warrant a revised table of contents, because how the table of contents describes the proceeding cannot change the nature of that proceeding. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence to consider an affidavit regarding whether building plans were "placed before" the final decision-maker and thus are part of the local record, where there is no factual dispute that the building plans were not placed before the final decisionmaker, and whether the plans belong in the record depends on a legal argument that the plans were included in the record by operation of law. A motion to take evidence is warranted only where there are disputed factual allegations; a dispute over the legal consequences of undisputed facts is not a basis for LUBA to consider extra-record evidence. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Building plans that are submitted to planning staff as part of an application for site plan review are not necessarily part of the local record transmitted to LUBA, if the building plans are not "placed before" the final decision maker, and no local regulation or other source of law incorporates all documents submitted as part of an application as part of the local record by operation of law. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Items rejected from the local record are properly excluded from the record transmitted to LUBA. Where a local government rejects portions of a document, and includes only a redacted version of the document in the record, the petitioner may attach to the petition for review the unredacted document, in support of any of an assignment of error alleging that the local government erred in rejecting the redacted portions. If no party objects, LUBA will consider the attached document for the limited purpose of resolving that procedural assignment of error. If a party objects, the petitioner may file a motion to take evidence to allow LUBA to consider the unredacted document for that same limited purpose. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a city submits an original five-volume record, and later submits an "amended" nine-volume record and requests that the amended record replace the original record, but the amended record inadvertently omits a number of documents, the simplest solution is for the original record to remain part of the record, and allow parties to cite to the original record to the extent necessary. Terra Hydr Inc. v. City of Tualatin, 68 Or LUBA 511 (2013).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Providing an electronic link to a document located on a city's website is an insufficient means to provide a copy of the document to LUBA and the parties as part of the local record. Terra Hydr Inc. v. City of Tualatin, 68 Or LUBA 511 (2013).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A supplemental traffic impact analysis is included in the local record where it (1) was submitted to city staff to supplement a land use permit application, (2) was submitted in the same way that many documents in the record were submitted, (3) was available to all parties and city council throughout the proceedings, and (4) is referred to in a number of documents in the record and the findings adopted to support the decision. Zian Limited Partnership v. City of Tualatin, 68 Or LUBA 560 (2013).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(1) is not exhaustive in its listing of the contents of the record, because it provides "the record shall include at least the following[.]" Save Downtown Canby v. City of Canby, 67 Or LUBA 480 (2013).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Paper or media copies of visual presentations by planning staff to the land use decision maker are properly included in the record that is transmitted to LUBA, even if media or paper copies of that visual presentation were not presented for the record below. Save Downtown Canby v. City of Canby, 67 Or LUBA 480 (2013).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Unless the local code provides otherwise, permit proceedings generally begin when the application is filed, for purposes of compiling the local record of a land use permit proceeding. Recordings or minutes of city council work sessions conducted prior to submission of the application are not part of the record of the land use permit proceeding. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 494 (2013)

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Written notes or documents created by individual city council members and not shared with the city council are not "placed before" the final decision maker for purposes of OAR 661-010-0025, and are not part of the record. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 494 (2013)

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The major concern of OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B), which requires that the record table of contents separately list exhibits attached to items, is to avoid listing as a single item large collections of documents spanning numerous pages. The rule is less concerned with documents with one or two short attachments, where such attached documents can be located with reasonable effort. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 494 (2013)

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the local government on remand from LUBA conducts a single, consolidated proceeding that results in adoption of two ordinances and an order, on appeal of the two ordinances to LUBA the record includes the unappealed order, because the order was placed before the final decision maker during the proceedings on the ordinances. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 427 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A statement in a staff memorandum to the planning commission that documents are "made a part of the record and are available" on a city website is insufficient to incorporate the documents into the record. Central Oregon Landwatch v. City of Bend, 66 Or LUBA 445 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will deny as unnecessary a motion to take evidence to accept a supplemental record that includes a copy of the notice of adoption sent to DLCD, which is required to be included in the record pursuant to OAR 660-010-0025(1)(d). LUBA will accept the untimely filed supplemental record over the petitioner's objection, where the untimely submission does not prejudice any party's substantial rights. Conte v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 326 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a later version of a staff report is the only version of the staff report that was placed before the local government decision maker, an earlier version of the staff report that was made available to the public prior to the final public hearing need not be included in the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). In that circumstance, the earlier version of the staff report also need not be included in the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(d), which requires that the record in a LUBA appeal include local notices of hearing without regard to whether the notices were actually placed before the decision maker, where the earlier version of the staff report was not included with the notice of hearing and the notice of hearing merely provided information about how to obtain a copy of the earlier version of the staff report. Heitsch v. City of Salem, 65 Or LUBA 449 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Notwithstanding OAR 661-010-0025(1), which requires that all "documents or other written materials" that are placed before the decision maker must be included in the record, a local government's consideration of a land use regulation in adopting a land use decision does not, by itself, require that the land use regulation be included as part of the record that must be submitted in a LUBA appeal, unless there is some reason to believe the local government intended to make a copy of the land use regulation part of the record of the local government's proceedings. However, LUBA routinely takes official notice of comprehensive plans and land use regulations under ORS 40.090(7) and OEC 202(7). Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Dunes City, 65 Or LUBA 452 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A statement in a city council decision that adopts amendments to city septic system regulations that in considering the amendments the city council considered original septic system regulations is not sufficient to incorporate the legislative record of the original septic system regulations as part of the record of the amended septic system regulations. Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Dunes City, 65 Or LUBA 452 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B) requires that a record table of contents list "each item contained therein" and that "where a listed item includes attached exhibits, its exhibits shall be separately listed." A document that is submitted independently of any other document during the proceedings below is an "item" rather than an "exhibit" for the purposes of OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B). An "exhibit," for the purposes of OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B), is a document that is "attached" to a lead document that is listed as an "item." Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 65 Or LUBA 479 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Content/Form. That items are improperly listed as exhibits and are not organized in inverse chronological order is not sufficient to prejudice any party's substantial rights, where the added minor degree of difficulty in locating unidentified exhibits in the record resulting from a failure to list those exhibits in violation of OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B) does not warrant further delay in the appeal solely to require submission of a revised table of contents. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 65 Or LUBA 479 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Content/Form. Even if documents were untimely submitted into the record during the proceedings below, and should have been excluded from the record, that does not mean that other untimely submitted documents should also be included. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 65 Or LUBA 479 (2012).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record –Content/Form. LUBA will sustain an objection that the record fails to include documents and attachments that were submitted by sending an email message and attachments to a planner with a request that the email message and attachments be included in the record, where the record includes other documents that were submitted to the county planner in the same fashion. Sane, Orderly Development, Inc. v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 578 (2011).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Deviation from the requirement in OAR 661-010-0025(4) that the record be organized in inverse chronological order is permissible, where placing documents with attachments in the same form and relationship they were presented below results in a more usable and accurate record than one in which the documents and attachments are organized by strict document date. Devin Oil Co., Inc. v. Morrow County, 62 Or LUBA 484 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A code provision stating that the governing body's "review proceeding" shall be based upon the record of the decision being reviewed is not properly understood to automatically incorporate into the record before the governing body the entire record of a planning commission recommendation on a proposed comprehensive plan amendment, where in context it is clear that "review proceeding" refers to circumstances where the governing body calls up a planning commission decision for review, and does not refer to mandatory review of a planning commission recommendation. Devin Oil Co., Inc. v. Morrow County, 62 Or LUBA 484 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Local government staff cannot effect the incorporation of an unrelated LUBA appeal record into the local record by simply stating so in the record table of contents, if the unrelated record was not actually included or incorporated in fact or by operation of law into the record below. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 496 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where local government staff brings the record of an unrelated LUBA appeal to the hearing before the planning commission and gives the commissioners packets including a link to the city's website where an electronic copy of the record of that unrelated appeal can be viewed, that is sufficient to demonstrate that the unrelated record was "placed before" the planning commission. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 496 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Because LUBA does not retain its copy of the record after the appeal is finished, where the record table of contents reflects the incorporation of an old LUBA appeal record into the local record pursuant to OAR 661-010-0025(4)(b), the local government must transmit a copy of that old LUBA appeal record to LUBA as part of local record of the decision on appeal. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 496 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the planning commission conducts a hearing on an appeal of a staff decision, the staff decision is necessarily "placed before" the planning commission and hence part of the record of the planning commission decision. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 496 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Absent an express indication that a local government intended that documents on the local government's website would become part of the record of a land use proceeding, the mere act of making documents available on a website is not sufficient to place the documents before a decision maker, just as making documents in a physical folder in the planning department's central files available to the public is not sufficient to place those documents before the decision maker. Gunderson, LLC v. City of Portland, 62 Or LUBA 505 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Even prior to 2010 amendments to OAR 661-010-0025(4), LUBA interpreted the rule to require that the record table of contents separately list attachments or exhibits to documents, where the attachments comprise a large portion of the record and individual documents cannot be located with reasonable effort. Where the table of contents lists four items comprising almost half the 1900-page record, a revised table of contents is necessary to separately list the documents, attachments and exhibits that are part of each item. Setniker v. Polk County, 62 Or LUBA 517 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the record includes incorporated copies of prior LUBA records, the record table of contents must reflect the incorporation, and further the local government must physically transmit a copy of the incorporated records to LUBA, either as part of the record on appeal or by bringing the copy of the incorporated record to LUBA at oral argument. Setniker v. Polk County, 62 Or LUBA 517 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government establishes that documents were placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker during the proceedings before the decision maker, it is irrelevant that the date on the documents pre-dates the date of an application. Willamette Oaks, LLC v. City of Eugene, 62 Or LUBA 522 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a party does not submit a document into the record due to an alleged misunderstanding regarding whether the document is already in the record, such misunderstanding might constitute procedural error if the local government provided misinformation about the content of the record, but it does not provide a basis to conclude that the record must be supplemented to include a document that was not actually submitted into the record. Citizens Against LNG, Inc. v. Coos County, 62 Or LUBA 550 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The act of placing a link on the local government's website to a video recording of a hearing not made by the local government, and that is located on a different website not under the local government's control, does not make the video recording part of the local record. Citizens Against LNG, Inc. v. Coos County, 62 Or LUBA 550 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. While OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(E) mandates that the record in a LUBA appeal be organized in inverse chronological order, LUBA has consistently treated violation of OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(E) as a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules, which requires no remedial action as long as the record is organized in a manner that is reasonably usable by the parties and LUBA. Under OAR 661-010-0005 only two rule violations categorically cannot be treated as "technical violations," and OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(E) is not one of them. Burness v. Douglas County, 61 Or LUBA 530 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. When during the proceedings on remand from LUBA, the local government allows additional argument but no new evidence, and the local government redacts written testimony that it considers new evidence, the unredacted documents are not properly part of the record. Columbia Riverkeeper v. Clatsop County, 60 Or LUBA 454 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. When during the proceedings on remand from LUBA, the local government allows additional argument but no new evidence, the local government is not required to erase oral testimony that contains new evidence from the recordings of meetings submitted to LUBA. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b) only applies to written documents, not oral testimony. Columbia Riverkeeper v. Clatsop County, 60 Or LUBA 454 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where an applicant submits a single narrative to support multiple applications and the planning commission approves each application in a separate decision, but only one decision is appealed to the governing body, the record includes the redacted form of the application narrative that are placed before the final decision maker, not the full narrative that was not placed before the final decision maker. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 60 Or LUBA 497 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A local government may retain a difficult-to-duplicate original photograph and submit that original photograph to LUBA at oral argument. LUBA's rules do not require the local government to provide petitioner with a copy of that original photograph at oral argument. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 60 Or LUBA 497 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a staff report to the final decision maker or similar document collects together testimony and evidence submitted during lower proceedings and that testimony and evidence is attached to the staff report, the record table of contents should separately list such attached documents rather than simply list the staff report. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 60 Or LUBA 497 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the record table of contents lists as a single item a 70-page collection of miscellaneous documents submitted by the applicant on the same date, and significant effort is required to locate particular documents in that collection, the table of contents must be amended to separately list each document. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 60 Or LUBA 497 (2010).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. ORS 661-010-0025(1)(b) requires that the record that a local government transmits to LUBA must include "[a]ll written testimony and all exhibits, maps, documents or other written materials specifically incorporated into the record or placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker, during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker." However, where a city's land use code provides that "[t]he record shall contain all testimony and evidence that is submitted to the City, the Planning Commission, and the City Council and not rejected," testimony and evidence that is submitted to city planning staff must be included in the record, even if it was never actually placed before the city council, which was the final decision maker. Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 59 Or LUBA 519 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In a LUBA appeal that challenges a city letter to a subdivision developer that takes the position that (1) streets in a previously approved and platted subdivision have been improperly constructed and do not comply with tentative subdivision plan conditions of approval and (2) building permits will not be issued for lots in the subdivision until existing violations are corrected, the record that is filed with LUBA must include any documents that were actually placed before the city council in making its decision to send the letter. An objection that the record in the appeal of the letter should include documents that were generated during earlier proceedings that led up to tentative and final subdivision approval decisions that were not appealed to LUBA will be denied where there is no claim that the requested additional documents were placed before the city council during the deliberations that led up to the city sending the letter and the city takes the position that they were not placed before the city council during those deliberations. Calvary Construction, LLC v. City of Glendale, 59 Or LUBA 539 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioner and respondent disagree about when a legislative proceeding began, and if petitioner is correct a large number of additional documents must be added to the record, petitioner's record objection will not be rejected simply because petitioner does not specifically identify each of the documents that petitioner believes should be added to the record. Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. ORS 197.830(10), which requires that a respondent transmit to LUBA "the entire record of the proceeding under review," does not require that every document that has any bearing on a legislative proceeding must be included in the record. Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A city may decide that the record of its legislative land use proceeding began when notice was given of the hearing before the planning commission, and does not include earlier scoping and prioritizing proceedings, where that decision is consistent with local law. Such a decision is within any implied limits imposed by ORS 197.830(10)(a) and OAR 661-010-0025(1). Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents that were placed before the city council during a scoping and prioritizing stage that predated the commencement of a city legislative land use proceeding need not be included in the record that is filed with LUBA. Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Simply making documents available on a local government's website does not make them part of the record of a legislative land use proceeding. However, where the local government expresses an intent that specified documents that are available on the city's website should be considered by the decision makers and parties to be part of the record, the fact that the city only provides paper copies of selected website documents to the local decision makers does not mean that the other website documents are not also part of the record. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 58 Or LUBA 703 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioner objects that mailing lists should not be included in the record, but resolving petitioner's record objection would require LUBA to determine whether notice was in fact sent to persons on the mailing lists, LUBA will allow the mailing lists to remain in the record and resolve any issue concerning whether notices were sent to persons on the mailing lists in its decision on the merits. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 58 Or LUBA 703 (2009).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision discusses an exhibit, but it is not clear whether that discussion is based on (1) review of the exhibit or (2) testimony about the exhibit, and the local government states that the exhibit has long been missing from the city's files and was not before the final decision maker, LUBA will deny an objection based on the omission of the exhibit from the record. Dahlen v. City of Bend, 56 Or LUBA 789 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Because the respondent is the custodian of the record, and petitioner has the ultimate burden of demonstrating that the local record is deficient under OAR 661-010-0026(2), petitioner's mere disagreement with respondent regarding whether a disputed item was submitted to the city during the proceedings below is insufficient to establish that the item was submitted. Curl v. City of Bend, 56 Or LUBA 794 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record must include audio recordings of hearings conducted by the final decision maker leading to the decision under appeal, but audio recordings of a different hearing on a separate land use application leading to a different decision are not part of the record on appeal, even if statements regarding the decision under appeal were made during the hearing on the different application. Curl v. City of Bend, 56 Or LUBA 794 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A statement in petitioner's written testimony that it is accompanied by other documents "submitted to support" the testimony is insufficient to establish that petitioner actually submitted the referenced documents into the record of the decision on appeal, where the written testimony is copied from a document submitted in a different land use matter and the city disputes that the referenced documents were actually submitted into the record of the decision on appeal. Curl v. City of Bend, 56 Or LUBA 794 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(4) requires that both the record filed with LUBA and the copy of the record served on the petitioner be "securely fastened on the left side." Where the copy filed with LUBA is organized into five binders but the copy served on petitioner consists of a 3,000-page unbound collection of loose documents, LUBA will order the respondent to provide petitioner with binders or a similar suitable means to fasten together the service copy. Curl v. City of Bend, 56 Or LUBA 794 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0075(6), a county may only appear in a LUBA appeal through an attorney. Where the county attorney advises LUBA that the county will not participate in an appeal, and the county planning department latter provides LUBA with a copy of its letter responding to the petitioner's record objections, LUBA will not treat that letter as the county's response to petitioner's record objections. SOPIP v. Coos County, 56 Or LUBA 802 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A record table of contents that lists thousands of pages of miscellaneous documents spread over several volumes as a single item does not comply with the OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B) requirement that the table of contents list each item contained therein. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 55 Or LUBA 669 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the petitioner and local government simply disagree about whether particular pages were included in a copy of a document that was submitted to the local government for inclusion in the record, absent reason to proceed otherwise, LUBA will generally accept the local government's position, as the custodian of the record. Curl v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 719 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government transmits a 4,457-page record to LUBA in eight three-ring binders but serves a copy of that record on petitioner without similarly placing the record in three-ring binders or otherwise securely fastening the record on the left side as required by OAR 661-010-25(4)(a)(C), LUBA will require that the local government supply record binders to petitioner. Curl v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 719 (2008).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents that are on a medium other than plain printer paper, such that they are not easily copied on a standard office black and white copier are properly omitted from the record that is initially transmitted to LUBA and retained by a local government and separately transmitted to LUBA as part of the record at the time set for oral argument under OAR 661-010-0025(2). Walker v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 752 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents that are oddly shaped or sufficiently large that they cannot be easily reduced and printed on a standard 8-1/2-by-11-inch page by a standard office copier, are properly retained by a local government at the time it initially transmits the record to LUBA and separately transmitted to LUBA as part of the record at the time set for oral argument under OAR 661-010-0025(2). Walker v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 752 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record submitted by a local government must include color copies or black and white copies of any color documents that are on 8-1/2-by-11-inch pages or on pages that are easily reduced to 8-1/2-by-11-inch pages by standard office copiers. If black and white copies of color originals are included in the record, the color originals must be submitted at the time set for oral argument in accordance with OAR 661-010-0025(2). Walker v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 752 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c) itself does not require local governments to prepare minutes of proceedings before a hearings officer; instead, the rule simply requires that any minutes that are "required by law" must be included in the record. Ford v. Jackson County, 54 Or LUBA 778 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b) allows a local government to incorporate documents into the record, even though those documents are not physically placed before the local government in a land use proceeding, the local government must actually incorporate such documents. Acknowledging that a party has requested that a document be incorporated as part of the record is not the same thing as granting that request. Rhinhart v. Umatilla County, 53 Or LUBA 601 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A party's argument that the record should be supplemented with a written summary of the party's conversation with a city planner will be denied where petitioner does not claim that the city was required by law to keep minutes of planning staff conversations regarding zoning confirmation applications or make tape recordings of such conversations. Jackson v. City of Portland, 53 Or LUBA 612 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Meetings in which one city commissioner participated are not "proceedings before the final decision maker," within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Thunderbird Hotels, LLC v. City of Portland, 53 Or LUBA 625 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the decision makes clear that reports referred to in the decision were not before the local government during the deliberations that led to the challenged decision, such reports are not properly part of the record. Thunderbird Hotels, LLC v. City of Portland, 53 Or LUBA 625 (2007).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the parties agree to include documents in the record of a LUBA appeal that go beyond the minimum requirements of OAR 661-010-0025(1), LUBA has authority to defer to such an agreement. However, LUBA will not defer to an agreement of the parties to supplement the record of a pending LUBA appeal with the record of a related land use proceeding that is pending before the local government where (1) it is not clear that all parties agree the record should be supplemented in that way, (2) the pending LUBA appeal would have to be suspended for an unspecified period of time, and (3) there is no apparent need for the requested supplemental record. Wolfgram v. Douglas County, 52 Or LUBA 767 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a county encourages parties to submit documents into the record by faxing them to county planning staff, documents submitted in that manner are part of the local record. Rickreall Community Water Assoc. v. Polk County, 52 Or LUBA 772 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record table of contents complies with OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B) if it is specific enough to enable the parties to locate individual documents in the record with reasonable effort. Rickreall Community Water Assoc. v. Polk County, 52 Or LUBA 772 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a plan for prioritizing and funding park facilities is separated from a larger, more comprehensive parks planning effort that was initiated by the city planning commission, and the plan for prioritizing and funding park facilities is thereafter subject to public hearings by the city council without any recommendation from the planning commission and adopted separately from the larger more comprehensive parks planning effort, the record of that plan for prioritizing and funding park facilities need not include any part of the record of the larger more comprehensive parks planning effort. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 52 Or LUBA 788 (2006)

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Materials submitted to the city council during a "citizen comment" portion of a meeting that occurs after the proceedings related to the decision being appealed have ended, and after the city council has deliberated and reached a decision on the appeal, are not "placed before" the decision maker "during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker," and are not part of the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Sommer v. City of Grants Pass, 52 Or LUBA 802 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. While mere reference to a document in testimony is an insufficient basis to conclude that the referenced document is incorporated into the record, where the decision itself refers to a document in a manner that suggests the document was considered by the decision maker, absent some reason to conclude otherwise the document is part of the record. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 51 Or LUBA 826 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision refers to and requires specific changes to existing storm water management manuals, that is some indication that the decision maker reviewed those manuals, and the burden shifts to the respondent to substantiate its assertion that the manuals were not in fact before the decision maker. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 51 Or LUBA 826 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents may be incorporated into a land use decision only if the decision maker clearly indicates the intent to do so and adequately identifies the document incorporated. Statements that a stormwater permit includes "best management practices" does not mean that documents described under federal regulations as "best management practices" are incorporated into the permit. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 51 Or LUBA 826 (2006).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although small supplemental records may not warrant all of the formalities that are normally required of supplemental records under LUBA's rules, even small record supplements must be accomplished in a way that will allow all parties to (1) keep up with what is included in the record and (2) accurately cite to pages in those documents when they file their briefs. City of Happy Valley v. City of Damascus, 50 Or LUBA 718 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a city's notice of hearing specified a date and time for submitting comments before the city's public hearing and an e-mail message was sent after the date specified in the notice and was not actually placed before the decision maker at the noticed hearing, the e-mail message is properly excluded from the record. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 50 Or LUBA 745 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The failure of a local government to provide LUBA with the entire local record does not in itself require remand. However, where the record is so inadequate that LUBA cannot adequately review the decision, the local government's failure to provide the whole record may result in remand. McCulloh v. City of Jacksonville, 49 Or LUBA 345 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. While OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(B) requires that the record table of contents list "each item," it does not explicitly require that attachments to documents be separately identified. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA 712 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the final decision maker dictates that the city will accept additional written submissions only until a prescribed date, and city staff acts under that dictate to reject a document submitted after the prescribed date, the final decision maker has "rejected" the document, for purposes of determining the content of the record. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA 712 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government conducts a single combined hearing on two separate permit applications, documents that clearly relate to only one application are not part of the record of the other application. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA 712 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The requirement in Statewide Planning Goal 1 (Citizen Involvement) that information "necessary to reach policy decisions" be made available to the public does not supercede the attorney/client privilege, and LUBA may not require that the record be supplemented to include information that the city redacts based on the attorney/client privilege. Forest Hills Easement Assoc. v. City of Lake Oswego, 49 Or LUBA 739 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. E-mails and hand-written marginalia are not "minutes" of "meetings conducted by the final decision maker as required by law," and therefore not part of the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c). Grabhorn v. Washington County, 49 Or LUBA 746 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. E-mails from the final decision maker to other persons are not "placed before" the decision maker, and are therefore not part of the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Further, administrative contacts between staff and the decision maker concerning scheduling hearings do not constitute "written testimony" or "other written materials" that must be included in the record. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 49 Or LUBA 746 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local government record on remand includes the record in the prior appeal that led to remand, unless the prior record is expressly excluded. Even where the issues on remand are narrow, LUBA may require the records from both proceedings in order to understand and resolve challenges to the decision on remand. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 48 Or LUBA 611 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will not require a local government to digitally enhance an inaudible audio tape to make it audible where the moving party does not explain what such enhancement would involve; a local government must take reasonable steps to make an audiotape audible, but LUBA's rules do not require that the local government go to extraordinary lengths to restore faulty recordings. Paterson v. City of Bend, 48 Or LUBA 614 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government regulation requires the local appellate body to review the record of the decision under appeal and additionally consider any new evidence submitted into the record at the appeal hearing, the record of decision on appeal becomes part of the appellate body's record as a matter of law. Papadopoulos v. Benton County, 48 Or LUBA 634 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the evidentiary record has closed and a local appeal to the city council is limited to the evidentiary record that was compiled before the initial local hearings body, an attorney's reference to a deed to "illustrate" his argument to the city council is not sufficient to place the deed before the decision maker, so that it would become part of the city's record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Nash v. City of Medford, 48 Or LUBA 647 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 to resolve disputes regarding the content of the record that concern testimony and documents placed before the board of commissioners in executive session. LUBA lacks authority to compel the local government to include in the record testimony and documents placed before the governing body in executive session. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 48 Or LUBA 657 (2005).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a planning commission specifically rejects proffered evidence and that evidence is neither submitted by parties to the board of county commissioners on appeal nor forwarded to the board of commissioners by county planning staff, that rejected evidence is not included in the record. Nez Perce Tribe v. Wallowa County, 47 Or LUBA 620 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Notwithstanding a dispute among the parties about whether the county decision maker properly considered certain evidence after the evidentiary phase of the local proceedings concluded, where the decision maker specifically excluded that evidence from the record, that evidence is not properly included in the local record filed with LUBA. Nez Perce Tribe v. Wallowa County, 47 Or LUBA 620 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c) does not necessarily require local governments to include in the record minutes of every meeting of the final decision maker where a development proposal is mentioned. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Medford, 47 Or LUBA 650 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A petitioner may assign error to a hearings officer's refusal to reopen the local record following a LUBA remand, but where it is undisputed that the photographs that petitioner seeks to have added to the local record were not placed before the hearings officer in his initial deliberations or in his deliberations on remand, those photographs are not part of the local record. Bradley v. Washington County, 46 Or LUBA 805 (2004).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. When documents are part of a local government planning file that is physically present and visible at a public hearing, but the local government does nothing to indicate that the documents are meant to be part of the record, then those documents are not properly part of the record. Naumes Properties, LLC v. City of Central Point, 45 Or LUBA 708 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(2) requires that a local government file a "certified copy of the record." In cases where the original record includes color photographs or other color documents, it is preferable that the local government include color copies of those pages in the copy of the record that is filed with LUBA. Alternatively, it is appropriate for the local government to file a black and white copy of the record and provide the color originals at oral argument. Oien v. City of Beaverton, 45 Or LUBA 722 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Notices of changes to annexation boundaries that are required to be sent pursuant to ORS 198.730 are properly included in the record in an appeal of that annexation decision to LUBA. Miner v. Clatsop County, 45 Or LUBA 748 (2003).

27. 3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. As long as LUBA and the parties can identify and locate documents in the record with reasonable effort, LUBA will not require the local government to revise the table of contents to more specifically identify the contents of an exhibit in the record that includes numerous separate documents. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 45 Or LUBA 754 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where county staff organized the local record into a series of exhibits that were attached to the hearings officer's decision and provided in that form to the final decision maker, LUBA will not require reorganization of the record to more accurately reflect the chronological progress of the proceedings below. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 45 Or LUBA 754 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA may not consider a written statement that is attached to a petition for review to provide information that is not reflected in the record about what occurred during a local land use proceeding, where petitioner fails to demonstrate that one or more of the grounds for considering extra-record evidence under OAR 661-010-0045(1) applies. OCAPA v. City of Mosier, 44 Or LUBA 452 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA does not have authority to order that privileged attorney/client communications be made a part of the record in a LUBA appeal. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 44 Or LUBA 805 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA does not have authority to order that a city include as part of the record in a LUBA appeal transcripts or minutes that may have been prepared of executive sessions. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 44 Or LUBA 805 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision is a single ordinance that rezones a number of different properties, the record includes materials placed in front of the final decision maker with respect to any of the properties affected by the decision. That much of the record material may have no bearing on petitioner's property and probably will have no bearing on any issue in the appeal is not a basis to exclude that material from the record. Manning v. Marion County, 44 Or LUBA 816 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Audio tapes of planning commission hearings are included in the record before the final decision maker only if they are placed before the final decision maker, specifically incorporated into the record by the final decision maker or automatically included in the record by operation of local code requirements. Bruce Packing Company, Inc. v. City of Silverton, 44 Or LUBA 836 (2003).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Only the final decision maker can "specifically incorporate" documents into the record by reference, within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1). Bruce Packing Company, Inc. v. City of Silverton, 44 Or LUBA 836 (2003).

27. 3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Notwithstanding that the final decision maker denying petitioners' application for development is the city attorney, letters to the city attorney in his capacity as legal advisor to the city council regarding a negotiated alternative to petitioner's application relate to a different matter and are not "placed before" the final decision maker "during the course of the proceedings" before the final decision maker within the meaning of OAR 660-010-0025(1)(a). West Coast Media v. City of Gladstone, 43 Or LUBA 585 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA's rules provide that only certain documents that are created after a local decision is reduced to writing, signed, and becomes final for purposes of appeal may be included in the local government's record before LUBA. Those documents include: minutes of the meeting where the challenged decision was adopted, copies of post-acknowledgement plan amendment notice to DLCD, and affidavits of published, posted or mailed notice of the challenged decision. West Side Rural F.P.D v. City of Hood River, 43 Or LUBA 612 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Findings adopted by reference as part of a local land use decision are properly included in a local record only if they were created and adopted prior to or at the same time as the land use decision that they support. West Side Rural F.P.D v. City of Hood River, 43 Or LUBA 612 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Findings supporting a local land use decision are not part of a city's record if they are created after the local decision was reduced to writing, signed and became final for purposes of a LUBA appeal. West Side Rural F.P.D v. City of Hood River, 43 Or LUBA 612 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. That a collection of written comments is not internally organized in inverse chronological order is not a basis to require that the local government reorganize the record, where the collection as a whole appears at the approximate chronological location in the record where it should, and no party demonstrates that any divergence from LUBA's rules prejudices their substantial rights. Stahl v. Tillamook County, 43 Or LUBA 623 (2002).

27. 3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where city procedures for adopting legislative amendments require planning commission review and recommendation before those amendments are considered for adoption by the city council, the record at LUBA must include the planning commission record as well as the record before the city council. No Tram to OHSU, Inc. v. City of Portland, 43 Or LUBA 634 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents pertaining to a different decision that is not the subject of a LUBA appeal are not part of the record unless those documents were placed before the decision maker during the local land use proceedings that led to the LUBA appeal. No Tram to OHSU, Inc. v. City of Portland, 43 Or LUBA 634 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Absent a reason to conclude otherwise, LUBA will assume that documents that are referred to and quoted in the challenged decision were before the final decision maker in reaching her decision. Wiper v. City of Eugene, 43 Or LUBA 649 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. While the purpose of the OAR 661-010-0025(4) requirement that the record be in "inverse chronological order" is better served if the record is organized by date of entry rather than document date, where those principles conflict, failure to do so is only a technical violation of LUBA's rules, absent a showing that a different organization of the record is necessary for the parties' use or LUBA's review. Wiper v. City of Eugene, 43 Or LUBA 649 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. As used in OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), the term "placed before" is a term of art and does not merely describe the act of setting documents in front of the decision maker. Legislative decision making often involves less precisely defined procedures for compiling an evidentiary record than quasi-judicial decision making. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 589 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In an appeal of an environmental assessment prepared as part of a larger state and federal approval process for proposed highway improvements, it is the nature of the environmental assessment process itself and the reasonable expectations of the parties to that process, rather than the conduct of the decision makers, that determines the scope of the record. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 589 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record submitted in an appeal of an environmental assessment for a proposed highway interchange properly includes documents that were created or submitted as part of the process to initiate construction of the interchange, where those documents were maintained such that a reasonable person would expect them to be available to the state and federal decision makers who will ultimately approve the interchange project and the documents are in fact available to the final decision makers. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 589 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. That local government legal counsel brings a document to a hearing and refers to that document in a colloquy with the decision maker is not sufficient to "place" the document before the decision maker within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Homebuilders Assoc. v. Metro, 41 Or LUBA 616 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The mere inclusion of a written decision from another planning action in the record of a subsequent land use decision is not sufficient in itself to incorporate the entire planning file from the earlier decision into the record of the later decision. Yeager v. Benton County, 41 Or LUBA 604 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(d) requires that notices provided throughout "the course of the land use proceeding" be included in the record, including notices from lower tribunals. The rule does not apply to notices from separate planning actions, even if those planning actions are relevant to the challenged decision. Yeager v. Benton County, 41 Or LUBA 604 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Written comments are "placed before" the final decision maker within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b) where the notice of hearing invites written comments and parties to the case submit written comments in the manner set forth in the notice. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 41 Or LUBA 579 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. If a local government wishes to reject an item and thereby exclude that item from the local record, it must make it clear during the proceedings below that it rejects that item. An ambiguous statement from the county chair that the "hearing is limited to correcting the findings based on the existing record and thus the record is closed" is insufficient to clearly reject written comments that were submitted to the county pursuant to the procedure described in the notice of hearing. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 41 Or LUBA 579 (2002).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Nonmaterial omissions in a local government's transcript in the record do not provide a basis to require the local government to submit a more complete transcript, or to substitute a transcript not prepared by the local government. A party may, however, attach a transcript prepared by that party to its own brief. Terra v. City of Newport, 39 Or LUBA 811 (2001).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. When the record of a final decision made after remand of an earlier decision from LUBA also includes the record from the earlier decision, but portions of the record from the earlier decision no longer exist, photocopies of the earlier record may be included in the record on remand. If, however, portions of the earlier record are unavailable, re-creations of the earlier record will not be included in the record, if one of the parties objects to the re-creation. Terra v. City of Newport, 39 Or LUBA 811 (2001).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0025(4)(b) the record in a LUBA appeal may be incorporated by reference in the record of a subsequent LUBA appeal. However, where this is done, any parties in the subsequent LUBA appeal who did not receive a copy of the record in the first LUBA appeal must be provided a copy of that record. Waibel v. Crook County, 39 Or LUBA 749 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A letter that is addressed to and received by a local decision maker may not be omitted from the record of a variance proceeding because the letter did not specifically include a request that it be included in the local record, where there is no local code requirement that the letter include such a specific request and it is obvious that the letter concerns the requested variance. Reagan v. City of Oregon City, 39 Or LUBA 738 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A procedural objection that is filed after the close of the final local hearing, but before the final decision is adopted and written notice of the decision is given, must be included in the local record, where the city's code allows procedural objections to be filed any time before written notice of the final decision is given. Reagan v. City of Oregon City, 39 Or LUBA 738 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), evidence that is presented to lower-level local decision making bodies need not be included in the record of the final decision maker unless that evidence is (1) placed before the final decision maker or (2) incorporated into the record by the final decision maker. Hubenthal v. City of Woodburn, 38 Or LUBA 916 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c), the minutes and tape recordings of lower level local decision makers must be included in the record only if they are incorporated into the record by the final decision maker. Hubenthal v. City of Woodburn, 38 Or LUBA 916 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(d) requires that the record include all notices of hearing, whether those hearings were conducted by the final decision maker or by lower-level decision makers. Hubenthal v. City of Woodburn, 38 Or LUBA 916 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-010-0026(3) provides a way to correct the minutes of the proceedings of the final decision maker; it does not provide a way to correct incomplete or inaccurate minutes of meetings of lower-level local decision makers that were actually placed before or incorporated by the final decision maker. Hubenthal v. City of Woodburn, 38 Or LUBA 916 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where documents are placed in the hands of a local government staff person to forward to the local decision maker, pursuant to local procedures, and someone thereafter deletes a portion of the document before it is provided to the local decision maker, the deleted portion has not been "specifically rejected" by the decision maker within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b) and the entire document is properly included in the record. Dept. of Transportation v. City of Eugene, 37 Or LUBA 1055 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-025(1)(d), notices of local hearing and affidavits of mailing such notices are to be included in the local record that is filed with LUBA. That a local government may not have committed reversible error by failing to provide a party notice of hearing does not mean the notice of hearing and affidavit of mailing should not be included in the local record. DLCD v. Douglas County, 37 Or LUBA 1053 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government has no established procedures for how documents must be submitted into the record in land use proceedings, the test applied by LUBA is whether the conduct of staff and the decision maker could reasonably lead a party to believe the documents are being included in the record. Bogan v. Coos County, 37 Or LUBA 1032 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A letter sent to the city requesting notice of applications that the city might file to amend land use regulations affecting large format retail uses is not part of the record of the city's decision to adopt such regulations, where the letter was sent to the city eight months before the city filed its application and the letter was never placed before the final decision maker during the course of the proceedings below. Home Depot, Inc. v. City of Beaverton, 37 Or LUBA 1020 (2000).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government inadvertently re-uses an audio tape of a hearing before the final decision maker, the local government's failure to maintain a taped record of the proceedings may or may not have some bearing on an assignment of error, but that failure can be addressed in an assignment of error without the physical presence of the re-used audio tape in the record. Rochlin v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 1005 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In the context of a record objection, LUBA will rely on the parties' representations regarding the existence or nonexistence of disputed documents, without requiring proponents or opponents to submit affidavits in support of their position, absent some substantial reason to question those representations. Rochlin v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 1005 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Minutes of proceedings before the final decision maker that list the persons who testify but contain no summary of the substance of that testimony are incomplete within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0026(3). Where petitioner demonstrates that the omitted summary of testimony is material, LUBA will require that the local government prepare a transcript of relevant portions of the audio tape of those proceedings. Jackson County Citizens League v. Jackson County, 37 Or LUBA 1001 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A county attorney's decision to forward certain letters from petitioners' attorney to the county attorney to the board of county commissioners is not sufficient to establish either a common practice that all letters to the county attorney are included in the record or a reasonable expectation on the part of petitioners' attorney that such letters would be included in the local record. Western States v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 987 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioners' attorney's letter to the county's attorney is properly excluded from the record where the letter is not submitted for the record in the manner specified in the notice of hearing, and the letter does not include a request that the letter be included in the record. Western States v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 987 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the bulk of the local government record is made up of attachments to the challenged decision, and the attachments are not arranged chronologically, the local government is not required to include duplicate copies of the decision attachments in the record in chronological order, where the size of the record and the level of detail provided in the record table of contents is such that the attachments can be identified and located with reasonable effort. Boly v. City of Portland, 36 Or LUBA 793 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. City transportation plans and maps consulted by the decision makers are not part of the record unless they were submitted into the record below, although such plans and maps may be legislative enactments of which LUBA may take official notice pursuant to OEC 202. Volny v. City of Bend, 36 Or LUBA 760 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Any tape recordings of meetings conducted by the final decision maker must be included in the record before LUBA, notwithstanding that the statutes governing such meetings do not require that those meetings be tape-recorded. Volny v. City of Bend, 36 Or LUBA 760 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will reject a supplemental record submitted after the petition for review has been filed, where the city fails to explain why the material in the supplemental record is properly part of the local record, and fails to establish that any "unique circumstances" exist justifying untimely filing of the supplemental record. Terra v. City of Newport, 36 Or LUBA 754 (1999).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA opinions and local zoning ordinance provisions that were not actually placed before the decision maker during the local proceedings are not properly included in the local record. North Park Annex Bus. Trust v. City of Independence, 35 Or LUBA 827 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a county has no adopted procedure for submitting documents prior to permit hearings and (1) a party delivers a document to the county attorney in advance of the hearing, (2) the document includes a request that it be made part of the record and (3) the party verbally requests at the hearing that the document be made part of the record, the party's actions are sufficient to place the document before the decision maker. Tri-River Investments Co. v. Clatsop County, 35 Or LUBA 820 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a party prepares and displays maps at a permit hearing, but does not request that the maps be included in the record and removes the maps at the conclusion of the hearing, the maps are not part of the record. Tri-River Investments Co. v. Clatsop County, 35 Or LUBA 820 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a county commissioner hands a party copies of newspaper articles and the party does not request that the articles be included in the record and removes the articles at the conclusion of the hearing, the newspaper articles are not part of the record. Tri-River Investments Co. v. Clatsop County, 35 Or LUBA 820 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Absent local provisions to the contrary, only the preliminary plat approval, and not the entire record of the preliminary plat approval, is part of a final PUD plan record. Santiam Properties v. City of Stayton, 35 Or LUBA 790 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Geotechnical studies are appropriately included in the record where reference to these studies in the final PUD plan approval order indicates that they were considered by the final decision maker. Santiam Properties v. City of Stayton, 35 Or LUBA 790 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A code provision requiring that the local record include all materials submitted by any party and reviewed in reaching the "local decision under review" does not require that documents that were submitted to and considered by staff be included in the local record, where those documents were not placed before the final decision maker. Hribernick v. City of Gresham, 35 Or LUBA 751 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although a transcript prepared by a party after the local proceedings are complete is not considered part of the record under OAR 661-010-0026, where a party-prepared transcript of local proceedings is submitted to the local decision maker before the conclusion of the local proceedings, it is considered part of the record unless it is specifically rejected by the local decision maker. Sequoia Park Condo Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 34 Or LUBA 808 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The requirement of OAR 661-010-0025(4) that the record be organized in inverse chronological order is not blindly applied where the result would be to separate documents that were submitted together. Where the organizational purpose of OAR 661-010-0025(4) is better served by organizing the record based on the date documents were received, LUBA will allow the record to organized in that manner. Sequoia Park Condo Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 34 Or LUBA 808 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Statements made concerning a pending land use application during "open microphone" segments of meetings that were not part of the local proceedings are not comments submitted "during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker" and are not part of the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Sequoia Park Condo Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 34 Or LUBA 808 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although items placed in the city's land use application file are not necessarily part of the record, where the city's practice is to place the complete file before the local decision maker and the city does not dispute that certain documents were placed in the file and placed before the decision maker, LUBA will assume the documents are part of the local record. Sequoia Park Condo Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 34 Or LUBA 808 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioner claims to have witnessed a disputed document being handed to the city recorder and the minutes include a statement that the disputed document is being left with the city, the disputed document is properly included in the record. Sequoia Park Condo Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 34 Or LUBA 808 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Absent local provisions requiring incorporation, or actual incorporation by the final decision maker, the record of a decision by the governing body does not include tapes of planning commission meetings. Sequoia Park Condo Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 34 Or LUBA 808 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioner's undeveloped claim that certain documents "were placed in the record" is insufficient to allege that the documents were placed before the local decision maker and not specifically rejected. Mintz v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 781 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A request that documents be make part of the local record is not sufficient to make those documents part of the local record unless the documents are actually placed before the decision maker. Mintz v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 781 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The requirement of OAR 661-010-0025(4) that documents in a local government record be arranged in reverse chronological order is not violated where the reasons for placing the documents out of such order are valid and do not affect the amount of effort needed to use the record. Mintz v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 781 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-010-0025(2) and (3), a local government is not required to include copies of audiotapes with the record served on petitioner. The local government is only required to make the tapes available to petitioner for copy or transcription at petitioner's expense. Beaman v. City of Hillsboro, 34 Or LUBA 779 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A local government is not required to include a verbatim transcript of tape recordings in the record if such a transcript was not actually prepared for the proceedings below. Beaman v. City of Hillsboro, 34 Or LUBA 779 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A summary of testimony necessarily omits details of that testimony. An objection to a summary of testimony must explain how the summarized testimony is mischaracterized. Boyer v. Baker County, 34 Or LUBA 758 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioner identifies several documents in the record where the decision maker refers to a preliminary grading plan, petitioner satisfies his obligation to demonstrate that the preliminary grading plan was placed before the decision maker, notwithstanding that the preliminary grading plan was not included with the original application. Abadi v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 753 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Tapes of hearings and meetings before the local decision maker already prepared by the local government are properly part of the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c). However, the local government need not create transcripts if they do not already exist. Sparks v. Polk County and City of Monmouth, 34 Or LUBA 731 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the text of a local decision on appeal demonstrates that it was based solely on examining the terms and effective date of a local ordinance and the date on which the local record was closed, petitioner does not establish that the record of an earlier proceeding was placed before the decision maker, making it part of the record of the decision on appeal. Kinzer v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 717 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA rules do not require that the decision maker insert all drafts of its final decision into the record. Marshall v. City of Yachats, 34 Or LUBA 713 (1998).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The appellate record of an appeal at LUBA is not properly part of the local record on remand unless the LUBA appellate record was placed before the decision maker during the local proceedings on remand. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine County, 33 Or LUBA 882 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In resolving objections to the record, LUBA determines only whether items were included in the record below, not whether those items are relevant to an issue raised by petitioner below. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine County, 33 Or LUBA 882 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioner contends a document should have been included in the record and the local government does not explain why the document is not included in the record, LUBA will sustain petitioner's record objection. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine County, 33 Or LUBA 882 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents created after a local government issued the final decision on appeal are not part of the local record. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine County, 33 Or LUBA 882 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record of local proceedings following a remand from LUBA includes the record of local proceedings that led to the remand from LUBA, unless the prior record is expressly excluded from the record during the proceedings on remand. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine County, 33 Or LUBA 882 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Failure to comply with LUBA's rules regarding pagination is a serious defect where the record is long and materials cannot be identified with reasonable effort. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The requirement of OAR 661-10-025(4)(a)(E) that documents in the record appear in reverse chronological order allows parties to understand how controversies developed and were resolved. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where an exhibit comprises many documents, submitted by the same party but which bear no relation to each other, they should be listed separately in the record's table of contents with separate page numbers. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioner's own transcript of local proceeding audio tapes is not part of the local record. However, if petitioner prepares a transcript of all or some of the audio tapes and attaches it to her petition for review in support of arguments made in the petition, LUBA will consider the transcript if no objection is made to the transcript's accuracy or completeness. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The minutes of meetings held by a local government decision maker's advisory committees are not included in the record of the local government decision maker's land use decision, unless those minutes are actually placed before the decision maker. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A transcript of local proceedings that is prepared and submitted by petitioner, rather than by the respondent local government, cannot be made part of the local record. However, such a transcript may be attached to the petition for review in support of arguments presented therein. Trademark Construction Inc. v. Marion County, 33 Or LUBA 842 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will grant a motion to strike evidence attached to a petition for review where the evidence is neither included in the local record nor properly placed before LUBA through an evidentiary hearing. St. Johns Neighborhood Assn v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 836 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the planning commission is not authorized by the city council to make a final decision, it is not a "governing body" under OAR 661-10-010(4), and OAR 661-10-025(1)(c) does not require the planning commission minutes be included in the record. However, minutes placed before the city governing body are properly included in the record under OAR 661-10-025(1)(b). City of Gresham v. City of Wood Village, 33 Or LUBA 779 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Inaccuracies in the written minutes of a public hearing are material only if the party objecting to the inaccuracies in the record establishes that the statements at issue relate to evidence that will be relevant to issues on appeal. Winkler v. City of Cottage Grove, 33 Or LUBA 776 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Without evidence that a disputed item was actually received by the decision maker or a person authorized to receive evidence on the decision maker's behalf, there is no basis for rejecting the city's representation that an item was not received or placed before the decision maker. Opp v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 772 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the local governing body makes the final decision and only had before it the minutes of planning commission deliberations, LUBA may not order that the minutes be corrected based on a transcript of the planning commission deliberations that was not available to the governing body. Carlson v. Benton County, 33 Or LUBA 767 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-10-025(1)(c) requires that the "minutes * * * of the meetings conducted by the governing body" be included in the record, but does not require that the minutes of planning commission deliberations be included where the planning commission is not authorized to render a final decision and for that reason is not properly considered a "governing body." Carlson v. Benton County, 33 Or LUBA 767 (1997)

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA will not infer that a county's finding was intended to be read in a manner that conflicts with the finding's express language. Koo v. Polk County, 33 Or LUBA 487 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. ORS 197.835(11)(b) does not allow LUBA to draw inferences from the record that are either conflicting or not clearly evident from the county's findings or the record. Nor does it allow LUBA to disregard or alter the county's findings. Koo v. Polk County, 33 Or LUBA 487 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a city's motion to supplement the record with notice of adoption of ordinance will not supplement or complete the challenged decision in any way that is challenged by petitioner, the motion will be denied due to its lack of bearing on the merits of the appeal. Western PCS, Inc. v. City of Lake Oswego, 33 Or LUBA 369 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Even if county staff consulted certain files prior to issuance of a contested grading permit, that would not make those files part of the local record. Therefore, petitioner's allegations concerning such consultation provide no basis for an evidentiary hearing to establish that those files are part of the grading permit record on appeal. Ceniga v. Clackamas County, 33 Or LUBA 261 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although a record is always "accepted" upon delivery, in that it is date-stamped and filed by LUBA's staff, it is not fully "accepted" for purposes of OAR 661-10-025(4)(a) as to form or content until it is either received by the Board, when there is no objection, or "settled" by the Board pursuant to OAR 661-10-026(6), when there is some objection. Mar-Dene Corporation v. City of Woodburn, 32 Or LUBA 481 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The primary purpose of the specifications set out in OAR 661-10-025(4) for records filed with LUBA is to ensure that the record is usable by the parties and the Board. Where an exhibit in the record contains more than 700 pages unindexed and in no particular order, LUBA will sustain a record objection on the basis that not all documents can be identified and located with reasonable effort. Mar-Dene Corporation v. City of Woodburn, 32 Or LUBA 481 (1997).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although documents specifically rejected by a local government during its proceedings are not part of the local government record, the erroneous rejection of documents may provide a basis for reversal or remand. A party that wishes to challenge in its brief the propriety of the decision to exclude particular documents may request an evidentiary hearing before filing its brief. Village Properties, L.P. v. City of Oregon City, 32 Or LUBA 475 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Planning documents not placed before the city decision maker during the local proceedings are not part of the record, but LUBA may take official notice of local government enactments under OEC 202(7). Downtown Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 31 Or LUBA 574 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. While words spoken at a county hearing are part of the record, transcripts not prepared by the county are not properly part of the local record, but may be attached to a party's brief in support of the arguments therein. Fraley v. Deschutes County, 31 Or LUBA 566 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the record establishes that the county adopted nine conditions of approval, but inadvertently failed to include those conditions in the record transmitted to LUBA, the county will be allowed to supplement the record with the conditions. Brown v. Union County, 31 Or LUBA 551 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local record includes not only materials submitted to the local decision maker during the public hearing process, but also other materials placed before the local decision maker prior to adoption of the final decision. Whether the local government satisfied statutory or local ordinance requirements in accepting evidence after the local hearings process does not determine whether those documents were made part of the record. Nicholson/Keever v. Clatsop County, 31 Or LUBA 535 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Items placed before and made part of the record during the local proceedings are not subject to amendment on appeal to this Board. Local governments may not amend a document in the record in order for it to conform to another document in the record. Nicholson/Keever v. Clatsop County, 31 Or LUBA 535 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In an appeal of a fill and grading permit, materials that were sent to the city planning director but that were not placed before the code analyst who issued the permit are not part of the record. Friends of Eugene v. City of Eugene, 31 Or LUBA 532 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. When a disputed videotape is included in the record of the local government, and petitioners do not object to the record as submitted, petitioners' argument that the local government improperly refused to accept the videotape into the record is without merit. Canfield v. Yamhill County, 31 Or LUBA 25 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A local government may accept new material into the record after holding a public hearing by accepting it before the record is closed, by reopening the record formally, or by its conduct. However, a local government is not required to accept new material into the record after it has formally closed the record. Richards-Kreitzberg v. Marion County, 30 Or LUBA 476 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the county holds a public hearing on remand from LUBA, but does not reopen the record at that hearing, a letter sent from petitioners to the board of commissioners after the hearing and prior to the adoption of the final decision is not part of the record. Richards-Kreitzberg v. Marion County, 30 Or LUBA 476 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. That a party believes a document should have been placed into the record does not establish that it is part of the record. Nor does a representation by staff that a document was entered into the record establish that it was, in fact, entered into the record. DeShazer v. Columbia County, 30 Or LUBA 472 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioners requested that the record of proceedings before the planning commission be included in the record before the board of commissioners, that request was discussed at the public hearing before the board and not rejected, and the secretary to the board acknowledged that she would make copies of the requested documents for the board, those documents are properly part of the record. DeShazer v. Columbia County, 30 Or LUBA 472 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Whether an item was made an official exhibit by the local decision maker does not determine whether it was placed before and not rejected by the decision maker. DeShazer v. Columbia County, 30 Or LUBA 472 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioner's request at a local proceeding that a specific document be adopted as part of the record does not suffice to make that document part of the record if it is not actually placed before the decision maker. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 461 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Items are placed before the local decision maker if (1) they are physically placed before the decision maker prior to the adoption of the final decision; (2) they are submitted to the decision maker through means specified in local regulations or through appropriate means in response to a request by the decision maker for submittal of additional evidence; or (3) local regulations require that the item be placed before the decision maker. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 461 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The existence of a county code section requiring hillside development permits has no bearing on whether a slope hazard map is part of the local record. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 461 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The relevance or probative value of documents has no bearing on whether they are part of the local record. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 461 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Because the record is not limited to materials submitted to the decision maker prior to the close of the final public hearing, but includes all materials placed before the decision maker prior to the adoption of the final decision, petitioner's comments on proposed findings, accepted by the county commissioners after the final public hearing but before the adoption of the final decision, should be included in the record. Leathers v. Marion County, 30 Or LUBA 437 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision quotes two sentences from a local government order on a different land use application, but does not express any intent to incorporate other portions of that order, only the two sentences are incorporated into the local record as findings, not the remainder of the order. Rochlin v. City of Portland, 29 Or LUBA 609 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The relevance or probative value of documents has no bearing on whether they are part of the local record. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Wilsonville, 29 Or LUBA 604 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Although a decision may incorporate other documents by reference, it cannot incorporate future enactments or the legislative history of those future enactments. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Wilsonville, 29 Or LUBA 604 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local record includes only items placed before, and not rejected by, the local decision maker. When documents are prepared after the adoption of the decision on appeal, those documents are not part of the local government record. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Wilsonville, 29 Or LUBA 604 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A document of which LUBA takes official notice does not thereby become part of the local record which may provide evidentiary support for the challenged decision. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Wilsonville, 29 Or LUBA 604 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. With the exception of the challenged decision, minutes and tapes of proceedings below, and notices of local government hearings and decisions, an item becomes part of the local record if (1) it is physically placed before (and not rejected by) the decision maker prior to adoption of the final decision; (2) it is submitted to the decision maker through means specified in local regulations or in a request by the decision maker for submittal of additional evidence; or (3) local regulations require that the item be placed before the decision maker. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 601 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The fact that letters concerning a land use application were mailed to local government staff members does not, of itself, mean the letters are part of the local record. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 601 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A document is not part of the local record simply because it is located somewhere in the local government's files. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 601 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-10-025(1)(c), tape recordings of meetings conducted by the governing body must be included in the local government record, if such recordings are made. Ramsay v. Linn County, 29 Or LUBA 559 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where audio tapes are part of the record, a local government is not required to demonstrate such tapes are difficult to duplicate, to be able retain them until the date of oral argument under OAR 661-10-025(2). Ramsay v. Linn County, 29 Or LUBA 559 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local government record submitted in a prior LUBA appeal, which led to remand of the challenged decision, is properly included in the local government record submitted to LUBA in a subsequent LUBA appeal of the local government's decision on remand. However, objections to the content of the local government record in the prior appeal, which could have been made in the prior appeal but were not, may not be asserted in the subsequent appeal. East Lancaster Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 554 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision is a decision by a local governing body not to accept petitioner's local appeal, under OAR 661-10-025(1)(d) the local government's notice of the planning commission decision that is the subject of petitioner's local appeal is properly included in the record, regardless of whether it was actually placed before the governing body. Cummings v. Tillamook County, 29 Or LUBA 550 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Other than the challenged decision itself (OAR 661-10-025(1)(a)), minutes and tapes of the proceedings below (OAR 661-10-025(1)(c)), and notices of local government hearings and decisions (OAR 661-10-025(1)(d)), items are part of the record only if they were placed before, and not rejected by, the local government decision maker (OAR 661-10-025(1)(b)). Cummings v. Tillamook County, 29 Or LUBA 550 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A document composed entirely of 8.5 X 11-inch sheets of paper is not a "difficult to duplicate" document that can be retained until oral argument under OAR 661-10-025(2). ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 29 Or LUBA 90 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision incorporates a particular document by reference, under OAR 661-10-025(1)(a) that document is properly included in the record, because it was adopted as part of the decision. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 29 Or LUBA 547 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local advisory committee's charge was broader than the subject of a challenged legislative decision by the governing body, and the committee performed its work independently of the governing body, the record of meetings between members of the governing body and the advisory committee that occurred prior to the initiation of the legislative proceeding leading to the challenged decision is not part of the record of the governing body's legislative proceeding. Central Eastside Industrial Council v. Portland, 29 Or LUBA 541 (1995).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the record shows the local government conducted the proceeding leading to the challenged decision modifying an approved PUD as a separate permit proceeding initiated by a separate PUD modification application, under OAR 661-10-025(1)(b), the record includes only those items that were placed before the local decision maker during the course of the proceedings initiated by the modification application. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 28 Or LUBA 775 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Items are placed before the decision maker if (1) they are physically placed before the decision maker prior to the adoption of the final decision; (2) they are submitted to the decision maker through means specified in local regulations or through appropriate means in response to a request by the decision maker for the submittal of evidence; or (3) local regulations require that the item be placed before the decision maker. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 28 Or LUBA 775 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA cannot compel a local government to make minutes or a transcript of an executive session a part of the local record submitted in a LUBA review proceeding. If minutes have been prepared and not disclosed, the remedy is to seek an order from the circuit court that the minutes be made public. McCrary v. City of Talent, 28 Or LUBA 773 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Memoranda mailed to all owners of property in the area affected by a proposed legislative rezoning, from the local government planning department or a citizen task force, are not part of the local record if they were not placed before the local decision maker. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 28 Or LUBA 755 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. That a compilation of questionnaire responses is in the record does not mean that the individual responses (i.e., the data) from which that compilation was prepared are part of the record, if the individual responses were not themselves placed before the decision maker. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 28 Or LUBA 755 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under OAR 661-10-025(4)(a)(B), the record table of contents must list as an exhibit each large document or map retained by the local government until the date of oral argument pursuant to OAR 661-10-025(2). Churchill v. Tillamook County, 28 Or LUBA 755 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Regardless of whether it was placed before the decision maker, the notice of the challenged decision given by respondent, including a list of persons to whom such notice was provided, is properly part of the record of the local proceedings. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 28 Or LUBA 755 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Items "included as part of the record during the course of the governing body's proceeding," as provided in OAR 661-10-025(1)(b), are those items actually placed before, and not specifically rejected by, the local decision maker during the local proceeding. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 742 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 660-10-025(1)(c) requires the local record submitted to LUBA to include minutes and tape recordings of the proceedings conducted by the governing body, regardless of whether such minutes and tapes were actually placed before the decision maker below. Under OAR 660-10-010(4), "governing body" includes a commission whose decision would become the local government's final decision if no local appeal were filed. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 742 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In the absence of local regulations to the contrary, oversize aerial photographs permanently affixed to the walls of a local government hearing room do not become part of the record simply because they are in the view of the decision maker and are referred to in testimony during a local land use hearing. Wicks v. City of Reedsport, 28 Or LUBA 739 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Under amendments to LUBA's rules adopted June 22, 1994, tape recordings of the proceedings of the local government decision maker(s) are required to be included in the local record. A local government may retain such tapes until the time of oral argument before LUBA, but must list such retained tapes as exhibits on the table of contents to the record. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 730 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government designates a particular planner as the person to whom comments on a proposal should be directed, comments so directed are effectively placed before the local government decision maker and are required to be included in the local record. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 725 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. That the author of a letter subsequently abandoned the position it expressed in the letter has no bearing on whether that letter is part of the local record. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 725 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Tapes of meetings conducted by a local government decision maker during the proceedings below are required to be included in the local record. A local government may retain such tapes until the time of oral argument before LUBA, but must list such retained tapes as exhibits on the table of contents to the record. OAR 661-10-025(1)(c), (2), (4)(a)(B) McNamara v. Union County, 28 Or LUBA 722 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Neither tape recordings of local proceedings that were not made by the local government as part of its official record of proceedings, nor transcripts made from such unofficial tape recordings, are properly included in the local record. Carlson v. City of Dunes City, 28 Or LUBA 719 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government decision maker authorizes the withdrawal of a challenged local government decision for reconsideration, pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b), that decision is reflected in the Notice of Withdrawal filed with LUBA, and that notice is part of the local record of the proceedings leading to the local government's decision on reconsideration. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Letters to and from LUBA concerning the filing of a local government decision on reconsideration and refiling of a notice of intent to appeal, pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b), postdate the adoption of the challenged decision on reconsideration and, therefore, are not part of the local record. They are, however, part of LUBA's record. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Items that were not placed before the local decision maker during the proceedings on the development application leading to the appealed decision, but rather were submitted to the decision maker only at a workshop on general issues concerning the development of an area including the subject property, are not part of the local record. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 27 Or LUBA 726 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where there is no contention local regulations provide that submitting items to the local government's attorney is effective to place those items before the local decision maker, and no contention the disputed letter was sent to the local government's attorney in response to a specific request by the decision maker for additional evidence or argument, a letter sent to the local government's attorney is not part of the record unless that letter was actually placed before the decision maker. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 27 Or LUBA 726 (1996).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record of a challenged local governing body decision includes the record of the planning commission proceeding on the subject application if either (1) the planning commission record was actually placed before the governing body, or (2) local code provisions require that the planning commission record be made part of the record before the governing body as a matter of law. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 715 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where documents are prepared or revised after the adoption of the decision appealed to LUBA, the documents or revisions are not part of the local government record. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 27 Or LUBA 704 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. OAR 661-10-025(1)(c) does not require that minutes of a "task force" meeting at which less than a quorum of the members of a local government decision making body participated be included in the record, if no minutes were prepared, because minutes of such a meeting are not "required by law." Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 27 Or LUBA 704 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government initially maintains a single consolidated record in conjunction with two related quasi-judicial land use applications, but later bifurcates the local record into separate records, without providing notice to the parties, documents submitted by the parties will be included in the record of both proceedings. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 27 Or LUBA 679 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the applicant submits a new application following remand by LUBA of a decision approving an earlier application, a local government is under no obligation to include the record of the prior application or to provide explicit notice that parties have to submit evidence from the previous record that they wish the local government to consider in reviewing the new application. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 27 Or LUBA 243 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision states the decision maker "adopts" a certain document and "makes it part of" the findings, that document is incorporated by reference into the findings and, under OAR 661-10-025(1)(a), is part of the local record, as findings. Bates v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 673 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a staff report in the record indicates a particular document was submitted to the local planning commission at or prior to its hearing on the subject comprehensive plan and zoning map amendment, and no party contends the record of the planning commission proceedings is not properly included in the record of the challenged decision by the governing body, the document is part of the local record in an appeal to LUBA. Bates v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 673 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where planning commission hearings are part of the local government decision making process concerning a proposed comprehensive plan or zoning ordinance amendment, minutes of those proceedings, as required by law, are part of the record of the challenged decision. OAR 661-10-025(1)(c). Bates v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 673 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A transcript of local proceedings that was prepared and submitted by petitioner, rather than by the respondent local government, cannot be made part of the local record. However, petitioner may attach the transcript, or relevant portions thereof, to the petition for review, in support of arguments made therein. Bates v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 673 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. An objector may not simply assume that all of the attachments to a letter are part of the local record simply because some of the attachments are included in the record. The objector must establish the disputed attachments were actually placed before the local decision maker. Kaady v. City of Cannon Beach, 27 Or LUBA 664 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local record consists of those items placed before, and not rejected by, the local decision maker. Where petitioner contends the applicant asked to withdraw certain documents it submitted to the local decision maker, but does not argue the local decision maker granted that request or otherwise rejected the disputed documents, LUBA has no basis for concluding the documents are erroneously included in the local record. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 651 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. If a local government wishes to exclude the record of the previous local proceeding on the same development application that led to local proceedings after remand by LUBA, it must expressly do so. Otherwise, in an appeal to LUBA from the local government decision on remand, the record of the previous local proceeding will be considered part of the record of the local government decision on remand. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 651 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. In the absence of established procedures for formally admitting documents displayed during a local government land use hearing into the record, wetland maps that were displayed during a local hearing and discussed in the testimony of local government staff are part of the record of the local proceedings. Redland/Viola/Fischer's Mill CPO v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 645 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local decision maker's order denying rehearing (1) indicates evidence submitted with the request for rehearing was considered only for the limited purpose of determining whether to grant the request for rehearing, and (2) does not amend or add to the original decision, the evidence submitted with the request for rehearing, although in the local record submitted to LUBA, is not part of the evidentiary record supporting the challenged decision. Eppich v. Clackamas County, 26 Or LUBA 498 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where an appeal challenges (1) a letter concerning whether an amended version of a local code provision applies to two previously approved subdivisions, and (2) a letter rejecting petitioner's attempt to appeal the first letter locally, references in petitioner's inquiry and in the challenged letters to the two prior subdivision approvals do not, in and of themselves, operate to make the entire record of those subdivision proceedings part of the record of the appeal. Forest Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 26 Or LUBA 642 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a video tape was brought to a hearing but due to a mechanical malfunction was not played, and the video tape was neither offered to nor left with the local government decision maker, the tape was not placed before the decision maker and is not part of the local government record. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 26 Or LUBA 631 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The primary purpose of the specifications set out in OAR 661-10-025(4) for records filed with LUBA is to ensure the record is usable by the parties and that all documents in the record can be identified and located with reasonable effort. Arranging the record in chronological order, rather than inverse chronological order as required by OAR 661-10-025(4)(a), has no material bearing on this primary purpose. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 26 Or LUBA 631 (1994).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local record includes those items placed before, and not specifically rejected by, the local government decision maker. Thus, where a circuit court transfers an appeal to LUBA, the record of the circuit court proceedings is not part of the local record subject to LUBA's review. Kaady v. City of Cannon Beach, 26 Or LUBA 614 (19/93).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision was made by the local governing body, after a de novo review of a planning commission decision, but the record of the planning commission proceedings was not actually placed before the governing body, the planning commission's record is not part of the local record subject to LUBA review. Matrix Development v. City of Tigard, 26 Or LUBA 606 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where documents referenced in findings were not placed before the local decision maker, but rather were reviewed by local government staff who communicated the results of such review to the decision maker, the documents are not part of the local record. Matrix Development v. City of Tigard, 26 Or LUBA 606 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Items submitted to the decision maker after the close of the evidentiary hearing are properly included in the record before LUBA, unless the decision maker specifically rejected those items prior to making its final decision. Matrix Development v. City of Tigard, 26 Or LUBA 606 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local record includes items placed before, and not rejected by, the decision maker. Simply referring to a document during the local government proceedings does not make that document part of the record. Henderson v. Lane County, 26 Or LUBA 603 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioner's references to telephone conversations between petitioner's employee and city employees, in a letter protesting dismissal of petitioner's local appeal, are insufficient to make transcripts of those conversations part of the local record, where no transcripts of those conversations were actually placed before the local decision maker. Restaurant Management N.W. v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 824 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where it is clear from the local record that the local government rejected a letter during the proceedings below, that letter is not part of the local record. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 821 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the local decision maker only considers rejecting particular evidence, but does not actually reject such evidence, that evidence must be included in the local record submitted to LUBA. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 821 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the respondent includes documents in the record and takes the position that those documents were actually placed before the decision maker during the local proceedings, LUBA relies on the objecting party to offer some reason for questioning respondent's position. McPeek v. Coos County, 25 Or LUBA 805 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioner's objection that a partial transcript, prepared and submitted by respondent in response to record objections by an intervenor, should be more extensive provides no basis for ordering the local government to provide such an expanded transcript, where petitioner does not explain, as required by OAR 661-10-026(3), why the minutes included in the record are inadequate to provide the desired information. McPeek v. Coos County, 25 Or LUBA 805 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged local government decision is not included in the record submitted to LUBA, LUBA must remand the decision. Lathrop v. Wallowa County, 25 Or LUBA 693 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. References in documents submitted during an earlier legislative proceeding to a subsequent legislative proceeding do not make the documents submitted during the earlier legislative proceeding part of the record of the subsequent legislative proceeding. Bicycle Transportation Alliance v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 798 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents originally submitted during one legislative proceeding are properly included in the record of a subsequent legislative proceeding, if they were actually placed before the decision maker during that subsequent legislative proceeding. Bicycle Transportation Alliance v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 798 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A local government staff memorandum concerning notice provided during a legislative proceeding is not properly included in the record of that proceeding, where the memorandum was created two months after the challenged decision was adopted. However, submission of the memorandum may be allowed in the event of an evidentiary hearing, pursuant to ORS 197.830(13)(b) and OAR 661-10-045, to demonstrate that required notices were given. Bicycle Transportation Alliance v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 798 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The relevant inquiry in determining whether documents are properly included in the record is whether the documents were actually placed before the local government decision maker during the local proceedings leading to the challenged decision. LUBA does not require a showing that the decision maker actually examined each document placed before it. Bicycle Transportation Alliance v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 798 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the local proceedings leading to a challenged legislative land use decision included a number of separate proceedings, documents placed before the decision makers during each of those separate proceedings are properly included in the record at LUBA. Bicycle Transportation Alliance v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 798 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Staff notes that were used in developing a staff recommendation, but that were not themselves placed before the local decision maker, are not part of the local record. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 796 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local record is not limited to materials submitted to the decision maker prior to the close of the public hearing. Items submitted to the local decision maker, and not rejected prior to its adoption of the challenged decision, are part of the local record that must be transmitted to LUBA. Rochlin v. Multnomah County, 25 Or LUBA 783 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Absent local regulations that specifically allow submittal of evidence to the local decision maker through incorporation by reference, a request to incorporate items by reference is not sufficient to make the requested items part of the local record. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 25 Or LUBA 768 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government specifically denies a request that it take official notice of certain items and incorporate them into the local record, those items are not part of the local record. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 25 Or LUBA 768 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Mailing a document concerning certain property to a local government official, at a time when an appeal of a local decision concerning that property is pending before LUBA, does not, of itself, make that document part of the record of subsequent local proceedings conducted after remand of the appealed decision by LUBA. DLCD v. Klamath County, 24 Or LUBA 643 (1993).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. To be part of the local record, documents must be placed before the local decision maker. Simply referring to documents does not place such documents before the local decision maker. Mannenbach v. City of Dallas, 24 Or LUBA 618 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. While the spoken word is considered part of the local record, LUBA's rules do not require that a local government submit tapes of its local proceedings. Mannenbach v. City of Dallas, 24 Or LUBA 618 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local government record does not include evidence that is specifically rejected by the local government during the local proceedings. That such evidence may have been erroneously rejected may provide a basis for reversal or remand, but it has no bearing on the contents of the record. Glisan Street Assoc. v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 600 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. It is not enough to allege that a document can be found in some file located in the courthouse; the local record consists only of documents actually placed before, and not specifically rejected by, the local government decision maker. West Amazon Basin Land Owners v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 597 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record includes materials placed before the local decision maker prior to the adoption of a final decision. It is not limited to materials submitted to the local decision maker prior to the close of the public hearing or the making of a tentative decision. Joines v. Linn County, 24 Or LUBA 588 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioners simply assumed that a letter sent to a city planner concerning the local proceedings would be placed before the city decision maker, but the letter was not placed before the city decision maker, the letter is not part of the local record. Terra v. City of Newport, 24 Or LUBA 579 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The presence of blank spots on an audio tape of a public hearing does not provide a basis for allowing the petitioner in a LUBA proceeding to attempt to supply the information that should be reflected on the blank portions of the tape, by an affidavit not placed before the local decision maker. Giesy v. Benton County, 24 Or LUBA 586 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A party may not fail to object to the record submitted by the local government in a LUBA proceeding and thereafter attach documents to its brief that it believes should be included in the record. Mercer v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 608 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. For purposes of determining the composition of the local record of a decision on a permit application, the local proceedings begin when the permit application is submitted. Forest Highlands Neigh. Assoc. v. Lake Oswego, 23 Or LUBA 723 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local record consists of those items physically placed before and not specifically rejected by the local decision maker. Forest Highlands Neigh. Assoc. v. Lake Oswego, 23 Or LUBA 723 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where minutes of the local government proceedings demonstrate that a document was specifically rejected by the local government decision maker, the document is not part of the local record. Mulholland v. City of Roseburg, 23 Or LUBA 720 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where evidence is submitted to a local government decision maker after the close of the evidentiary hearing, and the decision maker votes not to reopen the record to accept such evidence, that evidence is specifically rejected by the decision maker and, therefore, is not a part of the local record to be submitted to LUBA. Adler v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 692 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents specifically rejected by a local government during its proceedings are not part of the local government record. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 688 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the city charter identifies the City Auditor as custodian of all records of city council proceedings, and petitioners neither cite city regulations recognizing the delivery of documents concerning pending city council proceedings to the offices of the mayor or individual council members as a means of submitting documents for the record, nor claim the city council specifically authorized use of such a procedure, the delivery of documents to the offices of the mayor and city council members does not constitute placing those documents before the city council. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 688 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the challenged decision states the final local decision maker took "notice" of the record of a lower level decision maker, and the letter of transmittal to the final decision maker states it is transmitting the record from the lower level decision maker, the record before such lower level decision maker was "placed before" the final decision maker, and must be included in the local record submitted to LUBA. Veatch v. Wasco County, 23 Or LUBA 676 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government concedes that certain documents were placed before the local decision maker during the proceeding below, and the parties cite nothing establishing that the local government specifically rejected the documents, the documents are part of the local record. Heiller v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 672 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The general rule is that the record compiled at one stage of a local government land use proceeding must actually be placed before the decision maker in subsequent stages of that land use proceeding, if that earlier record is to become part of the record subject to review by LUBA. Leonard v. Union County, 23 Or LUBA 664 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where local code provisions require that the record of proceedings before initial decision makers be placed before the final decision maker the record of those earlier proceedings automatically become part of the record subject to review by LUBA, without the necessity of actually placing the record compiled before initial decision makers before the final decision maker. Leonard v. Union County, 23 Or LUBA 664 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a participant requests that the local decision maker include certain items in the record, but does not actually place those items before the decision maker, that request, at least in the absence of an affirmative response by the decision maker, is no more than a reference to those items in the participant's testimony and does not make those items part of the local record. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 845 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Local ordinance provisions which require certain items to be placed before the governing body have the effect of making those items part of the record of the governing body's proceedings, irrespective of whether the items were physically placed before the governing body. Schrock Farms, Inc. v. Linn County, 22 Or LUBA 836 (1992).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. An item is part of the record only if it was actually placed before the local decision maker. Whether an item is relevant to the decision maker's decision has no bearing on whether that item is in the record. Adkins v. Heceta Water District, 22 Or LUBA 826 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Materials placed before the local decision maker are part of the record only if they were submitted during the proceeding leading to the appealed decision. Where a local government conducts two separate proceedings, a quasi-judicial proceeding on an application and a legislative proceeding to consider adoption of a regulation governing such applications, items are not part of the record of the appealed regulation simply because they are part of the record of the application proceeding. Adkins v. Heceta Water District, 22 Or LUBA 826 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. To properly be included in the local record submitted to LUBA, items must have been placed before, and not specifically rejected by, the local decision maker. Items specifically rejected by the local decision maker during its proceedings are not part of the local record. Silani v. Klamath County, 22 Or LUBA 823 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioners' allegation that the job description of the county appeals secretary should be included in the local record is irrelevant to determining whether it is a part of the local record. Where the disputed job description was not placed before the local decision maker, LUBA will not require that it be included in the local record. Breivogel v. Washington County, 22 Or LUBA 813 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. To properly be included in the local record submitted to LUBA, items must have been placed before, and not specifically rejected by, the local decision maker. Weeks v. Tillamook County, 22 Or LUBA 810 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the local code does not specifically allow submittal of documents to the local decision maker through incorporation by reference, and the documents in question were not actually placed before the local decision maker during the proceedings below, the documents are not part of the local record. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 22 Or LUBA 799 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record is not limited to materials submitted to the decision maker prior to the close of the public hearing, but rather includes all materials placed before the decision maker prior to the adoption of the final decision. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 22 Or LUBA 799 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Video tapes of local proceedings not made by the local government as part of the official record of its proceedings are not properly included in the local government record. Toth v. Curry County, 21 Or LUBA 595 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents actually placed before the local decision maker must be included in the local record. That a document placed before the decision maker contains inaccuracies provides no basis for excluding the document from the record. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 574 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioners do not contend a list naming persons who received individual notice of planning commission or board of commissioners hearings was actually compiled by the county or placed before either body, such a list is not part of the local record. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 574 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A sketch prepared by a member of the decision making body during its deliberations and referred to in the comments of that member, but not shown to the other members, was not actually placed before the decision making body for inclusion in the record. Schmaltz v. City of Hood River, 21 Or LUBA 563 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the local code provides that "legislative actions include a public hearing by the [planning] commission," it requires the record of the public hearing before the planning commission to be placed before the governing body and be made part of the record of the final legislative action. Union Gospel Ministries v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 557 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where documents referenced in local government findings were not placed before the local decision maker, but rather were reviewed by local government staff who communicated the results of such review orally to the decision maker, the documents are not part of the local record. However, the work sessions at which such oral communications occurred are part of the local proceedings leading to the appealed decision, and audiotapes of such work sessions are properly part of the record. Eckis v. Linn County, 20 Or LUBA 589 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the audiotape of a portion of a local hearing is blank, making preparation of a transcript impossible, LUBA will not grant a motion to supplement the record with the witness' written statement, if that written statement was not placed before the local decision maker during the local proceedings. Hale v. City of Beaverton, 20 Or LUBA 584 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the clerk of the council is the official custodian of the record of city council proceedings, it is customary to submit documents to the clerk of the council, and it is not claimed that the council authorized planning staff to receive documents, submitting a document to a planning staff member during a city council hearing does not constitute placing the document before the city council. Blatt v. City of Portland, 20 Or LUBA 572 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government conducts the proceeding culminating in the adoption of a corrective program under ORS 197.530 as a separate proceeding, not as a continuation of a proceeding leading to the adoption of a moratorium under ORS 197.520, the record of the decision to adopt a corrective program does not include the record of the decision to adopt a moratorium, unless the moratorium record was placed before the decision maker during the corrective program proceeding. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 565 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record consists of those materials actually placed before, and not specifically rejected by, the local decision maker during the local proceedings; and is not limited to materials submitted to the local decision maker prior to the close of the public hearing or the making of a tentative decision. Barr v. City of Portland, 20 Or LUBA 531 (1991).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Petitioner's delivery of evidence to the county counsel's office is adequate to place those materials before the county decision maker and make them part of the local record subject to LUBA review, where (1) the procedures for submitting evidence at times other than during county hearings are not specified in the county code or regulations and were not identified during the course of the proceedings below, (2) the county failed to respond to petitioners' previous request for information regarding the proper procedure for submitting evidence, and (3) petitioner had previously submitted evidence to the county counsel's office, and that material was included in the local record. Wade v. Lane County, 20 Or LUBA 499 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. References to and reliance on a document by the applicant and city staff in their testimony before the city do not make that document part of the local record if it was not actually placed before the city decision maker. Hoffman v. City of Lake Oswego, 19 Or LUBA 607 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A statement in the findings in support of the appealed city decision that a particular document is "incorporated into the record" does not make that document part of the local record if it was not actually placed before the city decision maker. Hoffman v. City of Lake Oswego, 19 Or LUBA 607 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA considers the words spoken at the local government hearings to be part of the record, and will permit parties to attach excerpts from transcripts of such hearings to their briefs, notwithstanding that neither tapes nor transcripts of the local government hearings were submitted to LUBA as part of the record. Other parties may contest the accuracy of such transcript excerpts in their opening brief or in a reply brief. Columbia Steel Castings v. City of Portland, 19 Or LUBA 338 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a party objects to the local government's failure to include a document in the record filed with LUBA and argues the document was actually placed before the decision maker during the local proceedings, and respondent does not dispute the party's allegations, LUBA will sustain the record objection and require that the record be supplemented to include the document. Benjamin v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 600 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where the record contains equivocal and confusing statements by a local decision maker concerning whether particular evidence was accepted, the local decision maker will not be deemed to have rejected such evidence. Beck v. City of Tillamook, 19 Or LUBA 598 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record consists of those materials actually placed before the local decision maker during its proceeding and not specifically rejected by it. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 19 Or LUBA 571 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record is not limited to materials submitted to the local decision maker prior to the close of public hearing. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 19 Or LUBA 571 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a letter is submitted to the local decision maker, but a note is placed on the letter by a representative of the decision maker indicating that the decision maker will not consider it, such letter is rejected by the local decision maker and, therefore, is not part of the local record. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 19 Or LUBA 571 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government decision concerning a permit is remanded by LUBA and, following local proceedings on remand, a second decision concerning the permit is appealed to LUBA, the record supporting the prior decision is not included in the record of the second decision where the county fails to either include the prior record in the second record submitted to LUBA or designate the prior record as being part of the record. Clark v. Jackson County, 19 Or LUBA 220 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents specifically rejected by the local government during its proceedings are not part of the local government record. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 19 Or LUBA 548 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Documents actually placed before the local government decision maker prior to adoption of its final written decision, and not specifically rejected by the decision maker, are properly included in the record, even where the documents are submitted after the close of the evidentiary hearing. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 19 Or LUBA 548 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The minutes of public meetings conducted after the close of the evidentiary hearing in a land use proceeding, at which the local government decision maker deliberated or adopted its written decision, are properly included in the record of the local proceedings. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 19 Or LUBA 548 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. A general statement by the local government decision maker during local proceedings that evidence concerning public need would not be accepted is insufficient to reject documents which address public need and were subsequently submitted during the local proceedings. A local government must identify, with reasonable particularity, the documents it is refusing to include in the record. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 19 Or LUBA 548 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a second moratorium ordinance is adopted following a continuation of the local proceedings that led to the initial moratorium ordinance, the record of the local proceedings of the initial moratorium ordinance is properly included in the record in the local proceedings for the second moratorium ordinance. Davis v. City of Bandon, 19 Or LUBA 507 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where findings addressing Statewide Planning Goal 1, adopted in support of challenged ordinances amending the county code, describe citizen involvement and issue prioritization stages of code update proceedings as part of the ordinance adoption proceedings, the citizen involvement and issue prioritization proceedings are part of the record of the challenged ordinances, even though they occurred before the proposed ordinances were filed. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 19 Or LUBA 500 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Referral to a document in local government findings does not make the document part of the local government record. Although a document which is adopted or incorporated by reference as part of local government findings is part of the local government record, as findings, it is not part of the evidentiary record on which the local government based its decision, unless the document was actually placed before the local decision maker. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 19 Or LUBA 500 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where city staff was directed at a city council meeting to investigate moratorium requirements, city staff reported back to the city council at a second city council meeting and the city council adopted a moratorium at a third city council meeting, the minutes of the first two city council meetings and documents placed before the city council at those meetings are properly included in the record of the local proceedings leading to the ordinance adopting the moratorium. Davis v. City of Bandon, 19 Or LUBA 493 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The local government record consists of those items which are actually placed before the decision maker below, and which are not specifically rejected. However, to reject evidence, and thereby exclude it from the local record, the local government must make it clear that it rejects the evidence. Bloomer v. Baker County, 19 Or LUBA 482 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The fact that a local government may have had a basis under its ordinances to refuse to accept evidence does not determine whether such evidence was actually refused. Bloomer v. Baker County, 19 Or LUBA 482 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government solicits comments, previously rejected evidence is submitted in response to that solicitation and the local government does not, thereafter, specifically reject such evidence, the previously rejected evidence becomes part of the record. Bloomer v. Baker County, 19 Or LUBA 482 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where a local government specifically rejects evidence, but retains possession of that evidence, such evidence is not considered part of the record, overruling Indian Creek v. City of Lake Oswego, 14 Or LUBA 519 (1985). Bloomer v. Baker County, 19 Or LUBA 482 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. The record of an ancillary proceeding before another agency or governmental body, held for the purpose of making a recommendation to the county, is not part of the record of the county's decision making process if the record of that ancillary proceeding was not placed before the county decision makers. City of Portland v. Multnomah County, 18 Or LUBA 911 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where petitioners do not object to the adequacy or completeness of the minutes of local proceedings included in the record and do not attach transcripts to their petition for review, petitioners may not submit partial transcripts of local proceedings for the first time at oral argument. Walker v. City of Beaverton, 18 Or LUBA 712 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. LUBA takes official notice of comprehensive plans, land use regulations and other local enactments establishing land use decision approval standards, even where such documents are not included in the record. Sunburst II Homeowners v. City of West Linn, 18 Or LUBA 695 (1990).

27.3.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Content/Form. Where documents are prepared or revised after the decision appealed to LUBA was adopted, the documents are not part of the local government record. Sunburst II Homeowners v. City of West Linn, 18 Or LUBA 695 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a local government asserts, in its response to a party's record objections, that that party failed to confer in good faith prior to filing those objections, LUBA will generally consider a reply to that response that includes argument and evidence that the objecting party did adequately attempt to confer. Lundeen v. City of Waldport, 81 Or LUBA 1089 (2020).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Contacting the local government's attorney by telephone to discuss the particulars of record objections before filing the objections satisfies the requirement in OAR 661-010-0026(1) to attempt in good faith to resolve the objections prior to filing them, even where the local government's attorney states a preference to receive the objections in writing. Lundeen v. City of Waldport, 81 Or LUBA 1089 (2020).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a local government allows the petitioners' attorney to present argument at a hearing as the petitioners' sole representative and does not allow the petitioners to personally present testimony, where the decision-makers and the attorney engage in a colloquy at the hearing in which the decision-makers' questions include questions about farm practices elsewhere in the jurisdiction and whether the petitioners could adopt similar practices, where the petitioners plan to argue in the petition for review that the local government's procedure at the hearing prejudiced their substantial rights, where the minutes of the hearing in the record do not reflect the substance of the colloquy, and where there is no audible recording of the hearing in the record, LUBA will sustain a record objection under OAR 661-010-0026(3) arguing that the minutes are incomplete. Schrepel v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1081 (2020).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. That minutes in the record do not reflect the fact that public testimony was received only via WebEx and telephone, or reflect issues with the ability of members of the public to convey their comments using that technology, does not mean that the minutes are incomplete or inaccurate. Jacobus v. Klamath County, 81 Or LUBA 1076 (2020).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a state agency is required to satisfy overlapping state and federal public participation requirements in adopting a facility plan, where the agency forms a planning advisory committee (PAC) to satisfy those requirements, where the PAC holds a number of meetings, where the agency gives an update on the PAC's meetings before adopting a public facility plan, and where the agency includes summaries of those meetings as an appendix to the plan, LUBA will conclude that documents and materials generated by the PAC were "placed before" the agency, for purposes of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), and are therefore properly included in the record in an appeal of the agency's adoption of findings in support of its adoption of the plan eight years later. Schaefer v. OAB, 81 Or LUBA 1053 (2020).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. While LUBA generally defers to the custodian of the record's representations regarding the record contents, where the petitioner specifically objects that the record contains a "mishmash" of portions of two separate five-page letters, and where an email from a planner states that both letters were included in the record, LUBA will sustain the petitioner's objection and require that complete copies of the letters be included in a supplemental record. Anderson v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1063 (2020).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the record is approximately 7,300 pages long, and where the petitioner provides the local government with specific objections in writing one day prior to and in the morning on the day that they are due to be filed with LUBA, the petitioner has met the requirement of OAR 661-010-0026(1) to make a good faith attempt to resolve record objections before filing them. Citizens for Renewables v. City of North Bend, 81 Or LUBA 1036 (2020).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. An email sent to the local government's attorney 33 minutes prior to the close of business on the day that objections to a 91-page record are due to be filed is not a good faith attempt to resolve the objections before filing the objections for purposes of OAR 661-010-0026(1). Hunt v. City of The Dalles, 80 Or LUBA 1033 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will deny a record objection and conclude that the disputed materials are properly excluded from the record where the disputed materials were placed before the final decision-maker as attachments to the notice of local appeal and "rejected by[] the final decision maker" for purposes of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Bandon, 80 Or LUBA 1036 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will require a local government to provide a partial transcript of the city council's deliberations where the minutes fail to summarize the deliberations and petitioner demonstrates that the defect is material to a key issue in the appeal. However, where LUBA reviews the meeting minutes and concludes that they adequately summarize the city council's deliberations and accurately reflect the proceeding, LUBA will deny petitioner's record objection. Petitioner may refer to the video recording that is in the record and may attach a verbatim transcript to her petition for review, to the extent that petitioner intends to rely on specific statements that are not reflected in the minutes. Niederer v. City of Albany, 79 Or LUBA 1001 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will decide that disputed printed materials were submitted to the record and should be included in the record based on petitioner's specific assertion that she submitted the item to the city recorder, when it is circumstantially supported by the meeting minutes and video recording, and the city offers no specific contradictory evidence that no such materials were in fact handed to the city recorder, and the city does not argue that such submissions should not be included in the record. The city's vague denial is insufficient to overcome petitioner's specific assertion and other evidence. Niederer v. City of Albany, 79 Or LUBA 1001 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will deny petitioners' record objections where petitioners only verbally conferred with the county on one occasion in a single phone call in which petitioners did not discuss the specifics of any objections, but simply informed the county there were "too many objections to discuss" and that they intended to file a record objection with LUBA, and made no efforts after filing their record objections to advance resolution of the objections, refusing post-filing of the record objections to attempt to discuss and resolve any specific objections with the county, apparently because petitioners believed that further discussion would "serve no purpose." Bishop v. Deschutes County, 79 Or LUBA 1007 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Arguments that testimony is inadequately or inaccurately reflected in the minutes of the local proceedings may be adequate to justify requiring a local government to prepare a transcript of the proceedings where the objecting party demonstrates with particularity why the defect in the minutes is material. However, where petitioners' argument is merely that it is challenging to identify the testimony in the local government's voluminous record, and therefore LUBA should allow the documents to "resolve disputes regarding the content of the record," and where petitioner states it "is not clear that the document was actually submitted," there is no dispute regarding the content of the record, and petitioners have provided no basis for LUBA to allow the documents to be part of the record pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1). Restore Oregon v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1041 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will sustain petitioners' record objections where the local government's only response is that it could not verify that the documents were part of the record due to the lack of a date, signature and/or addressee, and petitioner provides evidence that petitioners sent the documents in question to all city commissioners in writing on April 4, 2018 by providing an email from one of the petitioners to each of the city commissioners with the documents in question attached, prior to the final decision. Restore Oregon v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1041 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the document to which petitioners object as having been improperly omitted from the record is an email sent by one of the petitioners to some, but not all, members of the city council, and no evidence in the record indicates that the email was submitted into the record by any of the recipients, the record was not "placed before" the final decision maker pursuant to OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Restore Oregon v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1041 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a local government states that certain meeting minutes were not placed before the local governing body or otherwise required to be included in the record, LUBA will defer to the local government as the custodian of the record unless the petitioner supplies a sufficient reason to decide otherwise beyond a bare assertion that those minutes were placed before the local governing body and not rejected. NWDNA v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1074 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. An objection that the record table of contents lists specific items which refer to attachments or exhibits, but does not separately list those attachments or exhibits themselves, provides no basis for LUBA to require the local government to revise the table of contents where the petitioner has provided no reason why LUBA should deviate from the general rule that OAR 660-010-0025(4)(a)(B)(i) does not require that exhibits to exhibits be separately listed in the table of contents. NWDNA v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 1074 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a petitioner asserts that a document was not and should not have been placed before the decision maker and therefore should not have been included in the local record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), and where the local government states that the document is included in the record because LUBA's rules do not require its exclusion but fails to demonstrate that the document was placed before the decision maker, made part of the record by law, or otherwise made available in a manner indicating it was part of the record, LUBA will exclude the challenged document. Norman v. Washington County, 79 Or LUBA 1079 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. While OAR 661-010-0025(1)(d) requires local governments to include in the local record "[n]otices of proposed action, public hearing and adoption of a final decision," that are "published, posted or mailed during the course of the land use proceeding" regardless of whether they were specifically incorporated into the record by the decision maker, that provision only applies to public notices and not documents labeled as a notice but directed only to the applicant. In addition, staff reports which are not merely referenced in a public notice, but are mailed with the notice itself, are considered part of the notice and are therefore properly part of the record. Norman v. Washington County, 79 Or LUBA 1079 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a petitioner files record objections alleging that "items are missing from the record," including documents and correspondence related to the notice of the local government's decision and the petitioner's attempted local appeal as well as documents related to the preliminary project review, but where the petitioner does not specify the omitted items and the basis for the claim that the items are part of the record until filing a reply, LUBA will deny the objections pursuant to OAR 661-010-0026(2). McCaffree v. City of North Bend, 79 Or LUBA 1087 (2019).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the local government's open record period closed on March 14, 2018, and the local government's counsel determined on April 11, 2018, for the first time, that exhibits petitioner had intended to attach to his March 7, 2018, email to the local government had not actually been included as attachments, and therefore the attachments had never actually been received by the local government's final decision maker, LUBA will deny petitioner's record objection that the attachments should have been included in the record. Watts v. Metro, 78 Or LUBA 1020 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner's record objection arguing that a local government's process leading to the challenged decision was "insufficient to create a record" because the process did not provide an opportunity for public participation, is not a cognizable record objection because it does not identify any specific documents that petitioner believes should or should not have been included in the record, or argue that the record does not otherwise conform with the rules pertaining to record submitted to LUBA. Watts v. Metro, 78 Or LUBA 1020 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a party objects that the county erred in rejecting certain items from the record, or argues that the county committed some procedural error in how it dealt with the disputed documents, such arguments may be the subject of an assignment of error, but they have no bearing on whether the items are part of the record on appeal and are not a proper basis for a record objection. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 1026 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioners' request that the record include the affidavit of mailing confirming that notices and attachments were emailed or mailed to the individuals is without merit, where the county represents that no affidavit was prepared, and argues that none is required under state or county law. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 1026 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioners' record objection fails where petitioners request that all written or electronic communication between petitioners and the county, and all written or electronic communications between petitioners and intervenor from the date of LUBA's final opinion to the date of the board of commissioners' meeting be included in the record because these items are "material to the record," but the county responds that all communication between the county and petitioners was only via county counsel, and were never placed before the board of commissioners. Whether the communications are material to the record is irrelevant; petitioners have not established any of the disputed communication between petitioners and county counsel or petitioners and intervenor were placed before the final decision-maker and are therefore not properly part of the record. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 1026 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When the county submits pre-decision documentation to DLCD in accordance with ORS 197.610(1) which requires local governments to provide information specified in ORS 197.610(3), including a copy of proposed amendments to DLCD, that material is properly included in the record. Also, when the county submits the post-decisional notice and information required by ORS 197.615(1) and (2), the county must either identify their location in the present record or submit them as part of a supplemental record. Additionally, if DLCD sent the county a substantive response to the information the county sent to DLCD, the response should be included in the record. VanDyke v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 1036 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner does not assert that the media recordings were "specifically incorporated into the record or placed before, and not rejected by, the final decision maker, during the course of the proceedings before the final decision maker," OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), petitioner has not met its burden to demonstrate that the city improperly excluded the disputed items from the record. The city is required to transmit a record to LUBA that includes "all materials included as part of the record during the proceedings before the final decision maker." OAR 661-010-0026(2)(a); OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c). In this proceeding, the city council was the final decision maker. Accordingly, neither OAR 661-010-0026(2)(a) or OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c) require the city to include media recordings of the planning commission hearings in the record. Oster v. City of Silverton, 78 Or LUBA 1079 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A media recording of a planning commission hearing that the city council, the final decisionmaker, did not incorporate into the record is not required to be included in the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c). Oster v. City of Silverton, 78 Or LUBA 1079 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. While the city's failure to include media recordings or transcripts of the planning commission hearings may be a basis for an assignment of error in the petition for review, that does not change the fact that the media recordings and transcript are not part of the record. For purposes of identifying the contents of the record required under OAR 661-010-0025, it does not matter whether the decision maker erred in accepting or excluding evidence. Oster v. City of Silverton, 78 Or LUBA 1079 (2018).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Nothing in LUBA's rules authorizes a party to file a series of new or expanded objections to the record after the 14-day period for filing record objections closes. That the local government files a supplemental record does not open the door for any party to file new or expanded objections to the original record. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. In a motion to take evidence outside the record filed before the parties have submitted briefs, LUBA considers it axiomatic that a document rejected from the local record is not part of the local record, for purposes of settling the content of the record, even if LUBA later concludes, after briefing on the merits, that the document was erroneously rejected from the local record. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the petitioner agrees to accept an electronic copy of the record on compact discs pursuant to OAR 661-010-025(2)(a) on the express condition that the electronic copy be searchable, but the first record the local government serves on the petitioner is not searchable, the local government must serve petitioner with a searchable copy of the record on compact discs or the equivalent medium, and cannot fulfill its obligation by simply providing a link to an on-line site that includes a searchable copy of the record. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 75 Or LUBA 534 (2017).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A single e-mail to the county discussing the omission of one document from the record is sufficient to satisfy the OAR 661-010-0026(1) obligation to attempt to resolve record objections with the local government's legal counsel prior to filing an objection with LUBA with respect to the identified document, but not with respect to other allegedly omitted documents. Neil v. Columbia County, 74 Or LUBA 614 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the petitioner objects to a finding in the decision that recites a statement, on the grounds that the statement was not actually made during the proceedings below, the objection is an argument on the merits that the findings are not supported by substantial evidence, not a cognizable objection to the record. Neil v. Columbia County, 74 Or LUBA 614 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will reject an objection to the accuracy of the minutes, where the minutes accurately reflect a county commissioner's statement that the petitioner has four employees. Whether the statement is true or not does not reflect any deficiency in the minutes. Neil v. Columbia County, 74 Or LUBA 614 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a party withdraws all but one of his initial record objections, and in doing so considerably elaborates upon the unclear and undeveloped initial record objection that he does not withdraw, LUBA will not consider the elaboration. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 633 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Merely providing hyperlinks to a document that is physically located on the local government's website, as the sole means of accessing recordings that are part of the local record, is not acceptable. However, where the local government subsequently transmits computer disks that contain the recordings, LUBA will not require that the local government correct defects in some of the hyperlinks. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 633 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Arguments that a local government incorrectly refused to accept documents for the record and that the local government was not sufficiently clear about which documents it was refusing to accept for the record are properly presented as assignments of error in a petition for review, and are not a basis for a record objection. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 633 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will consider an uncontested affidavit that a hearings officer considered only portions of the record of a lot-of-record decision provided by the applicant, and did not consider the entire record, to resolve an objection that the entire record was placed before the hearings officer. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 638 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Planning staff e-mails with the applicant regarding writing the final decision are not part of the record of a decision by the county board of commissioners, unless the e-mails are "placed before" the commissioners. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 638 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a party objects that the record should include a transcript, attaches the transcript to its record objections and the county thereafter submits a copy of the transcript as a supplemental record, and that transcript has formatting errors that complicate use of the transcript but do not render it unusable, LUBA will deny the party's objection that the county should be ordered to submit the transcript a second time without the formatting errors. Rawson v. Hood River County, 74 Or LUBA 668 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will not consider an additional record objection after an initial record objection is filed. Martin v. City of Central Point, 73 Or LUBA 422 (2016).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a party objects to incomplete "searchability" of an electronic record, it is the objecting party's burden to specifically identify which printed words in the record served on them are not searchable, and to demonstrate that any deficiency in searchability significantly affects the usability of the record. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 71 Or LUBA 409 (2015).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When an objecting party alleges that documents are missing from the record, and the county responds that such documents were not submitted for the record, a mere assertion that the documents were submitted is insufficient to overcome the county's contrary representation. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 71 Or LUBA 409 (2015).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A party's objection that the content of minutes from a county hearing are incomplete or inaccurate must be accompanied by a description of the differences between the minutes and what a partial transcript of the testimony made from the audio recording of the hearing would show. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 71 Or LUBA 409 (2015).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will deny an objection that the minutes of a city council hearing are incomplete, because the minutes fail to summarize the oral arguments of petitioner's attorney, where the same arguments are found in writing elsewhere in the record, and petitioner's argument that the defect in the minutes is "material" rests on speculation that petitioner will advance assignments of error to which, petitioner speculates, the respondent might raise waiver challenges. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will require a local government to provide a partial transcript of the city council's deliberations, where the minutes provide no summary at all of the deliberations, and petitioner demonstrates that the defect is material to a key issue in the appeal. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Any error in the record table of contents in describing a city council proceeding as a "hearing" rather than a "meeting" does not warrant a revised table of contents, because how the table of contents describes the proceeding cannot change the nature of that proceeding. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Building plans that are submitted to planning staff as part of an application for site plan review are not necessarily part of the local record transmitted to LUBA, if the building plans are not "placed before" the final decision maker, and no local regulation or other source of law incorporates all documents submitted as part of an application as part of the local record by operation of law. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Advising a local government's attorney by e-mail in the afternoon of the final day to file record objections that petitioner had record objections to discuss, and thereafter filing record objections, is sufficient to comply with the prior consultation requirement of OAR 661-010-0026(1), where the 5,000+ page digital record was sufficiently complex that the 14 days allowed to review, consult and object to the record easily might not have been a sufficient amount of time to do so. LO 138, LLC v. City of Lake Oswego, 70 Or LUBA 538 (2014).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will not resolve a record objection and require the local government to submit a supplemental record, where the local government has filed a dispositive motion to dismiss, and none of the documents at issue in the record objection have any bearing on the jurisdictional issue. Willamette Oaks LLC v. City of Eugene, 68 Or LUBA 162 (2013).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. It is the objecting party's burden to specifically identify noncompliant portions of the record. Where the petitioner objects that the record table of contents is deficient in three particulars, and alleges but does not identify other deficiencies, LUBA will not require the local government to comb through a large record to correct unidentified deficiencies. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 494 (2013)

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where it is unclear whether a supplemental record fully responds to a petitioners' record objections and in settling the record LUBA expressly provides that petitioners may renew their objection if the supplemental record is inadequate, petitioners may not fail to renew their record objection within the deadline specified by OAR 661-010-0026(2) and then later renew their record objection in the petition for review. Johnson v. City of Gladstone, 65 Or LUBA 225 (2012).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioners fail to establish that the minutes of a hearing in the record are "materially defective" where the only alleged defect is the failure to reflect petitioners' request below to keep the record open for additional testimony, but no party disputes that that request was made and no purpose would be served by requiring the local government to prepare a full transcript simply to reflect that request. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 61 Or LUBA 505 (2010).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will generally decline to consider new, additional record objections filed after the deadline expires to file objections, unless the objector explains why the new, additional objections could not reasonably have been made prior to the deadline, and even then only if considering the new, additional objections would not unduly delay settlement of the record or complicate the Board's efforts to comply with the 60-day deadline at ORS 197.830(10)(a). Claus v. City of Sherwood, 61 Or LUBA 505 (2010).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will consider new additional objections filed one week after the deadline for filing objections, where the delay was caused in part by the city's failure to provide the petitioners with a bound record as required by LUBA's rules, and the delay does not threaten the Board's ability to settle the record within the 60-day deadline at ORS 197.830(10)(a). Claus v. City of Sherwood, 61 Or LUBA 505 (2010).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When the local code requires that certain materials that are before the initial decision maker be forwarded to the final decision maker, those materials are considered part of the record by operation of law. However, because the code does not require that everything before the initial decision maker be forwarded to the final decision maker, LUBA will deny a record objection that some documents were not forwarded, where the objector does not identify specific documents that were required to be, but were not, forwarded. Burness v. Douglas County, 61 Or LUBA 530 (2010).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The OAR 661-010-0026(2) authorization for precautionary record objections was adopted to encourage collaborative resolution of record problems which can eliminate the possibility that LUBA will erroneously resolve complicated record objections or resolve them in a way that will have unintended consequences or complicates resolution of an appeal on the merits. Hoffman v. Deschutes County, 60 Or LUBA 451 (2009).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When a page of the record submitted to LUBA is illegible, the parties disagree about whether the illegible page is a smaller scale version of an oversized site plan or a smaller scale version of a large aerial photo, and the local government cannot confirm which oversized item the illegible document is a smaller scale reproduction of, the local government must provide a supplemental record containing legible copies, including if necessary full-sized copies, of both of the potential documents. Foland v. Jackson County, 60 Or LUBA 472 (2010).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A motion to reconsider an order on record objections is not appropriate when the motion: (1) attempts to raise new objections to the record; (2) repeats arguments made in the original objections; or (3) provides new arguments that could have been advanced in the original objections. Smith v. City of Salem, 60 Or LUBA 478 (2010).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A motion to reconsider an order on record objections may be appropriate when the motion argues that LUBA's order was based on a significant misunderstanding of the parties' arguments regarding the record and the party seeking reconsideration files a timely request to reconsider that succinctly identifies and clarifies the alleged misunderstanding. Smith v. City of Salem, 60 Or LUBA 478 (2010).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a local government land use code requires that "testimony and evidence" that is transmitted to city planning staff must be included in the record, even if that testimony and evidence was never placed before the ultimate city decision maker, e-mail messages that were sent to planning staff need not be included in the record where the objecting party does not establish that the disputed e-mail messages constitute "testimony and evidence." Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 59 Or LUBA 519 (2009).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. In a LUBA appeal that challenges a city letter to a subdivision developer that takes the position that (1) streets in a previously approved and platted subdivision have been improperly constructed and do not comply with tentative subdivision plan conditions of approval and (2) building permits will not be issued for lots in the subdivision until existing violations are corrected, the record that is filed with LUBA must include any documents that were actually placed before the city council in making its decision to send the letter. An objection that the record in the appeal of the letter should include documents that were generated during earlier proceedings that led up to tentative and final subdivision approval decisions that were not appealed to LUBA will be denied where there is no claim that the requested additional documents were placed before the city council during the deliberations that led up to the city sending the letter and the city takes the position that they were not placed before the city council during those deliberations. Calvary Construction, LLC v. City of Glendale, 59 Or LUBA 539 (2009).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The only material difference between a precautionary record objection and a record objection is that the former is filed to advise LUBA that the objecting party is continuing to work with the governing body's legal counsel to resolve the objections. Both record objections and precautionary record objections must specify the allegedly omitted item and state the basis for the claim that the item is part of the record. Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner and respondent disagree about when a legislative proceeding began, and if petitioner is correct a large number of additional documents must be added to the record, petitioner's record objection will not be rejected simply because petitioner does not specifically identify each of the documents that petitioner believes should be added to the record. Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 58 Or LUBA 688 (2009).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner objects that mailing lists should not be included in the record, but resolving petitioner's record objection would require LUBA to determine whether notice was in fact sent to persons on the mailing lists, LUBA will allow the mailing lists to remain in the record and resolve any issue concerning whether notices were sent to persons on the mailing lists in its decision on the merits. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 58 Or LUBA 703 (2009).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Because the respondent is the custodian of the record, and petitioner has the ultimate burden of demonstrating that the local record is deficient under OAR 661-010-0026(2), petitioner's mere disagreement with respondent regarding whether a disputed item was submitted to the city during the proceedings below is insufficient to establish that the item was submitted. Curl v. City of Bend, 56 Or LUBA 794 (2008).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where approved and draft versions of city council minutes are not organized in inverse chronological order, as required by OAR 661-010-0025(4)(a)(E), LUBA will not require that a city file an amended record to comply with the inverse chronological order requirement where there is no possibility of confusion about what the approved and draft versions are or where they are located in the record. David v. City of Hillsboro, 56 Or LUBA 804 (2008).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a petitioner's contacts with the local government regarding record objections, viewed in their totality were not a good faith attempt to resolve record objections under OAR 661-010-0026(2) before filing record objections, LUBA will deny petitioner's record objections. Sommer v. City of Cave Junction, 55 Or LUBA 665 (2007).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will decline to summarily reject an objection to the record that states only general, non-specific objections, where the petitioner meets the intent of OAR 660-010-0026 by immediately sending a letter to the local government counsel with specific objections and attempting to resolve those objections. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 55 Or LUBA 669 (2007).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. It is inconsistent with LUBA's rules to allow a party unlimited time and opportunity to add new and evolving objections to the record after the initial record objection is filed. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 55 Or LUBA 669 (2007).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Under OAR 661-010-0026(6), after a record objection is filed, the time limits for all further procedures remain suspended until LUBA issues an order settling the record, even if the local government transmits a supplemental record to the parties that purports to resolve some or all of the record objections. Welch v. Yamhill County, 55 Or LUBA 697 (2007).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner and a local government disagree about whether a color or black and white copy of a map was submitted into the record, and petitioner offers proof that she paid for five color copies of the map and provides a plausible explanation for how the local government may have misplaced the color copies, LUBA will require that a color copy of the map be included in the record. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 55 Or LUBA 715 (2008).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the petitioner and local government simply disagree about whether particular pages were included in a copy of a document that was submitted to the local government for inclusion in the record, absent reason to proceed otherwise, LUBA will generally accept the local government's position, as the custodian of the record. Curl v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 719 (2008).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a local government transmits a 4,457-page record to LUBA in eight three-ring binders but serves a copy of that record on petitioner without similarly placing the record in three-ring binders or otherwise securely fastening the record on the left side as required by OAR 661-010-25(4)(a)(C), LUBA will require that the local government supply record binders to petitioner. Curl v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 719 (2008).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Under OAR 661-010-0025(2) a local government is entitled to retain "tapes" of local hearings at the time it transmits the record and serves a copy of the record on the parties to a LUBA appeal and later provide a single copy of those tapes to LUBA at oral argument. Digital CDs are the functional equivalent of "tapes" and similarly may be retained by the local government until the time set for oral argument. Curl v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 719 (2008).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Documents that are on a medium other than plain printer paper, such that they are not easily copied on a standard office black and white copier are properly omitted from the record that is initially transmitted to LUBA and retained by a local government and separately transmitted to LUBA as part of the record at the time set for oral argument under OAR 661-010-0025(2). Walker v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 752 (2007).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Documents that are oddly shaped or sufficiently large that they cannot be easily reduced and printed on a standard 8-1/2-by-11-inch page by a standard office copier, are properly retained by a local government at the time it initially transmits the record to LUBA and separately transmitted to LUBA as part of the record at the time set for oral argument under OAR 661-010-0025(2). Walker v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 752 (2007).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The record submitted by a local government must include color copies or black and white copies of any color documents that are on 8-1/2-by-11-inch pages or on pages that are easily reduced to 8-1/2-by-11-inch pages by standard office copiers. If black and white copies of color originals are included in the record, the color originals must be submitted at the time set for oral argument in accordance with OAR 661-010-0025(2). Walker v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 752 (2007).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Under OAR 661-010-0026(1), before filing a record objection, a party is required to consult with the governing body's legal counsel. Where a party does so and the local government thereafter submits a supplemental record three days after the 14-day deadline for filing record objections expires, the party's failure to file a record objection provides no basis for rejecting the supplemental record. Jaffer v. City of Monmouth, 51 Or LUBA 803 (2006).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a petitioner files a record objection without fulfilling his obligation to attempt to resolve record objections pursuant to 661-010-0026(1), and two recent orders by this Board make it clear that petitioner was aware of the requirement, the record objection will be denied, whether or not that failure resulted in substantial prejudice to a party's substantial rights. Ghena v. Josephine County, 51 Or LUBA 820 (2006).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will not summarily deny record objections based on the objectors' failure to first consult with the local government's counsel under OAR 661-010-0026(1), where although it appeared that one of the objecting parties consciously violated the consultation requirement, it was not clear that another of the objecting parties was aware of the consultation requirement, and the county had already caused a 77-day delay by filing the record late. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 756 (2005).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The requirement in Statewide Planning Goal 1 (Citizen Involvement) that information "necessary to reach policy decisions" be made available to the public does not supercede the attorney/client privilege, and LUBA may not require that the record be supplemented to include information that the city redacts based on the attorney/client privilege. Forest Hills Easement Assoc. v. City of Lake Oswego, 49 Or LUBA 739 (2005).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When a local government considers draft findings or minutes during the course of the proceedings but amends the drafts in adopting the final decision and minutes, the draft findings and minutes are still part of the local government's record. Bemis v. City of Ashland, 47 Or LUBA 601 (2004).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When an applicant on remand modifies the application that led to the remanded decision, the local government proceedings on remand represent a continuation of the original application rather than a new application. Therefore, the local government record that led to the LUBA appeal is properly part of the record on remand unless specifically excluded by the local government. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 628 (2004).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(c) does not necessarily require local governments to include in the record minutes of every meeting of the final decision maker where a development proposal is mentioned. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Medford, 47 Or LUBA 650 (2004).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When documents are part of a local government planning file that is physically present and visible at a public hearing, but the local government does nothing to indicate that the documents are meant to be part of the record, then those documents are not properly part of the record. Naumes Properties, LLC v. City of Central Point, 45 Or LUBA 708 (2003).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the record that a local government files with LUBA includes black and white copies of color originals, and the city does not indicate that it will provide the color originals at oral argument, parties are free to object to the record. However, such objections should be limited to circumstances where material information is actually lost in the black and white copy. Oien v. City of Beaverton, 45 Or LUBA 722 (2003).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA does not have authority to order that privileged attorney/client communications be made a part of the record in a LUBA appeal. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 44 Or LUBA 805 (2003).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA does not have authority to order that a city include as part of the record in a LUBA appeal transcripts or minutes that may have been prepared of executive sessions. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 44 Or LUBA 805 (2003).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. An objection that a record does not include a city council meeting agenda that identifies petitioners' LUBA appeal as the topic of discussion in an executive session held pursuant to ORS 192.660(1), and minutes from that same meeting that show that the executive session was held, will be sustained where petitioners do not ask that the contents of the executive session be included in the record. Martin v. City of Dunes City, 44 Or LUBA 840 (2003).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Given the severe consequence that dismissal of an appeal represents, and the ease with which the risk of that consequence can be avoided by filing a record objection or precautionary record objection while record disputes are resolved, a prudent petitioner will always file a record objection or precautionary record objection with any other documents that may be filed to provide notice of the parties' negotiations concerning the content of the record. Laurance v. Douglas County, 44 Or LUBA 845 (2003).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Duplication of items properly included in the record does not provide a basis for sustaining a record objection. Laurance v. Douglas County, 44 Or LUBA 845 (2003).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Although parties may have additional motivation other than the integrity of the record to file record objections, including delaying the time for filing the petition for review, that does not mean that the record objection is without merit or was filed for the sole purpose of obtaining more time to file the petition for review. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 617 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A motion requesting summary denial of a record objection because the objecting party failed to make a good faith effort to resolve the record objection prior to filing the record objection will be denied where it is clear that the objecting party worked with the local government to resolve the record objection after the record objection was filed. Citizens for Resp Area Plng v. City of Wilsonville, 43 Or LUBA 641 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A motion requesting that record objections be denied because the objecting party failed to allege the basis for its belief that each disputed item was placed before the decision maker will be denied, where the record objection makes it reasonably clear that the basis for the record objection is the same for all disputed items. Citizens for Resp Area Plng v. City of Wilsonville, 43 Or LUBA 641 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. As used in OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b), the term "placed before" is a term of art and does not merely describe the act of setting documents in front of the decision maker. Legislative decision making often involves less precisely defined procedures for compiling an evidentiary record than quasi-judicial decision making. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 589 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. In an appeal of an environmental assessment prepared as part of a larger state and federal approval process for proposed highway improvements, it is the nature of the environmental assessment process itself and the reasonable expectations of the parties to that process, rather than the conduct of the decision makers, that determines the scope of the record. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 589 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The record submitted in an appeal of an environmental assessment for a proposed highway interchange properly includes documents that were created or submitted as part of the process to initiate construction of the interchange, where those documents were maintained such that a reasonable person would expect them to be available to the state and federal decision makers who will ultimately approve the interchange project and the documents are in fact available to the final decision makers. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 589 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The mere inclusion of a written decision from another planning action in the record of a subsequent land use decision is not sufficient in itself to incorporate the entire planning file from the earlier decision into the record of the later decision. Yeager v. Benton County, 41 Or LUBA 604 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(d) requires that notices provided throughout "the course of the land use proceeding" be included in the record, including notices from lower tribunals. The rule does not apply to notices from separate planning actions, even if those planning actions are relevant to the challenged decision. Yeager v. Benton County, 41 Or LUBA 604 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where notice to the city council that an action has been taken by the city administrator is required by a local land use regulation, that notice is properly included in the record as a "notice of proposed action [or] final decision mailed * * * during the course of the land use proceeding" within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(d). Thomas v. City of Turner, 41 Or LUBA 583 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will not require that documents be included in the record, when the sole argument in support of including the disputed documents in the record is that the documents will provide background or evidentiary justification to support a motion that has yet to be filed. Thomas v. City of Turner, 41 Or LUBA 583 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Record objections that are presented for the first time in the petition for review will be denied as untimely filed. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 41 Or LUBA 515 (2002).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The filing of a record objection does not automatically suspend resolution of other motions properly before the Board, or prioritize resolution of record objections over other motions. No Tram to OHSU v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 588 (2001).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will deny a motion to consider evidence not in the record where the dispute between the parties concerns the accuracy or validity of a map that is included in the record rather than whether that map is properly included in the record. Challenges to the accuracy or validity of the map must be made during the local proceedings. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 743 (2000).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. OAR 661-010-0026(3) provides a way to correct the minutes of the proceedings of the final decision maker; it does not provide a way to correct incomplete or inaccurate minutes of meetings of lower-level local decision makers that were actually placed before or incorporated by the final decision maker. Hubenthal v. City of Woodburn, 38 Or LUBA 916 (2000).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA's administrative rules are established to promote the speediest practicable review of land use decisions and limited land use decisions. A petitioner's objection to technical violations that do not affect the substantial rights of the parties will be denied, when the particular situation would be better served by permitting technical violations of our rules rather than delaying the appeal to correct the violations. Lange-Luttig v. City of Beaverton, 38 Or LUBA 909 (2000).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where an objection to the record is made because the county failed to include defective audiotapes of the proceedings before the local decision maker, LUBA will deny the record objection because it serves no purpose to have defective tapes in the record. The deficiency in record keeping may be assigned as error. Hal's Construction, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 37 Or LUBA 1037 (2000).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. In the context of a record objection, LUBA will rely on the parties' representations regarding the existence or nonexistence of disputed documents, without requiring proponents or opponents to submit affidavits in support of their position, absent some substantial reason to question those representations. Rochlin v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 1005 (1999).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Implicit in OAR 661-010-0025(3) is the requirement that the local government supply petitioner, at his expense, an audible copy of the original audio tape of local proceedings. However, where the local government has attempted three times to provide petitioner with an audible copy, and petitioner does not explain what the local government can do to provide a more audible copy, there is no relief that the Board can order. Rochlin v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 1005 (1999).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA will sustain a record objection on the grounds that certain items were not placed before the decision maker when the city fails to demonstrate that the items were available in such a way as to put a person with some familiarity with the local land use hearings process on notice that the items were in fact "placed before" the decision maker within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Home Depot, Inc. v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 994 (1999).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a party objects to the inclusion of certain items in the record because the city did not "place them" before the decision maker, and the local government contends that the items were in the planning files that were brought by city staff to the hearings, but does not demonstrate that the disputed documents were in fact in the staff files and that the actions of the staff are sufficient to show that the files were "placed before" the local decision maker, the items are not part of the record. Home Depot, Inc. v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 994 (1999).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the city alleges that city staff brought disputed documents into a hearing room, and that the documents were available for reference by the decision makers, they are "placed before" the decision maker and are therefore properly part of the record, notwithstanding the lack of a more formal presentation. Home Depot, Inc. v. City of Portland, 36 Or LUBA 783 (1999).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections To. LUBA will reject a supplemental record submitted after the petition for review has been filed, where the city fails to explain why the material in the supplemental record is properly part of the local record, and fails to establish that any "unique circumstances" exist justifying untimely filing of the supplemental record. Terra v. City of Newport, 36 Or LUBA 754 (1999).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The record in one proceeding does not include the record and hearing officer's decision of a previous conditional use application for a separate but similar use at a different location when the two determinations stem from independent requests, different parties and the decision maker did not rely on that previous decision in approving the current application. Buckman Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 35 Or LUBA 800 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b) establishes two ways items may be included in the record: items which are "specifically incorporated" and items placed before and not rejected by the final decision maker. Highlands Condominium Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 35 Or LUBA 772 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Under OAR 661-010-0026(2), substantial prejudice to a party is not a basis for an objection to the exclusion of an item from a record. Highlands Condominium Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 35 Or LUBA 772 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Late filing of a record objection is a technical violation of LUBA rules and will not provide a basis for denying the record objection, absent prejudice to a party's substantial rights. Schaffer v. City of Turner, 35 Or LUBA 744 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner's undeveloped claim that certain documents "were placed in the record" is insufficient to allege that the documents were placed before the local decision maker and not specifically rejected. Mintz v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 781 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner objects to the adequacy of the minutes included in the record but fails to demonstrate that the minutes are in fact defective or that the defect is material to the appeal, the objection will be denied. Mintz v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 781 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. LUBA's rules do not allow the filing of additional record objections after the initial record objection is filed. Mintz v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 781 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. An unsubstantiated assertion that certain documents were placed before the local decision maker is not sufficient where the local government represents that the documents were not placed before the local government or otherwise made part of the record. Boyer v. Baker County, 34 Or LUBA 758 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A summary of testimony necessarily omits details of that testimony. An objection to a summary of testimony must explain how the summarized testimony is mischaracterized. Boyer v. Baker County, 34 Or LUBA 758 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner identifies several documents in the record where the decision maker refers to a preliminary grading plan, petitioner satisfies his obligation to demonstrate that the preliminary grading plan was placed before the decision maker, notwithstanding that the preliminary grading plan was not included with the original application. Abadi v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 753 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner demonstrates that the minutes of a meeting before the local governing body were altered to inaccurately reflect what occurred at that meeting, such minutes are inaccurate, and LUBA will order the governing body to prepare a transcript of relevant portions of the audiotape of that meeting. ODOT v. City of Mosier, 34 Or LUBA 742 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A record objection filed after the deadline for filing the petition for review does not suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 34 Or LUBA 348 (1998).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner contends a document should have been included in the record and the local government does not explain why the document is not included in the record, LUBA will sustain petitioner's record objection. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine County, 33 Or LUBA 882 (1997).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner fulfills her obligation to attempt to resolve record objections pursuant to OAR 661-10-026 when, after two hours of waiting at the local government's counsel office, she is denied the opportunity to speak with the government's counsel because she lacks her own legal counsel. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The fact that a document is relevant to the challenged decision does not, in itself, mean that the document should be included in the local record. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A good faith attempt to resolve a record objection, as required by OAR 661-10-026(1), should consist of more than a single letter without follow-up. Casey Jones v. City of Lowell, 33 Or LUBA 812 (1997).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The obligation to attempt resolution of record objections under OAR 661-10-026(1) is an ongoing obligation that does not cease when one party files a formal record objection or the period for filing objections expires. Casey Jones v. City of Lowell, 33 Or LUBA 812 (1997).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the minutes of the planning commission are included in the record under OAR 661-10-025(1)(b), record objections to those minutes cannot be made pursuant to OAR 661-10-026(2)(c). OAR 661-10-026(2)(c) record objections must be limited to the minutes of the "governing body," as defined in OAR 661-10-010(4). City of Gresham v. City of Wood Village, 33 Or LUBA 779 (1997).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The primary purpose of the specifications set out in OAR 661-10-025(4) for records filed with LUBA is to ensure that the record is usable by the parties and the Board. Where an exhibit in the record contains more than 700 pages unindexed and in no particular order, LUBA will sustain a record objection on the basis that not all documents can be identified and located with reasonable effort. Mar-Dene Corporation v. City of Woodburn, 32 Or LUBA 481 (1997).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. When a hearing audio tape is inadvertently destroyed, the city cannot include it in the record. However, the city's failure to include the tape in the record does not require remand unless LUBA cannot perform its review function as a result. Village Properties, L.P. v. City of Oregon City, 32 Or LUBA 475 (1996).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Filing an objection to the record one day after the 10-day period established by OAR 661-10-026(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that will not prevent consideration of the objection unless the local government demonstrates the delay caused prejudice to its substantial rights. Northwest Environmental Advocates v. City of Portland, 32 Or LUBA 471 (1996).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a petitioner contends a document missing from the record was widely circulated among "all affected agencies" and "is believed to have been included in the city's record," and the city does not explain why the document was not included in the record, LUBA will sustain petitioner's record objection. Northwest Environmental Advocates v. City of Portland, 32 Or LUBA 471 (1996).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The local record includes not only materials submitted to the local decision maker during the public hearing process, but also other materials placed before the local decision maker prior to adoption of the final decision. Whether the local government satisfied statutory or local ordinance requirements in accepting evidence after the local hearings process does not determine whether those documents were made part of the record. Nicholson/Keever v. Clatsop County, 31 Or LUBA 535 (1996).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Items placed before and made part of the record during the local proceedings are not subject to amendment on appeal to this Board. Local governments may not amend a document in the record in order for it to conform to another document in the record. Nicholson/Keever v. Clatsop County, 31 Or LUBA 535 (1996).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. OAR 661-10-026(1) requires parties to attempt to resolve objections prior to filing a record objection with this Board. Lack of adherence to this rule frustrates the timely resolution of all appeals. Nicholson/Keever v. Clatsop County, 31 Or LUBA 535 (1996).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Frivolous record objections may result in the dismissal of an appeal if it is shown the objections are without merit and filed solely for the purpose of obtaining additional time to prepare the petition for review. Pilate v. City of Banks, 30 Or LUBA 433 (1995).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Even if a party specifically asked, in a letter addressed to a local government planner, that the letter be placed in the record, the party will not prevail on a record objection based solely on its expectation that the planner would actually place the letter before the decision maker. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 601 (1995).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner does not explain why she could not have objected to the omission of a particular item in her initial objection to the record, petitioner may not object to the absence of that item for the first time in an objection to a supplemental record submitted by respondent. Fraser v. City of Joseph, 29 Or LUBA 575 (1995).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. If a party successfully demonstrates that minutes in the record are inaccurate, and those defects are material to resolution of the appeal, as required by OAR 661-10-026(3), LUBA will require respondent to submit a transcript of the relevant portion of its tape recordings. If that is impossible, because no such tape recordings exist, there is nothing more LUBA can do to require respondent to correct deficiencies in its minutes. Friends of Neabeack Hill v. City of Philomath, 29 Or LUBA 557 (1995).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The local government record submitted in a prior LUBA appeal, which led to remand of the challenged decision, is properly included in the local government record submitted to LUBA in a subsequent LUBA appeal of the local government's decision on remand. However, objections to the content of the local government record in the prior appeal, which could have been made in the prior appeal but were not, may not be asserted in the subsequent appeal. East Lancaster Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 554 (1995).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner could have discovered the identity of an "oversized exhibit" named in the record by reviewing the record and consulting with the local government, any objection to the local government's decision to retain the "oversized exhibit" until the time of oral argument must be made in a record objection filed during the time allowed by OAR 661-10-026(2). ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 29 Or LUBA 90 (1995).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. If a record objection is not supported with evidence that a disputed item was actually received by the decision maker or by a person authorized to receive evidence on the decision maker's behalf, LUBA has no basis for rejecting a representation by respondent that the disputed item was never received and was not placed before the decision maker. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 28 Or LUBA 775 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. An allegation that the decision maker committed error by accepting a disputed item may provide the basis for an assignment of error, but has no bearing on whether the disputed item is properly part of the record. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 28 Or LUBA 775 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. An objection that the local record fails to include a "single file" does not adequately identify the items petitioner believes are not included in the local record submitted by the local government. McCrary v. City of Talent, 28 Or LUBA 773 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. OAR 661-10-065(4) simply provides that with the exception of objections to the record and motions for evidentiary hearing, the filing of a motion does not have the legal effect of automatically suspending the deadlines for future events in a LUBA appeal until the motion is resolved. Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 746 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. If an objector does not demonstrate an alleged defect in minutes in the record is material to the resolution of the appeal, as required by OAR 661-10-026(3), LUBA has no basis for requiring respondent to submit a verbatim transcript as part of the record. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 730 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a handwritten document was placed before the local decision maker, and the copy of the handwritten document in the local record is no more illegible than the original document, there is no basis for requiring the local government to prepare a typewritten transcription of the document. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. In resolving objections to the record, LUBA determines only whether the items in question are properly part of the local government record. Parties who wish to submit evidence outside the local government record to LUBA under ORS 197.830(13)(b) must file a motion for evidentiary hearing pursuant to OAR 661-10-045(2). Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a local government submits a supplemental record while LUBA is in the process of resolving objections to the original record, a party may not reserve its objections to the supplemental record until after LUBA issues an order resolving the objections to the original record. LUBA's rules require that an objection to a supplemental record be filed no later than 10 days after the objecting party receives the supplemental record. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner cannot allege for the first time in the petition for review that a document included in the local record was not actually placed before the local decision maker and, consequently, assign the decision maker's reliance on that document as error. Bates v. Josephine County, 28 Or LUBA 21 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioners make an undisputed allegation that they were refused permission to present their "case in chief" to the local government decision maker, and the minutes of the local proceedings in the record contain no mention of petitioners' attempts to present their case or of the local government's refusal to hear it, petitioners adequately identify a material defect in the minutes. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 27 Or LUBA 704 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner objects to minutes in the record submitted by a local government, but does not identify any approval standards applicable to the challenged decision to which the testimony at issue is relevant, petitioner fails to explain how the alleged defect in the minutes is material, as required by OAR 661-10-026(3). Tri-County Metro. Trans. Dist. v. City of Beaverton, 27 Or LUBA 659 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The local record consists of those items placed before, and not rejected by, the local decision maker. Where petitioner contends the applicant asked to withdraw certain documents it submitted to the local decision maker, but does not argue the local decision maker granted that request or otherwise rejected the disputed documents, LUBA has no basis for concluding the documents are erroneously included in the local record. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 651 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A party's failure to attempt to resolve its objections with the local government's counsel prior to filing an objection to the record, as required by OAR 661-10-026(1), is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that does not affect LUBA's review, unless another party explains how the failure prejudiced its substantial rights. Dorgan v. City of Albany, 26 Or LUBA 621 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The only purpose of an objection to the record is to determine what was included in the local record below, not whether the local government erred in accepting or rejecting evidence. Therefore, LUBA will deny a record objection based on a charge that the local government erred because the disputed items were not placed before the local decision maker. Dorgan v. City of Albany, 26 Or LUBA 621 (1994).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. In resolving objections to the record, LUBA determines only whether the items in question are properly part of the record. Whether the local government erred by accepting the disputed items, and whether any such error provides a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, are independent questions that go to the merits of the appeal. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. In resolving objections to the record, LUBA determines only whether items were included in the record below, not whether those items are relevant to an issue raised by petitioner below. Matrix Development v. City of Tigard, 26 Or LUBA 606 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Objections to the adequacy of minutes of local government meetings in the record provide no basis for LUBA to order the local government to prepare and submit a transcript, if the objector does not explain how the alleged defects in the minutes are material to the appeal. Wissusik v. Yamhill County. 26 Or LUBA 601 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a party objects that a statement is missing from a transcript of local government audiotapes, but no party has reviewed the tapes and can attest that the statement at issue is discernible on the tapes, the record objection will be denied. Testa v. Clackamas County, 26 Or LUBA 596 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The only purpose of an objection to the record is to determine what was included in the local record below, not whether respondent erred in accepting or rejecting evidence, or whether evidence in the record is accurate. Testa v. Clackamas County, 26 Or LUBA 596 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Under OAR 661-10-026(3), an objection to the record on the grounds that minutes are incomplete must explain why the defect is material. An objection that minutes are defective because the challenged decision does not correspond to the decision maker's verbal statements does not establish a material defect in the minutes because the challenged decision need not correspond to such verbal statements. Edwards v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 809 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. An objection that minutes included in the local record are defective because they do not reflect that the introduction to a public hearing failed to comply with local code requirements and that new evidence was improperly accepted will be denied, where the objecting party fails to explain how the introduction was defective and fails to identify the disputed new evidence. Edwards v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 809 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where an objection that certain documents should be included in the local government record could have been made in a party's initial record objection, the objection may not be raised in a second record objection filed by that party after a supplemental record was submitted. Edwards v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 809 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The alleged failure of the minutes of a local government's proceedings to specifically identify documents the local government relied upon provides no basis for striking those documents from the record. The function of findings of fact is to identify the evidence relied upon, there is no legal requirement that the minutes perform that function. McPeek v. Coos County, 25 Or LUBA 805 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where the respondent includes documents in the record and takes the position that those documents were actually placed before the decision maker during the local proceedings, LUBA relies on the objecting party to offer some reason for questioning respondent's position. McPeek v. Coos County, 25 Or LUBA 805 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner's objection that a partial transcript, prepared and submitted by respondent in response to record objections by an intervenor, should be more extensive provides no basis for ordering the local government to provide such an expanded transcript, where petitioner does not explain, as required by OAR 661-10-026(3), why the minutes included in the record are inadequate to provide the desired information. McPeek v. Coos County, 25 Or LUBA 805 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A general objection to the record requesting that speakers in a transcript be identified, because it would be easier to prepare the petition for review, does not provide a sufficient basis to sustain the objection. A request that a particular speaker in a transcript in the record be identified, because that speaker was a decision maker below and his dialogue establishes the existence of impermissible ex parte contacts, provides a sufficient basis to sustain that aspect of the record objection. Derry v. Douglas County, 25 Or LUBA 790 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioners object that certain items should be included in the local record, but do not contend those items were actually placed before the local decision maker, LUBA will deny the record objection. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 25 Or LUBA 768 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A request to supplement the record, made during oral argument, causes prejudice to the substantial rights of the opposing party, and the request will be denied. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 25 Or LUBA 43 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. If an objection to the local record is filed, the time limits for filing the petition for review, respondents' briefs and LUBA's final opinion and order are suspended, regardless of whether the record objection is ultimately sustained or denied. OAR 661-10-026(5). DLCD v. Klamath County, 24 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioners object to the adequacy of minutes in the record, and ask that their testimony below be transcribed, but do not identify any approval standards applicable to the challenged decision to which the testimony is relevant, petitioners fail to demonstrate the alleged defect in the minutes is material, and their record objection will be denied. Neuharth v. City of Salem, 24 Or LUBA 647 (1993).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Arguments that testimony is inadequately or inaccurately reflected in the minutes of the local proceedings are inadequate to justify requiring that a local government prepare a transcript of the proceedings. The objecting party must demonstrate with particularity why the defects in the minutes are material. West Amazon Basin Land Owners v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 597 (1992).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. The presence of blank spots on an audio tape of a public hearing does not provide a basis for allowing the petitioner in a LUBA proceeding to attempt to supply the information that should be reflected on the blank portions of the tape, by an affidavit not placed before the local decision maker. Giesy v. Benton County, 24 Or LUBA 586 (1992).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A party may not fail to object to the record submitted by the local government in a LUBA proceeding and thereafter attach documents to its brief that it believes should be included in the record. Mercer v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 608 (1992).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioners do not dispute that a document was placed before the local decision maker, but rather contend they were unaware it had been placed before the decision maker, there is no basis for excluding the document from the local record. Chauncey v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 685 (1992).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner describes with specificity an alleged omission from the transcript and minutes submitted as part of the local record, but does not explain why this alleged omission would affect LUBA's resolution of the appeal, LUBA will not require the local government to supplement the transcript and minutes. Heiller v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 672 (1992).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. It is petitioners' burden to establish that disputed items were placed before the local decision maker. Where petitioners object to the record submitted by the local government, but offer no basis for questioning a local government's contention that the disputed items were not placed before the local decision maker, petitioners' record objection will be denied. Weeks v. City of Tillamook, 23 Or LUBA 662 (1992).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A party objecting that minutes in the local record are inadequate must demonstrate with particularity both (1) how the minutes are defective, and (2) why the defect is material. Where petitioners argue that the transcript excerpts they seek to make part of the record are relevant to certain issues they wish to raise in their petition for review, but do not explain why these issues are material to LUBA's resolution of the appeal, the objection will be denied. Yandell v. City of Salem, 23 Or LUBA 659 (1992).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioners' allegation that the job description of the county appeals secretary should be included in the local record is irrelevant to determining whether it is a part of the local record. Where the disputed job description was not placed before the local decision maker, LUBA will not require that it be included in the local record. Breivogel v. Washington County, 22 Or LUBA 813 (1991).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner's letters to the local government attorney and attempt to contact the local attorney by telephone regarding concerns about the local record, even though accomplished before the local record was filed, are sufficient to satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-026(1) that petitioner attempt to resolve record objections with the local government counsel prior to filing a record objection. Schmaltz v. City of Hood River, 21 Or LUBA 563 (1991).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Under OAR 661-10-026(3), objectors must demonstrate with particularity both (1) how minutes are defective, and (2) why the defect is material. To demonstrate that defects in minutes are material, objectors must explain why the alleged inaccuracies or omissions impede their ability to prepare their petition for review or brief or affect LUBA's resolution of the appeal. Schmaltz v. City of Hood River, 21 Or LUBA 563 (1991).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioners do not explain in their objection to the record why adequate review by LUBA would be prevented by alleged deficiencies in the local government minutes, or how those deficiencies would affect LUBA's resolution of the appeal, petitioners do not demonstrate that the alleged defects are material, and LUBA will not require the local government to prepare a transcript. Eckis v. Linn County, 20 Or LUBA 589 (1991).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioners argue that local government minutes fail to reflect statements which demonstrate an improper basis for the planning commission's decision, but the appealed decision was made by the city council after de novo review, petitioners have not demonstrated that the alleged defect in the minutes will affect LUBA's review of the city council's decision and, therefore, is material. Hale v. City of Beaverton, 20 Or LUBA 584 (1991).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. That the local decision maker considered limiting the scope of its proceeding by excluding certain evidence, provides no basis for an objection to the record where all of the evidence that petitioners sought to present was actually accepted by the decision maker. Stefan v. Yamhill County, 20 Or LUBA 524 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a local government represents that the entire record before the local decision maker was submitted to LUBA, and that representation is not rebutted, LUBA will not require the local government to supplement the record. Rebmann v. Linn County, 20 Or LUBA 521 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Under OAR 661-10-026(3), objectors must demonstrate with particularity both (1) how minutes are defective, and (2) why the defect is material. To demonstrate that defects in minutes are material, objectors must explain why the alleged inaccuracies or omissions impede their ability to prepare their petition for review or brief or affect LUBA's resolution of the appeal. Chang v. City of West Linn, 20 Or LUBA 505 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where petitioner argues that alleged deficiencies in the minutes may be the basis for assertions by respondents that petitioner is foreclosed from raising certain issues on appeal, but petitioner does not explain how those issues are material (i.e. how they would affect LUBA's resolution of the appeal), LUBA will not require the local government to prepare a transcript of the proceedings below. Chang v. City of West Linn, 20 Or LUBA 505 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner's detailed descriptions of alleged defects in the minutes in the local record are not sufficient to sustain a record objection, in the absence of an explanation as to how the defects are material. Interlachen, Inc. v. City of Fairview, 19 Or LUBA 630 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A record objection filed four days late, but before the petition for review is due, will suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review where respondent makes no attempt to explain how its substantial rights may have been prejudiced by a delay of four days in filing the record objection. Benjamin v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 600 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. OAR 661-10-026(2) requires that a record objection be filed within 10 days following service of the record on the person filing the record objection. Where a party alleges it never received the copy of the record the local government contends was served on the party by mail, and the party thereafter takes prompt action to obtain a copy of the record and advises respondent by mail that he assumes he will have 10 days from the date he actually received the record to file any objections, a record objection filed within 10 days after the party actually received the record is timely. Benjamin v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 600 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Where a party objects to the local government's failure to include a document in the record filed with LUBA and argues the document was actually placed before the decision maker during the local proceedings, and respondent does not dispute the party's allegations, LUBA will sustain the record objection and require that the record be supplemented to include the document. Benjamin v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 600 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. A record objection stating that a transcript utilizes too many "inaudible's" is not sufficient to explain with particularity why the transcripts are defective, as required by OAR 661-10-026(3). Beck v. City of Tillamook, 19 Or LUBA 598 (1990).

27.3.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Objections to. Petitioner's failure to file his record objection until three days after the date required by OAR 661-10-026(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and will not result in rejection of the record objection where the respondent (1) was granted extensions to file the record in the appeal proceeding and related appeal proceedings, and (2) does not allege how it was prejudiced by the late filing of the record objection. Davis v. City of Bandon, 19 Or LUBA 507 (1990).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. Where a local government moves to dismiss an appeal after record objections have been filed, LUBA will suspend all deadlines in the appeal, including its own deadline to resolve the record objections, until it rules on the motion to dismiss. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 1054 (2019).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. When the county submits pre-decision documentation to DLCD in accordance with ORS 197.610(1) which requires local governments to provide information specified in ORS 197.610(3), including a copy of proposed amendments to DLCD, that material is properly included in the record. Also, when the county submits the post-decisional notice and information required by ORS 197.615(1) and (2), the county must either identify their location in the present record or submit them as part of a supplemental record. Additionally, if DLCD sent the county a substantive response to the information the county sent to DLCD, the response should be included in the record. VanDyke v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 1036 (2018).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. Nothing in LUBA's rules authorizes a party to file a series of new or expanded objections to the record after the 14-day period for filing record objections closes. That the local government files a supplemental record does not open the door for any party to file new or expanded objections to the original record. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. In a motion to take evidence outside the record filed before the parties have submitted briefs, LUBA considers it axiomatic that a document rejected from the local record is not part of the local record, for purposes of settling the content of the record, even if LUBA later concludes, after briefing on the merits, that the document was erroneously rejected from the local record. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. LUBA will treat as a belated supplemental record a document attached to the local government's response brief, where there is no dispute that the document was inadvertently omitted from the record transmitted to LUBA, the petition for review assumed the document was in the record, and accepting the belated supplemental record neither prejudices a party's substantial rights nor delays LUBA's review proceeding. Save Downtown Canby v. City of Canby, 70 Or LUBA 68 (2014).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. A motion to reconsider an order on record objections is not appropriate when the motion: (1) attempts to raise new objections to the record; (2) repeats arguments made in the original objections; or (3) provides new arguments that could have been advanced in the original objections. Smith v. City of Salem, 60 Or LUBA 478 (2010).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. A motion to reconsider an order on record objections may be appropriate when the motion argues that LUBA's order was based on a significant misunderstanding of the parties' arguments regarding the record and the party seeking reconsideration files a timely request to reconsider that succinctly identifies and clarifies the alleged misunderstanding. Smith v. City of Salem, 60 Or LUBA 478 (2010).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. Under OAR 661-010-0026(6), after a record objection is filed, the time limits for all further procedures remain suspended until LUBA issues an order settling the record, even if the local government transmits a supplemental record to the parties that purports to resolve some or all of the record objections. Welch v. Yamhill County, 55 Or LUBA 697 (2007).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. LUBA will deny a request to resettle the record and restart the deadline for filing the petition for review that is filed on the date the petition for review is due and that is based on a nonmeritorious argument that notes taken by a recording clerk are "minutes" of the proceeding that must be included in the record. Ford v. Jackson County, 54 Or LUBA 434 (2007).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. Under OAR 661-010-0065(4), LUBA may extend the deadline for filing the petition for review on its own motion without the written consent of all parties, where the extension is required to avoid prejudice to one or more party's substantial rights due to LUBA's failure to contemporaneously advise the parties that the record had been received. Confederated Tribes v. Jefferson County, 42 Or LUBA 597 (2002).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. Where petitioner's attorney files a record objection, but LUBA fails to send a copy of its order settling the record to petitioner's attorney or otherwise provide notice of the briefing schedule determined in that order, the Board will amend its order settling the record to establish a new briefing schedule. Wittke v. City of Milwaukie, 41 Or LUBA 613 (2002).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. A LUBA staff misstatement concerning the correct date the record was settled by an order of the Board does not affect the date the record was settled. Parties who rely on LUBA staff to determine the date the record is settled rather than make that determination themselves by referring to the order on record objections assume the risk of such reliance. North Park Annex v. City of Independence, 35 Or LUBA 512 (1999).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. Although a record is always "accepted" upon delivery, in that it is date-stamped and filed by LUBA's staff, it is not fully "accepted" for purposes of OAR 661-10-025(4)(a) as to form or content until it is either received by the Board, when there is no objection, or "settled" by the Board pursuant to OAR 661-10-026(6), when there is some objection. Mar-Dene Corporation v. City of Woodburn, 32 Or LUBA 481 (1997).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. Where a local government submits a supplemental record while LUBA is in the process of resolving objections to the original record, a party may not reserve its objections to the supplemental record until after LUBA issues an order resolving the objections to the original record. LUBA's rules require that an objection to a supplemental record be filed no later than 10 days after the objecting party receives the supplemental record. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.3.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Record – Settling the Record. An allegation that an intervenor failed to appear in the proceedings below cannot be resolved until the content of the record of the proceedings below is known. Therefore, a motion to deny intervention based on a failure to appear below, which is filed prior to the settling of the local record, is not untimely. Terra v. City of Newport, 24 Or LUBA 579 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will grant a motion to file an overlength petition for review to exceed the 11,000-word limit in OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b), but not to exceed 18,000 words, where the petitioners' challenges to the appealed decisions involve Goal 3, the appeals are consolidated at LUBA and involve two different decisions that respond to two different LUBA remands, one of the challenged decisions is 78 single-spaced pages and the record is 1,847 pages, the appeals involve relatively complex jurisdictional disputes, one of the challenged decisions is one of the first to apply the Supreme Court's analysis of a particular statute, and the appeals involve a total of 37 petitioners. Schrepel v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1081 (2020).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petitioner cites over one hundred pages of the record in its preservation of error statement, but the respondents do not argue that the issues were not raised during the local proceeding and the petitioner provides more focused record citations in their reply brief, and where it is evident from the challenged decision itself that the issues were raised during the local proceeding, such failure to adequately specify in the petition for review where the issues were preserved is a technical violation that does not prejudice the respondents' substantial rights. Nehmzow v. Deschutes County, 81 Or LUBA 571 (2020).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to amend the petition for review to add a new assignment of error challenging one of the decision-maker's findings where the original petition for review does not fail to comply with OAR 661-010-0030(4); where the petitioners do not explain why they could not have challenged the finding, based on the adequacy of the evidence in the record, in the original petition for review; and where granting the motion would require LUBA to allow additional briefing by the intervenor-respondent, would require LUBA to reschedule oral argument, and would delay issuance of LUBA's final opinion and order. Dressel v. City of Tigard, 81 Or LUBA 1001 (2020).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner fails to satisfy OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d) or to establish that the issues raised in its six assignments of error were raised as required by ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3) where the petitioner broadly cites its submittals into the record during the proceedings before the local government. Such a broad citation is not a technical violation where it interferes with the substantial rights of the parties by improperly shifting the burden to the respondents to review over one hundred pages of the record to determine whether the issues raised in six assignments of error in an overlength, 68-page petition for review have been preserved. H2D2 Properties, LLC v. Deschutes County, 80 Or LUBA 528 (2019).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will allow an amendment to a petition for review to correct errors or omissions in a petition for review if doing so serves a purpose and will not materially interfere with either respondents' ability to respond to the petition for review or our ability to meet the statutory deadline for our final opinion. Where petitioner attempted to amend his petition for review—by adding allegations to an assignment of error, by adding record and case cites, and by "clarifying and refining text"—23 days after the response briefs were filed and two days before oral argument, and petitioner filed his renewed motion to amend his petition for review on the same date as oral argument, LUBA will deny petitioner's request. To allow such a request would not be fair or promote the speediest practicable review of land use decisions and would materially interfere with respondents' ability to respond to the petition for review. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or LUBA 1084 (2018).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. When petitioners do not seek relief from any conditions imposed or any aspect of the city's planned unit development (PUD) approval under the general track and LUBA's only option is to affirm, reverse, or remand, the petitioners are asking LUBA to issue what is essentially an advisory opinion regarding the present case. LUBA lacks express statutory or cited judicial authority to issue an advisory opinion on the legal matters presented in the petition and issuing such an advisory opinion would be contrary to one of the express statutory purposes of LUBA's review: that our review should be consistent with "sound principles governing judicial review." ORS 197.805. Dreyer v. City of Eugene, 78 Or LUBA 391 (2018).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioners' counsel attempts to amend a timely filed Notice of Intent to Appeal (NITA), to add additional petitioners who were mistakenly omitted from the original NITA, but the amended NITA is filed after the time limit set forth in ORS 197.830(9) for filing a NITA before LUBA, petitioners' mistaken omission of the petitioners from the original NITA was not merely a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules at OAR 660-010-0015. The additional petitioners listed in the Amended NITA have not established that their NITA was filed within the time limit set forth in ORS 197.830(9), and are therefore not parties to the appeal. Cossins v. Josephine County, 77 Or LUBA 240 (2018).

7.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to submit a partial transcript of a planning commission meeting submitted by a petitioner two days after oral argument. Under LUBA's rules, the time for a petitioner to submit a self-prepared transcript is at the time the petition for review is filed. Submitting a transcript after oral argument prejudices the other parties' ability to evaluate the accuracy of the transcript. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 547 (2018).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a 64-page petition for review that includes 14,102 words is filed without first seeking LUBA's permission for an over-length brief, LUBA would normally require that petitioner file an amended petition for review that complies with the OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b) 14,000 word limit for petitions for review. But where the motion to strike or shorten the petition for review is filed concurrently with the response briefs and oral argument has been scheduled, no useful purpose would be served by requiring a shortened petition for review. Byers Properties, LLC v. Metro, 77 Or LUBA 557 (2018).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider an issue that was not raised in the petition for review and was raised for the first time in a motion that was received by LUBA one day before the statutory deadline for LUBA to issue its final opinion expired. Rawson v. Hood River County, 75 Or LUBA 200 (2017).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner's motion to supplement the petition for review, which was filed after oral argument, will be denied. Petitioners have an opportunity to respond to material allegations of fact by respondents that are not supported by the record during rebuttal at oral argument, and LUBA will reject post-oral argument attempts to enhance and expand the arguments in the petition for review. Rawson v. Hood River County, 75 Or LUBA 200 (2017).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where an assignment of error itself can be read to allege that a hearings officer committed a particular analytical error in reviewing an application to alter a nonconforming use, but the arguments that are put forth in support of the assignment of error have nothing to do with that arguable analytical error, petitioners fail to adequately state and develop a challenge to the analytical error. In that circumstance, LUBA will limit its review to the arguments petitioners actually present. Meyer v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 1 (2016).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will ignore incorporations of assignments of error from other petitions for review that cause the incorporating petition for review to exceed the maximum page limits. Trautman v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 209 (2016).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. An attempt by one petitioner to incorporate procedural assignments of error that are presented in a different petition for review would not result in remandable error unless the procedural error prejudiced the substantial rights of the petitioner who filed the petition for review that is attempting incorporation, because a petitioner's assertion of prejudice to another person's substantial rights does not provide a basis for remand. Trautman v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 209 (2016).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where an assignment of error can be read to advance a "literal" interpretation argument, but that argument is not clearly stated and is undeveloped, LUBA will not consider the argument. Burgermeister v. Tillamook County, 73 Or LUBA 291 (2016).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Failure to comply with OAR 661-010-0030(4), which requires that the petition for review demonstrate that the issues raised in the assignments of error were preserved during the proceedings below, is not a basis to reject the assignment of error or refuse to consider a reply brief that responds to a waiver challenge, absent a showing that noncompliance with OAR 661-010-0030(4) prejudices other parties' substantial rights or substantially impedes LUBA's review. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hood River, 72 Or LUBA 1 (2015).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioner does not argue the complexity of an appeal warrants a petition for review with more than 50 pages, and LUBA concludes that petitioner easily could have made the arguments presented in support of petitioner's three assignments of error in a petition for review that complies with the OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b) 50-page limit, LUBA will deny petitioner's request to submit a 53 page petition for review. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 72 Or LUBA 25 (2015).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petitioner ignores 13 pages of findings in the local government's final decision that attempt to address the issues the petitioner raised on local appeal, and instead challenges only the findings in the underlying decision that was affirmed by the local government's final decision, the petition for review provides no basis to reverse or remand the local government's final decision. Dion v. Baker County, 72 Or LUBA 307 (2015).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Including legal arguments in the summary of material facts in a petition for review, and failing to provide record citations in that summary, are violations of LUBA's rules, but such violations do not warrant striking the summary or other remediable action, absent a showing of prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. Squier v. Multnomah County, 71 Or LUBA 98 (2015).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the petition for review includes argument in a section of the petition setting out the standard of review, that violation of LUBA's procedural rules does not warrant striking the argument or other remediable action unless there is prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. Absent such prejudice, the better practice is to briefly note the alleged violation in the corresponding section of the response brief and clarify any disputed points raised by the violation. Squier v. Multnomah County, 71 Or LUBA 98 (2015).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider arguments in footnotes that set out a different legal theory than presented in the assignment of error. McCaffree v. Coos County, 70 Or LUBA 15 (2014).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. An assignment of error fails to comply with OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d) if it does not "demonstrate that the issue * * * was preserved during the proceedings below." McCaffree v. Coos County, 70 Or LUBA 15 (2014).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a hearings officer provides two independent bases to approve a private street and a petitioner wishes to challenge both bases, it is improper for the petitioner to challenge one of the bases in a footnote to an assignment of error that challenges the other basis for approving the private street. LUBA generally does not consider arguments in footnotes that set out a different legal theory than that presented in the assignment of error itself. Carver v. Washington County, 70 Or LUBA 23 (2014).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will grant a motion to strike appendices to the briefs that contain materials that are not included in the record if the materials are offered for their evidentiary value. LUBA will not strike portions of the briefs that rely on or cite to the stricken materials but instead will disregard any allegations of material fact that are not supported by the record. Oakleigh-McClure Neighbors v. City of Eugene, 70 Or LUBA 132 (2014).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA's review is limited to the record filed by the local government. ORS 197.835(2). Where exhibits that are attached to the petition for review are not included in the record and appear to be offered for their evidentiary value, LUBA will grant a motion to strike the exhibits and will disregard any allegations of material fact in the petition for review that rely on the exhibits. Reading v. Douglas County, 70 Or LUBA 458 (2014).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where confusing arguments to LUBA are nevertheless discernable with reasonable effort, LUBA states its understanding of the argument and considers the argument on its merits. Greller v. City of Newberg, 70 Or LUBA 499 (2014).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Items rejected from the local record are properly excluded from the record transmitted to LUBA. Where a local government rejects portions of a document, and includes only a redacted version of the document in the record, the petitioner may attach to the petition for review the unredacted document, in support of any of an assignment of error alleging that the local government erred in rejecting the redacted portions. If no party objects, LUBA will consider the attached document for the limited purpose of resolving that procedural assignment of error. If a party objects, the petitioner may file a motion to take evidence to allow LUBA to consider the unredacted document for that same limited purpose. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will ignore incorporations of assignments of errors in other petitions for review that cause the incorporating petition to exceed the maximum page limits. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 360 (2013).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. While incorporation of arguments in another brief in a consolidated appeal is a common practice, such incorporation is permissible only if it does not cause the incorporating brief to exceed the 50-page limit in OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b). Even if such an incorporation does not violate OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b), the incorporation does not allow a person who is party in one appeal to file motions in a consolidated appeal to which the person is not a party. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the county zoning that applied to recently annexed territory inside a city's urban growth boundary provided that dwellings were allowed only if the property "was designated for residential use by the city," and the city took the position in its brief that the property was not designated for residential use, LUBA will assume that the city is correct where (1) petitioners do not argue in their petition for review that property was designated for residential use and (2) petitioners fail to respond to the city's argument in its brief. Knaupp v. City of Forest Grove, 67 Or LUBA 398 (2013).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d) requires that the petition for review "[s]et forth each assignment of error under a separate heading." However, LUBA will consider alleged errors that are not set out under assignments of error to the extent they can be discerned from the petition for review. Emmert v. Clackamas County, 65 Or LUBA 1 (2012).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where an assignment of error does not challenge the reasoning that led a county to conclude a post-acknowledgment plan amendment would be necessary to mine a particular mineral, an assignment of error that asks LUBA to remand the decision because the decision maker might change its mind about whether the post acknowledgment plan amendment is necessary, based on LUBA's disposition of another assignment of error, presents no basis for remand. Mark Latham Excavation Inc. v. Deschutes County, 65 Or LUBA 32 (2012).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider a petitioner's argument that a vacation decision that was initiated by a city council violates a statutory vacation standard where petitioner omits and fails to address in her petition for review statutory language that suggests the cited statutory standard applies only to vacation decisions that are initiated by petition rather than by city council initiative. Heitsch v. City of Salem, 65 Or LUBA 187 (2012).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Under OAR 661-010-0050, an intervenor becomes a party to the appeal on the date the motion to intervene is filed. A petitioner seeking to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review pursuant to OAR 661-010-0067(2) must obtain the written consent of the intervenor and all parties, even if LUBA has not yet issued an order granting the motion to intervene. Danielson Trust v. Jackson County, 65 Or LUBA 437 (2012).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d) requirement that petitioners set out each assignment of error separately is important. Setting out concise assignments of error helps all parties and LUBA understand the issues that must be resolved, and the importance of clear assignments of error increases as the issues become more complex and overlap. Onsite Advertising Services LLC v. Washington County, 63 Or LUBA 414 (2011).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider an assignment of error that is presented only in a footnote. Falls v. Marion County, 61 Or LUBA 39 (2010).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA's rules requires that argument in support of or in opposition to an assignment of error be set forth in the body of the brief, and do not provide for attachment of additional argument in an appendix to a brief, in part to preserve the 50-page brief limit. However, where the brief is 38 pages long and the attached argument is 10 pages, and there is no contention that considering 48 pages of argument in a brief that is otherwise consistent with LUBA's rules prejudices any party's substantial rights, LUBA will not strike the attachment. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioner assigns error under OAR 660-012-0060, arguing that the county inadequately mitigated for the traffic impacts of a proposed destination resort, but petitioner neither assigns error to the county's finding that the destination resort will not "significantly affect" the transportation facilities within the meaning of OAR 660-012-0060 nor challenges the legal reasoning that the county adopted in support of that finding, LUBA will deny the assignment of error. Eder v. Crook County, 60 Or LUBA 204 (2009).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner's argument that a county's findings concerning variance criteria are inadequate and not supported by substantial evidence provide no basis for reversal or remand, where the county adopted four pages of single-spaced findings addressing the variance criteria and petitioner offers no explanation for why petitioner believes those findings are inadequate or not supported by substantial evidence. Lulay v. Linn County, 60 Or LUBA 432 (2010).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioner's request to file a 55-page petition for review will be denied, where petitioner easily could have included the requested additional argument in a petition for review that complied with LUBA's 50-page limit if petitioner had focused her arguments or written the petition for review more concisely. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 59 Or LUBA 388 (2009).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petitioner simply alleges that a decision that amends a comprehensive plan policy is not consistent with the purposes of comprehensive plan growth management policies or Statewide Planning Goal 14 (Urbanization), but petitioner does not identify any comprehensive plan policy purposes or the allegedly inconsistent requirement of Goal 14, petitioner provides no basis for reversal or remand. Hildenbrand v. City of Adair Village, 58 Or LUBA 43 (2008).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The failure of a pro se petitioner to sign a petition for review does not necessarily mean that that petitioner has "failed to timely file a petition for review" under OAR 660-010-0030(1), with the consequence that that petitioner must be dismissed from an appeal. Abeel v. City of Portland, 58 Or LUBA 247 (2009).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where LUBA sustains an assignment of error and remands a county decision, and the county hearings officer adopts approximately two pages of findings on remand addressing that assignment of error, it is the hearings officer's reasoning in rejecting the assignment of error that is before LUBA in a subsequent appeal. Where a petitioner merely re-alleges the assignment of error and makes no meaningful attempt to challenge the hearings officer's reasoning in rejecting the assignment of error, LUBA will deny the assignment of error. Kipfer v. Jackson County, 58 Or LUBA 436 (2009).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Assignments of error that consist of a single sentence alleging error and that include no argument explaining why the local government erred in the manner alleged are undeveloped and do not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 56 Or LUBA 240 (2008).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioners' failure to include an adequate jurisdictional statement in their petition for review is not a basis for dismissing their appeal, where their dispute about whether the challenged decision is a land use decision is the central dispute and petitioners' first assignment of error alleges that the appealed decision is a land use decision that is subject to LUBA review. Zirker v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 188 (2007).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner may not dismiss his attorney after the petition for review has been filed and the time for filing the petition for review has run and then submit a new or amended petition for review. Taylor v. City of Canyonville, 55 Or LUBA 681 (2007).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will deny a request to resettle the record and restart the deadline for filing the petition for review that is filed on the date the petition for review is due and that is based on a nonmeritorious argument that notes taken by a recording clerk are "minutes" of the proceeding that must be included in the record. Ford v. Jackson County, 54 Or LUBA 434 (2007).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. When the arguments presented in support of an assignment of error are so poorly stated and developed that the overwhelming majority of the assignment of error cannot reasonably responded to, LUBA will not require respondents to respond to every disjointed argument presented in the assignment of error. Sommer v. Josephine County, 54 Or LUBA 507 (2007).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not assume that petitioners meant to rely on an intergovernmental agreement provision that can be read to bar requiring annexation agreements for certain types of development, where petitioners do not cite the intergovernmental agreement provision, there are significant questions regarding whether it would preclude the challenged condition requiring an annexation agreement and petitioners do not address those questions. Wickham v. City of Grants Pass, 53 Or LUBA 261 (2007).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioners' arguments on the merits of an appeal that are included in their notice of intent to appeal are presented prematurely. Petitioners' arguments on the merits of an appeal are properly presented in their petition for review, after petitioners' record objections are resolved and after LUBA settles the record. Robson v. City of La Grande, 53 Or LUBA 604 (2006).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. While it is possible that LUBA might grant a petitioner's request that a notice of intent to appeal be treated as the petition for review, a petitioner may not wait until over two weeks after the deadline for filing the petition for review has expired to make such a request. Bleu v. Clackamas County, 52 Or LUBA 606 (2006).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a county finds that the comprehensive plan and zoning map designations for a parcel that is subject to Goal 17 can be amended consistently with the county's acknowledged Goal 17 program because that Goal 17 program is unaffected by the amendment, an argument that "this casual dismissal of Goal 17 cannot provide the basis for the rezoning decision" is not sufficiently developed for review. Holloway v. Clatsop County, 52 Or LUBA 644 (2006).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. When the local government limits the scope of review on remand to issues raised in the petition for review before LUBA, those issues include arguments made in support of the assignments of errors, not merely the text of the assignments of error themselves. Dauenhauer v. Jackson County, 51 Or LUBA 539 (2006).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A three-page letter that includes no statement of standing, no statement of the case, no description of the challenged decision or request for relief, no summary of arguments or material facts, no statement of jurisdiction, and no assignments of error does not satisfy the requirements of OAR 661-010-0030(4) for a petition for review. Gallagher v. City of Myrtle Point, 50 Or LUBA 303 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not allow a petitioner to file an amended petition for review pursuant to OAR 661-010-0030(6), where the original petition for review is so grossly noncompliant with the requirements of OAR 661-010-0030(4) that the amended petition would in effect constitute an entirely different petition for review. Gallagher v. City of Myrtle Point, 50 Or LUBA 303 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will dismiss an appeal for failure to file a timely petition for review, where the petition for review is a three page letter that is so grossly noncompliant with the requirements of OAR 661-010-0030(4) that in effect no petition for review was filed at all. Gallagher v. City of Myrtle Point, 50 Or LUBA 303 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where an assignment of error relies on a comprehensive plan "policy" regarding sanitary sewer service that does not exist, LUBA will not consider whether a proposal violates a comprehensive plan "finding" that may have been the plan provision that petitioner intended to cite, but was not cited by petitioner, where the legal status and meaning of that comprehensive plan finding is not clear. Oregon Shores Cons. Coalition v. City of Brookings, 49 Or LUBA 273 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider an interpretive argument that is presented at oral argument but was not included in the petition for review and was not presented to the local government. Regen v. Lincoln County, 49 Or LUBA 386 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Allowing intervenors-petitioner to belatedly sign the signature page of a timely filed petition for review is not tantamount to allowing a late petition for review. Intervenors' failure to sign or join the petition for review prior to its filing is at most a technical violation that does not affect our review, absent prejudice to another party's substantial rights. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA 512 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Service of the petition for review by parcel post rather than by first class mail is a violation of OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b)(B). However, unless the slower delivery attributed to parcel post interferes with the respondent's ability to prepare the response brief, or otherwise prejudices other parties' substantial rights, that violation does not provide a basis to dismiss the appeal. Moreland v. City of Depoe Bay, 48 Or LUBA 136 (2004).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The date the petition for review is postmarked is not necessarily determinative of the date the petition is "mailed," for purposes of OAR 661-010-0030(1) and 661-010-010-0075(2)(a)(B). Mason v. City of Corvallis, 48 Or LUBA 651 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Depositing the petition for review postage paid in a postal service deposit box on the date it is due is sufficient to "mail" and hence file the petition for review under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(a)(B), even if the petition for review is postmarked the following day, and even if the petition for review is deposited after the last collection time for that deposit box. Mason v. City of Corvallis, 48 Or LUBA 651 (2005).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider new evidence presented for the first time in an appendix to a petition for review that addresses the stability standard set out at OAR 660-033-0130(4), where the evidence is used to challenge the reasonableness of a county's evidentiary decision regarding the number of new dwellings that could be established within the study area and the new evidence is based on a methodology that was not presented to the county during the local evidentiary proceedings. Knoche v. Crook County, 46 Or LUBA 85 (2003).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petitioner's challenge to a conditional use permit allowing 45 cubic yards of fill in a wetland is based on the mistaken premise that the conditional use permit also authorized many more cubic yards of fill that were not placed in wetlands and the fill placed outside the wetlands did not require a conditional use permit, petitioner's challenge provides no basis for reversal or remand. Bonnett v. Deschutes County, 46 Or LUBA 318 (2004).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioners do not sustain their burden of demonstrating that a petition for review was timely filed, where the only evidence that bears on that question is (1) a postmark dated one day late and (2) an affidavit by petitioners' attorney averring that he arrived at the post office two minutes prior to midnight on the day the petition for review was due, and he was "certain" that he deposited the petition for review with the postal clerk before midnight. Bollinger v. City of Hood River, 46 Or LUBA 602 (2004).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Although a petitioner's summary incorporation of arguments from one assignment of error challenging one decision into another assignment of error that challenges a different decision may present some difficulty in considering the merits of those incorporated argument, LUBA will consider the incorporated arguments. Barton v. City of Lebanon, 45 Or LUBA 214 (2003).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioners' assignment of error is based on the erroneous assumption that a code standard that prohibits home occupations that are "objectionable due to [emissions]" prohibits any discernable emissions, and petitioners do not challenge city findings that the emissions that can be expected from a proposed home occupation will not be objectionable, the assignment of error provides no basis for reversal or remand. Roe v. City of Union, 45 Or LUBA 660 (2003).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a local government adopts unchallenged findings explaining that a demonstration that a proposed conditional use complies with all relevant zoning ordinance criteria is also sufficient to establish that the conditional use complies with the comprehensive plan, petitioners' challenge at LUBA that the conditional use is inconsistent with particular comprehensive plan provisions that are not specifically addressed in the conditional use decision provides no basis for reversal or remand. Roe v. City of Union, 45 Or LUBA 660 (2003).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A person who is not an active member of the Oregon State Bar may not sign a petition for review on behalf of individual petitioners. Roe v. City of Union, 45 Or LUBA 736 (2003).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petition for review is signed by a person who is not an active member of the Oregon State Bar, LUBA will allow the petition for review to be amended so that petitioners may sign the petition for review on their own behalf or an active member of the Oregon State Bar may sign the petition for review. Roe v. City of Union, 45 Or LUBA 736 (2003).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The practice of attaching maps from the record to the petition for review, to orient the Board as to the subject property or the relevant zoning, is strongly encouraged. However, the Board will strike maps attached to the parties' briefs that are modified to illustrate a disputed point. Carver v. City of Salem, 42 Or LUBA 305 (2002).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. An assignment of error that consists entirely of an incorporated argument from another brief is insufficiently developed for review, where the incorporated argument challenges a different code provision for a number of different reasons and the Board must speculate why petitioner believes the code provision at issue violates applicable law. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 41 Or LUBA 453 (2002).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The requirement at OAR 661-010-0030(1) that LUBA dismiss an appeal where the petition for review is not timely filed implements the statutory policy that "time is of the essence" in land use matters. That the statutes governing LUBA's review do not provide for dismissal where the petition is untimely filed does not mean that OAR 661-010-0030(1) is inconsistent with LUBA's governing statutes. Rookard v. Lane County, 41 Or LUBA 14 (2001).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Assignments of error that are directed at a decision other than the decision that is the subject of the LUBA appeal provide no basis for reversal or remand. Robson v. City of La Grande, 40 Or LUBA 250 (2001).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The failure of a petition for review to include the jurisdictional statement required by OAR 661-010-0030(4)(c) provides no basis for dismissal where it is clear that the challenged decision is a land use decision, as defined by ORS 197.015(10), because the decision concerns the adoption of comprehensive plan map and zoning map amendments and applies discretionary comprehensive plan amendment criteria and at least one statewide planning goal. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 40 Or LUBA 78 (2001).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the notice of intent to appeal challenges a governing body's decision determining that petitioner has no standing to file a local appeal of a planning director's decision, but the petition for review assigns error only to the planning director's decision, the petition for review provides no basis to reverse or remand the governing body's decision. Doob v. Josephine County, 39 Or LUBA 301 (2001).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioner's failure to include citations to the record to support factual allegations in the petition for review does not provide a basis for dismissing the appeal, where the record citations that are provided by petitioner and the other parties provide an adequate understanding of the material facts. Cox v. Polk County, 39 Or LUBA 1 (2000).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where an argument is suggested only in the summary of argument required by OAR 661-010-0030(4)(b)(B) and is not included in an assignment of error or in the argument supporting the assignments of error, LUBA will not consider the argument. Lighthart v. Polk County, 37 Or LUBA 787 (2000).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petitioner expresses disagreement with a local government about whether a zoning text amendment violates a comprehensive plan policy, without attempting to demonstrate error in the local government's findings that interpret and apply the comprehensive plan policy, petitioner states no basis for reversal or remand. Marine Street LLC v. City of Astoria, 37 Or LUBA 587 (2000).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner's arguments that a zoning ordinance amendment violates a plan policy discouraging uses that are not water dependent provides no basis for remand, where the challenged decision raises the maximum building height and does not approve any particular use of the property. Marine Street LLC v. City of Astoria, 37 Or LUBA 587 (2000).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. An argument that a city erred by failing to adopt findings addressing a plan policy that is 22 single-spaced pages long and broken down into many subparts is inadequately developed, where the city adopted findings addressing two parts of the policy and petitioner makes no attempt to explain what other parts of the policy petitioner believes are applicable. Marine Street LLC v. City of Astoria, 37 Or LUBA 587 (2000).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. After the petition for review is filed, petitioner must respond to allegations that issues that are raised in the petition for review were not raised during the local proceedings. If petitioner fails to do so, those issues are waived. However, petitioner is not initially obligated to specify in the petition for review where the issues that are raised in the petition for review were raised below. Robinson v. City of Silverton, 37 Or LUBA 521 (2000).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner's failure to specify the relief that is requested in the statement of the case, as required by OAR 661-010-0030(4)(b)(A), does not warrant rejection of the petition for review where the relief requested is stated elsewhere in the brief and is apparent from the arguments presented in the brief. Robinson v. City of Silverton, 37 Or LUBA 521 (2000).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not review eight audiotapes in the record, where the party relying on testimony in the tapes provides LUBA no assistance in locating the testimony and does not attach partial transcripts of the testimony to its brief. Turner Community Association v. Marion County, 37 Or LUBA 324 (1999).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petition for review does not include assignments of error as required by OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d), but LUBA can determine the allegations of error from the argument included in the petition for review, LUBA will consider those allegations of error. Freedom v. City of Ashland, 37 Or LUBA 123 (1999).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA's rules require that the petition for review "[s]tate the facts that establish petitioner's standing," but do not require that such allegations of fact appear in any particular form or any particular portion of the petition for review. Friends of the Creek v. Jackson County, 36 Or LUBA 562 (1999).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioner's failure to cite ORS 215.402 to 215.428 as authority for its position that the challenged decision required notice and an opportunity for a hearing does not require that LUBA reject the assignment of error where (1) it is clear from its brief that respondent was aware that ORS 215.402 to 215.428 require notice and an opportunity for a hearing for land use decisions that constitute "permits" under ORS 215.402(4), and (2) the city argues in its brief that the challenged decision does not constitute a "permit" decision, within the meaning of ORS 215.402(4). Friends of the Creek v. Jackson County, 36 Or LUBA 562 (1999).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the response brief points out that the petition for review challenges only one of the county's alternative bases for modifying an approval standard, the response brief has not raised a "new matter" within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0039. A reply brief is not a means to assign error to findings that were not challenged in the petition for review, and arguments in the response brief based on such findings are not new matters warranting a reply brief. Hard Rock Enterprises v. Washington County, 36 Or LUBA 106 (1999).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a local government's modification of standards applicable to a planned unit development rests on independent alternative grounds, petitioner's demonstration of error in one alternative ground provides no basis to reverse or remand the challenged decision where petitioner fails to challenge the other alternative ground. Hard Rock Enterprises v. Washington County, 36 Or LUBA 106 (1999).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner's failure to set out separate assignments of error, as required by OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d), does not justify rejecting the petition for review. However, petitioner's arguments must be sufficiently developed to demonstrate that the local government committed an error that warrants reversal or remand under ORS 197.835. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 437 (1999).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioners fail to obtain a stipulation from the county to extend the deadline for filing a petition for review pending resolution of a motion, an appeal will be dismissed if the petition for review is not filed within the deadline established by Board rules. Berry v. Jackson County, 35 Or LUBA 137 (1998).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where an allegedly new argument presented by petitioner at oral argument simply reflects a difference in the parties' understanding of the arguments that are contained in the petition for review, LUBA will consider the argument if it is not fundamentally different from the arguments presented in the petition for review. Nike, Inc. v. City of Beaverton, 35 Or LUBA 57 (1998).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the petition for review does not identify the ordinance standard that is allegedly violated or what the ordinance requires, petitioners' argument is not sufficiently developed for LUBA review. Lodge v. City of West Linn, 35 Or LUBA 42 (1998).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioner's own transcript of local proceeding audio tapes is not part of the local record. However, if petitioner prepares a transcript of all or some of the audio tapes and attaches it to her petition for review in support of arguments made in the petition, LUBA will consider the transcript if no objection is made to the transcript's accuracy or completeness. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 33 Or LUBA 848 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A transcript of local proceedings that is prepared and submitted by petitioner, rather than by the respondent local government, cannot be made part of the local record. However, such a transcript may be attached to the petition for review in support of arguments presented therein. Trademark Construction Inc. v. Marion County, 33 Or LUBA 842 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will grant a motion to strike evidence attached to a petition for review where the evidence is neither included in the local record nor properly placed before LUBA through an evidentiary hearing. St. Johns Neighborhood Assn v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 836 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A 72-page petition for review submitted after our order limiting the petition for review to 75 pages of pica type will not be accepted when it is printed in a 12-point Times typeface, which makes it equivalent in length to about 95 pages in pica type. City of Gresham v. City of Wood Village, 33 Or LUBA 801 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. If a reduced or condensed typeface is used in a brief filed at LUBA, with more than 10 characters to the linear inch and six lines to the vertical inch, the number of pages must be reduced accordingly. No typeface smaller than 12-point may be used in the text of a brief, as opposed to the footnotes, where a 10-point typeface is acceptable. City of Gresham v. City of Wood Village, 33 Or LUBA 792 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A party challenging a local land use decision must provide some particular basis for showing the decision is subject to remand or reversal. It is not LUBA's function to make a petitioner's case. Purdy v. City of Shady Cove, 33 Or LUBA 331 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A party challenging a local land use decision must provide some particularized basis for showing it to be subject to remand or reversal. Laurance v. Douglas County, 33 Or LUBA 292 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a city makes both an initial finding and an alternative finding, and petitioner does not assign error to the initial finding, LUBA will not review the alternative finding. Hood River Valley Res. Comm. v. City of Hood River, 33 Or LUBA 233 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petition for review of 75 pages, which is 50 percent larger than LUBA's rule (OAR 661-10-030(2)(b)) allows, will not be accepted absent the most extreme circumstances. Sanders v. Yamhill County, 32 Or LUBA 501 (1997).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where, after the petition for review is filed, the Court of Appeals issues a new decision addressing the application of a statute that is the linchpin of one of petitioner's assignments of error, LUBA will accept a memorandum of additional authorities from petitioner to the extent it interprets the new decision's effect on the present case. Still v. Marion County, 32 Or LUBA 40 (1996).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The jurisdictional statement required by OAR 660-10-030(2) provides a means for LUBA to determine whether the challenged decision fits within the statutory scope of its jurisdiction. The statement does not limit the issues that may be raised in the body of a petition for review. Miller v. City of Joseph, 31 Or LUBA 472 (1996).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. In deciding whether to allow a longer petition for review, LUBA places less importance on the size of the record than on whether several types of land use approvals, involving different sets of approval criteria, are being challenged. Concerned Citizens v. Jackson County, 31 Or LUBA 562 (1996).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. The page limitation stated in OAR 661-10-030(2)(b) exists to protect the interest of the Board, as well as the parties, in a concise, well-organized petition for review; and although the fact that a motion for a longer petition for review is unopposed is important to a consideration of the interest of the parties, it will not invariably persuade the Board that a longer petition for review is justified. Concerned Citizens v. Jackson County, 31 Or LUBA 562 (1996).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA's rules do not allow for a continuance following oral argument to allow a party to supplement the petition for review, respond to issues raised in a response brief, or add evidence to the record. Peterson v. City of Portland, 31 Or LUBA 112 (1996).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA usually will not consider arguments made for the first time at oral argument before the Board. DLCD v. Polk County, 31 Or LUBA 69 (1996).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petition for review which lacks assignments of error and argument in support thereof does not comply with OAR 661-10-030(3) and provides no basis for reversal or remand. Borrego v. City of Sheridan, 30 Or LUBA 65 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. When the petition for review is not filed within the time established under OAR 661-10-030(1), the appeal will be dismissed and the filing fee and deposit for costs forfeited to the governing body. Grammon v. City of Cove, 30 Or LUBA 31 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. OAR 661-10-067(2) provides that the deadline for filing the petition for review may be extended only with the written consent of all parties. When the parties rely on an oral agreement to extend the petition for review filing deadline, and one party rescinds the oral agreement one day before the petition for review is due to be filed, petitioner's failure to timely file the petition for review requires dismissal of the appeal. Bongiovanni v. Klamath County, 29 Or LUBA 351 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioners may not make a new challenge to the appealed decision in a reply brief, and thereby effectively add an assignment of error to the petition for review. Shaffer v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 592 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the petition for review includes allegations concerning the content of a tape in the record, and respondents object that petitioner failed to attach a transcript of the relevant portions of the tape to the petition for review, LUBA will allow petitioner to submit a transcript in a reply brief, so long as respondents have adequate time to review the tape and transcript prior to oral argument. Shaffer v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 592 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will disregard references in a petition for review to items which are neither in the record nor subject to official notice. LUBA cannot take official notice of a local government ordinance if it is not provided with a copy of the ordinance. Craven v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 125 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will disregard references in a petition for review to the legislative history of a statute, where such references are supported neither by uncontested verbatim quotes nor by submission of a copy of the legislative history documents referred to. Craven v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 125 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioner alleges the local government's notice of public hearing violates local code requirements, but petitioner fails to provide LUBA with the local code requirements allegedly violated, LUBA will deny the assignment of error. Andrews v. City of Prineville, 28 Or LUBA 653 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Arguments that the county should have based its decision on the subject application on statutory provisions, rather than on compliance with local standards, must be presented in a petition for review or cross-petition for review. Such arguments are not properly presented in a respondent's brief. Louks v. Jackson County, 28 Or LUBA 501 (1995).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petition for review which lacks assignments of error and argument in support of the assignments of error and merely expresses disagreement with past governmental actions concerning a property fails to comply with OAR 661-10-030(3). Scholes v. Jackson County, 28 Or LUBA 407 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioners generally establish LUBA's jurisdiction in the petition for review. However, if a respondent moves to dismiss the LUBA appeal on the basis that the appealed decision is not a land use decision or that the appeal was not timely filed, petitioner's response to the motion to dismiss must establish that LUBA has jurisdiction. Bowen v. City of Dunes City, 28 Or LUBA 324 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner at LUBA may not raise an argument for the first time at oral argument or in a post-oral argument memorandum. DLCD v. Douglas County, 28 Or LUBA 242 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioner cannot allege for the first time in the petition for review that a document included in the local record was not actually placed before the local decision maker and, consequently, assign the decision maker's reliance on that document as error. Bates v. Josephine County, 28 Or LUBA 21 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. If LUBA allows the record to be supplemented after the petition for review is filed, petitioners must be given an opportunity to file a new petition for review. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 715 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Allegations that a local government decision should be reversed for failure to follow local code provisions governing deadlines for holding a public hearing and issuing a final decision are properly presented in the petition for review, not in a motion to reverse. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 27 Or LUBA 713 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider a motion for reversal that includes arguments not contained in the petition for review, where the motion for reversal is filed three weeks after the deadline for filing the petition for review. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 480 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A transcript of local proceedings that was prepared and submitted by petitioner, rather than by the respondent local government, cannot be made part of the local record. However, petitioner may attach the transcript, or relevant portions thereof, to the petition for review, in support of arguments made therein. Bates v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 673 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Although amending a petition for review to add record citations, correct page numbers and edit for clarity might be allowable under OAR 661-10-030(4), such amendments are not warranted where allowing them would delay an appeal for five days. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 26 Or LUBA 649 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Under OAR 661-10-030(4), LUBA may allow the filing of an amended petition for review to cure failures regarding specifications and content requirements for petitions for review, where doing so would neither materially interfere with respondents' ability to respond to the petition for review nor delay issuance of LUBA's final opinion and order. Zippel v. Josephine County, 26 Or LUBA 626 (1994).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioner's notice of intent to appeal identifies the challenged decision as the governing body's decision to dismiss his local appeal, but his petition for review alleges error in the planning commission's decision to approve the subject application, rather than the governing body's decision dismissing his appeal, LUBA will affirm the challenged decision. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 26 Or LUBA 22 (1993).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a request to amend the petition for review to add an assignment of error is delivered to LUBA two days before the final opinion and order is due, the request will be denied as untimely. Adler v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 546 (1993).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A petitioner fails to adequately allege error with regard to a particular code section, where that code section is not identified in petitioner's assignment of error and a different code section is cited in the argument supporting the assignment of error. Day v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 468 (1993).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the petition for review alleges the challenged decision applies provisions of a local government plan and land use regulations, it is not fatal to LUBA's jurisdiction that the petition for review improperly characterizes the decision as a "land use decision" rather than a "limited land use decision." Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 25 Or LUBA 327 (1993).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not grant a motion to strike portions of a petition for review which are inaccurate or without factual support. Rather, LUBA will simply disregard such portions of the petition. Mannenbach v. City of Dallas, 25 Or LUBA 136 (1993).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. OAR 661-10-075(3) allows both respondents and intervenors-respondent to file cross petitions for review. Cross petitions for review are not limited to the issues raised in petitioners' petition for review; any appropriate issue may be raised. Reusser v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 652 (1993).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA has authority to promulgate rules allowing the filing of cross petitions for review by respondents who have not themselves filed timely notices of intent to appeal. Reusser v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 652 (1993).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not dismiss an appeal simply because the petitioner failed to attach the exhibits to the challenged ordinance to the petition for review. DLCD v. Coos County, 24 Or LUBA 137 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not address issues which are raised by petitioners for the first time at oral argument, and are not included in the assignments of error and supporting argument required to be set out in the petition for review. OAR 661-10-030(3)(b). Bouman v. Jackson County, 23 Or LUBA 628 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the petition for review does not contain assignments of error set forth under separate headings, as required by OAR 661-10-030(3)(d), LUBA will only consider those arguments set forth in the petition for review which are stated clearly enough to afford respondents an opportunity to respond. Heiller v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 551 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will not grant a motion to file a petition for review in excess of 50 pages simply because (1) several hearings were held below, (2) the challenged decision applies several local code provisions and is supported by lengthy findings, and (3) petitioners intend to challenge local government interpretations of several statutory and code provisions. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 718 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where, on the day the petition for review is due, a petitioner files a brief in excess of 50 pages and a motion for permission to file such brief, the petitioner assumes the risks that its brief will be stricken or that LUBA will not consider the pages in the brief following page 50. Kaye v. Marion County, 23 Or LUBA 452 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A motion to dismiss does not suspend the time for filing the petition for review. The only events that suspend the time for filing a petition for review in a LUBA appeal are the filing of (1) a motion for an evidentiary hearing, (2) a record objection, or (3) a written stipulation signed by all parties for an extension of time to file the petition for review. Weeks v. City of Tillamook, 23 Or LUBA 255 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Allegations that the challenged decision violates a statewide planning goal and the local comprehensive plan and land use regulations are sufficient to constitute an allegation that the challenged decision is a land use decision under the statutory test, even where such allegations are found in the body of the petition for review, rather than in a separate statement of jurisdiction as required by OAR 661-10-030(3)(c). Adkins v. Heceta Water District, 23 Or LUBA 207 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Petitioners must include sufficient argument in the petition for review to explain the basis for their allegations of error. Petitioners may not fail to make a specific challenge to the findings supporting a decision or the evidentiary support for those findings and rely solely on expressions of disagreement with the challenged decision. Camp v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 6 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where a petition for review contains no argument in support of petitioner's assignments of error, the assignments of error will be denied. Camp v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 6 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will consider arguments expressed in the petition for review that are stated clearly enough to afford the other parties an opportunity to respond. Silani v. Klamath County, 22 Or LUBA 735 (1992).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Failure to include a jurisdictional statement in the petition for review, as required by OAR 661-10-030(3)(c), is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and does not provide a sufficient basis for dismissing the petition for review. However, because petitioner bears the burden of establishing LUBA's jurisdiction, LUBA will require the petition for review to be amended to include a jurisdictional statement. OAR 661-10-030(4). Dolan v. City of Tigard, 22 Or LUBA 820 (1991).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where the petition for review does not contain separate assignments of error, as required by OAR 661-10-030(3)(d), LUBA will consider the arguments expressed in the petition for review, but only to the extent they allege errors clearly enough to afford the other parties an adequate opportunity to respond. Eckis v. Linn County, 22 Or LUBA 27 (1991).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA's rules require that petitioners' assignments of error and argument be in the petition for review. LUBA cannot consider an issue raised by petitioner for the first time at oral argument. Ward v. City of Lake Oswego, 21 Or LUBA 470 (1991).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to amend the petition for review to add an additional assignment of error, where the motion is filed one day before oral argument. If it were granted, LUBA would have to give respondents additional time to present written and oral argument in response to the additional assignment of error, resulting in delay in issuance of LUBA's final opinion. Hale v. City of Beaverton, 21 Or LUBA 249 (1991).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. That petitioners' allegations of standing were made in their answer to a motion to dismiss, rather than in the petition for review as required by OAR 661-10-030(3)(a), is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which does not prejudice respondent's substantial rights where respondent had a full opportunity to respond to petitioners' allegations in its response brief. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 21 Or LUBA 214 (1991).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. No statutory or rule provisions require a petition for review to conform with requirements for pleadings in circuit court proceedings. If a petition for review does not set out facts and legal argument sufficient to persuade LUBA that there is a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, LUBA simply affirms the decision. Dolan v. City of Tigard, 20 Or LUBA 411 (1991).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where an affidavit concerning alleged local procedural irregularities is attached to the petition for review, but is neither part of the local record nor the subject of a motion for evidentiary hearing, and other parties dispute the contents of that affidavit, LUBA cannot consider it. Forest Park Estate v. Multnomah County, 20 Or LUBA 319 (1990).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. A document appended to a party's petition for review or brief becomes part of the record of LUBA's proceeding. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 20 Or LUBA 246 (1990).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Failure to timely file a petition for review will result in dismissal of the appeal. Bloomer v. Baker County, 19 Or LUBA 90 (1990).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where standing is not an issue, an affidavit attached to the petition for review for the sole purpose of establishing petitioner's standing is not subject to a motion to strike. Stefan v. Yamhill County, 18 Or LUBA 820 (1990).

27.4.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Generally. Where petitioners do not object to the adequacy or completeness of the minutes of local proceedings included in the record and do not attach transcripts to their petition for review, petitioners may not submit partial transcripts of local proceedings for the first time at oral argument. Walker v. City of Beaverton, 18 Or LUBA 712 (1990).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Where a cross-petitioner seeks a remedy not available to it by statute, it is an obstacle to LUBA's review of the cross-assignment of error. LUBA lacks authority to affirm in part, and reverse in part a local government's approval of cross-petitioner's project application. ORS 197.835(1). Even assuming that the city erred by applying Willamette Greenway standards to cross-petitioner's housing project application, because they are not "clear and objective," the city's decision approving the development could not be reversed because it is not "prohibited as a matter of law." If LUBA agreed with cross-petitioners, the correct disposition would be remand, except that remand was not requested and would have no effect on the city's decision approving the application. In such a situation, LUBA will consider the request a contingent cross-assignment of error. Hulme v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 218 (2019).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Where LUBA sustains petitioner's assignment of error and remands a local government's decision denying petitioner's application, LUBA will address an intervenor's contingent cross assignments of error in a cross petition for review, where those cross-assignments of error raise issues that might provide additional bases for remanding the decision, in order to correct other alleged errors on remand. Blu Dutch LLC v. Jackson County, 78 Or LUBA 495 (2018).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. A "cross assignment of error" that argues that a hearings officer made a correct decision is not an assignment of error and provides no basis for reversal or remand of a decision. Lennar Northwest, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 73 Or LUBA 240 (2016).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Prior to 2010 amendments to its administrative rules, where an argument in an intervenor-respondent's brief was in substance a cross assignment of error, LUBA treated it as such. Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 71 Or LUBA 381 (2015).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. In 2010 LUBA amended its administrative rules to require that cross assignments of error be included in a cross petition for review and to provide that cross assignments of error may not be included in a response brief, as was the practice before the 2010 rule amendments. Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 71 Or LUBA 381 (2015).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Where an intervenor-respondent generally agrees with the decision on appeal but wishes to challenge an aspect of the decision if the decision is reversed or remanded on the petition for review, OAR 661-010-0030(7) requires that the intervenor-respondent file a cross-petition for review with a contingent assignment of error, within the same deadline that applies to petitions for review. Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 70 Or LUBA 37 (2014).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Before LUBA adopted the current version of OAR 661-010-0030(7), intervenors-respondents could include contingent cross-assignments of error in their response briefs to challenge aspects of the decision on review, in the event the decision had to be remanded or reversed under the petition for review. Now, under the current version of OAR 661-010-0030(7), such contingent cross assignments of error must be included in a timely filed cross-petition for review. Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 70 Or LUBA 37 (2014).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. A contingent cross-assignment of error in a cross petition for review is one that seeks remand or reversal of the decision only if the decision is remanded in LUBA's initial disposition of the appeal of the decision. Where LUBA denies all of the assignments of error in the appeal and affirms the decision, LUBA need not address a contingent cross-assignment of error that seeks reversal or remand of the decision only if the decision is remanded. Devin Oil Co. Inc. v. Morrow County, 70 Or LUBA 420 (2014).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. If an intervenor-respondent wishes to request that LUBA remand a county decision so that the county can apply a different statute than the one the county applied in the appealed decision, that request is not properly presented to LUBA where the intervenor-respondent neither filed a cross petition for review nor raised the issue in a cross assignment of error in the intervenor-respondent's response brief. WKN Chopin LLC v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 1 (2012).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Because the cross petition for review is the functional equivalent of a petition for review, OAR 661-010-0030(7) imposes the same filing deadline that applies to petitions for review, and LUBA strictly enforces that filing deadline for cross petitions for review in the same way it strictly enforces that filing deadline for the petition for review. LUBA will grant a motion to strike a cross petition for review that is filed one day late. Warren v. Josephine County, 66 Or LUBA 471 (2012).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Under amendments to OAR 661-010-0030(7) and 661-010-0035, which took effect on July 1, 2010, a contingent cross assignment of error must be included in a cross-petition for review rather than in a respondent's brief. Bard v. Lane County, 63 Or LUBA 1 (2011).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. A cross-assignment of error must assign error to some ruling or omission in the challenged decision and seek reversal or remand based on that alleged error. A cross-assignment of error is not a vehicle to request (1) that LUBA address in the first instance an alternative legal theory under which the application could have been approved, but was not, and (2) that LUBA affirm the challenged decision based on that legal theory. NAAVE v. Washington County, 59 Or LUBA 153 (2009).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Where a respondent's brief includes what are in substance cross-assignments of error, even though they are not denominated as such, LUBA will consider those de facto cross-assignments of error, provided they are reasonably recognizable as cross-assignments of error. Pete's Mtn. Home Owners Assoc. v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 287 (2007).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. An argument in an intervenor-respondent's brief that the challenged decision must be reversed based on alleged error is, in essence, an assignment of error or cross-assignment of error. However, LUBA will decline to address such arguments where intervenor-respondent fails to demonstrate that the issues raised under such arguments were raised during the proceedings below. Krishchenko v. City of Canby, 52 Or LUBA 290 (2006).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Read in context, the ORS 197.830(2) requirement that a person must file a notice of intent to appeal in order to "petition [LUBA] for review" does not implicitly prohibit parties who have not filed a notice of intent to appeal from filing a cross-petition for review, as provided by OAR 661-010-0030(7). Horning v. Washington County, 51 Or LUBA 303 (2006).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. An intervenor-respondent may raise cross assignments of error in the response brief, but LUBA will only address those cross assignments of error if one or more of the petitioner's assignments of error are sustained and the decision is otherwise subject to reversal or remand. Dauenhauer v. Jackson County, 51 Or LUBA 539 (2006).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. When an intervenor-respondent raises cross-assignments of error in a response brief rather than assignments of error in a cross petition, LUBA will only address the cross-assignments of error if the challenged decision is reversed or remanded on any of the petitioner's assignments of error. Young v. Jackson County, 49 Or LUBA 327 (2005).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Because nothing in LUBA's rules prohibits including a cross-assignment of error in the response brief, LUBA rules governing response briefs contemplate inclusion of "other matters" in the response brief, and many cross-assignments of error cannot practicably be advanced except in the response brief, it is consistent with LUBA rules to include a cross-assignment of error in a response brief. Copeland Sand & Gravel, Inc. v. Jackson County, 46 Or LUBA 653 (2004).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. LUBA will not reach the merits of a cross-petition where cross-petitioners have joined in a motion to dismiss an appeal and the appeal must be dismissed because the petition for review was not timely filed. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 377 (2001).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. New objections to the applicability of an identified approval criterion should be raised in a cross-petition for review, and are not properly presented in a response brief. Canby Quality of Life Committee v. City of Canby, 30 Or LUBA 166 (1995).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Arguments that the county should have based its decision on the subject application on statutory provisions, rather than on compliance with local standards, must be presented in a petition for review or cross-petition for review. Such arguments are not properly presented in a respondent's brief. Louks v. Jackson County, 28 Or LUBA 501 (1995).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. A respondent or intervenor-respondent who wishes to challenge some aspect of an appealed decision must file either a cross-petition for review or a separate appeal. LUBA will not consider assignments of error included in a respondent's brief. Spathas v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 351 (1994).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. A respondent or intervenor-respondent wishing to challenge some aspect of a land use decision in a LUBA appeal must either file a timely cross-petition for review or file a separate appeal. Cross assignments of error may not be included in a respondent's brief. Brentmar v. Jackson County, 27 Or LUBA 453 (1994).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Where a county failed to interpret ORS 215.213(2)(d)(C) as allowing an aggregate processing facility that conducts part of the processing on-site but completes the process of making aggregate into asphalt or Portland cement off-site, and the party wishing to assign the county's interpretive failure as error did not appeal the county's decision to LUBA or file a cross-petition for review, LUBA will not consider the interpretive question. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 238 (1993).

27.4.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Petition for Review – Cross-Petition. Where an applicant neither files its own appeal of the local governing body's decision granting the requested development approval nor files a cross-petition for review in the LUBA appeal filed by the opponents, the question of whether a local appeal by the opponents should have been dismissed by the governing body is not properly presented to LUBA. Miller v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 169 (1993).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will not consider a supplemental memorandum that is filed to provide a response to a question posed at oral argument where LUBA did not request or order the parties to submit supplemental briefing, even where the opposing parties have not objected or otherwise responded to the supplemental memorandum. LUBA's rules do not permit supplemental briefing in the absence of a request from the Board, and LUBA generally does not allow supplemental briefing, especially after oral argument. NDNA v. City of Portland, 80 Or LUBA 269 (2019).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. When a party raises an issue for the first time at oral argument LUBA will ignore all statements made at oral argument, by any party, that go beyond the issues framed in the briefs and the evidence cited in the record, and will confine its review to the issues framed in the briefs, the evidence cited in the record, and the portions of the oral argument that discuss those issues and evidence. See OAR 661-010-0040(1) and ORS 197.835(2)(a). Conte v. City of Eugene, 78 Or LUBA 289 (2018).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. There is no inherent problem with a respondent summarizing overlapping assignments of error and addressing the summary rather than the assignments of error themselves, so long as the summary accurately describes the assignments of error and so long as the respondent's brief includes adequate responses to the actual assignments of error. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Crook County, 76 Or LUBA 396 (2017).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where petitioner and intervenor-petitioner each incorporate by reference the assignments of error in the other petition, and thereby exceed the permissible 14,000-word length of the petition under OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b) (2017), such incorporation does not necessarily cause each petition to violate OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b) (2017). Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 75 Or LUBA 552 (2017).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. When called upon to determine the applicability or meaning of a statute, LUBA is not limited to the parties' arguments. Kaplowitz v. Lane County, 74 Or LUBA 386 (2016).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where petitioner does not argue the complexity of an appeal warrants a petition for review with more than 50 pages, and LUBA concludes that petitioner easily could have made the arguments presented in support of petitioner's three assignments of error in a petition for review that complies with the OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b) 50-page limit, LUBA will deny petitioner's request to submit a 53-page petition for review. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 72 Or LUBA 25 (2015).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Including legal arguments in the summary of material facts in a petition for review, and failing to provide record citations in that summary, are violations of LUBA's rules, but such violations do not warrant striking the summary or other remediable action, absent a showing of prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. Squier v. Multnomah County, 71 Or LUBA 98 (2015).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where the petition for review includes argument in a section of the petition setting out the standard of review, that violation of LUBA's procedural rules does not warrant striking the argument or other remediable action unless there is prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. Absent such prejudice, the better practice is to briefly note the alleged violation in the corresponding section of the response brief and clarify any disputed points raised by the violation. Squier v. Multnomah County, 71 Or LUBA 98 (2015).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where a jurisdictional statement in the petition for review attempts to incorporate argument on the merits in different section of the petition for review, and in doing so cites the wrong section of the petition for review, LUBA will nevertheless consider the incorporated argument on the merits, where the argument the petitioners intended to incorporate is obvious and no party was misled by petitioners' error. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 71 Or LUBA 392 (2015).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where confusing arguments to LUBA are nevertheless discernable with reasonable effort, LUBA states its understanding of the argument and considers the argument on its merits. Greller v. City of Newberg, 70 Or LUBA 499 (2014).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. While incorporation of arguments in another brief in a consolidated appeal is a common practice, such incorporation is permissible only if it does not cause the incorporating brief to exceed the 50 page limit in OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b). Even if such an incorporation does not violate OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b), the incorporation does not allow a person who is party in one appeal to file motions in a consolidated appeal to which the person is not a party. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where the county zoning that applied to recently annexed territory inside a city's urban growth boundary provided that dwellings were allowed only if the property "was designated for residential use by the city," and the city took the position in its brief that the property was not designated for residential use, LUBA will assume that the city is correct where (1) petitioners do not argue in their petition for review that property was designated for residential use and (2) petitioners fail to respond to the city's argument in its brief. Knaupp v. City of Forest Grove, 67 Or LUBA 398 (2013).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA only has authority to affirm, remand or reverse land use decisions and does not have authority to grant injunctive or mandatory relief. LUBA will deny assignments of error where LUBA lacks authority to grant the relief that is requested under those assignments of error. Mingo v. Morrow County, 65 Or LUBA 122 (2012).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where an intervenor moves to intervene only on the side of respondent, but later submits a response brief supporting the position of the respondent on some assignments of error and supporting the position of petitioner on other assignments of error, LUBA will strike the portion of intervenor's response brief that supports petitioner's assignments of error on its own motion. Onsite Advertising Services LLC v. Washington County, 63 Or LUBA 414 (2011).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where an intervenor-respondent attempts to defend a local government's decision by arguing that the local government correctly decided the matter but should have done so based on a different interpretation of its zoning ordinance that the local government specifically rejected, and intervenor-respondent does not file a cross-petition for review or include a cross assignment of error in its response brief, LUBA will not consider the interpretive question. Hoffman v. Deschutes County, 61 Or LUBA 173 (2010).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA's rules requires that argument in support of or in opposition to an assignment of error be set forth in the body of the brief, and do not provide for attachment of additional argument in an appendix to a brief, in part to preserve the 50-page brief limit. However, where the brief is 38 pages long and the attached argument is 10 pages, and there is no contention that considering 48 pages of argument in a brief that is otherwise consistent with LUBA's rules prejudices any party's substantial rights, LUBA will not strike the attachment. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. When appending portions of regulations or standards to a brief, it is common practice and helpful to LUBA for parties to highlight or underline or otherwise draw attention to pertinent sections, and doing so does not prejudice other parties' substantial rights. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 59 Or LUBA 23 (2009).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will consider arguments in a brief filed by an amicus whose participation at LUBA has been denied, where the respondent's brief incorporates the arguments in the amicus brief and the respondent's brief with the incorporated material does not exceed the 50-page limit or otherwise violate any other rule limitation. Herring v. Lane County, 54 Or LUBA 417 (2007).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will not assume that petitioners meant to rely on an intergovernmental agreement provision that can be read to bar requiring annexation agreements for certain types of development, where petitioners do not cite the intergovernmental agreement provision, there are significant questions regarding whether it would preclude the challenged condition requiring an annexation agreement and petitioners do not address those questions. Wickham v. City of Grants Pass, 53 Or LUBA 261 (2007).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Petitioners' arguments on the merits of an appeal that are included in their notice of intent to appeal are presented prematurely. Petitioners' arguments on the merits of an appeal are properly presented in their petition for review, after petitioners' record objections are resolved and after LUBA settles the record. Robson v. City of La Grande, 53 Or LUBA 604 (2006).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. If the argument included in support of an assignment of error clearly alleges that findings are not supported by substantial evidence, the fact that an assignment of error that challenges the adequacy of the city's findings does not expressly include a substantial evidence challenge does not preclude LUBA review of the substantial evidence arguments that follow that assignment of error. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 51 Or LUBA 363 (2006).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. While LUBA's practice is to allow replies to responses to a motion to dismiss if limited to new issues raised in the response, LUBA will deny a request to file a reply where the response is exclusively concerned with a jurisdictional issue that LUBA declines to resolve. Kamp v. Washington County, 51 Or LUBA 670 (2006).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Allowing intervenors-petitioner to belatedly sign the signature page of a timely filed petition for review is not tantamount to allowing a late petition for review. Intervenors' failure to sign or join the petition for review prior to its filing is at most a technical violation that does not affect our review, absent prejudice to another party's substantial rights. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA (512).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will strike allegations in a brief accusing opposing party of intentional misrepresentation where there appears to be a factual basis for the opposing party's statement. Patterson v. City of Independence, 48 Or LUBA 155 (2004).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. It is consistent with LUBA's rules to advance in a response brief what corresponds to a cross-assignment of error under Oregon Rules of Appellate Procedure 5.57(2), i.e., an argument that, if the relief sought by the petitioner is granted, LUBA should also reverse or remand a related intermediate ruling of the decision maker. Knutson Family LLC v. City of Eugene, 48 Or LUBA 399 (2005).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Parties may facilitate LUBA's legal research by providing copies of cases, briefs that were filed in other appeals, or other research materials in their briefs. Milne v. City of Canby, 46 Or LUBA 213 (2004).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will not attempt to resolve a largely hypothetical dispute between a petitioner and a county over the degree of incidental social activity that might be permissible at an existing airport in conjunction with any particular activity that the county must allow under ORS 836.616(2). Landsem Farms v. Marion County, 44 Or LUBA 611 (2003).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. A motion requesting permission to exceed the 50-page limit on briefs imposed by OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b) will be denied where the motion is filed three days before the brief is due and does not state how many additional pages are requested or indicate whether other parties oppose the motion. Alliance for Responsible Land Use v. Deschutes Cty., 40 Or LUBA 561 (2001).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where a transcript that is attached to a brief in accordance with OAR 661-010-0030(5) shows that a letter signed by petitioners was read to the local decision maker during the proceedings below and that the local decision maker stated that the letter would be made part of the record, the transcript is sufficient to show that petitioners made a written appearance in accordance with ORS 197.830(2) and have standing at LUBA to appeal the local government's decision. Waibel v. Crook County, 40 Or LUBA 67 (2001).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where a brief includes as an appendix two letters that post-date the challenged decision and are not included in the record, LUBA will grant a motion to strike the letters but will not strike the brief in its entirety. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 743 (2000).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA may allow a party to submit a memorandum of additional citations of relevant authority with brief summaries. However, the memorandum will not be considered if it contains additional arguments, replies to issues raised in the response brief, or does not allow other parties adequate time to address the additional citations. Stockwell v. Benton County, 38 Or LUBA 621 (2000).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. That a brief includes allegations of fact not supported by substantial evidence is not grounds for striking those allegations from the brief. LUBA will, however, disregard allegations of fact that are not supported by the record. Spiro v. Yamhill County, 38 Or LUBA 133 (2000).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will not review eight audiotapes in the record, where the party relying on testimony in the tapes provides LUBA no assistance in locating the testimony and does not attach partial transcripts of the testimony to its brief. Turner Community Association v. Marion County, 37 Or LUBA 324 (1999).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. The failure to serve all persons required to be named in the notice of intent to appeal as required by OAR 661-010-0015 is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, when intervenor's only alleged prejudice is that the violation prohibits other parties from contributing resources to support his position. A person need not have intervenor status to contribute to the preparation of a brief, financially or otherwise. Multi/Tech Engineering v. Josephine County, 36 Or LUBA 774 (1999).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will grant a motion to strike documents attached to the petition for review, where those documents are neither part of the record submitted to LUBA nor documents of which LUBA may take official notice. Friends of Clean Living v. Polk County, 36 Or LUBA 544 (1999).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where a brief includes allegations of fact that are not supported by evidence in the record, LUBA will disregard the allegations, but the lack of evidentiary support is not a basis for granting a motion to strike the allegations. Clackamas Co. Svc. Dist. No. 1 v. Clackamas County, 35 Or LUBA 374 (1998).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where an allegedly new argument presented by petitioner at oral argument simply reflects a difference in the parties' understanding of the arguments that are contained in the petition for review, LUBA will consider the argument if it is not fundamentally different from the arguments presented in the petition for review. Nike, Inc. v. City of Beaverton, 35 Or LUBA 57 (1998).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Assignments of error in petitions for review filed with LUBA must identify which portions of the challenged land use decision are challenged and why. Lee v. City of Oregon City, 34 Or LUBA 691 (1998).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. It is the parties' responsibility to identify the evidence in the record that supports their positions. Where parties cite large documents in their entirety, and do not identify where in these documents relevant material is located, LUBA will not search through the documents looking for supporting evidence. Friends of Bryant Woods Park v. Lake Oswego, 26 Or LUBA 185 (1993).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. Where a decision is challenged on evidentiary grounds, LUBA relies on the parties to provide it with record citations to the supporting or countervailing evidence on which their argument depends. Spiering v. Yamhill County, 25 Or LUBA 695 (1993).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. It is the practice at LUBA for a party that wishes LUBA to consider a document not in the local record, for one of the purposes listed in ORS 197.830(13)(b) or OAR 661-10-045(1), to attach that document to its brief and explain in its brief why LUBA should consider the document. If another party does not object to LUBA considering the document, the document becomes part of LUBA's record and is considered for the requested purpose. If an objection is made, the party offering the document may file a motion for evidentiary hearing under OAR 661-10-045. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 25 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will not grant motions to strike portions of a brief, based on allegations that the disputed portions are inaccurate or without factual support. Rather LUBA will simply disregard inaccurate or unsupported assertions. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 25 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. A petitioner fails to adequately allege error with regard to a particular code section, where that code section is not identified in petitioner's assignment of error and a different code section is cited in the argument supporting the assignment of error. Day v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 468 (1993).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to strike portions of a brief that are alleged to be inaccurate or unsupported by the record. Rather, LUBA will simply disregard inaccurate or unsupported statements. A Storage Place v. City of Tualatin, 25 Or LUBA 202 (1993).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. In reviewing an evidentiary challenge, LUBA relies on the parties to identify the evidence in the record that supports their positions. Todd v. Columbia County, 24 Or LUBA 289 (1992).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will not consider letters from intervenors-petitioner that "support" the petitioners' petition for review, but do not comply with the requirements of LUBA's rules for an intervenor-petitioner's brief. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 600 (1991).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. A letter stating an intervenor-petitioner "adopts" another party's petition for review as its own brief can satisfy the requirements of OAR

661-10-050(3)(a) for filing an intervenor-petitioner's brief, if (1) the "adopted" petition for review is properly filed, and (2) the intervenor-petitioner's letter is timely filed and served on the other parties. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 600 (1991).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. A document appended to a party's petition for review or brief becomes part of the record of LUBA's proceeding. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 20 Or LUBA 246 (1990).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will not consider a supplemental brief filed after oral argument and 18 days before the final opinion is due, where the supplemental brief was not requested by LUBA and consideration of the arguments presented in the supplemental brief would delay issuance of LUBA's final opinion. Cecil v. City of Jacksonville, 19 Or LUBA 621 (1990).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA considers the words spoken at the local government hearings to be part of the record, and will permit parties to attach excerpts from transcripts of such hearings to their briefs, notwithstanding that neither tapes nor transcripts of the local government hearings were submitted to LUBA as part of the record. Other parties may contest the accuracy of such transcript excerpts in their opening brief or in a reply brief. Columbia Steel Castings v. City of Portland, 19 Or LUBA 338 (1990).

27.5.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Generally. LUBA will accept a cross petition for review filed after the deadline established under OAR 661-10-075(3) where the cross petitioner (1) was entitled to but did not receive written notice of the challenged decision, (2) received actual notice of the challenged decision eight days after the petition for review was filed and moved to intervene on the side of respondent five days later, and (3) filed a timely response brief with the cross petition for review included. Smith v. Clackamas County, 19 Or LUBA 497 (1990).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a city's development code permits only two extensions of tentative subdivision approval, and the city grants a third extension, the city's decision will be reversed where the city does not file a brief and intervenor-respondent concedes the city's interpretation that a third extension is permissible is not sustainable, even under the deferential standard of review required by ORS 197.829(1) and Siporen v. City of Medford, 349 Or 247, 262, 243 P3d 776 (2010). Pinnacle Alliance Group LLC v. City of Sisters, 74 Or LUBA 265 (2016).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. The filing of an amended response brief outside the time permitted for filing the response brief, and without permission from the Board to file an amended brief, is a violation of OAR 661-010-0035(1) and (5). MGP X Properties, LLC v. Washington County, 74 Or LUBA 378 (2016).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a hearings officer does not take the position that his inability to verify the nature and extent of certain aspects of a prior concrete batch plant makes it impossible to determine whether an application to alter that prior nonconforming concrete batch plant will result in a more intensive use or result in greater adverse impact on the surrounding neighborhood, but intervenor does not file a cross-petition for review to assign error to that aspect of the hearings officer's decision, LUBA will not consider whether that position could provide an independent basis for denying the requested alteration. Meyer v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 1 (2016).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a local government in defending its decision asserts a legal theory in its response brief, but that legal theory was not adopted by the challenged decision and the challenged decision relied on a different legal theory, LUBA will not consider the legal theory that is asserted for the first time in the response brief. J. Conser and Sons, LLC v. City of Millersburg, 73 Or LUBA 57 (2016).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Absent a showing of substantial prejudice to the moving party, that a response brief is printed in 12-point font rather than the 14-point font required by OAR 661-010-0030(2)(d) is not a basis to strike the brief, at least where the smaller font size is not used to effectively avoid the page limits imposed under LUBA's rules. Stop the Dump Coalition v. Yamhill County, 72 Or LUBA 341 (2015).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. LUBA will not defer to an interpretation of a zoning ordinance that appears only in a city's reply brief and is inconsistent with an implied interpretation that is included in the city council's decision on appeal. Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Dunes City, 65 Or LUBA 358 (2012).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where an intervenor-respondent attempts to defend a local government's decision by arguing that the local government correctly decided the matter but should have done so based on a different interpretation of its zoning ordinance that the local government specifically rejected, and intervenor-respondent does not file a cross-petition for review or include a cross assignment of error in its response brief, LUBA will not consider the interpretive question. Hoffman v. Deschutes County, 61 Or LUBA 173 (2010).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. When three appeals have been consolidated and petitioners have filed three separate petitions for review, a respondent's request to file a single 114-page respondent's brief responding to all three petitions for review will be allowed. Foland v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 500 (2010).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. A cross-assignment of error must assign error to some ruling or omission in the challenged decision and seek reversal or remand based on that alleged error. A cross-assignment of error is not a vehicle to request (1) that LUBA address in the first instance an alternative legal theory under which the application could have been approved, but was not, and (2) that LUBA affirm the challenged decision based on that legal theory. NAAVE v. Washington County, 59 Or LUBA 153 (2009).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a respondent's brief includes what are in substance cross-assignments of error, even though they are not denominated as such, LUBA will consider those de facto cross-assignments of error, provided they are reasonably recognizable as cross-assignments of error. Pete's Mtn. Home Owners Assoc. v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 287 (2007).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. LUBA will deny petitioners' motion to dismiss an intervenor-respondent's brief that is filed one day late, where (1) the late-filed brief is filed 21 days before oral argument and is only five pages long, (2) the late-filed brief largely supplements the city's timely filed 24-page brief, and (3) petitioners neither allege nor demonstrate that their substantial rights were prejudiced by the late filing. O'Brien v. City of Portland, 52 Or LUBA 113 (2006).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. An intervenor-respondent may raise cross assignments of error in the response brief, but LUBA will only address those cross assignments of error if one or more of the petitioner's assignments of error are sustained and the decision is otherwise subject to reversal or remand. Dauenhauer v. Jackson County, 51 Or LUBA 539 (2006).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. When an intervenor-respondent raises cross-assignments of error in a response brief rather than assignments of error in a cross petition, LUBA will only address the cross-assignments of error if the challenged decision is reversed or remanded on any of the petitioner's assignments of error. Young v. Jackson County, 49 Or LUBA 327 (2005).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. It is consistent with LUBA's rules to advance in a response brief what corresponds to a cross-assignment of error under Oregon Rules of Appellate Procedure 5.57(2), i.e., an argument that, if the relief sought by the petitioner is granted, LUBA should also reverse or remand a related intermediate ruling of the decision maker. Knutson Family LLC v. City of Eugene, 48 Or LUBA 399 (2005).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Because nothing in LUBA's rules prohibits including a cross-assignment of error in the response brief, LUBA rules governing response briefs contemplate inclusion of "other matters" in the response brief, and many cross-assignments of error cannot practicably be advanced except in the response brief, it is consistent with LUBA rules to include a cross-assignment of error in a response brief. Copeland Sand & Gravel, Inc. v. Jackson County, 46 Or LUBA 653 (2004).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. The principle of affirmative waiver of issues before the local decision maker described in Newcomer v. Clackamas County, 92 Or App 174, 758 P2d 369 (1988), does not apply to representations before LUBA, such as a respondent's representation that it would not file a response brief. To the extent a petitioner relies on such a representation to submit an abbreviated petition for review, it does so at its own risk. LUBA. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 46 Or LUBA 799 (2004).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Respondents may not fail to respond to a subassignment of error in their brief and then provide a response for the first time at oral argument. Friends of Eugene v. City of Eugene, 44 Or LUBA 239 (2003).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a response brief was filed a week after the brief was due, and petitioners were not made aware that the response brief had been filed until they appeared at oral argument and thus were not prepared to respond to the brief, petitioners' substantial rights were prejudiced, and LUBA will reject the response brief. Griffin v. Jackson County, 41 Or LUBA 159 (2001).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. A motion requesting permission to exceed the 50-page limit on briefs imposed by OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b) will be denied where the motion is filed three days before the brief is due and does not state how many additional pages are requested or indicate whether other parties oppose the motion. Alliance for Responsible Land Use v. Deschutes Cty., 40 Or LUBA 561 (2001).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a state agency files a brief pursuant to ORS 197.830(7) on the date of the filing of the response brief, respondent will be allowed to file a supplemental response brief addressing the issues raised in the state agency brief. Bruggere v. Clackamas County, 36 Or LUBA 799 (1999).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. LUBA will deny respondents' request to file a response brief that exceeds LUBA's page limits, where respondents fail to demonstrate why an adequate response is impossible within the allotted limits, and allowing the request would be inequitable to other respondents who have complied with LUBA's rules. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 35 Or LUBA 754 (1998).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. In addressing a substantial evidence challenge, where the response brief provides no transcripts or partial transcripts and provides no assistance in locating the portion of the audio tapes in the record where relevant testimony is located, LUBA will not search for testimony on audio tapes. Best Buy in Town, Inc. v. Washington County, 35 Or LUBA 446 (1999).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a land use decision is challenged on evidentiary grounds, LUBA relies on the parties to direct it to relevant evidence in the record so that LUBA can determine whether there is substantial evidence in the record to support the challenged decision. Johns v. City of Lincoln City, 35 Or LUBA 421 (1999).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. The failure of findings to identify the evidence that supports the findings is not necessarily fatal, so long as the response brief or the briefs filed by other parties direct LUBA's attention to evidence in the record that supports those findings. Johns v. City of Lincoln City, 35 Or LUBA 421 (1999).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. New objections to the applicability of an identified approval criterion should be raised in a cross-petition for review, and are not properly presented in a response brief. Canby Quality of Life Committee v. City of Canby, 30 Or LUBA 166 (1995).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Arguments that the county should have based its decision on the subject application on statutory provisions, rather than on compliance with local standards, must be presented in a petition for review or cross-petition for review. Such arguments are not properly presented in a respondent's brief. Louks v. Jackson County, 28 Or LUBA 501 (1995).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. A respondent or intervenor-respondent wishing to challenge some aspect of a land use decision in a LUBA appeal must either file a timely cross-petition for review or file a separate appeal. Cross assignments of error may not be included in a respondent's brief. Brentmar v. Jackson County, 27 Or LUBA 453 (1994).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. LUBA will not grant a request for an extension of time to file respondents' briefs, over petitioner's objection, if the requested extension would necessitate a delay in oral argument and a delay in issuing LUBA's final opinion and order. Waugh v. Coos County, 26 Or LUBA 599 (1993).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where a motion to intervene and intervenors' response brief were filed six days after respondents' briefs were due and were received by petitioners one week before oral argument, and intervenors' brief does not raise new issues warranting the filing of a reply brief, petitioners' substantial right to prepare and submit their case was not prejudiced by the untimely filing. Alliance for Resp. Land Use v. Deschutes County, 23 Or LUBA 476 (1992).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. OAR 661-10-050(3)(b) requires that intervenors-respondent file their brief within the time provided for filing the respondent's brief. Where the time for filing the respondent's brief is extended beyond the 42-day deadline established by OAR 661-10-035, intervenors-respondent are entitled to the same extension under OAR 661-10-050(3)(b). Rhyne v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 703 (1992).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where intervenors' delay in filing their motion to intervene and brief results in no delay of the appeal and no prejudice to petitioners' substantial rights, the failures to file a timely motion to intervene and brief are technical violations of LUBA's rules and provide no basis for denying the requested intervention. Rhyne v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 703 (1992).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Failure to file a respondent's brief within the time specified in an order issued by LUBA pursuant to OAR 660-10-026(5) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which will not interfere with LUBA's review unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Where petitioners have ample time to review respondent's brief prior to oral argument, their substantial rights are not prejudiced. Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 604 (1991).

27.5.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Respondent's. Where (1) intervenor-respondent's brief is filed 21 days late, (2) petitioners receive the brief less than one full day before oral argument, and (3) providing petitioners an opportunity to submit argument in response to the brief would delay issuance of LUBA's final opinion, the late filing of intervenor's brief is not an excusable technical violation of LUBA's rules. Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 189 (1990).

27.5.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – State Agency. A state agency's participation in an appeal before LUBA pursuant to ORS 197.830(7) and OAR 661-010-0038 is limited to filing a state agency brief. A state agency participating in an appeal under those provisions may not file a motion to strike pleadings or otherwise participate as if it were a party to the proceedings. Citizens for Florence v. City of Florence, 35 Or LUBA 255 (1998).

27.5.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – State Agency. "The proceeding" referenced in ORS 197.830(7) is the proceeding at LUBA, not the local proceeding. Citizens for Florence v. City of Florence, 34 Or LUBA 793 (1998).

27.5.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – State Agency. Where a state agency demonstrates that a petition for review places its "order, rule, ruling, policy or other action * * * at issue," the state agency is entitled to participate in that LUBA appeal "as if it were a party." Citizens for Florence v. City of Florence, 34 Or LUBA 793 (1998).

27.5.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – State Agency. Where a state agency's brief submitted under ORS 197.830(7) presents essentially the same issue that is presented in the petition for review, LUBA will consider the arguments presented in the state agency brief. Citizens for Florence v. City of Florence, 34 Or LUBA 793 (1998).

27.5.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – State Agency. Where the petition for review challenging a post-acknowledgment decision raises an issue concerning the propriety of the city relying on documents that were prepared for a pending periodic review, the issue of whether ORS 197.644(2) and OAR 660-025-0040 deprive LUBA of jurisdiction to review the challenged decision is necessarily presented and may be included in a state agency brief submitted under ORS 197.830(7). Citizens for Florence v. City of Florence, 34 Or LUBA 793 (1998).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. LUBA will not allow an amicus brief that consists only of the personal recollections of a participant to rulemaking, because such recollections do not constitute probative legislative history and would not significantly aid LUBA's review of an appeal where the meaning of the adopted rule is at issue. Squier v. Multnomah County, 71 Or LUBA 98 (2015).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. That an amicus is aligned with the interests of one party and the proposed amicus brief mostly repeats arguments already advanced by one party is not, in itself, a basis to reject amicus participation. Campers Cove Resort LLC v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 491 (2010).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. Where the interests and positions asserted by a party and an amicus are not entirely the same and allowing an amicus to participate would require no delay in the appeal, LUBA may allow amicus participation. Campers Cove Resort LLC v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 491 (2010).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. Where the arguments that a movant seeks to present are based on matters outside LUBA's scope of review, a party moving to appear as amicus has not established that LUBA's review would be significantly aided by amicus's participation in the appeal. Biggerstaff v. Yamhill County, 58 Or LUBA 678 (2009).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. LUBA will consider arguments in a brief filed by an amicus whose participation at LUBA has been denied, where the respondent's brief incorporates the arguments in the amicus brief and the respondent's brief with the incorporated material does not exceed the 50-page limit or otherwise violate any other rule limitation. Herring v. Lane County, 54 Or LUBA 417 (2007).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. LUBA will deny a motion to appear and file an amicus brief where the local government files a response brief that responds to assignments of error in the petition for review and the amicus fails to demonstrate that the amicus brief will significantly aid LUBA's review. Herring v. Lane County, 54 Or LUBA 772 (2007).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. The deadline for filing a motion to appear as an amicus is not a deadline that is rigidly enforced. Filing the motion to appear as amicus one day late, when the amicus brief was timely filed, does not prejudice other parties' substantial rights. Nelson v. Curry County, 48 Or LUBA 178 (2004).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. An amicus' assertion that it can knowledgeably discuss the history, legislative intent, and policy behind the approval criteria is sufficient to significantly aid LUBA's review. Nelson v. Curry County, 48 Or LUBA 178 (2004).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. LUBA will not remand a land use decision based on a legal argument that is presented in an amicus brief but is not presented by any other party to the appeal. Concerned Citizens v. Malheur County, 47 Or LUBA 208 (2004).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. A city's amicus brief will significantly aid LUBA's review of relevant issues, where the county's decision affects property within the UGB that was subsequently transferred to the city's planning jurisdiction. Multi/Tech Engineering v. Josephine County, 36 Or LUBA 767 (1999).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. A property owner's "specific and narrow interest" in property is not sufficient by itself to show that LUBA's review would be significantly aided by the property owner's participation as an amicus. Cotter v. Clackamas County, 35 Or LUBA 749 (1998).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. That LUBA will have only the perspective of the petitioner for review is always the case where the local government fails to respond and no party moves to intervene, and is not a valid reason by itself to delay the appeal so that an amicus brief may be filed. Krieger v. Wallowa County, 35 Or LUBA 742 (1998).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. Under OAR 661-010-0052, the purpose of amicus participation is to aid LUBA's review of relevant issues in the appeal. An amicus brief must be filed within the time for filing response briefs, and a motion for additional time to file an amicus brief to allow an opportunity to respond to arguments in the response briefs will be denied where the motion fails to demonstrate the extension is warranted. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 34 Or LUBA 790 (1998).

27.5.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Amicus. LUBA will not grant a motion to file an amicus brief where the proposed amicus brief raises only an issue that is not raised in the petition for review. Friends of Bryant Woods v. City of Lake Oswego, 26 Or LUBA 594 (1993).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a petitioner cites over one hundred pages of the record in its preservation of error statement, but the respondents do not argue that the issues were not raised during the local proceeding and the petitioner provides more focused record citations in their reply brief, and where it is evident from the challenged decision itself that the issues were raised during the local proceeding, such failure to adequately specify in the petition for review where the issues were preserved is a technical violation that does not prejudice the respondents' substantial rights. Nehmzow v. Deschutes County, 81 Or LUBA 571 (2020).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. The total number of words of briefing by either petitioners or respondents is not relevant to whether an overlength reply brief is warranted. Campbell v. Columbia County, 81 Or LUBA 1030 (2020).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. OAR 661-010-0039 was amended in 2010 to require a request to file a reply brief be filed "within seven days of the date the respondent's brief is filed." That amendment created a filing deadline. Accordingly, LUBA will deny a motion to file a reply brief under OAR 661-010-0039 (effective in 2018), where petitioner did not move for an extension of time or obtain the written consent of the parties to file a late reply brief, petitioner filed the request to file its reply brief 48 days after the response briefs were filed and petitioner offered no explanation or justification for such an egregious delay, because the violation is not a mere "technical violation" under OAR 661-010-005. Yamhill Creek Solar, LLC v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 1031 (2018).

27.5.5 Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. While LUBA's rules do not provide for a reply to a response to motions, LUBA's rules also do not prohibit such a reply, and LUBA's practice is to consider such replies to the extent they address new issues raised in the response. McLaughlin v. Douglas County, 76 Or LUBA 77 (2017).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. While OAR 660-010-0039 suggests that a request to file a reply brief should be made in a motion that is separate from the reply brief itself, LUBA's rule does not expressly require that the request be made in a separate motion, and where the first paragraph of a petitioner's reply brief is in substance a request to file the reply brief, LUBA will consider that request as the motion. DLCD v. City of Klamath Falls, 76 Or LUBA 130 (2017).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where mootness is at issue, the jurisdictional arguments tend to evolve over the course of the pleadings or can be updated by more recent events. Where intervenor's reply memorandum adds a new argument to its motion to dismiss on the basis of mootness—that the appeals are moot based on a letter the intervenor recently sent to a state agency—and petitioners have responded to that new argument in a motion to strike, LUBA will consider both the reply memorandum and petitioners' countervailing arguments in resolving the pending motion to dismiss. Bishop v. Deschutes County, 76 Or LUBA 515 (2017).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where intervenor applied for, and received, two consecutive land use compatibility statements (LUCS), and argues it has now abandoned any reliance on the first LUCS decision, and instead has chosen to proceed with development pursuant to the second LUCS decision, the intervenor's current intent does not necessarily render the first LUCS decision ineffective. Unless and until the local government takes action to withdraw, revoke, or supersede the first LUCS decision, it remains as a potential basis for intervenor to proceed with development based on the LUCS as a final and binding county decision, and is therefore not moot. Bishop v. Deschutes County, 76 Or LUBA 515 (2017).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA routinely allows reply briefs to respond to waiver arguments and a reply brief is the preferable way to respond to waiver arguments so that the issue that is the subject of the waiver argument and the precise places in the record where petitioner believes the issue was raised can be clearly identified. Long v. City of Tigard, 75 Or LUBA 390 (2017).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will consider a reply to a response to record objections, where the reply is limited to legal arguments raised in the response to the objections, and does not state additional record objections. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 638 (2016).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Failure to comply with OAR 661-010-0030(4), which requires that the petition for review demonstrate that the issues raised in the assignments of error were preserved during the proceedings below, is not a basis to reject the assignment of error or refuse to consider a reply brief that responds to a waiver challenge, absent a showing that noncompliance with OAR 661-010-0030(4) prejudices other parties' substantial rights or substantially impedes LUBA's review. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hood River, 72 Or LUBA 1 (2015).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a city asserts for the first time in its response brief that a previously unchallenged finding is an additional basis for denial, such an assertion constitutes a new matter, sufficient to permit a reply brief under OAR 661-010-0039. Sage Equities, LLC v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 163 (2015).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a city asserts for the first time in its response brief that petitioners should have proposed conditions to avoid denial of their application, such an assertion constitutes a new matter, sufficient to permit a reply brief under OAR 661-010-0039. Sage Equities, LLC v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 163 (2015).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will deny a motion to strike a reply brief that both objects to the reply brief and responds to the merits of the assertions in the reply brief, without distinguishing between the two. Stop the Dump Coalition v. Yamhill County, 72 Or LUBA 341 (2015).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Under OAR 661-010-0075(8), where a deadline for filing a brief falls on a holiday, the filing must be performed on the next working day. Where the seven-day deadline for filing the reply brief fell on Thanksgiving, and the following day Friday all state offices were closed, including LUBA's, the "next working day" is the following Monday, so a reply brief filed on that Monday was timely filed. Kine v. City of Bend, 72 Or LUBA 423 (2015).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Filing a reply brief on the date of oral argument, six days after the deadline for filing the reply brief, violates OAR 661-010-0039. That violation is not a technical violation of LUBA's rules, because it denies opposing parties a reasonable opportunity to prepare and submit their cases. SCAN v. City of Salem, 70 Or LUBA 468 (2014).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will not allow a reply brief that does not respond to a "new matter" raised in the response brief, but merely seeks to provide surrebuttal to arguments raised in the response brief. Willamette Oaks, LLC v. City of Eugene, 67 Or LUBA 351 (2013).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief cannot be used to advance a new challenge to a finding or portion of the decision that was unchallenged in the petition for review. Where the response brief argues that an assignment of error should be rejected due to failure to challenge some portion of the decision, such as an alternative finding, the reply brief is limited to arguing that it was unnecessary to assign error to the unchallenged finding or that failure to challenge that finding in the petition for review should not affect LUBA's review of the assignment of error at issue. Waste Not of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 65 Or LUBA 142 (2012).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a disputed reply brief, a motion to strike and a motion to take evidence all revolve around an issue that is beyond LUBA's scope of review and has no bearing on a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, LUBA will summarily deny the reply brief and motions. Treadmill Joint Venture v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 213 (2012).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will accept a reply brief that responds to a local government's argument that the petition for review failed to assign error to the local government's failure to provide DLCD with post-adoption notice of the decision as required by ORS 197.610(1). However, to the extent the reply brief includes arguments that purport to advance a new assignment of error or new basis for reversal or remand, LUBA will not consider such arguments. Conte v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 326 (2012).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. The OAR 661-010-0039 seven-day deadline for a petitioner to a reply brief is not measured from the deadline for filing respondent's response brief; it is measured from the date the response brief is actually filed. Gravatt v. City of Portland, 62 Or LUBA 382 (2011).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A dispute raised in the response brief over the nature of an assignment of error and LUBA's scope of review over that assignment of error is an appropriate subject for a reply brief. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. When a local government argues in its response brief that a petitioner is precluded from advancing particular assignments of error because the local government ruled below that the issues presented in those assignments of error were not preserved for the local appeal, a petitioner may file a reply brief responding to the potentially "new matter" that the assignments of error are waived, but a petitioner may not use the reply brief as a vehicle to allege that the local government erred in limiting the issues it considered during the local appeal. Citizens for Responsible Development v. City of The Dalles, 60 Or LUBA 12 (2009).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. While a reply brief is appropriate to respond to an argument that an assignment of error should be denied because petitioner failed to challenge an alternative finding, the reply must be limited to arguments as to why it was unnecessary to assign error to the alternative findings. The reply brief may not be used to challenge the alternative findings on the merits. McGovern v. Crook County, 60 Or LUBA 177 (2009).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. An oral objection at oral argument to a reply brief that was filed more than three weeks earlier is untimely, and will not be considered. Oh v. City of Gold Beach, 60 Or LUBA 356 (2010).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Filing a reply brief approximately three weeks after the response briefs were filed and approximately 10 days before oral argument is not a violation of OAR 661-010-0039. Citizens for Responsible Development v. City of The Dalles, 59 Or LUBA 369 (2009).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. As long as a reply brief does not merely reiterate or embellish arguments already made in the petition for review's jurisdictional section, a reply brief is warranted to respond to a jurisdictional challenge in the response brief. In addition, a reply is appropriate to respond to an argument that a LUBA decision that petitioner relies upon should be overruled. Bohnenkamp v. Clackamas County, 56 Or LUBA 17 (2008).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief is warranted to address waiver arguments in a response brief even if the challenged decision includes findings on waiver and the petition for review includes an extensive discussion of the waiver issue, where the response brief provides additional justifications for the county's waiver findings. VanSpeybroeck v. Tillamook County, 56 Or LUBA 184 (2008).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief is warranted where the response brief argues that the county made a potentially dispositive alternative finding that petitioner failed to challenge. While the reply brief cannot assert a new assignment of error or a new challenge to the decision, the reply brief may respond to the issue of whether the identified finding is a dispositive alternative finding and whether petitioner's failure to challenge that finding is fatal on that issue. VanSpeybroeck v. Tillamook County, 56 Or LUBA 184 (2008).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will not consider assignments of error that are raised for the first time in a reply brief. Porter v. Marion County, 56 Or LUBA 635 (2008).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where respondents argue that issues that are raised in the petition for review were not raised below and for that reason are waived, petitioner should respond to such waiver arguments in a reply brief or in their opening argument at oral argument. Pete's Mtn. Home Owners Assoc. v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 287 (2007).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief submitted at oral argument approximately 14 days after the response briefs are filed is not timely filed as required by OAR 661-010-0039 and will not be allowed. Knapp v. City of Corvallis, 55 Or LUBA 376 (2007).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief is warranted to reply to an argument in the response brief that some of the petitioner's assignments of error are barred by issue or claim preclusion. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 55 Or LUBA 569 (2008).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. An argument in a response brief that LUBA should deny assignments of error alleging that findings addressing an approval criterion are inadequate, due to the petitioners' failure to challenge other, allegedly related findings, is a new matter that warrants a reply brief. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Gresham, 54 Or LUBA 16 (2007).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where the petition for review assigns error to a county's failure to impose conditions of approval based on certain recommendations in a forest plan, an argument in the response brief that the challenged decision implicitly requires compliance with all recommendations in a forest plan is a "new matter" that warrants a reply brief. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 53 Or LUBA 290 (2007).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. An argument in the response brief that disputes petitioners' interpretation of how two code provisions should be applied is not a "new matter" that warrants a reply brief. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 53 Or LUBA 290 (2007).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Argument presented in a petitioner's post-oral argument letter is not timely submitted where that argument could have been included in the petitioner's reply brief. Rhinhart v. Umatilla County, 53 Or LUBA 402 (2007).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. An argument that petitioner failed to raise an issue during the local proceedings does not provide a basis to deny petitioner's reply brief, although it may provide a basis to deny the related assignment of error. Anderson v. Coos County, 51 Or LUBA 454 (2006).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief that is filed one day after oral argument and nine days after the response brief is filed is not filed "as soon as possible" after the response brief is filed, pursuant to OAR 661-010-0039. Jacobsen v. City of Winston, 51 Or LUBA 602 (2006).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will not consider an argument that is presented for the first time in petitioner's reply brief, where that argument is not presented in response to a new issue raised in the respondent's brief. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 50 Or LUBA 226 (2005).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a local code imposes a reduced mitigation obligation as the percentage of all trees on the property with a diameter over 12 inches to be saved increases, a local government does not err is allowing an inventory of trees to be retained and removed to utilize whole numbers when measuring the diameter of trees to be removed and trees to be saved. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 50 Or LUBA 226 (2005).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will reject, as untimely and prejudicial to the parties' substantial rights, a 15-page reply brief with 39 pages of appendices filed 14 days after the response brief and one day before oral argument. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA (512).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will not strike a petitioner's reply to a respondent's response to record objections where the reply addresses new issues raised in the response. Papadopoulos v. Benton County, 48 Or LUBA 634 (2004).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A petitioner may not assert a new basis for reversal or remand in the reply brief, or change the legal theory under which the petitioner seeks reversal or remand. Cove at Brookings Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Brookings, 47 Or LUBA 1 (2004).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. ORS 197.835(4) does not excuse petitioner's failure to raise issues of compliance with a code approval standard based on the city's failure to list that standard in the notice of hearing, where the staff report and planning commission decision both cite and quote the standard as an applicable approval criterion, and petitioner offers no reason why issues of compliance with that standard could not have been raised before the city. Cove at Brookings Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Brookings, 47 Or LUBA 1 (2004).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a five-page reply brief is filed eleven days after intervenors' brief and intervenors receive a copy approximately 48 hours before oral argument, intervenors' substantial rights are not prejudiced. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 47 Or LUBA 508 (2004).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. When a petition for review alleges a local government committed multiple procedural errors that prejudiced substantial rights and the response brief faults the petition for review for failing to demonstrate that each procedural error prejudiced substantial rights, a reply brief is warranted to respond to that assertion. Naumes Properties, LLC v. City of Central Point, 46 Or LUBA 304 (2004).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief filed 12 days after the response brief was filed, and four days after oral argument, is not filed "as soon as possible" after the filing of the respondent's brief, as required by OAR 661-010-0039. Cotter v. City of Portland, 46 Or LUBA 612 (2004).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a petition for review provides a bare or nominal statement of jurisdiction, a reply brief is generally warranted to respond to a jurisdictional challenge in the response brief, and LUBA's resolution of the jurisdictional challenge is not limited to the specific bases for jurisdiction specified in the petition for review. Sievers v. Hood River County, 46 Or LUBA 635 (2004).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA's unwillingness to conduct an unaided search of a 40-page reply brief to identify specifically the parts of the reply brief that inappropriately go beyond responding "to new matters raised in the respondent's brief" does not mean that additional legal theories for remand that are presented for the first time in the reply brief ripen into assignments of error or legal theories that are properly presented in a LUBA appeal. Lord v. City of Oregon City, 43 Or LUBA 361 (2002).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where the petition for review assumes that the challenged decision is quasi-judicial in character and the response brief challenges that assumption, and the correct characterization of the challenged decision may affect LUBA's analysis of petitioner's challenge to the adequacy of the county's findings, a reply brief is warranted to respond to the challenge in the response brief. Manning v. Marion County, 42 Or LUBA 56 (2002).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief filed immediately prior to oral argument and almost a month after the response brief is filed is not filed "as soon as possible," within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0039, and will not be accepted if the failure to comply with the rule violates the opposing parties' substantial rights. Troy v. City of Grants Pass, 41 Or LUBA 112 (2001).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief that is filed immediately prior to oral argument will be rejected when, as a result of the timing of the filing, opposing parties have no time to review the reply brief and prepare a response to it. Troy v. City of Grants Pass, 41 Or LUBA 112 (2001).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief is warranted where an assignment of error argues that a code provision was misinterpreted, thus invoking LUBA's review under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(D), and a response brief assumes the merits of that assignment but argues that it should nonetheless fail because petitioner has not made additional allegations of prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights that are relevant only if LUBA reviews the assignment as an alleged procedural error under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B). Paulson v. Washington County, 40 Or LUBA 345 (2001).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. OAR 661-010-0039 allows a reply brief if it is filed "as soon as possible" after the response briefs are filed. A reply brief filed and served three working days after the response briefs were filed is timely filed under the rule. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 111 (2001).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where petitioner alleges in the petition for review that the decision maker failed to adopt any findings addressing the comprehensive plan and the respondent's brief identifies the allegedly missing findings, LUBA will not allow petitioner to file a reply brief expanding the assignment of error to challenge the adequacy of those findings. Hubenthal v. City of Woodburn, 38 Or LUBA 935 (2000).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Responses warranting a reply brief pursuant to OAR 661-010-0039 tend to be arguments that assignments of error should fail regardless of the merits, based on facts or authority extrinsic to those merits. Arguments in a response brief that a proposed facility is "grandfathered in" and that petitioner is collaterally estopped from raising certain issues by virtue of a prior decision allowing that facility are new matters warranting a reply brief. Sequoia Park Condo. Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 36 Or LUBA 317 (1999).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Untimely submission of a motion to file a reply brief is not a technical violation of LUBA's rules where the length of the proposed reply brief and the proximity of oral argument is such that respondents do not have adequate time to respond to the motion and prepare to respond to the proposed reply brief at oral argument. A 32-page reply brief filed two days before oral argument violates respondents' substantial rights to the speediest practicable review of the land use decision. Sequoia Park Condo. Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 36 Or LUBA 317 (1999).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where the response brief points out that the petition for review challenges only one of the county's alternative bases for modifying an approval standard, the response brief has not raised a "new matter" within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0039. A reply brief is not a means to assign error to findings that were not challenged in the petition for review, and arguments in the response brief based on such findings are not new matters warranting a reply brief. Hard Rock Enterprises v. Washington County, 36 Or LUBA 106 (1999).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. If a reply brief includes positions that go beyond those that are properly included in a reply brief under OAR 661-010-0039, those positions are subject to a motion to strike. Where there is time to raise such objections in a motion to strike before oral argument, it is not appropriate to delay raising such objections until oral argument. The Friends of Clean Living v. Polk County, 35 Or LUBA 830 (1999).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A response brief raises "new matters" within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0039 when it argues that assignments of error in the petition for review should fail, regardless of the merits of those assignments, based on facts or authority not involved in those assignments. Where the response brief responds to the merits of an assignment of error, that response is not a "new matter" for purposes of OAR 661-010-0039. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 35 Or LUBA 516 (1999).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. An argument in the response brief that the Transportation Planning Rule does not require amendments to the city's transportation plan until that plan has been formally adopted is a "new matter" warranting a reply brief pursuant to OAR 661-060-0039. Citizens for Florence v. City of Florence, 35 Or LUBA 255 (1998).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where a respondent moves for permission to file a supplemental brief but suggests no basis under LUBA's rules for allowing what appears to be additional argument, the motion will be denied. Dept. of Transportation v. Douglas County, 34 Or LUBA 608 (1998).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief is not allowed pursuant to OAR 661-010-0039 where the brief merely embellishes 20 pages of argument regarding jurisdiction and standing in the petition for review, rather than responding to issues raised for the first time in the respondent's brief. Casey Jones Well Drilling, Inc. v. City of Lowell, 34 Or LUBA 263 (1998).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Petitioner's request to submit a reply brief will not be allowed under OAR 661-10-039, where petitioner does not address new issues raised by respondent's brief, and the reply brief simply embellishes arguments already advanced in the petition for review. Lindstedt v. City of Cannon Beach, 33 Or LUBA 516 (1997).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. OAR 660-10-039 allows petitioner to file a reply brief when a new matter is raised in the response brief, notwithstanding intervenor-respondent's belief that petitioner should have anticipated that the matter would be raised in the response brief. Koo v. Polk County, 33 Or LUBA 487 (1997).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. The timeline imposed by our rules affecting reply briefs is intended less to provide a second opportunity for respondents to research issues already argued in their own brief than to provide a reasonable opportunity for respondents and this Board to review the reply brief. Lett v. Yamhill County, 32 Or LUBA 98 (1996).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Petitioner's motion to file a reply brief will be denied under OAR 661-10-039 where the county does not raise a new issue for petitioner to address in the reply brief. Still v. Marion County, 32 Or LUBA 40 (1996).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. If the respondent's brief challenges the petitioner's standing and LUBA's jurisdiction, LUBA will allow a reply brief. Boom v. Columbia County, 31 Or LUBA 318 (1996).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Failure to file a request to file a reply brief "as soon as possible" after the respondents' brief is filed is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which, under OAR 661-10-005, does not affect LUBA's review unless the substantial rights of the parties are prejudiced. Shaffer v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 592 (1995).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. When a contention that LUBA lacks jurisdiction is made for the first time in the respondent's brief, a reply brief concerning the subject of LUBA's jurisdiction is warranted. Shaffer v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 592 (1995).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Petitioners may not make a new challenge to the appealed decision in a reply brief, and thereby effectively add an assignment of error to the petition for review. Shaffer v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 592 (1995).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where the petition for review includes allegations concerning the content of a tape in the record, and respondents object that petitioner failed to attach a transcript of the relevant portions of the tape to the petition for review, LUBA will allow petitioner to submit a transcript in a reply brief, so long as respondents have adequate time to review the tape and transcript prior to oral argument. Shaffer v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 592 (1995).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Arguments contained in respondents' briefs, that petitioner failed to exhaust local appeals and is precluded from raising particular issues before this Board, are new matters not contained in the petition for review which warrant the filing of a reply brief. Choban v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 572 (1993).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where the respondent's brief contains arguments that petitioner waived certain issues raised in the petition for review, petitioner will be allowed to file a reply brief to respond to those waiver arguments. Caine v. Tillamook County, 24 Or LUBA 627 (1993).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Arguments in respondent's brief that petitioner waived issues raised in the petition for review by failing to raise those issues during the local proceedings constitute new matters that petitioners could not have anticipated in the petition for review, thus warranting the allowance of a reply brief. Glisan Street Associates v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 621 (1993).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Under OAR 661-10-039, it is appropriate to grant a motion to file a reply brief to allow petitioner to respond to issues raised in respondents' briefs concerning standing, jurisdiction, and attachment of documents not in the record. Sparrows v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 318 (1992).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. LUBA will not reject as untimely a motion to file a reply brief that is filed 17 days after the response briefs were filed, because having to review and prepare to respond to a seven page reply brief received four days before oral argument does not prejudice respondents' substantial rights. OAR 661-10-005. Sparrows v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 318 (1992).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Where the respondent's brief includes arguments that code sections relied upon in the petition for review are inapplicable, a motion to file a reply brief will be allowed. Murray v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 247 (1991).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. After the petition for review is filed, respondents may, in their response brief or in a motion to dismiss, identify disputed allegations of fact, and explain why under their version of the facts petitioners lack standing. Petitioners may then request permission to file a reply brief to respond to respondent's legal arguments, move for an evidentiary hearing to present facts establishing standing or do both. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 20 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Argument in respondent's brief that the remedy petitioners seek is unclear, or that petitioners failed to object to statutes, and citation in respondent's brief of cases which petitioners believe irrelevant are not new matters which warrant the filing of a reply brief, but rather are matters to which petitioners can adequately respond at oral argument. Dolan v. City of Tigard, 20 Or LUBA 411 (1991).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. A reply brief is unwarranted under OAR 661-10-039, if it simply embellishes arguments advanced in the petition for review. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 20 Or LUBA 246 (1990).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. OAR 661-10-039 requires petitioners to demonstrate a need for a reply brief. Although it is desirable to have a full explanation of the need for a reply brief in petitioner's motion to file a reply brief, LUBA will also consider oral argument in support of the motion in determining whether the need for a reply brief has been demonstrated. Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 189 (1990).

27.5.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Briefs – Reply. Excerpts of transcripts of the local government's proceedings below, which are submitted to LUBA for the first time as attachments to respondent's brief, are "new matters raised in the respondent's brief" to which petitioner may respond in a reply brief. OAR 661-10-039. Columbia Steel Castings v. City of Portland, 19 Or LUBA 338 (1990).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Although LUBA's rules do not explicitly recognize evaluating jurisdiction as a purpose for considering evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045, in an appeal of a local government approval of a utility public way use permit authorizing installation of telecommunication-related facilities, where the local government alleges that LUBA does not have jurisdiction because of the location of the facilities, LUBA will consider as evidence outside the record (1) a marked version of a portion of the local government's adopted zoning map showing the general location of the facilities and (2) a recorded plat including the subject property. In addition, where the petitioners argue that LUBA has jurisdiction because the challenged decision falls within the scope of the local government's zoning ordinance and telecommunications ordinance, LUBA will consider as evidence outside the record (1) details related to the dimensions and location of the facilities in determining whether a given local land use process is applicable to the facilities and (2) a screenshot related to the definition of small cell facilities in determining whether the facilities installed fall within the class of equipment subject to the zoning ordinance. Vaccher v. City of Eugene, 80 Or LUBA 10 (2019).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will decline to dismiss an appeal as moot based on extra-record evidence that the factual predicate for four of the assignments of error has been eliminated, where even if the evidence were properly before LUBA, the movant has not established that the changed factual predicate fully resolves the four assignments of error, or otherwise would render LUBA's review of no practical effect. McNichols v. City of Canby, 78 Or LUBA 1090 (2018).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will decline to exercise its discretion to grant petitioners an opportunity on remand from the Court of Appeals to offer additional evidence to establish standing to appeal a land use decision to LUBA under ORS 197.830(3), where petitioners had multiple opportunities in the initial appeal to offer the additional evidence, which was at all times within petitioners' possession, but failed to do so. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 75 Or LUBA 174 (2017).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Exercise of LUBA's discretion to allow petitioners an opportunity on remand from the Court of Appeals to offer additional evidence to establish standing to appeal to LUBA would be inconsistent with the legislative policy at ORS 197.805 that time is of the essence in reaching finality in land use matters, because granting the motion would entail a lengthy round of pleadings, discovery, depositions, and resolution of conflicting evidence that would significantly delay reaching finality in the appeal. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 75 Or LUBA 174 (2017).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Exercise of LUBA's discretion to allow petitioners an opportunity on remand from the Court of Appeals to offer additional evidence to establish standing to appeal to LUBA would be inconsistent with the legislative policy at ORS 197.805 that LUBA's decisions be made consistent with sound principles of judicial review, because it would depart from the general principle that LUBA's jurisdiction over the appeal must be established prior to LUBA's issuance of its final opinion resolving the merits of an appeal. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 75 Or LUBA 174 (2017).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA may consider documents outside the record, including copies of earlier land use decisions regarding the subject property, that are useful in resolving a jurisdictional challenge to the appeal of a land use compatibility statement (LUCS), even in the absence of a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045. Bishop v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 504 (2017).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence that seeks to provide citations to the record to support arguments on the merits set out in the petition for review, because the motion is similar to an addendum to the petition for review for which no permission to file has been sought or granted, where the petitioners do not demonstrate that their motion satisfies OAR 661-010-0045. Martin v. City of Central Point, 74 Or LUBA 312 (2016).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. A motion to consider extra-record evidence under ORS 197.835(2)(b) to establish the bias of a planning commissioner in favor of a permit application will be denied where the motion is submitted in an appeal of a city council decision regarding a related but different permit application. Friends of the Hood River Waterfront v. City of Hood River, 66 Or LUBA 474 (2012).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where a disputed reply brief, a motion to strike and a motion to take evidence all revolve around an issue that is beyond LUBA's scope of review and has no bearing on a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, LUBA will summarily deny the reply brief and motions. Treadmill Joint Venture v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 213 (2012).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where the local government concedes that ex parte contact occurred but there exists a disputed allegation of fact concerning the number of ex parte contacts that occurred, when they occurred and the substance of those contacts, LUBA will grant a motion to take evidence not in the record to assist in resolving that disputed factual allegation. Housing Authority of Jackson County v. City of Medford, 65 Or LUBA 295 (2012).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will deny as unnecessary a motion to take evidence to accept a supplemental record that includes a copy of the notice of adoption sent to DLCD, which is required to be included in the record pursuant to OAR 660-010-0025(1)(d). LUBA will accept the untimely filed supplemental record over the petitioner's objection, where the untimely submission does not prejudice any party's substantial rights. Conte v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 326 (2012).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. While LUBA has held that a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-045 is not necessary to consider affidavits or evidence outside the record for the limited purpose of establishing LUBA's jurisdiction over the challenged decision, a motion to take evidence is necessary to consider affidavits offered to establish whether LUBA's scope of review includes a particular issue. Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. OAR 661-010-0045(1) allows LUBA to consider evidence that is not in the record that is submitted by the local government in a LUBA appeal, "in the case of disputed factual allegations in the parties' briefs concerning unconstitutionality of the decision, standing, ex parte contacts, actions for the purpose of avoiding the requirements of ORS 215.427 or 227.178, or other procedural irregularities not shown in the record," if resolving those factual disputes could support reversal or remand of the decision. But OAR 661-010-0045(1) does not provide a way for a party to rebut factual conclusions adopted by the local government. Johnson v. Jefferson County, 56 Or LUBA 72 (2008).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA is not bound to accept as true factual assertions in petitioner's affidavit in the record. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 56 Or LUBA 240 (2008).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. A hearing to consider extra-record evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 is not necessary to resolve the parties' factual disputes surrounding a city's decision to adopt its final decision at a noon rather than its evening meeting, where a digital recording in the record establishes that parties were orally advised that final action might occur at the noon rather than the evening meeting on a specified date, and that oral notice was sufficient to establish that the city committed no procedural error in acting at its noon meeting. Burgess v. City of Corvallis, 55 Or LUBA 482 (2008).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where a motion to take evidence is filed regarding an outstanding record objection and the content of the local record, the motion will be denied as moot where the motion and pleadings provide sufficient information to determine the content of the record. Rickreall Community Water Assoc. v. Polk County, 52 Or LUBA 772 (2006).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will not consider an argument that an annexation is barred by a statute that was adopted and took effect after the annexation was approved, where LUBA would be required to consider extra-record evidence to do so, the local government objects to LUBA's consideration of that extra-record evidence and petitioner does not file a motion requesting an evidentiary hearing at LUBA. Leupold & Stevens, Inc. v. City of Beaverton, 51 Or LUBA 65 (2006).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where a city permit decision does not include findings addressing applicable criteria that may lead to a requirement for a geological study, remand is appropriate for the city to adopt the required findings. However, LUBA will not grant a motion that requests LUBA to go further and consider extra-record evidence concerning whether the geological study is necessary; that determination is for the city to make in the first instance. Jebousek v. City of Newport, 51 Or LUBA 93 (2006).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where a party seeks an evidentiary hearing to challenge whether an individual who submitted a letter on behalf of an organization in a local land use permit proceeding was in fact authorized to submit that letter on the organization's behalf, the moving party must provide more than speculation that the individual was not authorized to appear on behalf of the organization. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 51 Or LUBA 363 (2006).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where an individual who submits a letter in a local land use permit proceeding in which he represents that the letter is submitted "on behalf of" an organization, but the letter does not expressly state that the individual is "authorized" to make the written appearance for the organization, that failure and a party's speculation that such authorization is "implausible" are not sufficient reasons to authorize an evidentiary hearing to consider extra-record evidence regarding whether the individual was actually authorized to appear on behalf of the organization. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 51 Or LUBA 363 (2006).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. A petitioner who seeks to present extra-record evidence to LUBA to show that a permit denial was the product of bias or prejudgment, rather than the application of relevant approval standards, must make a substantial showing to establish that there is a reasonable basis to believe that the search for extra-record evidence will lead to evidence of such bias or prejudgment. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Central Point, 49 Or LUBA 472 (2005).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Although LUBA's preference and practice is to address motions under OAR 661-010-0045 after the parties have submitted briefs on the merits, where the parties have adequately briefed the legal issues, the factual disputes between the parties are relatively clear, and further briefing will not put the Board in a better position to resolve the motion, LUBA may resolve the motion without requiring the parties to file the petition for review and response brief. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 48 Or LUBA 657 (2005).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. When a party submits an affidavit in response to a jurisdictional challenge and the assertions in that affidavit are unchallenged, absent some other reason to question those assertions LUBA will accept them as true for purposes of resolving a jurisdictional issue. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 45 Or LUBA 758 (2003).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Although it is not essential that disputed factual allegations be disclosed in the parties' briefs in order to grant a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045, in the absence of the parties' briefs the Board will often lack the context and developed argument necessary to evaluate whether an evidentiary proceeding under OAR 661-010-0045 is warranted. Pynn v. City of West Linn, 42 Or LUBA 581 (2002).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will deny as premature a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 filed before the parties have submitted the petition for review and response brief, where the moving party fails to demonstrate the necessity of resolving the motion in the absence of the parties' briefs. Pynn v. City of West Linn, 42 Or LUBA 581 (2002).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. In demonstrating that a party was entitled to have the evidentiary phase of a local land use proceeding reopened under Gutoski v. Lane County, 155 Or App 369, 963 P2d 145 (1998), one of the things a party must show is that the party would submit specific evidence to respond directly to an unanticipated interpretation in the final written land use decision. However, this burden is met at LUBA by identifying the evidence; a party need not move for an evidentiary hearing at LUBA to actually present that evidence to LUBA. Arlington Heights Homeowners v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 560 (2001).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. When undisputed evidence in the record establishes that petitioner appeared below, and therefore establishes petitioner's standing before LUBA, the Board will not take evidence outside of the record for purposes of establishing standing before the Court of Appeals, because such evidence will not "affect the outcome" of LUBA's proceedings, within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0045(2). Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 41 Or LUBA 247 (2002).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to consider evidence not in the record where the dispute between the parties concerns the accuracy or validity of a map that is included in the record rather than whether that map is properly included in the record. Challenges to the accuracy or validity of the map must be made during the local proceedings. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 743 (2000).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to consider evidence that is not included in the record, where the moving party fails to demonstrate that any of the criteria for granting such a motion under OAR 661-010-0045(1) are met and the evidence the moving party seeks to have included does not render the appeal moot. Dept. of Transportation v. City of Eugene, 38 Or LUBA 814 (2000).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where the county's tape recording equipment failed during the receipt of relevant oral testimony, and where no one disputes the content of that testimony or that it was in fact given, LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record. In that circumstance LUBA will assume that all parties agree that uncontested testimony was given, and would have been disclosed by the tapes, if they were not defective. Hal's Construction, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 37 Or LUBA 1037 (2000).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where a party moves for an evidentiary hearing, LUBA concludes that the requirements for an evidentiary hearing at OAR 661-010-0045(2) are met and no party objects, LUBA will accept documents attached to the motion for evidentiary hearing in lieu of a hearing. Dornan v. Yamhill County, 34 Or LUBA 747 (1998).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. When the local government decision maker reviews allegations of procedural irregularities and finds, based on substantial evidence, that no such irregularities exist, LUBA is bound by the finding. Huntzicker v. Washington County, 29 Or LUBA 587 (1995).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Unless an evidentiary hearing is granted, LUBA's review is limited to the local record. Therefore, if a motion for evidentiary hearing is not filed, LUBA will not consider discussion in a party's brief or oral argument concerning matters not in the local record. Nehoda v. Coos County, 29 Or LUBA 251 (1995).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. In resolving objections to the record, LUBA determines only whether the items in question are properly part of the local government record. Parties who wish to submit evidence outside the local government record to LUBA under ORS 197.830(13)(b) must file a motion for evidentiary hearing pursuant to OAR 661-10-045(2). Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where petitioner had an opportunity during the local proceedings to object to the completeness of a hearings officer's disclosure of ex parte contacts, but failed to do so, petitioner's motion for an evidentiary hearing at LUBA to present evidence concerning those ex parte contacts will be denied. Jones v. Lane County, 27 Or LUBA 654 (1994).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where a party's argument is based solely on a document not in the local record, another party objects to LUBA's consideration of that document, and the party making the argument does not move for an evidentiary hearing pursuant to ORS 197.830(13)(b) or offer any other basis on which LUBA might consider the document, LUBA will reject the argument. Dorgan v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 64 (1994).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where petitioner withdraws its motion for evidentiary hearing, but respondents wish to have an evidentiary hearing, respondents must file their own motion for evidentiary hearing in accordance with OAR 661-10-045. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 25 Or LUBA 818 (1993).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. It is the practice at LUBA for a party that wishes LUBA to consider a document not in the local record, for one of the purposes listed in ORS 197.830(13)(b) or OAR 661-10-045(1), to attach that document to its brief and explain in its brief why LUBA should consider the document. If another party does not object to LUBA considering the document, the document becomes part of LUBA's record and is considered for the requested purpose. If an objection is made, the party offering the document may file a motion for evidentiary hearing under OAR 661-10-045. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 25 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where allegations of fact made in petitioner's briefs are critical to establishing LUBA's jurisdiction, respondents dispute those allegations, and petitioner neither provides citations to the record, affidavits or other evidence supporting the allegations nor files a motion for evidentiary hearing seeking to introduce evidence to support the allegations, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Sparrows v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 318 (1992).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where petitioner seeks to establish through an evidentiary hearing that all nonresidential uses allowed outright or conditionally under the existing zone are not economically feasible on the subject property, but has not sought approval of a plan and zone map amendment which would allow residential development of the subject property, petitioner's state constitution taking claim is not ripe for adjudication and petitioner's motion for evidentiary hearing will be denied. Dority v. Clackamas County, 23 Or LUBA 384 (1992).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. To enable LUBA to grant a request for an evidentiary hearing, petitioners must establish, by affidavit or otherwise, that the facts to be presented at the evidentiary hearing will affect the outcome of the appeal. Barber v. Marion County, 23 Or LUBA 71 (1992).

27.6.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Generally. Where petitioners assign as error in their petition for review unconstitutionality and procedural irregularities not shown in the record and attach to their motion for evidentiary hearing a document they seek to introduce into the LUBA record in support of their assignment of error, and the other parties do not dispute the identity of this document, LUBA may grant the motion for evidentiary hearing for the limited purpose of including in its record the document attached to petitioners' motion. Torgeson v. City of Canby, 19 Or LUBA 511 (1990).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take as evidence not in the record a staff report establishing that the decision-maker improperly relied on an alleged misstatement by staff to make a particular finding where the petitioners do not allege that they were prevented from submitting contrary evidence during the proceedings that led to the challenged decision, where the petitioners do not point to any applicable procedure that staff allegedly violated in making the alleged misstatement, and where the petitioners do not allege that the decision-maker committed a procedural error in relying upon staff representations. Dressel v. City of Tigard, 81 Or LUBA 1001 (2020).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Although LUBA's rules do not explicitly recognize evaluating jurisdiction as a purpose for considering evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045, in an appeal of a local government approval of a utility public way use permit authorizing installation of telecommunication-related facilities, where the local government alleges that LUBA does not have jurisdiction because of the location of the facilities, LUBA will consider as evidence outside the record (1) a marked version of a portion of the local government's adopted zoning map showing the general location of the facilities and (2) a recorded plat including the subject property. In addition, where the petitioners argue that LUBA has jurisdiction because the challenged decision falls within the scope of the local government's zoning ordinance and telecommunications ordinance, LUBA will consider as evidence outside the record (1) details related to the dimensions and location of the facilities in determining whether a given local land use process is applicable to the facilities and (2) a screenshot related to the definition of small cell facilities in determining whether the facilities installed fall within the class of equipment subject to the zoning ordinance. Vaccher v. City of Eugene, 80 Or LUBA 10 (2019).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. For purposes of taking evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045, a petitioner cannot establish that a person who is not a member of the decision-making body engaged in undisclosed ex parte contacts in violation of ORS 227.180(3), and there can be no legally significant or reversible bias on the part of such a person. Carroll v. City of Malin, 80 Or LUBA 1001 (2019).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. For purposes of taking evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045, where a local government denies an application to rezone property, mere allegations that (1) a decision-maker "habitually engaged in ex parte contacts" that they did not then disclose in compliance with ORS 227.180(3), (2) the decision-maker previously moved to rezone a neighboring property, (3) the local government rezoned the neighboring property "by using procedures and requirements that paled in comparison" to those used in evaluating the subject application, and (4) the decision-maker voted against the subject application are insufficient to establish that the decision-maker may have engaged in ex parte contacts or been motivated by improper biased. Carroll v. City of Malin, 80 Or LUBA 1001 (2019).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. For purposes of taking evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045, allegations that a decision-maker is related to (1) individuals who own property close to the subject property and who oppose the application and (2) the city recorder are insufficient to establish that the decision-maker may have engaged in ex parte contacts or that the decision-maker's vote denying the application may have been motivated by improper bias. Carroll v. City of Malin, 80 Or LUBA 1001 (2019).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Pursuant to ORS 197.835(2), LUBA may make its own factual findings as to whether an appeal was timely filed, which is a jurisdictional question. Accordingly, LUBA may consider evidence outside the record for the limited purpose of resolving disputes regarding whether an appeal was timely filed, even in the absence of a motion to take evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 151 (2019).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will consider an affidavit from a party's attorney regarding dates and certain actions that occurred related to notice of the local government's decision at issue in the appeal for the limited purpose of resolving disputes regarding LUBA's jurisdiction. PGE v. City of West Linn, 79 Or LUBA 213 (2019).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A party asserting a procedural error must demonstrate that the procedural error was objected to during the proceedings below, if there was an opportunity to lodge an objection. Accordingly, where a dispute may exist regarding whether petitioners objected to the county's process during the proceedings below, LUBA will allow a motion to take evidence outside the record to consider a document for the limited purpose of allowing petitioners to cite to that document to establish, if the point is disputed in a response brief, that petitioners attempted to lodge objections to the county's process. Eng v. Wallowa County, 79 Or LUBA 1024 (2019).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Nothing in LUBA's rules requires that returned mail envelopes be included in the record. Returned mail documentation does not fall within the description of "[n]otices of * * * adoption of a final decision * * * mailed during the course of the land use proceeding" at OAR 661-010-0025(1)(d). Conte v. City of Eugene, 78 Or LUBA 1001 (2018).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Petitioner failed to establish a basis for LUBA to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 where the city responded to petitioner's public records request for a copy of draft design guidelines by explaining that the city's records do not include a copy of the draft guidelines and that the city never adopted the draft guidelines as land use regulations. LUBA will deny petitioner's motion to take evidence where there is no disputed factual allegation in the parties' briefs concerning "procedural irregularities not shown in the record" and petitioner's motion is not directed at evidence of "procedural irregularities," but, instead, is an attempt to rebut the city's response and findings regarding the draft guidelines. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or 1007 (2018).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. In a dispute over attorney fees charged to petitioner, where the city attempts to introduce evidence explaining the accounting for the actual attorney fees charged, asserting that the new evidence relates to disputed facts concerning "other procedural irregularities not shown in the record" OAR 661-010-0045(1), but does not assert that the city's prior procedures constitute "procedural irregularities not shown in the record and which, if proved, would warrant reversal or remand of the decision," or otherwise explain on what grounds the Board can consider new evidence, LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record as the evidence the city seeks to introduce does not fall within the grounds to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or LUBA 1084 (2018).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The movant for a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 fails to demonstrate that the motion is warranted based on "procedural irregularities not shown in the record" where the movant fails to identify any procedure that was violated with respect to the evidence at issue. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 547 (2018).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. OAR 661-010-0045(1) provides that LUBA may take evidence to resolve disputes regarding the content of the record. Under OAR 661-010-0045(1), LUBA will grant a motion to take evidence to consider evidence regarding the submission of testimony to the decision-maker, where there is an unresolved dispute regarding whether the decision-maker rejected the proffered testimony. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 75 Or LUBA 534 (2017).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where the petitioners file a motion to take evidence for LUBA to consider affidavits and other documents to establish that petitioners filed a timely appeal and are adversely affected, along with a reply brief addressing the same jurisdictional issues, petitioners have sufficiently "explain[ed] with particularity" the facts petitioners seek to establish for purposes of OAR 661-010-0045(2)(a). Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 74 Or LUBA 38 (2016).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence that seeks to provide citations to the record to support arguments on the merits set out in the petition for review, because the motion is similar to an addendum to the petition for review for which no permission to file has been sought or granted, where the petitioners do not demonstrate that their motion satisfies OAR 661-010-0045. Martin v. City of Central Point, 74 Or LUBA 312 (2016).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. While LUBA's rule allowing a motion to take evidence not in the record can be invoked to allow LUBA to consider documents outside the record in order to resolve disputes over the content of the record, such a motion is not a basis to strike a land sale contract that is indisputably part of the record on the grounds that the contract is incomplete or is not evidence that the decision maker should have relied upon. Grimstad v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 610 (2016).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Accepting into the local evidentiary record of a land sale contract that is arguably incomplete or suffers from defects is not a "procedural irregularity not shown in the record" that would warrant a motion to take evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045. Grimstad v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 610 (2016).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045(1) where there is "no disputed factual allegation not shown in the record" where the local government and all parties agree the movant submitted an email to the planning director, that email was rejected by the planning commission, and that action is shown in the record. Trautman v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 209 (2016).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence outside the record, intended to establish that a nonconforming compost facility was operating on the property in 1984 when the property was zoned EFU, where the basis for the motion to take evidence is an argument that the hearings officer committed a "procedural irregularity" not shown in the record in finding that the date the EFU zone was applied is the relevant date for determining whether the nonconforming use was in existence. If the hearings officer erred in determining the relevant date that contrary zoning was applied, that error might provide a basis for remand, but would not constitute a "procedural irregularity" not shown in the record that would allow the movant to submit new evidence to LUBA intended to establish that the use existed in 1984. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 72 Or LUBA 443 (2015).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence to consider an affidavit regarding whether building plans were "placed before" the final decision-maker and thus are part of the local record, where there is no factual dispute that the building plans were not placed before the final decisionmaker, and whether the plans belong in the record depends on a legal argument that the plans were included in the record by operation of law. A motion to take evidence is warranted only where there are disputed factual allegations; a dispute over the legal consequences of undisputed facts is not a basis for LUBA to consider extra-record evidence. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An affidavit indicating that one week after issuing the final decision a decision maker knew that the applicant had agreed to the proposed conditions is an insufficient showing that an ex parte contact might have occurred during the hearing to warrant depositions under OAR 661-010-0045, where there is no indication when or how the decision maker acquired that knowledge. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Even assuming that a staff member conveyed to a decision maker during the proceedings below that the applicant had agreed to proposed conditions, that communication is not the kind of communication that requires the decision maker to disclose and offer other parties the opportunity to rebut. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. To constitute an ex parte communication that obligates a local government to provide an opportunity for rebuttal, the content of the communication must include something concerning the land use decision at issue that is capable of rebuttal. Where the only content of the alleged communication is that the applicant has agreed to city-proposed conditions, there is simply nothing to rebut or respond to. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion under OAR 661-010-0045 to depose unnamed officials of a regional transit agency, where the depositions are for the purpose of demonstrating that the challenged land use decision is inconsistent with a previous land use decision adopted by the regional transit agency, and that issue has no bearing on whether the land use standards that the city applied or should have applied are "land use standards that do not require interpretation or the exercise of policy or legal judgment" within the ORS 197.015(10)(b)(A) exception to LUBA's jurisdiction. Lazarus v. City of Milwaukie, 67 Or LUBA 475 (2013).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence of a city's post-adoption actions to enforce a sign ordinance on appeal, where the petitioner's challenge to the sign ordinance is necessarily a facial challenge, and the petitioner fails to demonstrate that evidence of the city's post-adoption enforcement actions would be relevant or determinative of any facial challenge. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 66 Or LUBA 460 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence that a city has applied its sign ordinance by its terms to require that temporary signs be constructed in a "colonial post style," where the petitioner advances a facial challenge to the ordinance itself, and evidence that the city has applied the ordinance by its terms could add nothing to any facial constitutional challenge to the ordinance. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 66 Or LUBA 460 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence that a city has applied its sign ordinance in an unequal or discriminatory fashion, where the petitioner fails to demonstrate that the city's actual post-hoc pattern of enforcement is probative to a facial challenge to the sign ordinance itself. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 66 Or LUBA 460 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A motion to consider extra-record evidence under ORS 197.835(2)(b) to establish the bias of a planning commissioner in favor of a permit application will be denied where the motion is submitted in an appeal of a city council decision regarding a related but different permit application. Friends of the Hood River Waterfront v. City of Hood River, 66 Or LUBA 474 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A petitioner's motion for an evidentiary hearing to establish bias on the part of a planning commissioner will be denied where (1) the decision on review is a city council decision that followed a de novo review of a planning commission decision, (2) the only claim of impropriety on the part of the planning commission that might have tainted the record on review was a planning commission majority vote to refuse to consider evidence offered by petitioner, and (3) the allegedly biased planning commissioner voted with the planning commission minority to accept the evidence offered by petitioner. Friends of the Hood River Waterfront v. City of Hood River, 66 Or LUBA 474 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. OAR 661-010-0045(1) limits LUBA's consideration of extra-record evidence to circumstances where there are "disputed factual allegations" in the parties briefs concerning, among other things, standing. Where there is no dispute in the parties' briefs regarding petitioner's standing to appeal to LUBA, LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence outside the record to consider evidence of a lease that the petitioner asserts may be necessary to establish injury and hence constitutional standing under federal law. Cosner v. Umatilla County, 65 Or LUBA 9 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where the local government concedes that ex parte contact occurred but there exists a disputed allegation of fact concerning the number of ex parte contacts that occurred, when they occurred and the substance of those contacts, LUBA will grant a motion to take evidence not in the record to assist in resolving that disputed factual allegation. Housing Authority of Jackson County v. City of Medford, 65 Or LUBA 295 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence to consider e-mails between the petitioner and the local government to establish that the local government was aware following the proceedings below that it had failed to provide timely notice of hearing and notice of the decision to DLCD, where there is no factual dispute that the local government did not provide the notice of hearing or that the local government failed to provide timely notice of the decision, only a legal dispute as to whether such notices were required and if so the consequences of failure to provide them. Conte v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 326 (2012).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to consider petitioner's affidavit regarding how his testimony to the planning commission would have been different if he had not been misinformed regarding the time limits, where the decision before LUBA is the city council decision conducted after an evidentiary hearing, and petitioner does not explain why any error committed by the planning commission was not cured by the proceedings before the city council. Buel-McIntire v. City of Yachats, 63 Or LUBA 452 (2011).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Bias on the part of the city council, if proven, may warrant reversal or remand, and is a proper subject for a motion to take evidence. However, to demonstrate that the grounds to take evidence not in the record to demonstrate bias are met, it is not enough to allege that a planning commissioner was biased in some way. Smith v. City of Shady Cove, 63 Or LUBA 543 (2011).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. In order to succeed in a motion to take evidence, the motion must include substantial allegations that the decision maker was biased or that there is a reasonable basis to believe the decision maker was biased. Smith v. City of Shady Cove, 63 Or LUBA 543 (2011).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where a city imposes a permit appeal fee that is equal to the original permit application fee, and under the city code the appeal fee is treated as a deposit and the city thereafter refunds any portion of the appeal fee that exceeds the actual cost of the permit appeal, LUBA will deny a motion to allow depositions of city planning staff to establish the estimated actual cost of the permit appeal. Under ORS 227.180(1), which allows cities to impose an appeal fee that does not exceed the actual cost of the appeal, the dispositive legal issue is whether the local government can deny a local appeal that is not accompanied by the requisite deposit, and the actual cost of the local appeal is legally irrelevant. Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Brookings, 63 Or LUBA 586 (2011).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. While LUBA has held that a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-045 is not necessary to consider affidavits or evidence outside the record for the limited purpose of establishing LUBA's jurisdiction over the challenged decision, a motion to take evidence is necessary to consider affidavits offered to establish whether LUBA's scope of review includes a particular issue. Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to consider extra-record evidence of the minutes of an urban renewal agency meeting at which the agency's board of directors, made up of the city council members, considered amendments to a sale agreement between the urban renewal agency and the applicant for a land use application then pending before the city planning commission, where the petitioner fails to demonstrate that the minutes include anything that constitutes evidence of bias or an ex parte communication between the applicant and city council members concerning the land use application. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 61 Or LUBA 520 (2010).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where the petitioner requests that LUBA consider extra-record evidence in the form of a sign-up sheet that includes the city's rules for hearings, to support allegations that the city failed to abide by those rules, LUBA will take official notice of the city rules because they were adopted by resolution. However, LUBA will deny the motion with respect to extra-record copies of the sign-up sheet that were signed by participants in the proceeding below, where the petitioner fails to demonstrate how LUBA's consideration of the signed sheets would affect the outcome of the review proceeding. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 61 Or LUBA 520 (2010).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to consider extra-record evidence in the form of a police report describing an incident between the city economic development manager and one of the petitioners, where petitioners do not explain how the alleged conduct of the city manager, even if true, would provide a basis to reverse or remand the city council decision on appeal. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 61 Or LUBA 520 (2010).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. OAR 661-010-0045(1) allows LUBA to consider evidence that is not in the record that is submitted by the local government in a LUBA appeal, "in the case of disputed factual allegations in the parties' briefs concerning unconstitutionality of the decision, standing, ex parte contacts, actions for the purpose of avoiding the requirements of ORS 215.427 or 227.178, or other procedural irregularities not shown in the record," if resolving those factual disputes could support reversal or remand of the decision. But OAR 661-010-0045(1) does not provide a way for a party to rebut factual conclusions adopted by the local government. Johnson v. Jefferson County, 56 Or LUBA 72 (2008).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA may consider documents that are not in the record, even without a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045, if a party offers such documents for the limited purpose of determining whether LUBA has jurisdiction over the challenged decision. Murray v. Multnomah County, 56 Or LUBA 370 (2008).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A hearing to consider extra-record evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 is not necessary to resolve the parties' factual disputes surrounding a city's decision to adopt its final decision at a noon rather than its evening meeting, where a digital recording in the record establishes that parties were orally advised that final action might occur at the noon rather than the evening meeting on a specified date, and that oral notice was sufficient to establish that the city committed no procedural error in acting at its noon meeting. Burgess v. City of Corvallis, 55 Or LUBA 482 (2008).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. It is unusual and unnecessary to use OAR 661-010-0045 to establish that certain documents do not exist. The more straightforward course is to point out that the documents are not in the record, argue that the decision must be supported by those documents in the record, and assign error accordingly. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 55 Or LUBA 688 (2007).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 to establish that certain documents do not exist, where the respondent concedes the documents do not exist and thus there no disputed factual allegation between the parties. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 55 Or LUBA 688 (2007).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A respondent's motion to consider a transcript of a phone message left by petitioner's attorney as extra-record evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 will be denied, where petitioner disputes the legal significance of that message but does not dispute the fact that the message was left or the substance of that message. Siporen v. City of Medford, 54 Or LUBA 792 (2007).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A petitioner who seeks to present extra-record evidence to LUBA to show that a permit denial was the product of bias or prejudgment, rather than the application of relevant approval standards, must make a substantial showing to establish that there is a reasonable basis to believe that the search for extra-record evidence will lead to evidence of such bias or prejudgment. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Central Point, 49 Or LUBA 472 (2005).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA may consider extra-record evidence where there are disputed allegations regarding whether a city took action for the purpose of avoiding the ORS 227.178 requirement that the city take final action on certain permit applications within 120 days. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Central Point, 49 Or LUBA 697 (2005).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An ambiguous statement that could be understood to refer to ex parte contacts, but could also be understood to refer to contacts that were not ex parte contacts might be sufficient to warrant an evidentiary hearing to clarify the meaning of the reference, but is not sufficient to support a conclusion that there were improper undisclosed ex parte contacts. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 47 Or LUBA 331 (2004).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where relevant local legislative history was not included in the local record of a land use decision, OAR 661-010-0045(1) does not authorize LUBA to allow an evidentiary hearing so that a city may provide that legislative history to LUBA to support of its legal interpretive arguments. Jaqua v. City of Springfield, 46 Or LUBA 134 (2004).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A dispute between the parties over the scope and proper interpretation of the term "image" in a city sign code does not warrant consideration of extra-record evidence, where there are no disputed factual allegations, and the fact petitioner wishes to establish—that city staff has interpreted the term differently in the past—has no bearing on the issues on appeal. Cotter v. City of Portland, 46 Or LUBA 612 (2004).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA may consider evidence that is not included in the local government record that is filed with LUBA in an appeal of a land use decision, where consideration of that evidence is necessary to resolve "procedural irregularities not shown in the record * * * which, if proved, would warrant reversal or remand of the decision." OAR 661-010-0045(1). However, where the only identifiable potential procedural irregularities can be resolved without the extra-record evidence, a motion to consider that extra-record evidence will be denied. Bradley v. Washington County, 46 Or LUBA 805 (2004).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Petitioners fail to allege facts that would support LUBA's consideration of evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045, where petitioners merely allege that the disputed evidence was included in a staff file that ante-dated the proceedings that led to the challenged decision, was relied upon by petitioners in making presentations to the local decision makers, and petitioners would have requested that the evidence be submitted into the local record if they were aware that it was not already included in the record. Citizens Protection Neighborhoods v. City of Salem, 46 Or LUBA 823 (2004).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. For purposes of establishing standing to appeal to LUBA under ORS 197.830(3), petitioners who reside within sight of a disputed sign are presumptively adversely affected. Exactly how the sign affects petitioners and how many times petitioners have seen it are irrelevant considerations under that presumption, and depositions to resolve those matters are not warranted. Frymark v. Tillamook County, 45 Or LUBA 685 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Depositions of two petitioners to inquire into their allegations that they are adversely affected by the challenged decision for purposes of ORS 197.830(3) are not warranted, where the movant fails (1) to specifically controvert those allegations, and (2) to establish that depositions of two petitioners are likely to affect the outcome of LUBA's review proceeding. Frymark v. Tillamook County, 45 Or LUBA 685 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Mere speculation that some petitioners may have obtained a copy of the challenged decision more than 21 days prior to filing the notice of intent to appeal, and thus the appeal is untimely under ORS 197.830(3), is insufficient to warrant depositions to inquire into that circumstance. Frymark v. Tillamook County, 45 Or LUBA 685 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where it is not clear whether the parties dispute whether a county planning director rejected an attempted local appeal or whether the local appellants voluntarily retrieved their appeal document, LUBA will not authorize an evidentiary hearing to consider that question. Burke v. Crook County, 45 Or LUBA 739 (2003)

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where the record includes no reasonable basis for a local government to assume that two unsigned pages attached to a local appellant's local appeal were not submitted as part of his local appeal, an evidentiary hearing is not warranted to resolve the parties' factual dispute concerning whether the local appellant expressly told the county that the attached pages were part of his local appeal. Burke v. Crook County, 45 Or LUBA 739 (2003)

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA may not consider a written statement that is attached to a petition for review to provide information that is not reflected in the record about what occurred during a local land use proceeding, where petitioner fails to demonstrate that one or more of the grounds for considering extra-record evidence under OAR 661-010-0045(1) applies. OCAPA v. City of Mosier, 44 Or LUBA 452 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will not order a city to produce extra-record evidence of contacts between the city council and its legal counsel during a rezoning proceeding, pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045, to establish that the attorney's actions violate a party's right to due process, where (1) the party's due process argument is based on an allegation that the attorney acted as both legal advisor to the decision maker and as an advocate for the rezoning application, and (2) the city attorney argues that he never served as an advocate for the rezoning application and petitioner does not directly dispute the attorney's argument. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 44 Or LUBA 805 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary proceeding before LUBA is not a vehicle to belatedly introduce evidence into the record that could have been included in the proponent's evidentiary presentation below. Meredith v. Lincoln County, 44 Or LUBA 821 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary proceeding before LUBA is not warranted to consider evidence that the petitioner has installed "light emitting diodes" on an existing sign in order to engage in constitutionally protected speech, where the question of whether petitioner's installation is constitutionally protected speech is a legal conclusion, not an assertion of fact. Meredith v. Lincoln County, 44 Or LUBA 821 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA may consider extra-record evidence if the evidence may demonstrate that the local government decision warrants reversal or remand because of one or more of the bases listed in OAR 661-010-0045(1), and there is sufficient reason why the evidence was not submitted during the local proceedings. Oregon Child Devel. Coalition v. City of Madras, 43 Or LUBA 567 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where evidence relating to an approved application for a Head Start program might lend support to petitioners' allegation that denial of their subsequent application for a migrant worker Head Start program was based on improper discrimination, LUBA will grant a motion to take evidence not in the record to compare the two applications. Oregon Child Devel. Coalition v. City of Madras, 43 Or LUBA 567 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Newspaper articles reflecting community members' bias against an application for a migrant worker Head Start program are not properly attributable to the decision makers, and LUBA will deny a motion to consider the newspaper articles in an appeal of the denial of the Head Start application. Oregon Child Devel. Coalition v. City of Madras, 43 Or LUBA 567 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A proposed city comprehensive plan amendment that could have the effect of preventing the establishment of a Head Start program in the proposed amendment area does not demonstrate that the city's denial of an earlier, unrelated application for a migrant worker Head Start program in that area was based on racial prejudice or discrimination, and LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence related to the comprehensive plan amendment in an appeal of the denial of the Head Start application. Oregon Child Devel. Coalition v. City of Madras, 43 Or LUBA 567 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The fact that an application for a migrant worker Head Start program was hotly debated at the local level does not demonstrate that the decision makers engaged in undisclosed ex parte contacts, and LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence relating to the local debate in an appeal of the denial of the Head Start application. Oregon Child Devel. Coalition v. City of Madras, 43 Or LUBA 567 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The fact that a city approved billboards 20 years ago under a very different regulatory scheme than the current one has little bearing on whether the city violated petitioner's state and federal constitutional rights in denying its application for a billboard under current regulations. Absent a showing of similarity between the old and new regulatory schemes, evidence of prior approvals does not demonstrate that a city acted arbitrarily or extended privileges to others that were denied to petitioners, and consideration of extra-record evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 is not warranted. West Coast Media v. City of Gladstone, 43 Or LUBA 659 (2003).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045 where the factual allegations asserted in the motion are not in dispute. Under such circumstances it is more appropriate for the party to assert its allegations in its brief and file a motion to take evidence not in the record if another party disputes those allegations. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record based on an allegation that the petition for review will allege constitutional error and that LUBA must have the proffered extra-record evidence before it in order to resolve such an assignment of error, where the theory of constitutional error as shown in the motion is conclusory and undeveloped and the facts established by the proffered evidence are not in dispute. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. It is not necessary for LUBA to grant a motion to consider evidence that is not in the record to recognize a fact that is undisputed and is already reflected in the record. Hawman v. Umatilla County, 42 Or LUBA 223 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A motion to consider an affidavit regarding an individual's subjective understanding of a procedure will be denied, where the affidavit is not included in the record and is unnecessary to resolve the legal question presented. Hawman v. Umatilla County, 42 Or LUBA 223 (2002).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record to consider the affidavits of three county commissioners explaining that they are biased against the applicant and cannot impartially hear a local appeal involving the applicant, where the commissioners' declaration of bias is stated in the challenged decision, the assignment of error directed at the commissioners' bias presents a legal question not dependent on the facts stated in the affidavits, and the proponent fails to demonstrate to LUBA that the affidavits are necessary to resolve that assignment of error. Hiebenthal v. Polk County, 41 Or LUBA 573 (2001).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. In demonstrating that a party was entitled to have the evidentiary phase of a local land use proceeding reopened under Gutoski v. Lane County, 155 Or App 369, 963 P2d 145 (1998), one of the things a party must show is that the party would submit specific evidence to respond directly to an unanticipated interpretation in the final written land use decision. However, this burden is met at LUBA by identifying the evidence; a party need not move for an evidentiary hearing at LUBA to actually present that evidence to LUBA. Arlington Heights Homeowners v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 560 (2001).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Motions to take evidence not in the record regarding prejudgment or bias are treated the same as those alleging ex parte contacts and must include substantial allegations that the decision maker was biased, or that there is a reasonable basis to believe that the decision maker was biased. Space Age Fuels, Inc. v. City of Sherwood, 40 Or LUBA 577 (2001).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An allegation that a city councilor told a city planning commissioner that he "did not want any new service stations" in the city is not sufficient to establish a reasonable basis to believe that the city councilor was biased, and a motion to take evidence not in the record will be denied. Space Age Fuels, Inc. v. City of Sherwood, 40 Or LUBA 577 (2001).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will deny a motion to consider evidence not in the record where the dispute between the parties concerns the accuracy or validity of a map that is included in the record rather than whether that map is properly included in the record. Challenges to the accuracy or validity of the map must be made during the local proceedings. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 743 (2000).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The Board will accept evidence not included in the record where that evidence is necessary to support a claim of bias in a "clear and unmistakable manner" so as to warrant reversal or remand of the local government's decision pursuant to ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B). Halvorson Mason Corp. v. City of Depoe Bay, 39 Or LUBA 702 (2001).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A petitioner moving to present evidence of ex parte contacts or bias must offer some substantial reason to believe that evidence of such ex parte contacts or bias can be established and that such ex parte contacts or bias would lead to reversal or remand. This burden is not carried where petitioner simply speculates that the decision maker's and a local opponent's membership in an animal rights organization may have led to improper ex parte contacts or bias during local proceedings on petitioner's dog kennel. Tri-River Investment Co. v. Clatsop County, 36 Or LUBA 743 (1999).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where a local decision maker discloses during a local proceeding that one of the parties is her veterinarian and serves on an animal rights organization with her, petitioner's failure to explore concerns about ex parte contacts with that party or possible bias precludes an evidentiary hearing at LUBA to explore such concerns. Tri-River Investment Co. v. Clatsop County, 36 Or LUBA 743 (1999).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A motion for evidentiary hearing to present evidence of a development's violation of a master sewer plan will be denied where such evidence has no bearing on any of the assignments of error. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 810 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An alleged lack of candor by the city and a developer concerning negotiations to sell a proposed park property for a school provides no basis for an evidentiary hearing under OAR 661-010-0025 where, even if the alleged lack of candor were true, it would have no bearing on the legal issues raised in the petition for review. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 810 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing is not warranted to establish that the county orally advised petitioner that the county had approved the challenged application more than 21 days before petitioner filed the notice of intent to appeal, when the relevant issue under ORS 197.830(3)(a) is when the petitioner received actual written notice of the decision. Bowlin v. Grant County, 35 Or LUBA 776 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Generally, only a local government can commit procedural error within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0045(1). Petitioner's failure to raise an issue below is not a "procedural error" warranting an evidentiary hearing. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 35 Or LUBA 759 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary proceeding under OAR 661-010-0045 is not a vehicle for respondents to provide post hoc support for land use decisions or address legal challenges to those decisions on appeal. D.S. Parklane Development, Inc. v. Metro, 35 Or LUBA 759 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing is not warranted where the letter to be considered would only "substantiate information" that is already in the record. Abadi v. Washington County, 35 Or LUBA 729 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The "procedural irregularities" not shown in the local record that may warrant an evidentiary hearing at LUBA can only be committed by the local government that has procedural responsibilities for the land use proceedings. An individual participant cannot commit such "procedural irregularities." ODOT v. Coos County, 34 Or LUBA 805 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing is not warranted where adding more recollections concerning the terms of a city council's motion would not add to the conflicting recollections already included in the record and such additional recollections would not be more persuasive evidence of the terms of the motion than the actual conduct of the city council after the vote on the motion. ODOT v. City of Mosier, 34 Or LUBA 797 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where petitioner submits testimony that minutes of the local proceedings in the record have been altered, the requirements of OAR 661-010-0045 have been met for LUBA to grant an evidentiary hearing. ODOT v. City of Mosier, 34 Or LUBA 770 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing to resolve "disputes regarding attorney fees" pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1) is not warranted where the motion for an evidentiary hearing is filed before LUBA has entered its final opinion. Ackerley Outdoor Advertising v. City of Portland, 34 Or LUBA 736 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The predicate to LUBA's authority to conduct an evidentiary hearing under ORS 197.835(2)(b) and OAR 661-010-0045(1) is allegations of certain conduct not shown in the record. LUBA has no authority to conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine which of two competing versions of facts in the record is accurate. Ackerley Outdoor Advertising v. City of Portland, 34 Or LUBA 736 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Communication between a local governing body or its staff and its insurance carrier are not ex parte contacts requiring disclosure under ORS 227.180(3). Marshall v. City of Yachats, 34 Or LUBA 724 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Allegations that the applicant committed fraud and forgery do not provide a basis for an evidentiary hearing under OAR 661-010-0045(1) as a "procedural irregularity" not shown in the record. Only the local government can commit a procedural irregularity within the meaning of OAR 661-010-0045(1). Marshall v. City of Yachats, 34 Or LUBA 724 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will consider supplemental affidavits, submitted after oral argument in support of petitioners' standing, where the parties' arguments did not focus on the theory of standing supported by the affidavits and the facts asserted in the affidavits are not disputed. In that circumstance, an evidentiary hearing is not required for LUBA to consider the affidavits. Wilbur Residents v. Douglas County, 34 Or LUBA 634 (1998).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Presenting evidence that petitioner knew a final hearing was scheduled for a certain date would not establish that a petitioner knew that a final decision was actually adopted on that date. Casey Jones v. City of Lowell, 33 Or LUBA 845 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Evidentiary hearings provided for by ORS 197.835(2) do not provide a mechnism to add to the local record facts that could have been, but were not, submitted during the course of the local proceeding. St. Johns Neighborhood Assn v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 836 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. ORS 197.763(1) requires the proponent of an evidentiary hearing to demonstrate that the reason facts are missing from the record is not due to the proponent's failure to submit information sufficient to afford the local governing body the opportunity to respond. St. Johns Neighborhood Assn v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 836 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where petitioner requests an evidentiary hearing but does not attempt to show that it is adversely affected or aggrieved by the operation of the proposed facility approved by the challenged decision, LUBA can conclude that the facts to be presented would not affect the outcome of the appeal and therefore do not merit an evidentiary hearing. Wilbur Residents v. Douglas County, 33 Or LUBA 412 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Even if county staff consulted certain files prior to issuance of a contested grading permit, that would not make those files part of the local record. Therefore, petitioner's allegations concerning such consultation provide no basis for an evidentiary hearing to establish that those files are part of the grading permit record on appeal. Ceniga v. Clackamas County, 33 Or LUBA 261 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. It is premature, before the record is settled and the petition for review is filed, to take depositions or to hold an evidentiary hearing in order to obtain information that can be used to challenge petitioners' standing. Newton Creek Citizens Comm. v. City of Roseburg, 32 Or LUBA 496 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Because OAR 661-10-045(1) limits "disputes regarding the content of the record" to whether certain items were properly included in or excluded from the record, an evidentiary hearing is not the proper means to establish the possible significance of the items, which depends on the arguments made in the parties' briefs. Village Properties, L.P. v. City of Oregon City, 32 Or LUBA 491 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing may be requested pursuant to OAR 661-10-045 when evidence outside the record must be considered to determine what should be included in the record, but an evidentiary hearing cannot be used to add evidence to the record regarding the substantive merits of a case. Laurance v. Douglas County, 32 Or LUBA 489 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The deliberate use by a local government of false affidavits of service, if not shown in the record, would be a "procedural irregularity," as that term is used in ORS 197.835(2)(b) and OAR 661-10-045(1), and therefore evidence outside the record showing such deliberate use could justify an evidentiary hearing. However, one wrongly addressed envelope does not cast sufficient doubt on the accuracy of the county's affidavit of service to warrant reversal or remand. Palmer v. Lane County, 32 Or LUBA 484 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Unless petitioners allege facts which are disputed by some other party and which, if true, would warrant reversal or remand by demonstrating that the challenged decision is unconstitutional or that the proceedings below were flawed by some procedural irregularity, LUBA is not permitted to conduct an evidentiary hearing, even if doing so might improve our understanding of the case. Palmer v. Lane County, 32 Or LUBA 484 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Petitioners may not use an evidentiary hearing as a vehicle to expand their presentation of evidence and testimony below. Palmer v. Lane County, 32 Or LUBA 484 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A county commissioner's unexplained reference to a "gap," which might refer to an alleged gap in ownership that could invalidate an access easement to the subject property, is insufficient to create an inference of procedural irregularity sufficient to justify an evidentiary hearing. Palmer v. Lane County, 32 Or LUBA 484 (1997).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Although documents specifically rejected by a local government during its proceedings are not part of the local government record, the erroneous rejection of documents may provide a basis for reversal or remand. A party that wishes to challenge in its brief the propriety of the decision to exclude particular documents may request an evidentiary hearing before filing its brief. Village Properties, L.P. v. City of Oregon City, 32 Or LUBA 475 (1996).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. To establish ex parte contacts not shown by the record, a party must request an evidentiary hearing. Fraley v. Deschutes County, 32 Or LUBA 27 (1996).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A single, unexplained reference to an earlier use in a nonconforming use determination hearing is not a reasonable basis for a belief that an undisclosed ex parte contact took place and would not justify granting a motion for an evidentiary hearing. Fraley v. Deschutes County, 32 Or LUBA 27 (1996).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A motion for evidentiary hearing will be denied where petitioners do not make the requisite threshold showing that there is a reasonable basis to believe that ex parte contacts probably took place, and offer no supporting legal authority indicating that such contacts would warrant reversal or remand of the county's decision. Richards-Kreitzberg v. Marion County, 31 Or LUBA 540 (1996).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Because communication between a county commissioner and an attorney representing the county regarding a pending conditional use application is not an ex parte contact required to be disclosed under ORS 215.422(4), an evidentiary hearing is not warranted to determine if such communication occurred. Richards-Kreitzberg v. Marion County, 31 Or LUBA 540 (1996).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing is not the proper forum for resolving issues relating to bias where the moving party does not allege any facts which are actually in dispute. Dominey v. City of Astoria, 31 Or LUBA 523 (1996).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The purpose of an evidentiary hearing is to determine the underlying facts supporting allegations regarding improper ex parte contacts. There is no need for an evidentiary hearing where the facts alleged by the moving party are not in dispute. Dominey v. City of Astoria, 31 Or LUBA 523 (1996).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Under OAR 661-10-045, LUBA has authority to order an evidentiary hearing in order to consider disputed facts, not in the record, which would establish a petitioner's standing to appeal. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Wilsonville, 29 Or LUBA 604 (1995).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Under ORS 197.830(13)(b), LUBA may allow an evidentiary hearing if there are disputed allegations of procedural irregularities not shown in the record which, if proved, would warrant reversal or remand. Huntzicker v. Washington County, 29 Or LUBA 587 (1995).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where petitioner's motion for evidentiary hearing does not explain how the alleged facts concerning a procedural irregularity below not shown in the record would warrant reversal or remand of the challenged decision, petitioner fails to demonstrate that an evidentiary hearing is warranted. Pendair Citizens' Committee v. City of Pendleton, 28 Or LUBA 796 (1995).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The "disputed allegations" that may justify an evidentiary hearing under ORS 197.830(13)(b) are disputed allegations of fact. Where the dispute between parties concerns only the legal conclusions or consequences to be drawn from facts in the record, an evidentiary hearing is not warranted. Jones v. Lane County, 27 Or LUBA 654 (1994).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. The "disputed allegations" that may justify an evidentiary hearing under ORS 197.830(13)(b) must concern the matters referenced in ORS 197.830(13)(b) or OAR 661-10-045(1). Jones v. Lane County, 27 Or LUBA 654 (1994).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will not grant a motion for evidentiary hearing unless the moving party establishes that it would introduce evidence at such a hearing that could result in reversal or remand of the challenged decision. City of Barlow v. Clackamas County, 26 Or LUBA 375 (1994).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where petitioners request an evidentiary hearing for the purpose of submitting evidence of an unrelated local land use decision made during the pendency of the subject LUBA appeal, and petitioners fail to explain how such evidence would affect the outcome of the subject appeal, the motion for evidentiary hearing will be denied. Adler v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 546 (1993).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. A local government staff memorandum concerning notice provided during a legislative proceeding is not properly included in the record of that proceeding, where the memorandum was created two months after the challenged decision was adopted. However, submission of the memorandum may be allowed in the event of an evidentiary hearing, pursuant to ORS 197.830(13)(b) and OAR 661-10-045, to demonstrate that required notices were given. Bicycle Transportation Alliance v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 798 (1993).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing is unwarranted where the dispute between the parties concerns only the correct legal conclusion to be drawn from undisputed facts. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 24 Or LUBA 594 (1992).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. An evidentiary hearing at LUBA will not be allowed to show that many, but not all, conditionally permitted uses listed in the applicable zoning district are economically infeasible, where petitioners do not argue that it would have been futile to apply for approval of the other conditionally permitted uses. Under these circumstances, the evidence petitioners seek to introduce would not establish an unconstitutional "taking." Larson v. Multnomah County, 24 Or LUBA 591 (1992).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where petitioners seek an evidentiary hearing concerning alleged procedural errors not shown in the local record, but there are no disputed allegations of fact concerning the alleged errors, there is no basis for an evidentiary hearing. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 708 (1992).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where the facts petitioners seek to introduce into the record through an evidentiary hearing do not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, an evidentiary hearing is not warranted. ORS 197.830(13)(b). Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 708 (1992).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. ORS 197.830(13)(b) limits LUBA's authority to conduct evidentiary hearings to consider evidence that is not included in the local record. ORS 197.830(13)(b) does not permit LUBA to conduct an evidentiary hearing to obtain a more complete picture of the local government hearings or the characteristics of the subject property and the area surrounding the property at issue in a LUBA appeal. Reed v. Benton County, 23 Or LUBA 681 (1992).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where one of a petitioner organization's members did not receive actual notice of a land use decision more than 21 days prior to the time the notice of intent to appeal was filed, an evidentiary hearing to establish that other individual members of the organization or the organization's board of directors had actual notice of the challenged decision more than 21 days before the challenged decision was made, is not warranted. Even if other members received such actual notice, petitioner's notice of intent to appeal in its representational capacity would be timely. Tuality Lands Coalition v. Washington County, 21 Or LUBA 611 (1991).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where an organizational petitioner timely files a notice of intent to determine in its representational capacity, it is only necessary to determine whether petitioner also filed the notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of the date it, as an organization, is deemed to have actual notice of the challenged decision, if there were a dispute concerning the member's standing upon whom petitioner's representational capacity to bring the appeals and its representational standing depend. Tuality Lands Coalition v. Washington County, 21 Or LUBA 611 (1991).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Under ORS 197.830(13)(b) and OAR 661-10-045(1), allegations of unconstitutionality and procedural irregularities only provide grounds for an evidentiary hearing if the facts the movant desires to present are not in the local record. Berg v. Linn County, 21 Or LUBA 622 (1991).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where it is alleged a decision maker made statements concerning a previously issued decision, and those statements indicate that the decision maker was biased against the applicant or had undisclosed ex parte contacts, an evidentiary hearing at LUBA may be justified to accept evidence concerning the allegations. Waker Associates, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 588 (1991).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where erroneous plan and code interpretations are not included in a land use decision maker's written decision, they do not constitute a procedural error or irregularity warranting reversal or remand under ORS

197.835(7)(a)(B) or an evidentiary hearing under ORS 197.830(13)(b). Waker Associates, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 588 (1991).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where petitioners are required to file a notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of receiving actual notice of the challenged decisions and a party gives specific reasons to question petitioners' allegations that they received actual notice of the challenged decisions less than 21 days before the notices of intent to appeal were filed, an evidentiary hearing is warranted and LUBA will allow depositions to explore when petitioners received actual notice of the challenged decisions. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 21 Or LUBA 515 (1991).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA requires that a party moving for an evidentiary hearing explain with particularity what facts it expects to present in an evidentiary hearing and why those facts will affect the outcome of the appeal. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 20 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. LUBA will not order an evidentiary hearing, or depositions to inquire whether a local appeal was timely filed, where the party requesting the evidentiary hearing or depositions fails to supply any basis for concluding that the local appeal notice was untimely filed. Tarbell v. Jefferson County, 20 Or LUBA 517 (1990).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. If a petitioner's standing to appeal to LUBA on any basis can be established without the necessity of an evidentiary hearing, LUBA will not conduct an evidentiary hearing to enable the petitioner to establish standing to appeal on a different basis. Lowrie v. Polk County, 19 Or LUBA 564 (1990).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Where there is no dispute concerning the authenticity or identity of a document a party believes was improperly excluded from the record by the local government, the parties may stipulate that the document be included in the LUBA record for the limited purpose of reviewing the correctness of the local government's decision to exclude the document from the local government record. Alternatively, the document may be attached to a party's brief, and if any party objects to LUBA's consideration of the document, the party offering the document may move for an evidentiary hearing. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 19 Or LUBA 548 (1990).

27.6.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Grounds for. Petitioners' motion for evidentiary hearing to submit affidavits recounting events outside the proceedings below, which allegedly demonstrate bias against petitioners on the part of the city attorney, will be denied because the city attorney was not the local government decision maker and, therefore, the attorney's motivation is not relevant to determining whether petitioners' rights to a fair hearing were prejudiced. Torgeson v. City of Canby, 19 Or LUBA 511 (1990).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Although LUBA's rules do not explicitly recognize evaluating jurisdiction as a purpose for considering evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045, in an appeal of a local government approval of a utility public way use permit authorizing installation of telecommunication-related facilities, where the local government alleges that LUBA does not have jurisdiction because of the location of the facilities, LUBA will consider as evidence outside the record (1) a marked version of a portion of the local government's adopted zoning map showing the general location of the facilities and (2) a recorded plat including the subject property. In addition, where the petitioners argue that LUBA has jurisdiction because the challenged decision falls within the scope of the local government's zoning ordinance and telecommunications ordinance, LUBA will consider as evidence outside the record (1) details related to the dimensions and location of the facilities in determining whether a given local land use process is applicable to the facilities and (2) a screenshot related to the definition of small cell facilities in determining whether the facilities installed fall within the class of equipment subject to the zoning ordinance. Vaccher v. City of Eugene, 80 Or LUBA 10 (2019).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where a petitioner argues that the local government erred under ORS 197.307(4) in applying ambiguous standards to an application to develop housing, and where an intervenor offers a traffic impact assessment (TIA) from a prior land use application that is not included in the local record to establish that the petitioner knew the local government would require compliance with the ambiguous standard, LUBA will deny a motion to take the TIA as evidence not in the record where the intervenor fails to explain how the evidence relates to any basis for LUBA to take additional evidence under OAR 661-010-0045(1) and since the facts that the TIA is offered to prove are not critical to the resolution of the appeal, as required under OAR 661-010-0045(2)(a). Oster v. City of Silverton, 79 Or LUBA 1058 (2019).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Petitioner failed to establish a basis for LUBA to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 where the city responded to petitioner's public records request for a copy of draft design guidelines by explaining that the city's records do not include a copy of the draft guidelines and that the city never adopted the draft guidelines as land use regulations. LUBA will deny petitioner's motion to take evidence where there is no disputed factual allegation in the parties' briefs concerning "procedural irregularities not shown in the record" and petitioner's motion is not directed at evidence of "procedural irregularities," but, instead, is an attempt to rebut the city's response and findings regarding the draft guidelines. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or 1007 (2018).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. ORS 197.835(2)(b) and OAR 661-01-0045(1) authorize LUBA to consider evidence outside the record where the proponent demonstrates that there are disputed allegations in the parties' briefs regarding the "unconstitutionality of the decision." However, where petitioners do not intend to argue that a city's decision is unconstitutional, but rather that the city erred in failing to comply with its city charter requirement for a vote, based on the city's reliance on a statute that petitioners believe unconstitutionally infringes on the city's charter authority, LUBA will deny petitioners' motion to take evidence because evidence on the constitutionality of a statute is not one of the bases for taking evidence outside the record under ORS 197.835(2)(b) and OAR 661-010-0045(1). Renken v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or LUBA 1070 (2018).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Even if a motion to take evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045(1) were otherwise proper, LUBA will deny such motion where petitioners have failed to demonstrate that the issue the proffered evidence goes to was raised with the specificity required by ORS 197.763(1), and even if LUBA viewed petitioners' arguments as one particular "argument" toward the general issue, that issue does not appear to have raised even in a most general way. Because the proffered evidence goes to an issue that is not within the Board's scope of review, petitioners have not established a basis under OAR 661-010-0045(1) to grant the motion to consider the evidence for any purpose, and such motion will be denied. Renken v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or LUBA 1070 (2018).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. In a dispute over attorney fees charged to petitioner, where the city attempts to introduce evidence explaining the accounting for the actual attorney fees charged, asserting that the new evidence relates to disputed facts concerning "other procedural irregularities not shown in the record" OAR 661-010-0045(1), but does not assert that the city's prior procedures constitute "procedural irregularities not shown in the record and which, if proved, would warrant reversal or remand of the decision," or otherwise explain on what grounds the Board can consider new evidence, LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record as the evidence the city seeks to introduce does not fall within the grounds to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or LUBA 1084 (2018).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. The movant for a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 fails to demonstrate that the motion is warranted based on "procedural irregularities not shown in the record" where the movant fails to identify any procedure that was violated with respect to the evidence at issue. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 547 (2018).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. LUBA will reject a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 requesting that LUBA consider e-mails between a petitioner and city staff to establish that planned unit developments (PUD) are subject to a post-approval city engineer permit process, where the petitioner identifies no basis under OAR 661-010-0045(1) for LUBA to consider the emails for that purpose and, in any case, whether PUDs are subject to a post-approval city engineer permit process is a question of law, not a disputed fact. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 547 (2018).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Absent a motion to take evidence outside the record pursuant to OAR 660-010-0045, LUBA has no basis for considering diagrams that illustrate an entire series of property line adjustments that are the subject matter of the challenged decision, but that nevertheless contain hand-drawn lines, text, and other information which indicate at least some of the notations post-date the decision, and therefore the diagrams could not have been "placed before" the planner who approved the property line adjustments. Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 470 (2017).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where petitioner offers some additional deeds and diagrams from a 2017 legal lot verification proceeding, in a challenge to a 2016 application for multiple property line adjustments, LUBA may not consider the additional post-decision deeds and diagrams where the parties agree that the 2016 application approved more than a single property line adjustment, and thus the deeds and diagrams do not offer anything material as to a "disputed factual allegation in the parties' briefs" pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1). Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 485 (2017).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where the petitioners file a motion to take evidence for LUBA to consider affidavits and other documents to establish that petitioners filed a timely appeal and are adversely affected, along with a reply brief addressing the same jurisdictional issues, petitioners have sufficiently "explain[ed] with particularity" the facts petitioners seek to establish for purposes of OAR 661-010-0045(2)(a). Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 74 Or LUBA 38 (2016).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. While an unsigned or improperly signed declaration of a petitioner asserting facts that go to standing and whether the petitioner is adversely affected may be less persuasive in the face of conflicting evidence than a properly signed declaration, nothing in LUBA's rules requires that such declarations be signed in any particular manner, in order to be considered for the proffered purpose. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 74 Or LUBA 38 (2016).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. While LUBA's rule allowing a motion to take evidence not in the record can be invoked to allow LUBA to consider documents outside the record in order to resolve disputes over the content of the record, such a motion is not a basis to strike a land sale contract that is indisputably part of the record on the grounds that the contract is incomplete or is not evidence that the decision maker should have relied upon. Grimstad v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 610 (2016).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Accepting into the local evidentiary record of a land sale contract that is arguably incomplete or suffers from defects is not a "procedural irregularity not shown in the record" that would warrant a motion to take evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045. Grimstad v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 610 (2016).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Items rejected from the local record are properly excluded from the record transmitted to LUBA. Where a local government rejects portions of a document, and includes only a redacted version of the document in the record, the petitioner may attach to the petition for review the unredacted document, in support of any of an assignment of error alleging that the local government erred in rejecting the redacted portions. If no party objects, LUBA will consider the attached document for the limited purpose of resolving that procedural assignment of error. If a party objects, the petitioner may file a motion to take evidence to allow LUBA to consider the unredacted document for that same limited purpose. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. A motion to reconsider a LUBA order is treated as a renewed motion for the same relief sought in the original motion. Because a motion to take evidence outside of the record suspends all other time limits in an appeal, a motion to reconsider an order denying the motion to take evidence, which is considered a renewed motion to take evidence, also suspends all other time limits. Stewart v. City of Salem, 61 Or LUBA 77 (2010).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where the parties' dispute is over the correct interpretation and application of code provisions rather than a factual dispute, there is no basis for a motion requesting LUBA to consider an electronic mail message as extra-record evidence under ORS 197.835(2)(b). A planner's electronic mail message in which the planner expresses opinions about the meaning of those code provisions has no bearing on how that issue of law should be resolved. Zirker v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 188 (2007).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. LUBA will deny as premature a motion to take evidence regarding alleged ex parte contacts that is filed before the record is settled and the briefs filed. Rickreall Community Water Assoc. v. Polk County, 52 Or LUBA 772 (2006).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. A party who files a motion for evidentiary hearing seeking evidence to prove that the decision makers, members of the city council, are biased must allege that there is a "reasonable basis" to believe the city council members are biased. Where a moving party alleges that the city as a municipal entity was interested in purchasing the subject property for future development of city buildings, it is relatively clear that any plans the city had were preliminary, and a moving party does not point to any evidence or likelihood of uncovering evidence that the decision makers relied on anything other than the applicable approval criteria in rendering the challenged decision, it fails to demonstrate a "reasonable basis" to believe the decision makers are biased, and a motion for evidentiary hearing will be denied. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Oregon City, 49 Or LUBA 729 (2005).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record under OAR 661-010-0045 where the factual allegations asserted in the motion are not in dispute. Under such circumstances it is more appropriate for the party to assert its allegations in its brief and file a motion to take evidence not in the record if another party disputes those allegations. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record based on an allegation that the petition for review will allege constitutional error and that LUBA must have the proffered extra-record evidence before it in order to resolve such an assignment of error, where the theory of constitutional error as shown in the motion is conclusory and undeveloped and the facts established by the proffered evidence are not in dispute. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. LUBA will deny a motion to take evidence not in the record to consider the affidavits of three county commissioners explaining that they are biased against the applicant and cannot impartially hear a local appeal involving the applicant, where the commissioners' declaration of bias is stated in the challenged decision, the assignment of error directed at the commissioners' bias presents a legal question not dependent on the facts stated in the affidavits, and the proponent fails to demonstrate to LUBA that the affidavits are necessary to resolve that assignment of error. Hiebenthal v. Polk County, 41 Or LUBA 573 (2001).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. The Board will deny a motion to take evidence of alleged ex parte contacts where, in the absence of the parties' briefs, it is not clear that the alleged contacts relate to the local government decision. In most cases, the appropriate posture in which to file a motion for evidentiary hearing is after the briefs have been filed, when the legal arguments and disputed allegations of fact are more clearly identified. Halvorson Mason Corp. v. City of Depoe Bay, 38 Or LUBA 949 (2000).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. An evidentiary hearing to establish decision makers' "personal interest" in a proposal due to their ownership of proximate property is not warranted because, even if true, such a "personal interest" could not provide a basis for reversing or remanding the decision. ODOT v. City of Mosier, 34 Or LUBA 797 (1998).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. LUBA will not order an evidentiary hearing or a deposition from a county planner where petitioner does not explain how such testimony can authoritatively establish whether the county approved the version of a comprehensive plan at issue. Trademark Construction Inc. v. Marion County, 33 Or LUBA 842 (1997).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. An evidentiary hearing is not warranted to show a decision maker is a member of an advocacy group that supports transportation projects, where the advocacy group did not take a position on a disputed land use decision that approved a geologic hazard report related to a proposed highway improvement. Such membership would not demonstrate the decision maker's views concerning transportation in general or the particular project, or show that he was biased or prejudged the matter. Terdina v. Clatsop County, 33 Or LUBA 830 (1997).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. A motion for evidentiary hearing requesting that a local government and intervenor be ordered to produce all demographic data kept by either party with regard to intervenor's other developments fails to state with particularity what facts will be presented at the hearing and how those facts will affect the outcome of the review proceeding as required by OAR 661-10-045. St. Johns Neighborhood Assn. v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 827 (1997).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where a local code prohibits ex parte contacts between a decision maker and a "person interested in the outcome of the proceeding," a party moving for an evidentiary hearing to prove such ex parte contacts occurred must provide specific reasoning why that person qualifies as such an "interested" party. Merely describing the person as a professional land developer or community leader is not specific enough. Opp v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 820 (1997).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where petitioner's motion for evidentiary hearing does not explain how the alleged facts concerning a procedural irregularity below not shown in the record would warrant reversal or remand of the challenged decision, petitioner fails to demonstrate that an evidentiary hearing is warranted. Pendair Citizens' Committee v. City of Pendleton, 28 Or LUBA 796 (1995).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Petitioners cannot raise a new basis for reversing or remanding a challenged decision for the first time in a post oral argument motion for evidentiary hearing unless they demonstrate that they seek to present facts unknown to them at the time the petition for review was filed. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 28 Or LUBA 561 (1995).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. OAR 661-10-065(4) simply provides that with the exception of objections to the record and motions for evidentiary hearing, the filing of a motion does not have the legal effect of automatically suspending the deadlines for future events in a LUBA appeal until the motion is resolved. Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 746 (1994).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Occasional references in a motion for evidentiary hearing to extra-record materials do not satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-045(2) that petitioner explain "with particularity the facts the moving party will present at the [evidentiary] hearing" and do not explain how that evidence shows an evidentiary hearing is warranted under OAR 661-10-045(2) and ORS 197.830(13)(b). Jones v. Lane County, 27 Or LUBA 654 (1994).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where petitioner withdraws its motion for evidentiary hearing, but respondents wish to have an evidentiary hearing, respondents must file their own motion for evidentiary hearing in accordance with OAR 661-10-045. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 25 Or LUBA 818 (1993).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Under OAR 661-10-045(2), the movant for evidentiary hearing must establish how the facts to be presented at the proposed evidentiary hearing will affect the outcome of the appeal. Breivogel v. Washington County, 22 Or LUBA 847 (1992).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. A movant for an evidentiary hearing must explain, with particularity, what facts it will present at the evidentiary hearing. In addition, the movant must establish how those facts "will affect the outcome of the review proceeding." OAR 661-10-045(2). Tuality Lands Coalition v. Washington County, 21 Or LUBA 611 (1991).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Until the local record is filed with LUBA, a motion for evidentiary hearing is premature. Berg v. Linn County, 21 Or LUBA 622 (1991).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. LUBA requires that a party moving for an evidentiary hearing explain with particularity what facts it expects to present in an evidentiary hearing and why those facts will affect the outcome of the appeal. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 20 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. After the petition for review is filed, respondents may, in their response brief or in a motion to dismiss, identify disputed allegations of fact, and explain why under their version of the facts petitioners lack standing. Petitioners may then request permission to file a reply brief to respond to respondent's legal arguments, move for an evidentiary hearing to present facts establishing standing or do both. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 20 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where a party moves for an evidentiary hearing but fails to clearly identify what facts it wishes to establish through the evidentiary hearing and fails to explain why those facts will affect the outcome of the appeal, the motion for evidentiary hearing will be denied. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 20 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.6.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Motion for. Where the petitioner objects that the record should include a letter he sent to the city, and an intervenor unsuccessfully opposes the record objection solely on the grounds that the letter was sent after the public hearing was closed, LUBA will not grant intervenor's subsequent requests for an evidentiary hearing and for depositions to consider whether the letter was sent and received as petitioner claimed in his record objection. Cecil v. City of Jacksonville, 19 Or LUBA 532 (1990).

27.6.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Procedures. A motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 is warranted only for one or more of the limited bases set out in OAR 661-010-0045(1). If granted, the motion allows new evidence to be admitted into LUBA's record only for those limited purposes; such evidence is not admitted into the local evidentiary record and cannot be cited to support or undermine findings of compliance with applicable approval criteria. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 547 (2018).

27.6.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Procedures. The Board will deny a motion to take evidence of alleged ex parte contacts where, in the absence of the parties' briefs, it is not clear that the alleged contacts relate to the local government decision. In most cases, the appropriate posture in which to file a motion for evidentiary hearing is after the briefs have been filed, when the legal arguments and disputed allegations of fact are more clearly identified. Halvorson Mason Corp. v. City of Depoe Bay, 38 Or LUBA 949 (2000).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. An affidavit indicating that one week after issuing the final decision a decision maker knew that the applicant had agreed to the proposed conditions is an insufficient showing that an ex parte contact might have occurred during the hearing to warrant depositions under OAR 661-010-0045, where there is no indication when or how the decision maker acquired that knowledge. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. LUBA will deny a motion under OAR 661-010-0045 to depose unnamed officials of a regional transit agency, where the depositions are for the purpose of demonstrating that the challenged land use decision is inconsistent with a previous land use decision adopted by the regional transit agency, and that issue has no bearing on whether the land use standards that the city applied or should have applied are "land use standards that do not require interpretation or the exercise of policy or legal judgment" within the ORS 197.015(10)(b)(A) exception to LUBA's jurisdiction. Lazarus v. City of Milwaukie, 67 Or LUBA 475 (2013).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. In camera review of a document under Oregon Evidence Code 612 is appropriate only where the witness reads the document to refresh memory and production of the document is necessary in the interests of justice. LUBA will deny a motion for in camera review of the redacted portions of a document allegedly used to refresh memory in a deposition, where the movant fails to establish that the deponent in fact read the redacted portions of the document, for purposes of refreshing memory. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 49 Or LUBA 746 (2005).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. In camera review or production of a document under Oregon Evidence Code 612 is not warranted "in the interests of justice," where the deposition authorized under OAR 661-010-0045 was limited to alleged ex parte contacts and bias on the part of the hearings officer, the disputed document was an e-mail to the hearings officer dated a year after the events that were the subject of the deposition, and the movant failed to establish that review or production of the document would yield anything probative about the alleged ex parte contacts or bias issues. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 49 Or LUBA 746 (2005).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. A deposition of the decision maker to determine the content of ex parte contacts is warranted under OAR 661-010-0045, where the record and affidavits submitted by the parties demonstrate that such contacts occurred and may have involved discussion of the merits of the decision, but the record and affidavits do not include information necessary for LUBA to resolve anticipated assignments of error seeking to reverse the decision based on those ex parte contacts. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 48 Or LUBA 657 (2005).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. For purposes of establishing standing to appeal to LUBA under ORS 197.830(3), petitioners who reside within sight of a disputed sign are presumptively adversely affected. Exactly how the sign affects petitioners and how many times petitioners have seen it are irrelevant considerations under that presumption, and depositions to resolve those matters are not warranted. Frymark v. Tillamook

County, 45 Or LUBA 685 (2003).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. Depositions of two petitioners to inquire into their allegations that they are adversely affected by the challenged decision for purposes of ORS 197.830(3) are not warranted, where the movant fails (1) to specifically controvert those allegations, and (2) to establish that depositions of two petitioners are likely to affect the outcome of LUBA's review proceeding. Frymark v. Tillamook County, 45 Or LUBA 685 (2003).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. Mere speculation that some petitioners may have obtained a copy of the challenged decision more than 21 days prior to filing the notice of intent to appeal, and thus the appeal is untimely under ORS 197.830(3), is insufficient to warrant depositions to inquire into that circumstance. Frymark v. Tillamook County, 45 Or LUBA 685 (2003).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. Motions to take evidence not in the record regarding prejudgment or bias are treated the same as those alleging ex parte contacts and must include substantial allegations that the decision maker was biased, or that there is a reasonable basis to believe that the decision maker was biased. Space Age Fuels, Inc. v. City of Sherwood, 40 Or LUBA 577 (2001).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. An allegation that a city councilor told a city planning commissioner that he "did not want any new service stations" in the city is not sufficient to establish a reasonable basis to believe that the city councilor was biased, and a motion to take evidence not in the record will be denied. Space Age Fuels, Inc. v. City of Sherwood, 40 Or LUBA 577 (2001).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. LUBA will not order an evidentiary hearing or a deposition from a county planner where petitioner does not explain how such testimony can authoritatively establish whether the county approved the version of a comprehensive plan at issue. Trademark Construction Inc. v. Marion County, 33 Or LUBA 842 (1997).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. It is premature, before the record is settled and the petition for review is filed, to take depositions or to hold an evidentiary hearing in order to obtain information that can be used to challenge petitioners' standing. Newton Creek Citizens Comm. v. City of Roseburg, 32 Or LUBA 496 (1997).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. Where a petitioner's deposition discloses she learned the city may have approved certain permits, and thereafter petitioner promptly pursues the matter with the city planning department and obtains copies of the permits, the date she obtained the copies of the permits from the planning department is the date of actual notice of the permits for purposes of computing the deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal at LUBA. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 22 Or LUBA 390 (1991).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. Where petitioners are required to file a notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of receiving actual notice of the challenged decisions and a party gives specific reasons to question petitioners' allegations that they received actual notice of the challenged decisions less than 21 days before the notices of intent to appeal were filed, an evidentiary hearing is warranted and LUBA will allow depositions to explore when petitioners received actual notice of the challenged decisions. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 21 Or LUBA 515 (1991).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. LUBA will not order an evidentiary hearing, or depositions to inquire whether a local appeal was timely filed, where the party requesting the evidentiary hearing or depositions fails to supply any basis for concluding that the local appeal notice was untimely filed. Tarbell v. Jefferson County, 20 Or LUBA 517 (1990).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. Where petitioners' notice of intent to appeal to LUBA is timely if filed within 21 days after petitioners received actual notice of the appealed decision, but the facts in the record before LUBA are unclear as to when petitioners obtained notice of the decision, LUBA will grant a petition to depose petitioners. Torgeson v. City of Canby, 19 Or LUBA 623 (1990).

27.6.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Evidentiary Hearings – Depositions. Where the petitioner objects that the record should include a letter he sent to the city, and an intervenor unsuccessfully opposes the record objection solely on the grounds that the letter was sent after the public hearing was closed, LUBA will not grant intervenor's subsequent requests for an evidentiary hearing and for depositions to consider whether the letter was sent and received as petitioner claimed in his record objection. Cecil v. City of Jacksonville, 19 Or LUBA 532 (1990).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. Where petitioners' counsel attempts to amend a timely filed Notice of Intent to Appeal (NITA), to add additional petitioners who were mistakenly omitted from the original NITA, but the amended NITA is filed after the time limit set forth in ORS 197.830(9) for filing a NITA before LUBA, petitioners' mistaken omission of the petitioners from the original NITA was not merely a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules at OAR 660-010-0015. The additional petitioners listed in the Amended NITA have not established that their NITA was filed within the time limit set forth in ORS 197.830(9), and are therefore not parties to the appeal. Cossins v. Josephine County, 77 Or LUBA 240 (2018).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. Consolidation of appeals does not permit a petitioner who is not a petitioner in both appeals to file a petition for review in the appeal in which he is not a party, and that person's signature on a "Joint Petition for Review" does not make that person a petitioner or other party entitled to file a petition for review in the other appeal. Willis v. Clackamas County, 76 Or LUBA 479 (2017).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. LUBA will decline to treat two separate petitions for review that are signed by the same person as a single petition filed by that person in an appeal to which he is not a party, as inconsistent with OAR 660-010-0030, which contemplates the filing of a single petition for review, rather than multiple petitions for review. Willis v. Clackamas County, 76 Or LUBA 479 (2017).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. The unrepresented lead petitioner in an appeal to LUBA cannot file a motion on behalf of another unrepresented petitioner seeking the other petitioner's withdrawal from the appeal. Frewing v. City of Portland, 73 Or LUBA 392 (2016).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. LUBA's rules do not authorize a person who is a party in one appeal to file a motion in a different, consolidated appeal to which that person is not a party. Consolidation does not change party status. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. The filing of a Notice of Intent to Appeal (NITA) is a jurisdictional prerequisite to commencing a LUBA appeal. Where all petitioners withdraw the NITA, the appeal must be dismissed. Brown v. Jackson County, 55 Or LUBA 178 (2007).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. After the petitioner withdraws from an appeal, any intervenor-petitioner who has not timely filed a separate notice of intent to appeal may not continue the appeal, and the appeal must be dismissed. Marylhurst Neighborhood Assoc. v. City of West Linn, 52 Or LUBA 612 (2006).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. All petitioners who are not represented by an attorney must represent themselves in a LUBA appeal. Neither a lead petitioner nor any other individual petitioner may present arguments or file documents on behalf of other unrepresented petitioners. Gillette v. Lane County, 51 Or LUBA 823 (2006).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. That an intervenor-respondent in one appeal also filed a petition for review challenging aspects of the same decision in a different appeal does not preclude the intervenor-respondent from advancing a cross-assignment of error in the response brief. Land use decisions often have multiple aspects or components, and a party on appeal may seek to overturn one aspect while preserving others. Knutson Family LLC v. City of Eugene, 48 Or LUBA 399 (2005).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. Under LUBA's rules, an organization must be represented by an attorney. Where an unrepresented organization is a named petitioner in an appeal to LUBA, but fails to obtain counsel within the time set by the Board, that party will be dismissed from the appeal. Ziemer v. City of Florence, 43 OR LUBA 1 (2002).

27.7.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Petitioner. LUBA's rules require that the petition for review "[s]tate the facts that establish petitioner's standing," but do not require that such allegations of fact appear in any particular form or any particular portion of the petition for review. Friends of the Creek v. Jackson County, 36 Or LUBA 562 (1999).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. If an intervenor-respondent wishes to request that LUBA remand a county decision so that the county can apply a different statute than the one the county applied in the appealed decision, that request is not properly presented to LUBA where the intervenor-respondent neither filed a cross petition for review nor raised the issue in a cross assignment of error in the intervenor-respondent's response brief. WKN Chopin LLC v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 1 (2012).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. Under OAR 661-010-0075(6), a county may only appear in a LUBA appeal through an attorney. Where the county attorney advises LUBA that the county will not participate in an appeal, and the county planning department latter provides LUBA with a copy of its letter responding to the petitioner's record objections, LUBA will not treat that letter as the county's response to petitioner's record objections. SOPIP v. Coos County, 56 Or LUBA 802 (2008).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. Under OAR 661-010-0075(6) corporations, including municipal corporations, must be represented by an attorney in a LUBA appeal. Although LUBA does not require that the local government record of an appealed land use decision be filed by an attorney, any subsequent appearance by a city—after the record is filed—to oppose record objections, oppose any other motions, file motions on the local government's behalf or otherwise appear on behalf of the local government must be through an attorney who is admitted to practice in the State of Oregon. Robson v. City of La Grande, 53 Or LUBA 604 (2006).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. The principle of affirmative waiver of issues before the local decision maker described in Newcomer v. Clackamas County, 92 Or App 174, 758 P2d 369 (1988), does not apply to representations before LUBA, such as a respondent's representation that it would not file a response brief. To the extent a petitioner relies on such a representation to submit an abbreviated petition for review, it does so at its own risk. LUBA. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 46 Or LUBA 799 (2004).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. A county is by statute and rule a party to an appeal of a county land use decision to LUBA, and nothing prohibits a county from indirectly representing the interests of others, such as an applicant who failed to file a timely motion to intervene, in exercising the county's right to defend its decision before LUBA. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 46 Or LUBA 799 (2004).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. Where pursuant to an intergovernmental agreement a county renders a final land use decision based on a recommendation by the city council, the county is the proper respondent, and the city will be dismissed as a respondent, absent a demonstration that the city must remain as a respondent in order to reach an issue regarding the county's decision. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 577 (2002).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. LUBA does not have authority to deny respondent the right to appear and defend its decision in an appeal before LUBA. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 26 Or LUBA 631 (1994).

27.7.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Respondent. A motion to intervene on the side of respondent filed 11 days after the petition for review was filed, and 14 days before the respondents' briefs were due, is filed within the time allowed by ORS 197.830(6)(a). Testa v. Clackamas County, 29 Or LUBA 577 (1995).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where intervenors' attorney files a notice of withdrawal as attorney, and intervenors file a notice of withdrawal indicating their intent to withdraw their response brief and from the appeal as parties, LUBA will consider intervenors withdrawn from the appeal and will not consider intervenors' response brief. Friends of Douglas County v. Douglas County, 78 Or LUBA 11 (2018).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. LUBA will deny a motion from an applicant who missed the deadline to intervene in an appeal to participate as an amicus because such participation would effectively allow that applicant to participate as an intervenor-respondent and file what is in effect a response brief to the petition for review, without meeting the statutory deadline for intervention and without payment of an intervenor fee as set out in ORS 197.830(7)(a). VanSickle v. Klamath County, 77 Or LUBA 588 (2018).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where LUBA issues an interlocutory order approving or denying a motion to intervene, an appeal of LUBA's Final Opinion and Order to the Oregon Court of Appeals would allow challenge to that interlocutory order. Where the contested motion to intervene is briefed and ripe for resolution, delaying the resolution of the motion would unnecessarily prejudice the other parties, and complicate final resolution of the appeal by allowing a person LUBA has determined lacks standing to intervene to file a petition for review. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. ORS 197.830(7)(a) requires that a motion to intervene be filed within 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Under OAR 660-010-0015(1)(b), a notice of intent to appeal is filed on the date it is mailed by registered or certified mail or the date it is received by LUBA. But OAR 660-010-0015(1)(b) does not set out two dates of filing, either of which may be relied upon as the date of filing for purposes of computing the deadline for filing a motion to intervene. Rather the rule makes the date of filing the date of mailing, if mailed by registered or certified mail, with the date of filing being the date the notice of intent to appeal is received by LUBA in all other circumstances. Holmberg v. Deschutes County, 76 Or LUBA 512 (2017).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where an entity named "Shepherdsfield Ministries" moves to intervene in an appeal to LUBA, but the entity fails to establish that it appeared during the proceedings below under that name, or that it has met the requirements for representational or organizational standing, the entity has not established standing to intervene. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 664 (2016).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where it is undisputed that a corporation named "Shepherdsfield Church" appeared during the proceedings below, but the motion to intervene mistakenly identifies the appearing party as "Shepherdsfield Ministries," LUBA will allow the motion to intervene to be revised to name the correct party as long as the correction does not prejudice the substantial rights of other parties. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 664 (2016).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. The ORS 197.830(7)(a) 21-day deadline for filing a motion to intervene, which is strictly enforced, is a filing deadline, not a service deadline. Housing Land Advocates v. City of Happy Valley, 73 Or LUBA 405 (2016).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a local government combines proceedings on two related land use matters, and a party moving to intervene in an appeal of one of the resulting land use decisions testified at the combined hearing, that party has appeared in the proceedings before the decision-maker and has standing to intervene in the appeal, even if the party's testimony did not specifically refer to the decision that was appealed. Iyer v. Washington County, 72 Or LUBA 491 (2015).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where an intervenor-respondent generally agrees with the decision on appeal but wishes to challenge an aspect of the decision if the decision is reversed or remanded on the petition for review, OAR 661-010-0030(7) requires that the intervenor-respondent file a cross-petition for review with a contingent assignment of error, within the same deadline that applies to petitions for review. Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 70 Or LUBA 37 (2014).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Before LUBA adopted the current version of OAR 661-010-0030(7), intervenors-respondents could include contingent cross-assignments of error in their response briefs to challenge aspects of the decision on review, in the event the decision had to be remanded or reversed under the petition for review. Now, under the current version of OAR 661-010-0030(7), such contingent cross assignments of error must be included in a timely filed cross-petition for review. Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 70 Or LUBA 37 (2014).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Under OAR 661-010-0050, an intervenor becomes a party to the appeal on the date the motion to intervene is filed. A petitioner seeking to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review pursuant to OAR 661-010-0067(2) must obtain the written consent of the intervenor and all parties, even if LUBA has not yet issued an order granting the motion to intervene. Danielson Trust v. Jackson County, 65 Or LUBA 437 (2012).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. ORS 197.830(7)(a) and OAR 661-010-0050(3) do not authorize LUBA to refund a prevailing intervenor's filing fee. J & G Holdings LLC v. Washington County, 63 Or LUBA 411 (2011).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where an intervenor moves to intervene only on the side of respondent, but later submits a response brief supporting the position of the respondent on some assignments of error and supporting the position of petitioner on other assignments of error, LUBA will strike the portion of intervenor's response brief that supports petitioner's assignments of error on its own motion. Onsite Advertising Services LLC v. Washington County, 63 Or LUBA 414 (2011).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. LUBA will deny an untimely motion to intervene pursuant to ORS 197.830(7), where the movant was timely served a copy of the notice of intent to appeal with a certificate of filing showing the date the notice was filed. That LUBA staff allegedly misinformed the movant of the date the notice was filed is not a basis to toll the statutory deadline to intervene at ORS 197.830(7)(a). Central Oregon Landwatch v. Jefferson County, 62 Or LUBA 526 (2010).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. To preserve the legislative intent in requiring participants to the proceedings below to timely intervene in appeals to LUBA, LUBA has generally declined to grant amicus status to interested parties who simply missed the statutory deadline to intervene in the appeal. A significant exception is where the respondent informs LUBA that it does not intend to file a response brief, and absent amicus participation no brief responding to the petition for review would be filed at all, and LUBA would have to resolve the appeal based solely on the petition for review. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Jefferson County, 62 Or LUBA 530 (2010).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where the respondent indicates it intends to file a response brief, LUBA will deny a motion to appear as amicus from an interested party who failed to file a timely motion to intervene, absent a demonstration that the respondent's brief will not adequately respond to the petition for review or otherwise that the amicus brief would significantly aid LUBA's review. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Jefferson County, 62 Or LUBA 530 (2010).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. When the original applicant would be allowed to intervene in an appeal under ORS 197.830(7)(b)(A) as the "applicant who initiated the action before the local government," the original applicant's successor in interest may also intervene. Biggerstaff v. Yamhill County, 58 Or LUBA 665 (2008).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. The filing of a Notice of Intent to Appeal (NITA) is a jurisdictional prerequisite to commencing a LUBA appeal. Where all petitioners withdraw the NITA, the appeal must be dismissed. Brown v. Jackson County, 55 Or LUBA 178 (2007).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An agent or consultant who represented the applicants during the proceedings before the local government but is not a member of the Oregon State Bar cannot represent the applicants before LUBA. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 54 Or LUBA 782 (2007).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An appearance before the local government by an agent or representative of the applicants is not, in itself, an appearance by that agent or representative on his or her own behalf, for purposes of intervening under ORS 197.830(7)(b)(B). Wetherell v. Douglas County, 54 Or LUBA 782 (2007).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. ORS 197.830(7)(b)(B) does not specify whether intervention by the "applicant" who "initiated" the application is limited to the property owner or other person in interest, or also includes an agent or hired consultant who files an application on behalf of the property owner or person in interest. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 54 Or LUBA 782 (2007).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where the property owners sign the application as the applicants, but designate their agent as the "applicant," that designation does not mean that the agent is the "applicant who initiated the action before the local government" within the meaning of ORS 197.830(7)(b)(A), and the agent therefore does not have standing to intervene as the applicant under that statute. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 54 Or LUBA 782 (2007).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Persons who made an appearance during the local government proceedings that led to a city decision that was remanded by LUBA satisfy the ORS 197.830(7)(b) requirement that a person who moves to intervene in a subsequent LUBA appeal of the city's decision following LUBA's remand must have "appeared." The appearance during the initial local government proceedings is sufficient to satisfy the ORS 197.830(7)(b) appearance requirement, and it does not matter that the local government refused those persons' attempt to appear during the remand proceedings. South Gateway Partners v. City of Medford, 53 Or LUBA 593 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a person attempts but is denied the right to appear during a local government's proceedings that lead to a land use decision, in a subsequent LUBA appeal that attempt to appear is sufficient to satisfy the ORS 197.830(7)(b) appearance requirement, to allow that person to intervene in the LUBA appeal to assign error to the local government's refusal to allow a local appearance. South Gateway Partners v. City of Medford, 53 Or LUBA 593 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where persons appeared during the local government proceedings that led to a LUBA appeal and remand, that local appearance is sufficient to satisfy the ORS 197.830(7)(b) requirement for an appearance to have standing to intervene in a subsequent LUBA appeal challenging the local government's decision following the LUBA remand. For purposes of satisfying the ORS 197.830(7)(b) "appearance" requirement, it does not matter that those persons did not file a brief in the first LUBA appeal. South Gateway Partners v. City of Medford, 53 Or LUBA 593 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A person who is not entitled to notice of the local government's final decision under 197.615(2)(b) is not entitled to be served a copy of the notice of intent to appeal, or intervene in the appeal after the 21-day deadline for intervention has expired. Herring v. Lane County, 53 Or LUBA 608 (2007).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. LUBA will assume an applicant's planner has standing to intervene under ORS 197.830(7)(b) on the side of the applicant-petitioner, notwithstanding the planner's failure to allege in his unopposed motion to intervene that he was also an applicant or made an appearance on his own behalf, where there is no dispute that the petitioner has standing and both petitioner and the planner signed the petition for review. Gillette v. Lane County, 52 Or LUBA 1 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An intervenor company's failure to identify itself correctly in its motion to intervene might warrant a motion to require an amended motion to intervene but it does not justify denying the motion to intervene. O'Brien v. City of Portland, 52 Or LUBA 113 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An applicant below who intervenes in a LUBA appeal is not precluded from participating in the appeal merely because he has sold his interest in the property. Mazorol v. City of Bend, 52 Or LUBA 136 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. After the petitioner withdraws from an appeal, any intervenor-petitioner who has not timely filed a separate notice of intent to appeal may not continue the appeal, and the appeal must be dismissed. Marylhurst Neighborhood Assoc. v. City of West Linn, 52 Or LUBA 612 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Absent failure to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on parties entitled to such notice, or other sufficient reason to excuse a party's failure to comply with the 21-day deadline to intervene in ORS 197.830(7)(c), that statute requires denial of any motion to intervene filed more than 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Grant v. City of Depoe Bay, 52 Or LUBA 811 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. While OAR 661-010-0067(3) provides that certain time limits may be extended upon motion of a party, that rule must be interpreted consistently with ORS 197.830(7)(c), which mandates denial of a motion to intervene filed more than 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Accordingly, OAR 661-010-0067(3) does not authorize LUBA to grant a motion to extend the time to file the motion to intervene more than 21 days after the notice is filed. Grant v. City of Depoe Bay, 52 Or LUBA 811 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Read in context, the ORS 197.830(2) requirement that a person must file a notice of intent to appeal in order to "petition [LUBA] for review" does not implicitly prohibit parties who have not filed a notice of intent to appeal from filing a cross-petition for review, as provided by OAR 661-010-0030(7). Horning v. Washington County, 51 Or LUBA 303 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. All petitioners who are not represented by an attorney must represent themselves in a LUBA appeal. Neither a lead petitioner nor any other individual petitioner may present arguments or file documents on behalf of other unrepresented petitioners. Gillette v. Lane County, 51 Or LUBA 823 (2006).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Intervenor's failure to file a motion to intervene within 21 days of the date the notice of intent to appeal (NITA) was filed does not require denial of the motion where petitioner failed to serve the NITA on intervenor, as required by OAR 661-010-0015(3)(i). Ford v. Jackson County, 50 Or LUBA 359 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. The ORS 197.830(7) "appearance" requirement is not satisfied and a motion to intervene will be denied where movant's request to participate in local hearing after the close of the record is denied, and movant does not argue that participation was erroneously denied. Anthony v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 703 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Status as an intervenor is recognized from the date a motion to intervene is filed. LUBA's general practice is to allow time for other parties to object to the motion to intervene and then rule on the motion, either in an interlocutory order or in the final opinion. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 708 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A pro se intervenor may not file a motion on behalf of prospective unrepresented intervenors to seek additional time for filing motions to intervene. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 708 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Failure to object to a motion to intervene until after the intervenor has filed a response brief and shortly before oral argument is prejudicial to the intervenor's substantial rights and not a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules. Rose v. City of Corvallis, 49 Or LUBA 260 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Absent circumstances where delay in filing the motion to intervene is caused by the party objecting to intervention, ORS 197.830(7)(c) mandates that an untimely motion to intervene be denied. That the petitioner failed to object to the motion to intervene until after the intervenor's brief was filed with LUBA is an insufficient basis to allow an untimely motion to intervene. Rose v. City of Corvallis, 49 Or LUBA 260 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a local code provision prevents movant from testifying at a local hearing on his own behalf, presentation of oral testimony as an expert witness for a party to the local hearing does not satisfy the "appearance" requirement sufficient to allow movant to intervene at LUBA. Doob v. Josephine County, 49 Or LUBA 724 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. ORS 197.830(7) not only prescribes a 21-day deadline for filing a motion to intervene with LUBA, but dictates that failure to comply with that deadline shall result in denial of the motion. That the legislature chose to spell out the consequences for untimely filing of a motion to intervene indicates that the legislature wanted that deadline to be rigorously enforced and, by implication, not extended. Grahn v. City of Newberg, 49 Or LUBA 762 (2005).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. The principle of affirmative waiver of issues before the local decision maker described in Newcomer v. Clackamas County, 92 Or App 174, 758 P2d 369 (1988), does not apply to representations before LUBA, such as a respondent's representation that it would not file a response brief. To the extent a petitioner relies on such a representation to submit an abbreviated petition for review, it does so at its own risk. LUBA. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 46 Or LUBA 799 (2004).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A county is by statute and rule a party to an appeal of a county land use decision to LUBA, and nothing prohibits a county from indirectly representing the interests of others, such as an applicant who failed to file a timely motion to intervene, in exercising the county's right to defend its decision before LUBA. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 46 Or LUBA 799 (2004).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Consolidation of separate appeals under LUBA's rules is a matter of administrative convenience for the parties and the Board, and does not affect the legal relations of the parties to each other or to the matters appealed. Consolidation of two appeals does not permit a person who is a petitioner in one appeal to file a response brief in the other appeal, absent filing a timely motion to intervene on the side of respondent in that other appeal. Leach v. Lane County, 45 Or LUBA 733 (2003).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A member of the local governing body who adopted a land use decision is not a person who "appeared" before the local governing body and may not intervene as a party in a LUBA appeal. Roe v. City of Union, 45 Or LUBA 736 (2003).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A party attempting to intervene in a LUBA appeal need only have appeared before the local government and file a timely motion to intervene with LUBA. Unlike petitioners before LUBA, there is no requirement that intervenors have exhausted all administrative remedies below. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 45 Or LUBA 758 (2003).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. LUBA will not deny an otherwise proper motion to intervene simply because the moving party's interests may be represented by other parties. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 45 Or LUBA 758 (2003).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A motion to intervene filed by an unrepresented organization, stating that the organization will soon be represented by an attorney, will be denied where no attorney appears on behalf of the organization and the organization fails to respond to a challenge to its status as intervenor. Stahl v. Tillamook County, 43 Or LUBA 623 (2002).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A technically deficient motion to intervene is sufficient to satisfy the 21-day deadline of ORS 197.830(7)(a) when an acceptable motion to intervene is subsequently filed and there is no prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. Griffin v. Jackson County, 40 Or LUBA 584 (2001).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An amended motion to intervene that attempts to add an intervenor will not be granted as to that additional intervenor, absent some argument that the additional intervenor was prevented from independently intervening in the appeal within the statutory deadline. Griffin v. Jackson County, 40 Or LUBA 584 (2001).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Petitioners are entitled to rely on a Board order extending the time to file a petition for review, notwithstanding that the order was issued without the written agreement of all parties, where no party's substantial rights are prejudiced by the extension of time. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 573 (2001).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. LUBA's rules do not require that we automatically provide copies of all pleadings and orders that were filed and issued before a party's motion to intervene is received. Pereira v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 760 (2001).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a motion to intervene has been filed and served but not yet received by LUBA and the parties, and an order extending the deadline for filing the petition for review is entered based on the mistaken understanding that all parties consent to the extension, the intervening party may thereafter object to the extension and is entitled to have the original deadline for filing the petition for review reestablished, if that can be done without prejudicing petitioner's substantial right to rely on the deadline that was established in the order. Pereira v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 760 (2001).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Persons who appeared during local proceedings may intervene in a LUBA appeal on the side of respondent without demonstrating that the appeal will result in any actual damage or harm. Wynnyk v. Jackson County, 39 Or LUBA 500 (2001).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. When an intervening party is aware that the record has been filed, but fails to obtain a copy of the record in time to object and does not demonstrate why such a failure justifies a further delay in the appeal, untimely objections to the record will be rejected. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 938 (2000).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Failure to file a notice to intervene within the 21-day period prescribed by ORS 197.830(7) does not require that intervention be denied where the petitioner did not serve the notice of intent to appeal on intervenor until 53 days after the notice was filed with LUBA. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 932 (2000).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where the local government mailed a copy of the decision to the applicant, and petitioners timely served a notice of intent to appeal on the applicant, the fact that the applicant's attorney did not receive a copy of either the decision or the notice of intent to appeal does not allow the applicant to file his motion to intervene beyond the 21-day deadline imposed by ORS 197.830(6). Slusser v. Polk County, 37 Or LUBA 1062 (2000).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where proceedings are pending before a lower body, a decision of the governing body to decline review of the lower body's decision in advance of that lower body's decision either (1) is not properly viewed as a separate land use decision, making a separate appearance by intervenors unnecessary, or (2) is so integral to the permit decision, that appearing before the planning commission satisfies the ORS 197.830(6) (1997) appearance requirement. SBA Towers, Inc. v. Linn County, 37 Or LUBA 1049 (2000).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. ORS 197.830(6)(b)(A) permits an applicant to intervene in proceedings before LUBA even if the applicant did not appear below, so long as the motion to intervene is filed within 21 days of the date the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Dowrie v. Benton County, 37 Or LUBA 998 (1999).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A motion to extend the deadline for filing a petition for review cannot be granted under OAR 661-010-0067(2) unless all parties, including intervenors, consent to the requested extension. Bauer v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 489 (2000).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A motion to intervene is not timely filed where the person seeking to intervene files the original motion to intervene with LUBA more than 21 days from the date the notice of intent to appeal is filed, notwithstanding that that person served copies of that motion on the petitioner and the local government within the 21-day period. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 36 Or LUBA 801 (1999).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where intervenor's initial request to intervene does not comply with LUBA's rules, but intervenor then files an amended motion to intervene which complies with LUBA's procedural requirements within five days of receiving notice of the technical violations, and a party opposing the intervention fails to show how that delay caused substantial prejudice, LUBA will allow intervenor to appear. Plotkin v. Washington County, 36 Or LUBA 378 (1999).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Petitioner's failure to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the applicant does not toll the 21-day period to intervene under ORS 197.830(6), where the applicant nonetheless received a copy of the notice and did not file a motion to intervene within 21 days of receiving the notice. Bowlin v. Grant County, 35 Or LUBA 776 (1998).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a person moving to intervene did not appear during local proceedings but attempts to excuse the failure to appear based on the local government's failure to provide notice, the person moving to intervene must establish that she had a right to notice. Columbia Hills Development Co. v. Columbia County, 35 Or LUBA 737 (1998).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A motion to intervene that is filed by mail within 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed is timely filed under ORS 197.830(6), notwithstanding that the motion to intervene is not received by LUBA until 27 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Marshall v. City of Yachats, 35 Or LUBA 82 (1998).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. ORS 197.830(6) requires a person moving to intervene in an appeal at LUBA to have appeared below. There is no statute analogous to ORS 197.830(3) that waives the appearance requirement for potential intervenors where the local government fails to conduct a hearing. Dornan v. Yamhill County, 34 Or LUBA 747 (1998).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. 1997 legislative amendments to ORS 197.830(6)(a) require that any person, including the applicant, who seeks to intervene in a LUBA appeal must file a motion to intervene within 21 days of the date the notice of intent to appeal is filed, notwithstanding exceptions at ORS 197.830(6)(b) that exempt applicants from the appearance requirement. Wolverton v. Crook County, 34 Or LUBA 515 (1998).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Amendments to ORS 197.830(6) that shorten the statutory deadline for filing a motion to intervene in a LUBA appeal impair the existing right to participate in an appeal. Thus, the statute applies prospectively in the absence of an expression of legislative intent to the contrary. Gutoski v. Lane County, 33 Or LUBA 866 (1997).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An appeal will be dismissed where petitioner failed to "appear" below and therefore lacks standing to appeal to LUBA. In that circumstance, the LUBA appeal will be dismissed notwithstanding the intervention as a petitioner of a party who did appear below, where that intervenor-petitioner did not also file his own timely notice of intent to appeal. Waters v. Marion County, 33 Or LUBA 751 (1997).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Although intervenor did not file a motion to intervene as soon as practicable after the notice of intent to appeal, the motion to intervene will be allowed where petitioners did not object to the delayed briefing schedule or argue that their substantial rights were affected by the delay. Roberts v. Crook County, 33 Or LUBA 267 (1997).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Failure to file a motion to intervene on the side of respondent "as soon as practicable after the notice of intent to appeal is filed," as required by OAR 661-10-050(2), is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that does not affect the parties' substantial rights, if intervenors' response brief is timely filed and the appeal is not delayed due to the filing of the motion to intervene. Testa v. Clackamas County, 29 Or LUBA 577 (1995).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. It is not necessary for a party who filed a motion to intervene before a decision was withdrawn for reconsideration to refile its motion to intervene, or file a second motion to intervene, if an original notice of intent to appeal is refiled, or an amended notice of intent to appeal is filed, after the decision on reconsideration is filed with LUBA. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 29 Or LUBA 39 (1995).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An appearance by a person before a local government on behalf of an artificial entity does not, of itself, constitute an appearance on behalf of each individual member of that entity. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 763 (1994).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. If a person moving to intervene in a LUBA appeal does not contend (1) the local government failed to follow statutorily required procedures in making the challenged decision and such failure prevented movant from being able to appear below, or (2) the local government improperly refused to allow movant to appear below, the appearance requirement of ORS 197.830(6)(b) is not obviated. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 763 (1994).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a motion to intervene is challenged, the motion will be denied if the movant does not support the motion with an affidavit, record citations or other proof establishing the movant's right to intervene, as required by OAR 661-10-050(2)(b). Noble v. City of Fairview, 28 Or LUBA 711 (1994).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Being the owner of the property that is the subject of a LUBA appeal proceeding does not automatically establish that person's standing to intervene. Noble v. City of Fairview, 28 Or LUBA 711 (1994).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A respondent or intervenor-respondent wishing to challenge some aspect of a land use decision in a LUBA appeal must either file a timely cross-petition for review or file a separate appeal. Cross assignments of error may not be included in a respondent's brief. Brentmar v. Jackson County, 27 Or LUBA 453 (1994).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a movant's standing to intervene is challenged and a movant fails to support the motion to intervene "with affidavits, citations to the record or other proof," as required by OAR 661-10-050(2)(b), the motion to intervene will be denied. Brentmar v. Jackson County, 26 Or LUBA 651 (1994).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. LUBA's rules require that artificial persons such as special districts appear in LUBA appeals through an attorney. Where a motion to intervene is filed on behalf of a special district by a person who is not an attorney, the motion will be denied. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 26 Or LUBA 631 (1994).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a local government refused to allow a person to appear during the proceedings below, that person has standing to intervene in a LUBA appeal to challenge the local government's determination that he not be allowed to appear. However, if the person does not successfully challenge the local government's refusal to allow an appearance below, his motion to intervene will be denied. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 26 Or LUBA 619 (1993).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. That a person moving to intervene in an appeal at LUBA failed to object to a local government's decision not to allow that person to present testimony is not fatal to that person's assertion of standing to intervene, where two other persons objected below to the local government's decision to limit testimony. Sorte v. City of Newport, 25 Or LUBA 828 (1993).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a local government denies a person the right to present testimony on her own behalf, that person "appeared" within the meaning of ORS 197.830(6) and OAR 661-10-050(1), at least for the purpose of challenging the local government's decision to limit testimony. Sorte v. City of Newport, 25 Or LUBA 828 (1993).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An intervenor-respondent's delay in filing a motion to intervene does not prejudice the rights of any party and provides no basis for denying the motion to intervene, where the appeal proceedings are suspended by a pending motion for evidentiary hearing and the time for filing the respondents' briefs has not yet expired. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 25 Or LUBA 816 (1993).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. OAR 661-10-075(3) allows both respondents and intervenors-respondent to file cross petitions for review. Cross petitions for review are not limited to the issues raised in petitioners' petition for review; any appropriate issue may be raised. Reusser v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 652 (1993).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where LUBA has granted a motion to intervene, and LUBA's final decision is subsequently remanded by the appellate courts, the intervenor does not lose its party status in the proceeding before LUBA on remand simply because it did not participate as a party in the appellate court proceedings. Columbia Steel Castings Co. v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 640 (1993).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a challenged decision does not purport to amend an acknowledged plan or land use regulation, the requirement of ORS 197.610(1) for notice to DLCD of a proposed post-acknowledgment amendment is not applicable. In such circumstances, a local government's failure to give DLCD the notice required by ORS 197.610(1) does not obviate the appearance requirement of ORS 197.830(6)(b) for intervention by DLCD in an appeal before LUBA. Heceta Water District v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 402 (1993).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. The requirement of ORS 197.830(6)(b) that a person wishing to intervene in an appeal at LUBA have appeared during the local government proceedings is obviated where a city fails to observe statutory notice and hearing requirements of ORS 227.173 and 227.175 prior to issuing the challenged decision granting approval for a permit. Hood River Sand v. City of Mosier, 24 Or LUBA 604 (1992).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. An allegation that an intervenor failed to appear in the proceedings below cannot be resolved until the content of the record of the proceedings below is known. Therefore, a motion to deny intervention based on a failure to appear below, which is filed prior to the settling of the local record, is not untimely. Terra v. City of Newport, 24 Or LUBA 579 (1992).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a motion to intervene and intervenors' response brief were filed six days after respondents' briefs were due and were received by petitioners one week before oral argument, and intervenors' brief does not raise new issues warranting the filing of a reply brief, petitioners' substantial right to prepare and submit their case was not prejudiced by the untimely filing. Alliance for Resp. Land Use v. Deschutes County, 23 Or LUBA 476 (1992).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a motion to intervene is filed three months after the notice of intent to appeal, with no explanation for why the motion was not filed earlier, the motion to intervene is not filed "as soon as practicable after the Notice of Intent to Appeal is filed," as required by OAR 661-10-050(2). Rhyne v. Multnomah

County, 23 Or LUBA 703 (1992).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. OAR 661-10-050(3)(b) requires that intervenors-respondent file their brief within the time provided for filing the respondent's brief. Where the time for filing the respondent's brief is extended beyond the 42-day deadline established by OAR 661-10-035, intervenors-respondent are entitled to the same extension under OAR 661-10-050(3)(b). Rhyne v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 703 (1992).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where intervenors' delay in filing their motion to intervene and brief results in no delay of the appeal and no prejudice to petitioners' substantial rights, the failures to file a timely motion to intervene and brief are technical violations of LUBA's rules and provide no basis for denying the requested intervention. Rhyne v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 703 (1992).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where a county has never entered into any cooperative agreements with special districts pursuant to ORS 197.185(2), what such a cooperative agreement might contain is entirely speculative and, therefore, the lack of such an agreement between the county and a district does not render inapplicable the ORS 197.830(6)(b)(B) "appearance" requirement for intervention in an appeal of a district decision. Adkins v. Heceta Water District, 22 Or LUBA 840 (1992).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. If no petition for review has yet been filed with LUBA, a motion to intervene is not untimely under ORS 197.830(6)(a). Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Filing a motion to intervene within one month of receiving a copy of the notice of intent to appeal and within one week of transmittal of the local record to LUBA complies with the requirement of OAR 661-10-050(2) that a motion to intervene be filed "as soon as is practicable." Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Failure to file a motion to intervene "as soon as is practicable after the Notice of Intent to Appeal is filed," is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and does not affect LUBA's review unless the filing of the motion itself delays the review proceeding or denies the other parties a reasonable time to prepare and submit their cases or a fair hearing. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Under OAR 661-10-050(1), an intervenor becomes a party to the appeal proceeding before LUBA when the motion to intervene is filed. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where no local hearings are conducted and no notice of the proceeding is provided, it is not possible to appear before the local decision maker and, consequently, it is unnecessary for a potential intervenor to have "appeared" below, as required by ORS 197.830(6)(b), to have standing to intervene in an appeal to LUBA. Weeks v. City of Tillamook, 22 Or LUBA 797 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. That a person is named as an applicant in both the application and the local government decision is sufficient to establish that person is an "applicant of record" entitled to service of the notice of intent to appeal under ORS 197.730(8) and, therefore, has standing to intervene under ORS 197.830(6)(b)(A). Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 606 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Neither statutes nor LUBA rules establish an exact deadline for filing a motion to intervene. A motion to intervene filed four days after the respondent's brief is filed is not untimely where the movant is an applicant of record who was not served with the notice of intent to appeal as required by ORS 197.830(8). Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 606 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. LUBA will not consider letters from intervenors-petitioner which "support" the petitioners' petition for review, but do not comply with the requirements of LUBA's rules for an intervenor-petitioner's brief. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 600 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A letter stating an intervenor-petitioner "adopts" another party's petition for review as its own brief can satisfy the requirements of OAR 661-10-050(3)(a) for filing an intervenor-petitioner's brief, if (1) the "adopted" petition for review is properly filed, and (2) the intervenor-petitioner's letter is timely filed and served on the other parties. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 600 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A motion to intervene, filed along with the intervenor-respondent's brief on the last day for filing a respondent's brief, will be allowed where there is no prejudice to petitioner caused by the delay in moving to intervene. Greuner v. Lane County, 21 Or LUBA 329 (1991).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A department of local government may be recognized as an "applicant" for purposes of acquiring the right to intervene in an appeal proceeding before LUBA under ORS 197.830(6)(b)(A). Choban v. Washington County, 20 Or LUBA 508 (1990).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. A motion to intervene in a LUBA proceeding which is filed five months after the notice of intent to appeal was filed is untimely under OAR 661-10-050(2). If the movant's brief is not filed until two days after oral argument, providing the other parties an opportunity to respond to that brief would delay the issuance of LUBA's final opinion. Under these circumstances, the tardy filing of the motion to intervene is not an excusable technical violation of LUBA's rules under OAR 661-10-005. Beck v. City of Tillamook, 20 Or LUBA 178 (1990).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Where the movant's participation below was limited to his role as a decision maker, such participation is not sufficient to constitute an appearance before the local government, and LUBA will deny the motion to intervene. Cecil v. City of Jacksonville, 19 Or LUBA 446 (1990).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Petitioner's motion to deny intervenor status, filed four days after a LUBA order determining the content of the local record was issued, is timely because, regardless of when a motion to intervene is filed, failure of the movant to participate in the proceedings below cannot be determined until it is known what the local record includes. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 19 Or LUBA 537 (1990).

27.7.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Intervenor/Participant. Even if a motion to intervene is not filed "as soon as is practicable after the Notice of Intent to Appeal is filed," as required by OAR 661-10-050(2), it will be granted if allowing intervention will not affect the briefing schedule or delay issuance of LUBA's final opinion. OAR 661-10-005. Columbia Steel Castings Co. v. City of Portland, 19 Or LUBA 479 (1990).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. While the typical amicus is a person or organization that has no direct interest in the matter but is in possession of views or perspectives that may assist LUBA to correctly decide the legal issues, LUBA will grant a motion to appear as amicus from the jurisdiction with land use approval authority over the subject property where no party objects to the motion. Schaefer v. OAB, 81 Or LUBA 1053 (2020).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. LUBA will deny a motion from an applicant who missed the deadline to intervene in an appeal to participate as an amicus because such participation would effectively allow that applicant to participate as an intervenor-respondent and file what is in effect a response brief to the petition for review, without meeting the statutory deadline for intervention and without payment of an intervenor fee as set out in ORS 197.830(7)(a). VanSickle v. Klamath County, 77 Or LUBA 588 (2018).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. LUBA will generally not consider new defenses raised solely in an amicus brief. VanSickle v. Klamath County, 77 Or LUBA 588 (2018).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. To preserve the legislative intent in requiring timely intervention, LUBA has generally declined to grant amicus participation to interested parties to the proceedings below who simply missed the deadline to intervene, and who argue only that LUBA's review would be aided by their participation because they are interested parties. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 77 Or LUBA 597 (2018).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. In circumstances where the respondent has informed LUBA that it does not intend to file a response brief, a movant to appear as amicus must still establish that LUBA's review would be "significantly aided" by the movant's participation as amicus, and that briefing would not be delayed. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 77 Or LUBA 597 (2018).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. In a case regarding a proposed solar energy project, LUBA will allow the participation of a trade association as amicus pursuant to OAR 661-010-0052, where the trade association was founded for the purpose of promoting solar energy, and where some of its members are utility scale solar developers. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Jackson County, 76 Or LUBA 488 (2017).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. LUBA will deny a motion to file an amicus brief for an applicant, who failed to file a motion to intervene in an appeal, where participation by proposed amicus would delay the established briefing schedule, require rescheduling oral argument, and require a corresponding extension of the statutory deadline for issuing LUBA's final opinion and order set out in ORS 197.830(14). KanDu Ranch, LLC v. Jackson County, 72 Or LUBA 454 (2015).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. To preserve the legislative intent in requiring participants to the proceedings below to timely intervene in appeals to LUBA, LUBA has generally declined to grant amicus status to interested parties who simply missed the statutory deadline to intervene in the appeal. A significant exception is where the respondent informs LUBA that it does not intend to file a response brief, and absent amicus participation no brief responding to the petition for review would be filed at all, and LUBA would have to resolve the appeal based solely on the petition for review. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Jefferson County, 62 Or LUBA 530 (2010).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. Where the respondent indicates it intends to file a response brief, LUBA will deny a motion to appear as amicus from an interested party who failed to file a timely motion to intervene, absent a demonstration that the respondent's brief will not adequately respond to the petition for review or otherwise that the amicus brief would significantly aid LUBA's review. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Jefferson County, 62 Or LUBA 530 (2010).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. Where the sole basis asserted to appear as amicus is the intent to present additional legal arguments in support of a party's assignments of error, but those arguments are not presented by any other party to the appeal, the amicus motion will be denied because LUBA will not remand a decision based on legal arguments not presented by a party to the appeal. Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition v. Coos County, 55 Or LUBA 705 (2007).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. LUBA has significant discretion under OAR 661-010-0052 in determining when amicus participation will assist the Board's review. LUBA will allow the applicant to appear as amicus, where the applicant filed a response brief and appeared at oral argument, but the motion to intervene was not denied until LUBA's final opinion, due to the petitioner's late objection to the timeliness of the motion to intervene. Rose v. City of Corvallis, 49 Or LUBA 260 (2005).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. The fact that a potential amicus could have intervened in an appeal, but did not, does not prevent participation as an amicus. Nelson v. Curry County, 48 Or LUBA 178 (2004).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. The deadline for filing a motion to appear as an amicus is not a deadline that is rigidly enforced. Filing the motion to appear as amicus one day late, when the amicus brief was timely filed, does not prejudice other parties' substantial rights. Nelson v. Curry County, 48 Or LUBA 178 (2004).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. An amicus' assertion that it can knowledgeably discuss the history, legislative intent, and policy behind the approval criteria is sufficient to significantly aid LUBA's review. Nelson v. Curry County, 48 Or LUBA 178 (2004).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. A property owner's "specific and narrow interest" in property is not sufficient by itself to show that LUBA's review would be significantly aided by the property owner's participation as an amicus. Cotter v. Clackamas County, 35 Or LUBA 749 (1998).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. That LUBA will have only the perspective of the petitioner for review is always the case where the local government fails to respond and no party moves to intervene, and is not a valid reason by itself to delay the appeal so that an amicus brief may be filed. Krieger v. Wallowa County, 35 Or LUBA 742 (1998).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. LUBA's rules do not provide for the filing of motions or responses to motions by an amicus. Accordingly, LUBA will not consider any submissions of an amicus other than a brief. Lewis v. City of Portland, 31 Or LUBA 513 (1996).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. Except as provided in 197.830(13)(b), LUBA's review is limited to the local government record. A motion to participate as an amicus will be denied where the only reason stated for the request is to present expert testimony and other evidence that is not included in the local government record. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 26 Or LUBA 647 (1994).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. OAR 661-10-052(1) does not bar persons or organizations representing a private interest from appearing as an amicus in a LUBA appeal proceeding. Adkins v. Heceta Water District, 23 Or LUBA 207 (1992).

27.7.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Amicus. OAR 661-10-052, authorizing amicus participation in LUBA proceedings, does not result in amici becoming parties to the appeal. Consequently, OAR 661-10-052 does not allow party status to a person in violation of ORS 197.830. Tuality Lands Coalition v. Washington County, 22 Or LUBA 781 (1991).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. Pursuant to OAR 661-010-0075(6), each individual before LUBA must either appear on his or her own behalf or be represented by an attorney. LUBA's rules do not authorize one unrepresented party to file pleadings, motions and affidavits presenting legal arguments and factual assertions intended to support the standing of another unrepresented party. Conte v. City of Eugene, 76 Or LUBA 498 (2017).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. The unrepresented lead petitioner in an appeal to LUBA cannot file a motion on behalf of another unrepresented petitioner seeking the other petitioner's withdrawal from the appeal. Frewing v. City of Portland, 73 Or LUBA 392 (2016).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. OAR 661-010-0075(6), which prohibits representation of a party by someone other than an active member of the Oregon State Bar, is not violated by allowing an out-of-state lawyer to appear in a LUBA proceeding pro hac vice to assist local counsel. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 490 (2013).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A motion to appear pro hac vice before LUBA is governed by Uniform Trial Court Rule (UTCR) 3.170, which requires an applicant that is subject to pending disciplinary proceedings in another state provide a description of the nature and status of any pending proceedings, so that LUBA can resolve disputes regarding whether the appearance is not in the best interest of LUBA or the parties. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 490 (2013).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. LUBA will deny an opposed motion to appear pro hac vice under Uniform Trial Court Rule (UTCR) 3.170, where an applicant who is subject to a pending disciplinary proceeding fails to provide a description of the nature and status of the proceeding, as UTCR 3.170 requires, and only offers to provide that description under a protective order, where allowing a belated attempt to comply with UTCR 3.170 would significantly delay LUBA's review proceeding. STOP, LLC v. City of West Linn, 67 Or LUBA 490 (2013).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. Under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b)(A) and 661-010-0075(7), multiple unrepresented petitioners must designate a lead petitioner who will accept service of documents for all petitioners and notify the other unrepresented petitioners of any documents or communications the lead petitioner receives from LUBA or the parties. But each unrepresented petitioner remains responsible for his or her own representation, and the lead petitioner may not take positions for the other unrepresented petitioners. Warren v. Josephine County, 65 Or LUBA 485 (2012).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. When a notice of intent to appeal (NITA) is filed on behalf of a "corporation or other organization" by a person who is not an active member of the Oregon State Bar and LUBA allows seven days for an attorney to file an amended NITA, failure to file an amended NITA within that time requires dismissal of the appeal. Sending a letter stating that an attorney will represent the corporation or organization is not a sufficient substitute for filing an amended NITA. Waluga Neighborhood Association v. City of Lake Oswego, 59 Or LUBA 380 (2009).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A Notice of Intent to Appeal that names a non-attorney as the representative of a petitioner that is a neighborhood association must be amended within the time set forth by LUBA. Where a petitioner does not file an amended Notice of Intent to Appeal within the time set forth in LUBA's letter to petitioner, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Russell Neighborhood Assoc. v. City of Portland, 58 Or LUBA 397 (2009).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. Absent authority in LUBA's governing statutes or elsewhere for LUBA to disqualify an attorney and his law firm from representing a party before LUBA, the Board will deny a motion to disqualify the attorney and law firm based on alleged violations of the Oregon Rules of Professional Conduct. Dahlen v. City of Bend, 56 Or LUBA 789 (2008).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. Under OAR 661-010-0075(6), a county may only appear in a LUBA appeal through an attorney. Where the county attorney advises LUBA that the county will not participate in an appeal, and the county planning department latter provides LUBA with a copy of its letter responding to the petitioner's record objections, LUBA will not treat that letter as the county's response to petitioner's record objections. SOPIP v. Coos County, 56 Or LUBA 802 (2008).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. All petitioners who are not represented by an attorney must represent themselves in a LUBA appeal. Neither a lead petitioner nor any other individual petitioner may present arguments or file documents on behalf of other unrepresented petitioners. Gillette v. Lane County, 51 Or LUBA 823 (2006).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A lead intervenor is designated for service of documents only where two or more unrepresented intervenors join in a single motion to intervene. Where multiple unrepresented intervenors each file their own motion to intervene, there is no lead intervenor. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 708 (2005).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A pro se intervenor may not file a motion on behalf of prospective unrepresented intervenors to seek additional time for filing motions to intervene. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 708 (2005).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. Absent state or local requirements to the contrary, individuals may appear on behalf of other individuals or artificial entities in local land use proceedings. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. Cityof Veneta, 50 Or LUBA 745 (2005).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. Unless some challenge is made and some reason presented to question a person's claim that he or she is appearing on behalf of another person, an allegation to that effect is sufficient, provided the allegation adequately identifies the person he or she is appearing for. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 50 Or LUBA 745 (2005).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A person's allegation that he is appearing on behalf of a citizen organization's "membership in [the city] and surrounding area" is not sufficient to constitute an appearance on behalf of individual members of the organization. A more precise delineation of the represented persons is required to identify those persons adequately so that the city or any other party who might have grounds for challenging those appearances could do so. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 50 Or LUBA 745 (2005).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A person who is not an active member of the Oregon State Bar may not sign a petition for review on behalf of individual petitioners. Roe v. City of Union, 45 Or LUBA 736 (2003).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A motion to intervene filed by an unrepresented organization, stating that the organization will soon be represented by an attorney, will be denied where no attorney appears on behalf of the organization and the organization fails to respond to a challenge to its status as intervenor. Stahl v. Tillamook County, 43 Or LUBA 623 (2002).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. A cost bill filed on behalf of a local government must be filed by the local government's attorney. A cost bill filed on behalf of a local government by someone other than a member of the Oregon State Bar will be denied. Marine Street LLC v. City of Astoria, 37 Or LUBA 1018 (2000).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. Parties other than individuals may only appear at LUBA through a member of the Oregon State Bar. Homebuilders Association v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 991 (1999).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. OAR 661-10-075(6) requires a local government to be represented by an attorney in a LUBA appeal. Therefore, a local government's notice of withdrawal of the challenged decision, pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b), is properly submitted by the local government's attorney. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. LUBA is not authorized to reject a document filed on behalf of a represented party because the attorney filing the document did not first obtain specific authority from that party to file the document. Gettman v. City of Bay City, 28 Or LUBA 121 (1994).

27.7.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Parties – Representation. No party to a LUBA proceeding may be represented by someone who is not an attorney. OAR 661-10-075(6). Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 600 (1991).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. Consolidation of appeals does not permit a petitioner who is not a petitioner in both appeals to file a petition for review in the appeal in which he is not a party, and that person's signature on a "Joint Petition for Review" does not make that person a petitioner or other party entitled to file a petition for review in the other appeal. Willis v. Clackamas County, 76 Or LUBA 479 (2017).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. LUBA will ignore incorporations of assignments of errors in other petitions for review that cause the incorporating petition to exceed the maximum page limits. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 360 (2013).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. LUBA's rules do not authorize a person who is a party in one appeal to file a motion in a different, consolidated appeal to which that person is not a party. Consolidation does not change party status. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. While incorporation of arguments in another brief in a consolidated appeal is a common practice, such incorporation is permissible only if it does not cause the incorporating brief to exceed the 50 page limit in OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b). Even if such an incorporation does not violate OAR 661-010-0030(2)(b), the incorporation does not allow a person who is party in one appeal to file motions in a consolidated appeal to which the person is not a party. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 539 (2013).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. Where LUBA consolidates two closely related decisions, LUBA will not necessarily require the local government to file a single consolidated record, where the two decisions are based on separate applications, were largely processed separately, and the content of the two records differs significantly. Devin Oil Co., Inc. v. Morrow County, 62 Or LUBA 484 (2010).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. That two closely related decisions arising out of the same land use proceeding have different records and were filed at different times does not preclude consolidation of separate appeals of each decision, if consolidation would otherwise facilitate LUBA's review. Treadmill Joint Venture v. City of Eugene, 62 Or LUBA 538 (2010).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. Consolidation of two closely related appeals may be appropriate even if one of the two appeals will likely be dismissed, where consolidation would otherwise facilitate LUBA's review of both decisions. Treadmill Joint Venture v. City of Eugene, 62 Or LUBA 538 (2010).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. When three appeals have been consolidated and petitioners have filed three separate petitions for review, a respondent's request to file a single 114-page respondent's brief responding to all three petitions for review will be allowed. Foland v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 500 (2010).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. Where petitioners filed their motion to consolidate appeals one day after oral argument was held in one appeal and after the petition for review had been filed in the second appeal, consolidation would not facilitate resolution of the appeals and the motion will be denied. Citizens for Responsible Development v. City of The Dalles, 59 Or LUBA 369 (2009).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. Consolidation of separate appeals under LUBA's rules is a matter of administrative convenience for the parties and the Board, and does not affect the legal relations of the parties to each other or to the matters appealed. Consolidation of two appeals does not permit a person who is a petitioner in one appeal to file a response brief in the other appeal, absent filing a timely motion to intervene on the side of respondent in that other appeal. Leach v. Lane County, 45 Or LUBA 733 (2003).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. Where two appeals concern the same decision, but the petitioner in one appeal will raise different issues than the petitioner in the other appeal, LUBA will not consolidate the appeals or suspend the second appeal while the first appeal is suspended for settlement discussions, where LUBA will ultimately have to reach the issues that will be raised in the second appeal in any event and the parties in first appeal agree not to take any action that would moot the second appeal while it is still pending at LUBA. Doherty v. Morrow County, 43 Or LUBA 627 (2002).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. LUBA allows consolidations of appeals where consolidation facilitates review of separately appealed, closely related land use decisions. A motion to consolidate will be denied where it is uncertain whether consolidation will facilitate or complicate LUBA's review of the challenged decision. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 938 (2000).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. Where a different, closely related decision is not separately appealed to LUBA, LUBA has no jurisdiction to conduct a consolidated review of the decision that was not appealed as part of its review of the decision that was appealed. Jebousek v. City of Newport, 34 Or LUBA 340 (1998).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-015(1) and (4) require that a notice of intent to appeal be accompanied by a filing fee of 50 dollars and a deposit for costs of 150 dollars. LUBA will not refund filing fees or deposits for costs when appeals are consolidated. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 23 Or LUBA 715 (1992).

27.8 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Consolidation. The purpose of LUBA's rule allowing appeals of closely related land use decisions to be consolidated is to facilitate review of such decisions. A motion to consolidate appeals of closely related land use decisions will be denied where it is uncertain whether consolidation will facilitate or complicate LUBA's review of the challenged decisions. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 23 Or LUBA 696 (1992).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. A county's claim that the issuance of a stay would violate its constitutionally protected property rights by creating a pesticide spray buffer on county property misapprehends the underlying legal issue where the proposed stay seeks to stop construction in order to prevent probable, irreparable harm to a petitioner's property, not to authorize the petitioner to take any action that would affect the county's property rights. Schrepel v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1067 (2020).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. LUBA will grant an interim stay of a challenged decision pending the local government's response to the petitioner's motion for stay where the motion alleges that, if the stay is not granted, (1) irreparable injury from construction authorized by the challenged decision will occur to wetlands and/or a riparian area, and a salmonid-bearing stream; (2) irreparable injury will occur to the petitioner due to the presence of construction workers adjacent to the petitioner's farm and the consequent prohibition on the petitioner spraying pesticides on certain areas of their farm due to pesticide labeling requirements; and (3) the petitioner will be harmed by litter and trash from construction activities adjacent to their farm entering his farm, contaminating their hazelnut crop, and jeopardizing their U.S. Department of Agriculture food safety certifications. Van Dyke v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1032 (2020).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Where a petitioner moves to stay a decision that rezones property from Open Space/Public to Urban High Density Residential and limits the uses that may be approved on a portion of the property, even if LUBA (1) assumes that the property contains irreplaceable trees and natural resources; (2) assumes that a site plan review application is pending before the city that would allow development of housing on the property, including tree removal; (3) concludes that the petitioner has adequately specified the injury they will suffer and that the injury is one that cannot be compensated adequately in money damages; and (4) assumes that the injury is substantial and unreasonable, LUBA will deny the motion for stay where the decision itself does not allow any development or tree removal and where the petitioner has not established that destruction of any trees is probable, rather than merely threatened or feared, in the absence of a stay. Crowley v. City of Hood River, 80 Or LUBA 1008 (2019).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. OAR 661-010-0068 does not provide authority for LUBA to stay an appeal that has been filed at LUBA. Rather, OAR 661-010-0068 provides authority for LUBA to grant a stay of the challenged land use decision or limited land use decision during the pendency of the LUBA appeal, if LUBA determines in its discretion that the requirements of the rule are satisfied. Altamont Homeowners' Association v. City of Happy Valley, 76 Or LUBA 459 (2017).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. A motion for stay must include a statement of facts and reasons for issuing a stay, demonstrating a colorable claim of error and specifying how the movant will suffer irreparable injury if a stay is not granted. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 71 Or LUBA 409 (2015).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. LUBA does not have the authority to stay a decision that is not the subject of an appeal. Central Oregon Landwatch v. City of Bend, 66 Or LUBA 448 (2012).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. The fact a federal agency has issued a special use permit for construction of a project on federal land or that a state agency has issued a permit for work in wetlands does not prevent LUBA from exercising the authority that the legislature has given to LUBA to stay a local government land use decision, or specific portions of a land use decision. Central Oregon Landwatch v. City of Bend, 66 Or LUBA 448 (2012).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. LUBA will not grant a motion for expedited briefing on a motion for stay where it appears the motion for stay is not likely to be granted, because the motion for stay does not adequately establish that the challenged decision falls under the ORS 197.015(10) definition of "land use decision" and it appears that the notice of intent to appeal may not have been timely filed. Nyman v. City of Hillsboro, 59 Or LUBA 533 (2009).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Allegations that blowing soil from grading activities will disturb neighbors and impede traffic are inadequate to demonstrate that petitioner will suffer irreparable injury if the stay is not granted. Allegations that the same activities will irreparably harm migrating wildlife are unfounded, where the record indicates that the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife found that a conditional use permit for a non-farm dwelling complies with the county's Goal 5 ordinance. Ott v. Lake County, 53 Or LUBA 633 (2007).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Where respondents' response to a motion for stay include a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, petitioners are entitled under LUBA's rules to 14 days to respond in writing to the jurisdictional challenge. However, where the motion for stay is sought to stop excavation and grading that will be completed within a few days and LUBA agrees with respondents that petitioners fail to demonstrate that the excavation and grading will result in irreparable injury, LUBA will issue an order on the motion for stay in advance of petitioners' written response to respondents' jurisdictional challenge. Jaqua v. City of Springfield, 45 Or LUBA 713 (2003).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Absent some law to the contrary, appeal to LUBA does not have the effect of staying the appealed permit decision or tolling a one-year expiration period imposed on the permit by local rule. Rest Haven Memorial Park v. City of Eugene, 44 Or LUBA 231 (2003).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Demonstration of irreparable injury generally requires a showing that, if a stay is not granted, the decision will authorize destruction or injury of unique historic or natural resources, or other interests that cannot be practicably restored or adequately compensated for once injured or destroyed. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 577 (2002).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Petitioners fail to demonstrate that failure to stay proposed development of condominiums on a golf course will cause irreparable injury, where there is undisputed evidence that, if petitioner prevails, any construction can be removed and the site restored to a golf course fairway. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 577 (2002).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. LUBA lacks statutory authority to render an advisory determination that code amendments adopted in the challenged land use decision are not effective. Whatever authority LUBA has to impact the effectiveness of such amendments, pending issuance of LUBA's final decision on the appeal, can only be exercised in the context of a motion to stay under ORS 197.845. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 41 Or LUBA 553 (2001).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. ORS 197.845(3) authorizes an award of attorney fees when a quasi-judicial decision for which a stay has been granted is affirmed by LUBA. However, the attorney fees recoverable under ORS 197.845(3) are limited to attorney fees related to the stay. Walton v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 829 (1998).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. ORS 197.845(3) authorizes an award of attorney fees when a quasi-judicial decision for which a stay has been granted is affirmed by LUBA. Where LUBA dismisses the appeal, an award of attorney fees is not authorized by ORS 197.845(3). Walton v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 829 (1998).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. LUBA does not have authority to stay a decision that is not the subject of an appeal. LUBA cannot preclude a local government from making a land use decision, even when the anticipated decision will address issues that arise from a decision that is being challenged before the Board. Dept. of Transportation v. Douglas County, 34 Or LUBA 720 (1998).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Once LUBA has issued a "final order" pursuant to ORS 197.830(14), review jurisdiction rests with the Court of Appeals, and LUBA will dissolve a previously issued stay of a challenged local government decision. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 335 (1995).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. That vacant historic buildings are in poor condition with regard to plumbing, wiring and exterior paint, and are difficult to protect from trespass and vandalism, does not present a sufficient threat to public health and safety for LUBA to exercise its discretion under ORS 197.845(1) to deny an otherwise warranted stay of a challenged decision allowing the historic buildings to be demolished. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 581 (1995).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. LUBA will not deny an otherwise meritorious stay of a challenged decision solely because the applicant alleges it will suffer economic harm due to delay, especially where at least some of applicant's damages are self-inflicted, in that applicant made financial commitments dependent on land use approval before obtaining final local government land use approval. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 581 (1995).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Judicial review of LUBA decisions is governed solely by ORS 197.850. ORS 197.850 does not authorize LUBA to consider petitions for reconsideration or to stay its final opinions and orders. DLCD v. Klamath County, 26 Or LUBA 589 (1993).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Under ORS 197.845(1) and OAR 661-10-068(1)(c), LUBA is authorized to stay a land use decision pending its review if petitioner demonstrates (1) a colorable claim of error in the decision under review, and (2) that petitioner will suffer irreparable injury if the stay is not granted. Marson v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 804 (1991).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. Absent a stay, an appealed local government decision remains valid and effective during review by LUBA and the appellate courts, until a final appellate judgment reversing or remanding the decision is issued. Blatt v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 337 (1991).

27.9.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Generally. LUBA is authorized to stay a land use decision pending review, if the petitioner demonstrates (1) a colorable claim of error in the decision under review, and (2) that the petitioner will suffer irreparable injury if the requested stay is not granted. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 19 Or LUBA 561 (1990).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. Where petitioners intend to argue that the county failed to apply required land use standards, failed to make necessary findings, and failed to follow the proper procedure, a colorable claim of error in support of a motion for stay has been established. Schrepel v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1067 (2020).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. Arguments that a county hearings officer erred by (1) applying a judicial rule of strict construction in finding an applicant does not have a legal nonconforming asphalt plant, (2) misconstruing ORS 215.130 by failing to consider whether with conditions the asphalt plant would have no greater adverse impacts than the legal, nonconforming concrete plant it replaced, and (3) adopting material findings of fact that are not supported by substantial evidence, are sufficient to satisfy the "colorable claim of error" prong of ORS 197.845(1). Meyer v. Jackson County, 72 Or LUBA 462 (2015).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. An argument that a condition of approval limiting noise from a wind energy facility is inconsistent with an administrative rule governing wind energy facilities presents a colorable claim of error, where reasonable attorneys could disagree on what the meaning of the condition. Mingo v. Morrow County, 63 Or LUBA 515 (2011).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. A petitioner may rely on arguments made in the petition for review to establish that there is a colorable claim of error. Examilotis v. Coos County, 55 Or LUBA 675 (2007).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. An allegation that a tentative plan approval was placed on inactive status, was never removed from inactive status, and that the time period for reactivating an inactive plan has expired is sufficient to demonstrate a colorable claim of error even when the local government treats the tentative plan as if it had never been placed on inactive status. Butte Conservancy v. City of Gresham, 47 Or LUBA 604 (2004).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. When a petitioner files a petition for review concurrently with a motion for stay, the assignments of error set forth a basis for reversal or remand, and the respondent does not respond to those arguments, the petitioner has demonstrated a colorable claim or error for purposes of a stay. Roads End Sanitary District v. City of Lincoln City, 47 Or LUBA 645 (2004).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. Petitioners establish a colorable claim of error for purposes of ORS 197.845(1)(a) where they show that the county's notice of decision did not mention two arguably applicable zoning code provisions, and contend that the county failed to address applicable approval standards. Hallberg v. Clackamas County, 31 Or LUBA 577 (1996).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. Petitioner's contention that a local government erred by failing to adopt findings addressing certain comprehensive plan and code provisions demonstrates a colorable claim of error, if petitioner's arguments that these plan and code provisions apply to a local government decision regarding approval of a demolition permit are not devoid of legal merit. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 565

(1995).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. Although ORS 197.845 does not require that LUBA limit the effect of a stay of a quasi-judicial land use decision, LUBA may limit the effect of such a stay to the particular geographic area or particular provisions of the stayed decision for which colorable claim of error and irreparable harm have been shown. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 27 Or LUBA 679 (1994).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. To satisfy the requirement of ORS 197.845(1)(a) that petitioners demonstrate a "colorable claim of error," petitioners do not need to establish that they will prevail on the merits. Rather, the alleged errors must be sufficient, if sustained, to result in reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Western Pacific Development v. City of Brookings, 21 Or LUBA 537 (1991).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. To satisfy the requirement of ORS 197.845(1)(a) that petitioners demonstrate a "colorable claim of error," petitioners do not need to establish that they will prevail on the merits. Provided petitioners' arguments are not devoid of legal merit, it is sufficient that the errors alleged, if sustained, would result in reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Barr v. City of Portland, 20 Or LUBA 511 (1990).

27.9.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Colorable Claim of Error. To demonstrate a "colorable claim of error," it is unnecessary for petitioners to establish that they will prevail on the merits. Rather, the alleged errors must be sufficient, if sustained, to result in reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Thurston Hills Neigh. Assoc. v. Springfield, 19 Or LUBA 591 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where a petitioner establishes that the construction of a county-approved, nonfarm use bridge on EFU-zoned property would reduce or alter their ability to apply pesticides and herbicides to their own property, likely causing protracted crop and yield loss, the petitioner has established that the county's action would cause irreparable harm sufficient to justify the issuance of a stay. Schrepel v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1067 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. LUBA will grant an interim stay of a challenged decision pending the local government's response to the petitioner's motion for stay where the motion alleges that, if the stay is not granted, (1) irreparable injury from construction authorized by the challenged decision will occur to wetlands and/or a riparian area, and a salmonid-bearing stream; (2) irreparable injury will occur to the petitioner due to the presence of construction workers adjacent to the petitioner's farm and the consequent prohibition on the petitioner spraying pesticides on certain areas of their farm due to pesticide labeling requirements; and (3) the petitioner will be harmed by litter and trash from construction activities adjacent to their farm entering his farm, contaminating their hazelnut crop, and jeopardizing their U.S. Department of Agriculture food safety certifications. Van Dyke v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1032 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A petitioner satisfies the irreparable injury prong of ORS 197.845(1)(b), for purposes of granting a stay of the challenged decision, where a county approves construction of a bridge and related trail approaches on property zoned EFU, where the petitioner farms the property adjacent to the construction site, where the petitioner alleges that the presence of construction workers and the consequent prohibition on them spraying pesticides on certain areas of their farm due to pesticide labeling requirements may cause their crops to die or result in reduced yields, and where the county responds that it intends to proceed with construction because it believes that construction of the bridge in the EFU zone does not require any land use approval. Van Dyke v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1041 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A petitioner satisfies the irreparable injury prong of ORS 197.845(1)(b), for purposes of granting a stay of the challenged decision, where a county approves construction of a bridge and related trail approaches on property zoned EFU; where the petitioner farms the property adjacent to the construction site; where the petitioner alleges that they have already been and will be further harmed by litter and trash from construction activities entering their farm, contaminating their crops, and jeopardizing their U.S. Department of Agriculture food safety certifications; where the petitioner submits a letter from a local agricultural product packer supporting their allegations; and where the county does not offer to assume responsibility for ensuring that litter will not travel onto the petitioner's farm. Van Dyke v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1041 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Under the irreparable injury prong of ORS 197.845(1)(b), for purposes of granting a stay of the challenged decision, an assumption that improvements can be removed if LUBA concludes that the construction was not properly authorized, and that a resulting injury is therefore not "irreparable," is not warranted where the funding for the construction of the improvements has been provided almost entirely by public money from other public entities, where the local government will be required to repay the public funds, where the other public entities that funded the project may object to its removal. Van Dyke v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 1041 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In the context of a decision approving an underground fiber-optic cable and buried beach manhole on property that is zoned Rural Residential 2-Acre, an argument by petitioners who live adjacent to or near the subject property that the nature of the proposed use will injure their interest in both the residential character of the neighborhood and the unique, ocean-front nature of their properties fails to satisfy the irreparable injury prong of ORS 197.845(1) where the petitioners fail to establish that the cable will have a greater impact on the residential character of the area than existing underground fiber-optic cables and above-ground power lines running under and along a nearby road. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Tillamook County, 81 Or LUBA 1013 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In the context of a decision approving an underground fiber-optic cable and buried beach manhole on property zoned Rural Residential 2-Acre, an argument by petitioners who live adjacent to or near the subject property that construction of the proposed use will require the demolition of more-than-50-year-old trees on the subject property, which will injure the petitioners' interest in the trees for aesthetic purposes as well as for protection from wind and erosion, fails to satisfy the irreparable injury prong of ORS 197.845(1) where the petitioners do not argue that any Goal-5-protected viewsheds are visible from the site or that removal of the trees will affect any protected viewsheds, where the applicant testified that the property would be restored with native vegetation, and where the decision-maker relied on a geotechnical report submitted by the applicant that included recommendations to reduce erosion potential. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Tillamook County, 81 Or LUBA 1013 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In the context of a decision approving an underground fiber-optic cable and buried beach manhole on property zoned Rural Residential 2-Acre, an argument by petitioners who live adjacent to or near the subject property that the petitioners will be injured by noise, vibrations, fumes, and traffic resulting from construction of the proposed use, some of which could damage the foundation, septic system, or walls of neighboring properties, fails to satisfy the irreparable injury prong of ORS 197.845(1) where the decision-maker found that the duration of construction will be approximately 35 days and where the applicant's geotechnical report found that "[t]he risk of vibratory damage to adjacent buildings and infrastructure located 50 feet or more from the drill rig in the center of the property should be considered low," and where the petitioners do not establish that such injuries cannot be compensated adequately in money damages. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Tillamook County, 81 Or LUBA 1013 (2020).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where a petitioner moves to stay a decision that rezones property from Open Space/Public to Urban High Density Residential and limits the uses that may be approved on a portion of the property, even if LUBA (1) assumes that the property contains irreplaceable trees and natural resources; (2) assumes that a site plan review application is pending before the city that would allow development of housing on the property, including tree removal; (3) concludes that the petitioner has adequately specified the injury they will suffer and that the injury is one that cannot be compensated adequately in money damages; and (4) assumes that the injury is substantial and unreasonable, LUBA will deny the motion for stay where the decision itself does not allow any development or tree removal and where the petitioner has not established that destruction of any trees is probable, rather than merely threatened or feared, in the absence of a stay. Crowley v. City of Hood River, 80 Or LUBA 1008 (2019).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. LUBA will stay a city decision approving the demolition of historic contributing structures when, without a stay, demolition of the three buildings could begin immediately. A designated historic district is the sum of its parts, including specific historic contributing structures. A designated historic contributing structure is irreplaceable and its destruction is irreversible and causes an injury that cannot be compensated adequately in money damages. Niederer v. City of Albany, 79 Or LUBA 1016 (2019).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where a city decision approves demolition of three "historic contributing structures" and a petitioner moves to stay the decision pending a LUBA proceeding, although arguments that the structures are "degenerated into derelicts" and have been categorized as "dangerous buildings" by the police department may go to the merits of the city's decision, they do not bear on LUBA's consideration of whether petitioner will suffer "irreparable injury" under to ORS 197.845(1) and OAR 661-010-0068 and, therefore, whether a stay should be granted. Niederer v. City of Albany, 79 Or LUBA 1016 (2019).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. The "irreparable injury to petitioner" prong is difficult to demonstrate. Generally, a stay is appropriate only if the movant demonstrates that the development will "destroy or injure unique historic or natural resources, or other interests that cannot be practicably restored or adequately compensated for once destroyed." Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 577, 583 (2002). Warren v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 1011 (2018).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In order to satisfy the "irreparable injury" prong of ORS 197.845(1), petitioner must, among other things, adequately specify the claimed irreparable injury to the petitioner. The movant must specify the following five factors: (1) the movant must adequately specify the injury that he or she will suffer; (2) the injury must be one that cannot be compensated adequately in money damages; (3) the injury must be substantial and unreasonable; (4) the conduct the movant seeks to bar must be probable rather than merely threatened or feared; and (5) if the conduct is probable, the resulting injury must be probably rather than merely threatened or feared. Butte Conservancy v. City of Gresham, 47 Or LUBA 604, 609 (2004). Warren v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 1011 (2018).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where petitioner alleges the land use decision at issue would allow for the removal of 70 percent of a mature Douglas Fir grove in petitioner's neighborhood petitioner has failed to satisfy the "irreparable injury prong" of ORS 197.845(1) where petitioner has not established that the Douglas Fir trees proposed for removal are a "unique * * * natural resource[] * * *," or that the wildlife habitat provided by the Douglas Fir trees "cannot be practicably restored[,]" or that removal of the trees is "probably rather than merely threatened or feared," where the decision imposes several conditions of approval that must be satisfied prior to commencing tree removal. Warren v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 1011 (2018).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Petitioners adequately specify irreparable injury and establish it is an injury that is probable, rather than merely feared, and cannot adequately be compensated by money damages where petitioners establish that if an Ordinance prohibiting marijuana businesses in the RR-5 zone takes effect, some petitioners will be unable to secure renewals of their existing licenses from the Oregon Liquor Control Commission (OLCC), the agency in charge of licensing marijuana businesses operating in the state, based on statements from an employee of the OLCC that the OLCC will refuse to renew OLCC licenses for existing license holders in the county if the license renewal will take effect after the date the challenged Ordinance takes effect unless the renewals are accompanied by a new Land Use Compatibility Statement (LUCS) issued by the county. Cossins v. Josephine County, 77 Or LUBA 564 (2018).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A petitioner fails to demonstrate that a decision allowing removal of significant trees would cause irreparable harm to the petitioner, where the decision protects 59 of 62 significant trees on the site, and the three trees to be removed are hazardous trees. Dodds v. City of West Linn, 74 Or LUBA 605 (2016).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Grading and excavation activities are generally reversible, and are not in themselves activities that cause the irreparable harm that is necessary to warrant the stay of a land use decision. Dodds v. City of West Linn, 74 Or LUBA 605 (2016).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A movant fails to establish irreparable injury in the absence of a stay due to 30 days of exposure to dust and particulate matter generated by a mining operation, based on documents that only establish that long-term exposure to pollution and particulate matter can have serious impacts on respiratory health. Dion v. Baker County, 72 Or LUBA 449 (2015).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where a county appears to have relied on a hearings officer's decision that petitioner does not have a legal, nonconforming use right to continue operating an asphalt batch plant in imposing daily fines for every continued day of operation, petitioner is entitled to a stay of the hearings officer's nonconforming use decision if petitioner can demonstrate a colorable claim of error and irreparable injury, even though a stay of that hearings officer's nonconforming use decision may have no effect on whether the county imposes the daily fine while the LUBA appeal proceeds. Meyer v. Jackson County, 72 Or LUBA 462 (2015).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Petitioner adequately specifies irreparable injury and establishes it is an injury that cannot adequately be compensated by money damages and is substantial and unreasonable where (1) the fine is $800 per day and would force petitioner to relocate, (2) there is no suitable relocation site, (3) if a suitable relocation site existed it would cost $4,000 to lease, (4) for any periods of time the asphalt plant is shut down it will lose approximately $180,000 in gross revenue per month and (5) if forced to shut down petitioner would lose its employees and longtime customers. Since petitioner has no legal right to operate during the pendency of the LUBA appeal, petitioner would not be entitled to an award of money damages if it prevailed in its appeal of a hearings officer's decision that it does not have a legal nonconforming use right to operate the asphalt batch plant. Meyer v. Jackson County, 72 Or LUBA 462 (2015).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where the conduct a petitioner actually seeks to bar through a stay is a county enforcement decision that is not before LUBA, two of the factors LUBA applies in considering stay requests, whether "the conduct petitioner seeks to bar through the stay is probable" and whether "the resulting injury [is] probable rather than merely threatened or feared" arguably are not present. But where there appears to be a causative relationship between the decision that is before LUBA and the decision to commence the enforcement action, it is appropriate to find that those factors are satisfied. Meyer v. Jackson County, 72 Or LUBA 462 (2015).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Arguments that a decision to approve a wetland restoration, if not stayed, may have a "potential adverse impact" on petitioners are insufficient to adequately specify a claimed irreparable injury where the record does not include evidence regarding impacts on petitioners. Hathaway v. Tillamook County, 71 Or LUBA 417 (2015).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In appeal of a permit authorizing construction of a parking lot at a ski area, petitioner's contention that initial construction of the parking lot has begun and "petitioner will suffer irreparable harm to his interests" if the stay is not granted is a bare assertion of irreparable harm, it is not the demonstration of irreparable harm that is required by ORS 197.845(1)(b) and OAR 661-010-0068(1)(c). Navickas v. Jackson County, 68 Or LUBA 535 (2013).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Arguments that a petitioner is "adversely affected" by the appealed decision, for purposes of standing under ORS 215.416(11)(a)(A) and colorable claim of error for purposes of a stay under ORS 197.845(1)(a) and OAR 661-010-0068(1)(c), are not necessarily sufficient to establish irreparable harm under ORS 197.845(1)(b) and OAR 661-010-0068(1)(c). Navickas v. Jackson County, 68 Or LUBA 535 (2013).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A movant for a stay under ORS 197.845 must demonstrate that "irreparable injury" will occur if the stay is not granted. "Irreparable injury" is an injury "* * * that cannot be practicably restored or adequately compensated for once destroyed." Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 577, 583 (2002). A movant for a stay under ORS 197.845(1) has not demonstrated that an injury from cutting of trees is "irreparable" where a revegetation plan requires replanting of trees and restoration of disturbed riparian areas and the movant does not argue that there is anything special about the trees that would be cut down or that their replacement by younger trees would result in irreparable injury to a protected Goal 5 riparian resource. Central Oregon Landwatch v. City of Bend, 66 Or LUBA 448 (2012).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where a claim of irreparable injury is based on the financial cost of complying with a condition of approval, but the movant does not provide any estimate of those costs, the movant has not adequately specified the alleged injury. Mingo v. Morrow County, 63 Or LUBA 515 (2011).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where a claim of irreparable injury is based in part on the financial cost of collecting and evaluating noise data required by a disputed condition of approval, but such costs must be occurred even under the movant's understanding of the condition, such costs may not be considered part of the alleged injury for purposes of granting a stay under ORS 197.845(1). Mingo v. Morrow County, 63 Or LUBA 515 (2011).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A movant for a stay under ORS 197.845(1) has not demonstrated that irreparable injury is probable rather than merely threatened or feared, when the alleged injury is based on the movant's speculation that the after a six-month data collection and evaluation period the county will interpret an ambiguous condition of approval differently than the movant does, and under that interpretation require the movant to expend more money on noise reduction measures than the movant believes will be required under the movant's interpretation of the condition. Mingo v. Morrow County, 63 Or LUBA 515 (2011).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. The demonstration that must be made to demonstrate adverse affect under ORS 197.830(3) is not the same demonstration that must be made to demonstrate irreparable injury under ORS 197.845(1) to obtain a stay of a land use decision pending appeal at LUBA. The irreparable injury standard is a much more exacting standard. Zirker v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 188 (2007).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Noise, dust, and unpleasant sounds and smells from temporary construction activities do not rise to the level of irreparable injury. Examilotis v. Coos County, 55 Or LUBA 675 (2007).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. The mere possibility that petitioner may in the future have to move back to a dwelling she owns adjacent to an asphalt batch plant that has aggravated her asthma in the past is insufficient to demonstrate irreparable injury justifying a temporary stay of a decision that allows an expanded batch plant. O'Rourke v. Union County, 54 Or LUBA 758 (2007).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Petitioners' allegations that construction traffic during the time that a LUBA appeal was pending would result in irreparable injury are insufficient to warrant a stay of the decision on appeal, where petitioners do not establish how much construction traffic would be generated by construction on the property and the applicant alleges there will only be three to five additional trips twice a day. Zirker v. City of Bend, 54 Or LUBA 806 (2007).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A movant for a stay fails to demonstrate that grading and scraping activity on the property will cause irreparable injury to archeological objects that may be found on the property, where such objects are protected under ORS 358.920(1)(a) and ORS 97.740. Ott v. Lake County, 53 Or LUBA 633 (2007).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where two cities have both adopted ordinances annexing the same property and both of those ordinances have been appealed to LUBA, some jurisdictional uncertainty is unavoidable until those appeals are completed. That temporary uncertainty does not amount to a substantial or unreasonable injury that justifies a stay of the annexation ordinance in one of the LUBA appeals. City of Happy Valley v. City of Damascus, 50 Or LUBA 711 (2005).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. To demonstrate "irreparable injury" warranting a stay, the movant must demonstrate more than an abstract interest in the public welfare. A perceived threat to the adequacy of the city's industrial lands inventory is not an "injury" to petitioner. Grahn v. City of Newberg, 49 Or LUBA 762 (2005).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A movant for a stay fails to demonstrate that a decision relocating an existing intersection causes irreparable injury, where the movant alleges, without citing to any evidence, that the decision adds substantial new traffic near his residence, but the respondent cites to evidence that the project will remove traffic from the road adjoining the movant's residence, and there will be no net increase in traffic on roads near his residence. Grahn v. City of Newberg, 49 Or LUBA 762 (2005).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. The moving party seeking to stay a land use decision during an appeal at LUBA must establish that he will suffer an irreparable injury if the stay is not granted. That injury must be personal to petitioner, and a petitioner must do more than allege that the impacts of a highway project on historic structures located some distance from his property will result in irreparable injury to petitioner. Rhodes v. City of Talent, 49 Or LUBA 773 (2005).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Allegations that floodways are dangerous and that a highway crossing to be built as part of a highway improvement project will be dangerous are insufficient to demonstrate that petitioner will suffer an irreparable injury if the decision that allows the highway project is not stayed pending a LUBA appeal of that decision. Rhodes v. City of Talent, 49 Or LUBA 773 (2005).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In an appeal of a decision that allows a highway project that will relocate a sidewalk and impose access restrictions, a party seeking to stay that decision during the LUBA appeal must demonstrate that he will suffer irreparable injury if the stay is not granted. Allegations that the relocated sidewalk will be dangerous to pedestrians and that the access restrictions will cause businesses to fail are inadequate to demonstrate that petitioner will suffer irreparable injury if the stay is not granted. Rhodes v. City of Talent, 49 Or LUBA 773 (2005).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Cutting down large trees and altering steep slopes are the kinds of activities that are generally found to constitute irreparable injury. An unexplained assertion from a city planner that new regulations would not have any significant impact on the allowable development is insufficient to reject such a claim of irreparable injury. Butte Conservancy v. City of Gresham, 47 Or LUBA 604 (2004).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. When trees are marked for cutting, and property has been marked and staked for clearing and grading, a petitioner has demonstrated that the conduct sought to be barred and the resulting injury that would occur absent a stay are probable. Butte Conservancy v. City of Gresham, 47 Or LUBA 604 (2004).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. The fact that an applicant might not currently plan to exercise all of the development rights granted by the challenged decision is irrelevant to whether a petitioner has demonstrated irreparable injury. Butte Conservancy v. City of Gresham, 47 Or LUBA 604 (2004).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A petitioner may not rely upon potential injuries to nonparties as a basis for demonstrating its own irreparable injury. Roads End Sanitary District v. City of Lincoln City, 47 Or LUBA 645 (2004).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. An alleged injury that is attributable primarily to petitioner's calculated business decision to crush rock at his quarry in anticipation of winning a state highway contract that ultimately went to his competitor's quarry does not warrant a stay under OAR 197.820(4), where the alleged injury is merely economic and petitioner fails to show any causative link between the county's approval of mining at his competitor's quarry and petitioner's alleged injury in not winning the state contract. Bryant v. Umatilla County, 45 Or LUBA 700 (2003).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where respondents' response to a motion for stay include a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, petitioners are entitled under LUBA's rules to 14 days to respond in writing to the jurisdictional challenge. However, where the motion for stay is sought to stop excavation and grading that will be completed within a few days and LUBA agrees with respondents that petitioners fail to demonstrate that the excavation and grading will result in irreparable injury, LUBA will issue an order on the motion for stay in advance of petitioners' written response to respondents' jurisdictional challenge. Jaqua v. City of Springfield, 45 Or LUBA 713 (2003).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. That excavation and grading will continue during LUBA review of appealed decisions that authorize the grading and fill does not result in irreparable harm to petitioners, where petitioners expressly recognize that the "dirt can be put back." Jaqua v. City of Springfield, 45 Or LUBA 713 (2003).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Petitioners' allegations that allowing excavation and grading of a site for a proposed hospital in advance of a final city decision on a site plan for the proposed hospital will influence the city's decision on the site plan and thereby result in irreparable harm to petitioners will be rejected by LUBA as speculative, where it does not appear that any of petitioners' participatory or procedural rights in the master plan review process will be affected by the excavation or grading. Jaqua v. City of Springfield, 45 Or LUBA 713 (2003).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Demonstration of irreparable injury generally requires a showing that, if a stay is not granted, the decision will authorize destruction or injury of unique historic or natural resources, or other interests that cannot be practicably restored or adequately compensated for once injured or destroyed. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 577 (2002).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Petitioners fail to demonstrate that failure to stay proposed development of condominiums on a golf course will cause irreparable injury, where there is undisputed evidence that, if petitioner prevails, any construction can be removed and the site restored to a golf course fairway. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 577 (2002).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A stay is not warranted where the only injury identified is monetary in nature and the proponent of the stay fails to demonstrate that such injury cannot be compensated adequately in money damages. Petersen v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 799 (2001).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where petitioners can establish only that they fear the type and backgrounds of the individuals who may reside in a city-approved adolescent intensive residential treatment facility, such feared injury is not sufficient to establish the irreparable injury necessary to justify a stay under ORS 197.845. Buckman Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 35 Or LUBA 796 (1998).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A request for a stay of a decision approving removal of sand from a dune will be denied where an existing city permit and weather conditions require that the grading be done between the end of March and the end of April. Petitioner's fear that the grading might nevertheless be done outside the specified 30-day period is merely a "threatened or feared" injury and is not sufficient to show that he will suffer "irreparable injury if the stay is not granted." Visher v. City of Cannon Beach, 34 Or LUBA 762 (1998).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Petitioners' allegations that continued construction on a neighboring subdivision will cause lower property values, increased noise and traffic and impaired scenic views are sufficient to demonstrate petitioners will suffer irreparable harm if a stay is not granted. Hallberg v. Clackamas County, 31 Or LUBA 577 (1996).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. The fact that the most petitioner can gain if it ultimately prevails in its appeal from a local government decision approving demolition of historic buildings is a 120-day postponement of approval of the demolition permit, does not mean that petitioner will not suffer irreparable harm if a stay of the challenged decision is not granted. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 565 (1995).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Although ORS 197.845 does not require that LUBA limit the effect of a stay of a quasi-judicial land use decision, LUBA may limit the effect of such a stay to the particular geographic area or particular provisions of the stayed decision for which colorable claim of error and irreparable harm have been shown. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 27 Or LUBA 679 (1994).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. To demonstrate irreparable injury, petitioner must show that it is probable, rather than merely possible or feared, that the conduct petitioner seeks to prevent during the pendency of the LUBA appeal will result in the injury petitioner alleges it will suffer if a stay of the challenged land use decision is not granted. Heceta Water District v. Lane County, 23 Or LUBA 698 (1992).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In an appeal challenging a decision approving a 130-foot-high communication tower, a stay is not justified to avoid irreparable injury where the tower can be removed if petitioners prevail in their appeal. Visual impacts caused by the tower during the pendency of the LUBA appeal are not sufficient to constitute irreparable injury. Greenlees v. Yamhill County, 22 Or LUBA 815 (1991).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. An alleged injury is not substantial and unreasonable where the truck parking permit revoked by the challenged decision expires by its own terms within two months following the date of the challenged decision, and petitioner may thus be required to move her log trucks two months earlier than otherwise would been required if the permit had not been revoked. Marson v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 804 (1991).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. The injury feared is not probable where the alleged injury is the inability to find another location to park nine log trucks, but petitioner does not demonstrate that there is no other place within a comparable distance where nine log trucks could be parked until the expiration of the temporary truck parking permit revoked by the challenged decision. Marson v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 804 (1991).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Petitioner adequately identifies the nature of the injury it believes it will suffer under a challenged moratorium, by alleging that when it is ready to begin development of the subject property, there will be an insufficient number of sewer connections available to it. Western Pacific Development v. City of Brookings, 21 Or LUBA 537 (1991).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where the only way in which the harm petitioner identifies could occur is if LUBA affirmed the challenged moratorium, such harm would occur under a valid moratorium and, therefore, could not constitute harm that is substantial and unreasonable. Western Pacific Development v. City of Brookings, 21 Or LUBA 537 (1991).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Where petitioner alleges that his business reputation and the good will of his business will be irreparably harmed, these are losses which cannot be adequately compensated by money damages. Barr v. City of Portland, 20 Or LUBA 511 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. An allegation that intense logging activity will cause loss of viewshed, natural vegetation and wildlife habitat; damage to the natural drainage of water; and decline in property values through significant alteration of the character of the neighborhood is an adequate specification of the injury to be suffered if the challenged decision is not stayed. Thurston Hills Neigh. Assoc. v. Springfield, 19 Or LUBA 591 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. An allegation that once large trees are felled, the character of the neighborhood, viewshed, property values, drainageways and wildlife habitat will be irreparably damaged, is sufficient to establish that the feared injury is not compensable in monetary damages. Thurston Hills Neigh. Assoc. v. Springfield, 19 Or LUBA 591 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. An alleged injury to the character of a neighborhood due to nearby logging is substantial and unreasonable because, even if the area does reforest, it will take a long time to reforest to the present level. Thurston Hills Neigh. Assoc. v. Springfield, 19 Or LUBA 591 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. An alleged injury to the character of a neighborhood due to nearby logging is probable where the logging will occur within view of the neighborhood and where the trees to be removed comprise a significant percentage of the existing conifer overstory which provides the neighborhood's viewshed and contributes significantly to the character of the neighborhood. Thurston Hills Neigh. Assoc. v. Springfield, 19 Or LUBA 591 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. In an appeal where petitioner challenges the county's approval of an aggregate extraction operation, petitioner's unsupported allegation that the permit applicant may begin aggregate extraction and processing while the appeal is pending is speculative and inadequate to demonstrate the conduct petitioner seeks to bar is probable. Keudell v. Union County, 19 Or LUBA 588 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. A petitioner's fear that he may suffer in future competition with the permit applicant if the applicant is allowed to begin aggregate extraction in accordance with the challenged decision, in the absence of any causal connection between the feared competitive disadvantage and the challenged approval, is inadequate to establish irreparable injury. Keudell v. Union County, 19 Or LUBA 588 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. To establish petitioner will suffer irreparable injury if a stay is not granted, petitioner must (1) specify the injury he or she will suffer, (2) demonstrate that the injury cannot be compensated in monetary damages, (3) demonstrate that the injury is substantial and unreasonable, and (4) demonstrate that the conduct petitioner seeks to bar, and the resulting injury, are probable. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 19 Or LUBA 561 (1990).

27.9.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Irreparable Injury. Alleged injury is not "substantial and unreasonable" and, therefore, is not irreparable, where the grading and clearing activities petitioners seek to bar are permissible in the exclusive farm use zone applied to the subject property. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 19 Or LUBA 561 (1990).

27.9.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Procedures. The issuance of LUBA's final opinion and order dissolves any stay of the challenged decision that LUBA previously ordered. Accordingly, LUBA need not consider a motion to reconsider LUBA's previous order granting a stay upon issuance of the final opinion and order. Cossins v. Josephine County, 77 Or LUBA 240 (2018).

27.9.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Procedures. The issuance of LUBA's final opinion and order dissolves any stay of the challenged decision that LUBA previously ordered. Reinert v. Clackamas County, 74 Or LUBA 427 (2016).

27.9.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Procedures. LUBA will not grant a motion for expedited briefing on a motion for stay where it appears the motion for stay is not likely to be granted, because the motion for stay does not adequately establish that the challenged decision falls under the ORS 197.015(10) definition of "land use decision" and it appears that the notice of intent to appeal may not have been timely filed. Nyman v. City of Hillsboro, 59 Or LUBA 533 (2009).

27.9.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Procedures. ORS 197.845(2) and OAR 661-10-068(4) both require that for a stay of a quasi-judicial land use decision, the amount of the required undertaking shall be 5,000 dollars. LUBA does not have discretion to increase that amount. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 565 (1995).

27.9.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Procedures. Allowing parties responding to a motion for stay only five days to file their responses is not warranted, where the moving party alleges no facts and cites no evidence that the applicant for land use approval plans to take action under the challenged land use decision while the appeal is pending. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 27 Or LUBA 662 (1994).

27.9.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Order. The issuance of LUBA's final opinion and order dissolves any stay of the challenged decision that LUBA previously ordered. Reinert v. Clackamas County, 74 Or LUBA 427 (2016).

27.9.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Order. Where respondents' response to a motion for stay include a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, petitioners are entitled under LUBA's rules to 14 days to respond in writing to the jurisdictional challenge. However, where the motion for stay is sought to stop excavation and grading that will be completed within a few days and LUBA agrees with respondents that petitioners fail to demonstrate that the excavation and grading will result in irreparable injury, LUBA will issue an order on the motion for stay in advance of petitioners' written response to respondents' jurisdictional challenge. Jaqua v. City of Springfield, 45 Or LUBA 713 (2003).

27.9.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Stays – Order. Although ORS 197.845 does not require that LUBA limit the effect of a stay of a quasi-judicial land use decision, LUBA may limit the effect of such a stay to the particular geographic area or particular provisions of the stayed decision for which colorable claim of error and irreparable harm have been shown. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 27 Or LUBA 679 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government's notice of a quasi-judicial hearing indicated that the decision-maker would consider a conditional use permit (CUP) application for "transitional housing" at an upcoming meeting and that the application would be reviewed against the relevant zone and CUP provisions in the local code, and where the final decision explained that it approved a CUP for "transitional housing," an argument that the phrase "transitional housing" did not adequately describe the use that the final decision approved does not demonstrate that the local government made "a land use decision that is different from the proposal described in the notice of hearing to such a degree that the notice of the proposed action did not reasonably describe the local government's final actions" for purposes of ORS 197.830(3). Lincoln Woods Apartments v. City of Lincoln City, 81 Or LUBA 269 (2020).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the undisputed evidence in the record is that a local government mailed notice to petitioner as required by ORS 197.763(2)(a)(A), petitioner is not entitled to rely on ORS 197.830(3) to file a delayed appeal, even accepting as true a petitioner's statement that they failed to receive the notice. Dobson v. City of Hines, 80 Or LUBA 469 (2019).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An appeal of a similar use determination made without a hearing is timely under ORS 197.830(3)(b) where nothing in the notice of a related conditional use permit proceeding suggested that the earlier similar use determination had been made or invited review of the land use file that would have revealed the earlier similar use determination. Jones v. Clackamas County, 80 Or LUBA 1041 (2019).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Pursuant to ORS 197.835(2), LUBA may make its own factual findings as to whether an appeal was timely filed, which is a jurisdictional question. Accordingly, LUBA may consider evidence outside the record for the limited purpose of resolving disputes regarding whether an appeal was timely filed, even in the absence of a motion to take evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 151 (2019).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A zone verification is subject to LUBA's jurisdiction and a person adversely affected by the decision may appeal the decision to LUBA "[w]ithin 21 days of the date a person knew or should have known of the decision where no notice is required." ORS 197.830(5)(b). The city was not obligated to and did not provide notice of the zone verification decision to petitioner. Petitioner was put on inquiry notice of the zone verification decision when the city provided petitioner multiple notices of a subsequent land use application, review, and approval for site review, traffic impact analysis, and adjustment review for the same subject property and development described in the zone verification decision. The city invited petitioner to participate in that subsequent land use action and to review public planning documents at the planning division and online. The appeal was untimely filed and must be dismissed because petitioner failed to make such inquiries and the 21-day appeal period expired before petitioner filed the appeal. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 151 (2019).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) operates to potentially allow a petitioner a delayed period of time to file a LUBA appeal, but it is not a source of procedural requirements that a local government approved development that differs from the development described in the notice of hearing is not procedural error. Elenes v. Deschutes County, 78 Or LUBA 483 (2018).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioners' counsel attempts to amend a timely filed Notice of Intent to Appeal (NITA), to add additional petitioners who were mistakenly omitted from the original NITA, but the amended NITA is filed after the time limit set forth in ORS 197.830(9) for filing a NITA before LUBA, petitioners' mistaken omission of the petitioners from the original NITA was not merely a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules at OAR 660-010-0015. The additional petitioners listed in the Amended NITA have not established that their NITA was filed within the time limit set forth in ORS 197.830(9), and are therefore not parties to the appeal. Cossins v. Josephine County, 77 Or LUBA 240 (2018).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. OAR 661-010-0010(3) provides that an appealed decision becomes "final" when it is reduced to writing and signed by the final decision maker(s), "unless a local rule or ordinance specifies that the decision becomes final at a later date." Where the county code provides that a decision shall not become "final" until the decision is signed by the final decision makers, "and mailed as required by Article 33," and no provision of Article 33 actually requires mailing of the decision, the decision became "final" on the date that it was reduced to writing and signed. Terrell v. Josephine County, 77 Or LUBA 470 (2018).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. At one time the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal a statutory permit decision did not begin to run until notice of that decision was mailed to a party who was entitled to mailed notice of the decision. However, Wicks-Snodgrass v. City of Reedsport, 148 Or App 217, 939 P2d 625 (1997), overruled the Court of Appeals decision that established that rule, and now under OAR 661-010-0010(3) that deadline begins to run when the is reduced to writing and signed and become final, "unless a local rule or ordinance specifies that the decision becomes final at a later date * * *." McGrew v. Yamhill County, 75 Or LUBA 247 (2017).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. In Aleali v. City of Sherwood, 262 Or App 59, 325 P3d 747 (2014), the Court of Appeals held that the "local government makes a land use decision without providing a hearing" prong of ORS 197.830(3), which suspends the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal until a petitioner receives actual notice of the decision, includes (1) cases where a local government held no hearing at all, and also (2) cases where the local government held a hearing but failed to provide the petitioner a notice of hearing that the petitioner was entitled to under state (as opposed to local) law. Phillips v. City of Corvallis, 75 Or LUBA 315 (2017).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. One prong of ORS 197.830(3) suspends the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal, where "the local government makes a land use decision that is different from the proposal described in the notice of hearing to such a degree that the notice of the proposed action did not reasonably describe the local government's final actions." To take advantage of the delayed deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal under ORS 197.830(3)(b), which allows petitioner to file the notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of the date petitioner "knew or should have known of the decision," petitioner must establish that she was entitled to the defective notice of hearing under state (as opposed to local) law. Phillips v. City of Corvallis, 75 Or LUBA 315 (2017).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3)(b), the deadline for a petitioner to file a notice of intent to appeal expires 21 days after petitioner "knew or should have known of the decision." As LUBA explained in Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607, 616 (2002), if a petitioner does not have knowledge of the decision but obtains information that puts the petitioner on inquiry notice of the decision and thereafter makes timely inquiries and discovers the decision, the 21-day appeal period begins on the date the decision is discovered. Phillips v. City of Corvallis, 75 Or LUBA 315 (2017).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner was put on inquiry notice in June that a subdivision approval decision issued the prior year included a condition that required off-site sidewalk improvements, but petitioner delayed six months until December to request a copy of the decision, that is not a "timely" inquiry under Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607, 616 (2002). Phillips v. City of Corvallis, 75 Or LUBA 315 (2017).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal is sent to LUBA by certified mail before the ORS 197.830(9) 21-day filing deadline expires, but the notice of intent to appeal is mailed to one of LUBA's old addresses rather than its current address and is returned to petitioner by the post office, and petitioner then mails the notice of intent to appeal to LUBA a second time by certified mail after the 21-day deadline has expired, the date of the second mailing is the date of "filing" under OAR 661-010-0015(b), and the appeal must be dismissed as untimely filed. Shepherd v. Yamhill County, 75 Or LUBA 361 (2017).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the text of an order requiring petitioner to file an amended notice of intent to appeal states the order is dated December 15, but the order is date stamped December 16 and was mailed December 16, the order is "dated" December 16, for purposes of calculating the seven-day deadline for filing an amended notice of intent to appeal. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 75 Or LUBA 481 (2017).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3)(b), a petitioner must file an appeal to LUBA within 21 days of the date the petitioner "knew or should have known" of the decision. Where the petitioner gains information indicating that the local government may have made a decision approving development, the petitioner is placed on "inquiry notice," and must make timely inquiries with the local government to discover the decision. If the petitioner makes timely inquiries, the 21-day clock begins running on the date the petitioner obtains a copy of the decision. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 74 Or LUBA 38 (2016).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Filing a notice of intent to appeal (NITA) using an overnight delivery service is not the same as filing the NITA by certified mail, which is the method that OAR 661-010-0015(1) requires in order for a petitioner to rely on the date of mailing as the date of filing of a NITA. Chapman and Chapman LLC v. Coos County, 73 Or LUBA 123 (2016).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal is delivered to LUBA by an overnight delivery service more than 21 days from the date the city's decision became final, the appeal is untimely filed, and LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Chapman and Chapman LLC v. Coos County, 73 Or LUBA 123 (2016).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies two decisions that were adopted on different dates as the subjects of the appeal, but the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed with regard to only one of the identified decisions, the appeal may proceed with regard to the decision for which the notice of intent to appeal was timely filed. Lifestyle Ventures v. Clackamas County, 73 Or LUBA 388 (2016).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a hearing is held, ORS 197.830(3)(b) cannot operate to expand the time for filing an appeal, because ORS 197.830(3)(b) applies only "where no notice is required." The "notice" that is "required" refers to notice of all quasi-judicial hearings under ORS 197.763(2). Phillips v. City of Happy Valley, 72 Or LUBA 196 (2015).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A city's error in the notice of the decision that stated an incorrect appeal deadline for appealing the decision to LUBA does not toll the deadline for filing the NITA under ORS 197.830(9), which requires that the "notice of intent to appeal (NITA) a land use decision or limited land use decision shall be filed not later than 21 days after the date the decision sought to be reviewed becomes final." Stone Age Republic, LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 72 Or LUBA 420 (2015).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government provides written prehearing notice to petitioner and in fact holds a hearing on a proposal to annex and rezone property, the part of ORS 197.830(3) that delays the deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal a decision that is rendered "without providing a hearing" until 21 days after a petitioner receives actual or constructive notice does not apply. Phillips v. City of Happy Valley, 71 Or LUBA 5 (2015).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a city's prehearing notice identifies the 10 properties to be annexed and rezoned, and identifies the city zoning to be applied to the 10 properties, and then after the hearing the city adopts an ordinance that annexes and applies the same zoning identified in the prehearing notice, the city does not make "a decision that is different from the proposal described in the notice of hearing to such a degree that the notice of the proposed action did not reasonably describe the local government's final action," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3). In that circumstance, the 21-day deadline specified in ORS 197.830(9) for filing the notice of intent to appeal applies, not the delayed ORS 197.830(3) deadline. Phillips v. City of Happy Valley, 71 Or LUBA 5 (2015).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. While failures to comply with the notice requirements set out at ORS 197.763(3) could also be sufficient to constitute a failure to "reasonably describe the local government's final actions," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3), it does not necessarily follow that any failure to comply with ORS 197.763(3) results in a failure to "reasonably describe the local government's final action." The inquiries under those two statutes are not the same. Phillips v. City of Happy Valley, 71 Or LUBA 5 (2015).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Identifying existing county zoning and proposed new city zoning to be applied to the annexed property using abbreviated references and acronyms for the zoning districts does not mean the city gave notice that "did not reasonably describe the local government's final actions," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3). A reasonable person would be put on inquiry notice by such a notice and would not assume no substantive change was proposed through the annexation and rezoning. Phillips v. City of Happy Valley, 71 Or LUBA 5 (2015).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A city's failure to provide a notice of hearing that is required only by local law will not operate under ORS 197.830(3) to toll the 21 day appeal period set out in the first sentence of ORS 197.830(9). To the extent Leonard v. Union County, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992), holds to the contrary, it is overruled. Aleali v. City of Sherwood, 68 Or LUBA 153 (2013).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner does not claim that he owns property within 100 feet of the property that was the subject of the notice of a hearing, or that the city failed to provide petitioner with notice he was entitled to receive under ORS 197.763(2)(a), the petitioner is not entitled to rely on ORS 197.830(3), and his notice of intent to appeal filed later than 21 days after the decision becomes final is not timely filed. Aleali v. City of Sherwood, 68 Or LUBA 153 (2013).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(4)(c) provides an alternative appeal deadline for a person who received notice of the decision where the local government makes a decision on an application for a "permit" without a hearing pursuant to ORS 227.175(10)(c) "if the mailed notice of the decision did not reasonably describe the nature of the decision." Lekas v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 501 (2013).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Mailed notice of a decision on a permit made without a hearing pursuant to ORS 227.175(10)(c) reasonably describes the nature of the decision, where the city's notices of the proposal and the decision describe an adjustment for a reduced side yard setback for a new garage, and the city's final decision approved exactly that. In that circumstance a petitioner is not entitled to take advantage of the alternative appeal deadline under ORS 197.830(4)(c). Lekas v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 501 (2013).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3)(b) provides an alternative appeal deadline for decisions made without a hearing and requires a petitioner to file a notice of intent to appeal the decision "within 21 days of the date petitioners knew or should have known of the decision." Where the record demonstrates that a petitioner knew of a decision made without a hearing more than 21 days before he filed the notice of intent to appeal, the notice of intent to appeal is not timely filed and LUBA lacks jurisdiction over the appeal. Lekas v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 501 (2013).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government has rendered a permit decision without recognizing that its decision was a permit decision and without providing notice of that decision as required by ORS 215.416(11), ORS 197.830(3)(a) applies, and the "actual notice" that the statute requires is provided only when the local government provides the written notice of the decision that is required by law or a copy of the decision itself. Keith v. Washington County, 66 Or LUBA 80 (2012).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) tolls the 21-day appeal deadline in ORS 197.830(9) for persons who are misled by the differences between the proposal described in the notice of hearing and the proposal as approved, and due to that misleading notice failed to appear at the hearing and become entitled to the notice of decision. If a petitioner did not view the notice of hearing, then the petitioner could not have been misled by the notice. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 471 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Applying the "notice of hearing did not reasonably describe the proposal" language in ORS 197.830(3) to a legislative decision is problematic, because generally no individual notice is required, and the only notice of hearing required for a legislative decision is the notice provided to the Department of Land Conservation and Development and any general publication notices in local newspapers. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 471 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The "notice of hearing did not reasonably describe" the proposal language in ORS 197.830(3) focuses on the difference between the final action and the proposal described in the notice of hearing, not on differences between the final action and the proposal itself as it may be modified during the proceedings below. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 471 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. That an intermediate draft of a proposed ordinance posted on the city's website differed from the city's final ordinance as adopted is not sufficient to toll the 21-day deadline to appeal the final ordinance under ORS 197.830(3), where the notice of hearing for the original draft of the proposed ordinance reasonably described the final ordinance. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 471 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a local government is processing a post-acknowledgement plan amendment pursuant to ORS 197.610 to 197.625 and a person requests in writing that he or she be provided notice of the decision, the deadline for appealing that decision to LUBA begins to run when that person is provided notice of the decision. Jacobsen v. City of Winston, 62 Or LUBA 493 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS

197.830(4), in order for a petitioner to file an appeal outside of the 21-day deadline provided in ORS 197.830(9), the petitioner must demonstrate that (1) the mailed notice of the decision did not reasonably describe the nature of the decision, and (2) that petitioner filed the appeal within 21 days of receiving actual notice of the nature of the decision. Wright v. Marion County, 62 Or LUBA 542 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the relevant approval criteria for a variance to allow a 120-foot-tall wind turbine require evaluation of the adverse effects of the variance on the neighborhood and neighboring residences, a reasonably accurate description of the location of the proposed turbine is an integral part of the "nature of the decision" under ORS 197.830(4). Where the notice of decision describes the wind turbine as being located "near the center of [a 35-acre] property" but the decision approves the location of the wind turbine near the property line 190 feet from petitioners' residence, the notice of the decision does not reasonably describe the nature of the decision. Wright v. Marion County, 62 Or LUBA 542 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Like ORS 197.830(3)(a), the ORS 197.830(4)(c) 21-day deadline begins to run upon "actual notice," rather than on the date the petitioners "should have known of the decision," as provided in ORS 197.830(3)(b). Wright v. Marion County, 62 Or LUBA 542 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where LUBA concludes that the decision on appeal is not a land use decision or limited land use decision, because it is a fiscal decision, and transfer's the decision to circuit court, LUBA need not also determine whether petitioner's notice of intent to appeal was filed within the 21-day deadline established by OAR 661-010-0015(1). Whether the appeal was timely filed will be for the circuit court to decide, and the only relevant question regarding the timeliness of the appeal will be whether the appeal was filed within the 60 days allowed by ORS 34.030. Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 61 Or LUBA 123 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Except in certain circumstances specified in ORS 197.830, the 21-day deadline for filing an appeal at LUBA is set out at ORS 197.830(9). Turner v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 467 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The 21-day deadline established by ORS 197.830(9) begins to run when a land use decision is final or when notice of the decision is mailed or submitted to parties that are entitled to notice of a post-acknowledgment land use decision under ORS 197.615. ORS 197.830(3) delays the running of that 21-day deadline in two circumstances: (1) where a land use decision is made without a hearing and (2) where a notice of hearing does "not reasonably describe the local government's final action." Turner v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 467 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even if an appeal was timely filed under ORS 197.830(3), ORS 197.830(6)(a) imposes a three-year statute of ultimate repose. Turner v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 467 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An ordinance that adopts new comprehensive plan and zoning maps for an entire county is a legislative decision rather than a quasi-judicial decision, even if that ordinance also changes the zoning on a single parcel. Turner v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 467 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.620 simply displaces the ORS 197.830(2) requirement that a petitioner at LUBA must have "[a]ppeared" before the body that adopted a land use decision in cases that concern post-acknowledgment land use regulation or comprehensive plan amendments. ORS 197.620(1) substitutes a requirement that a petitioner must have "participated either orally or in writing" to have standing to appeal a post-acknowledgment comprehensive plan or land use regulation amendment to LUBA for the generally applicable ORS 197.830(2) appearance requirement that applies to other kinds of land use decisions. ORS 197.620(2) authorizes a petitioner to appeal such post-acknowledgment land use decisions without participating or making an appearance in the proceedings that lead to decisions, where the notice that precedes the hearings on those decisions was deficient. Turner v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 467 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Neither ORS 197.620(1) nor 197.620(2) obviates the requirement that a petitioner must file a notice of intent to appeal or that the notice of intent to appeal be timely filed in accordance with the applicable requirements of ORS 197.830(3), (6) and (9). Turner v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 467 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of hearing that states that a proposed land use is a "mixed-use development" planned unit development with 82 residential dwelling units and includes a map that shows the proposed buildings and provides additional details is sufficient to "reasonably describe the local government's final actions," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3), where the approved development is a mixed residential and commercial use. Duenweg v. City of Medford, 60 Or LUBA 1 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The failure of a notice of hearing for a mixed-use residential and commercial PUD to specifically mention that the PUD housing will be occupied by the families of recovering addicts and senior citizen mentors for those families does not result in a notice of hearing that does "not reasonably describe the local government's final actions," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3). Duenweg v. City of Medford, 60 Or LUBA 1 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner was not entitled to receive written notice of a hearing on a mixed-use planned unit development and did not see the published notice of hearing, he could not have been misled by the notice of hearing. The deadline for filing the petition for review expired 21 days after the decision became final under ORS 197.830(9) and ORS 197.830(3) does not operate to delay the deadline for filing a petition for review to 21 days after petitioner knew or should have known of the decision. Duenweg v. City of Medford, 60 Or LUBA 1 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A local ordinance that provides that a decision becomes effective 14 days after mailing notice of the decision means that the decision is effective at that date. The ordinance does not delay the date the decision becomes final for purposes of appeal to LUBA under OAR 661-010-0010(3). VK Northwest, Inc. v. City of West Linn, 60 Or LUBA 39 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even though the language of a final decision is somewhat misleading in stating that it becomes final at a later date, a misstatement of fact and law in the decision does not excuse a petitioner from filing a timely notice of intent to appeal. VK Northwest, Inc. v. City of West Linn, 60 Or LUBA 39 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner is only entitled to notice of a hearing under local provisions, and is not entitled to such notice under state statutes, under Orenco Neighborhood v. City of Hillsboro, 135 Or App 428, 899 P2d 720 (1995), any failure to provide notice of a hearing does not toll the 21-day appeal deadline under ORS 197.830(9), pursuant to ORS 197.830(3). Plaid Pantries, Inc. v. City of Tigard, 60 Or LUBA 441 (2010).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. In order to appeal to LUBA under the "different notice/final action" language of ORS 197.830(3), the nature or scope of the proposed use as described in the notice of proposed action must differ to such a degree from the final action that the notice does not "reasonably describe" the final action. Where there is no difference between the nature and scope of the property line adjustment described in the notice of hearing and the property line adjustment described in the notice of decision, ORS 197.830(3) does not apply. Ebar v. Harney County, 59 Or LUBA 201 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The "different notice/final action" provisions of ORS 197.830(3) generally apply to persons who are misled by a deviation in substance between the notice of proposed action and the final action, and because of that deviation do not appear at the hearing and thereby become entitled to timely notice of the decision and hence notice of the opportunity to appeal the decision to LUBA. Ebar v. Harney County, 59 Or LUBA 201 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. In general, NITAs must be filed within 21 days of the challenged decision becoming final, unless one of the exceptions to the 21-day requirement set forth in ORS 197.830(9) applies. Thalman v. Marion County, 58 Or LUBA 23 (2008).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even if petitioners are correct that ODOT failed to provide notice of an amended road widening project as required by ODOT's rules, failure to provide notice under ODOT's rules does not provide an exception to the 21-day deadline for filing the notice of intent to appeal. When the challenged decision is not a comprehensive plan or land use regulation amendment, the provisions of ORS 197.610 to 197.625 starting the clock for the 21-day deadline upon notice of the decision being mailed do not apply. Hereditary Chief Wilbur Slockish v. ODOT, 58 Or LUBA 83 (2008).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS

197.830(9) and OAR 661-010-0015(1)(a), the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal began to run either on the date the decision became final or on the date notice of the appealed decision was "mailed to parties entitled to notice under ORS 197.615 * * *." ORS 197.830(3) through (5) provide exceptions to the general 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal with LUBA, which is established by ORS 197.830(9). Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Local laws that only delay the date an ordinance takes effect do not also delay the date an ordinance becomes final for purposes of appeal to LUBA. Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Procedural errors a city may have committed might provide a basis for reversal or remand, if there is a timely appeal of a land use decision. However, any such procedural errors do not have the legal effect of preventing a land use decision from becoming final or delaying the date of finality. Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-010-0015(1)(b), a notice of intent to appeal is filed on the date it is mailed, provided it is mailed by "registered or certified mail." A notice of intent to appeal that is mailed on the last day to timely file the notice of intent to appeal and is received five days later by LUBA is not timely filed, where the notice of intent to appeal was not mailed by "registered or certified mail." Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a petitioner is placed on inquiry notice that a land use decision or limited land use decision has been made and makes proper inquiries to the local government, a petitioner cannot be faulted when the local government takes the position that no such decision has been made. If a petitioner makes the proper inquiries, the 21-day time limit for filing the NITA begins when a petitioner learns of the decision. Biggerstaff v. Yamhill County, 58 Or LUBA 665 (2008).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of hearing does not "reasonably describe the final action" for purposes of tolling the appeal period under ORS 197.830(3) when the parties are misled by the deviation between the notice of the proposed action and the substance of the decision. Pacific Cascade Resources v. Columbia County, 55 Or LUBA 216 (2007).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of hearing stating that the county will consider an application to renew a mining permit subject to approval criteria listed in the notice is a fair description of the final action for purposes of ORS 197.830(3), where the final action approves the application to renew a mining permit under the listed criteria. Pacific Cascade Resources v. Columbia County, 55 Or LUBA 216 (2007).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. That a notice of hearing does not list the conditions of approval the county might decide to impose or indicate that the county might impose conditions of approval does not mean that the notice fails to "reasonably describe the final action" for purposes of ORS 197.830(3), particularly where petitioner knew or should have known that the county intended to impose conditions of approval on petitioner's application. Pacific Cascade Resources v. Columbia County, 55 Or LUBA 216 (2007).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An amended notice of intent to appeal that corrects all deficiencies under OAR 661-010-0015(3) does not have to be filed within the 21 day deadline of OAR 661-010-0015(1)(a) in order to establish LUBA's jurisdiction, provided that the original notice of intent to appeal was timely filed. O'Rourke v. Union County, 54 Or LUBA 758 (2007).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Partial noncompliance with the content requirements of an otherwise timely filed notice of intent to appeal is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that is not jurisdictional and is not a basis to dismiss the appeal, unless shown to prejudice other parties' substantial rights. O'Rourke v. Union County, 54 Or LUBA 758 (2007).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An ambiguous finding that is included in a 23-page findings document supporting a subdivision approval decision is not sufficient to provide actual or constructive notice of a prior county decision that approved a land use compatibility statement concerning grading related to that subdivision. Wolfgram v. Douglas County, 52 Or LUBA 536 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) and 197.620(2) are similarly worded and impose the same legal standard. Under those statutes there are certain legal consequences where the notice of hearing is inadequate to describe the local government's ultimate decision. Ettro v. City of Warrenton, 52 Or LUBA 567 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Any questions that may be raised regarding how a local government chooses to go about applying the approval criteria that are listed in a notice of hearing to the proposal described in the notice implicate the merits of this appeal; those questions do not implicate the adequacy of the city's notice under ORS 197.620(2) and 197.830(3). Ettro v. City of Warrenton, 52 Or LUBA 567 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioners fail to establish that any statute obligates a county to provide petitioners notice of a building permit decision that modifies a condition of partition approval, the "knew or should have known" standard at ORS 197.830(3)(b) applies rather than the "actual notice" standard at ORS 197.830(3)(a), in determining whether an appeal is timely filed under that statute. Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The 21-day deadline to file an appeal under ORS 197.830(3)(b) begins on the date petitioners knew or should have known of the "decision," i.e., that the local government had approved development on the subject property. It is not necessary that petitioners know the particular detail of the proposed development that offends them, such as its exact location on the property, before the 21-day deadline begins running. Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the petitioners are provided written notice of an application for a proposed height variance for an already approved dwelling, the petitioners are placed on at least "inquiry notice" that the county has previously approved a dwelling on the subject property. Given that information, it is incumbent on petitioners to make timely inquiries to discover the decision that approved the dwelling, such as investigating the planning file, and failure to make such inquiries within 21 days of being placed on inquiry notice means that the deadline to appeal the decision to LUBA under ORS 197.830(3)(b) begins on the date of inquiry notice. Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. An appeal that is filed four to five weeks after the petitioners learned that the local government had approved the challenged decision is untimely filed under ORS 197.830(3)(b). Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where nothing in a conditional use permit proceeding concerning development of three lots in an existing subdivision is sufficient to put petitioner on notice of the existence of an earlier decision approving reconfiguration of those three lots, petitioner knew or should have known of the challenged reconfiguration decision only when her consultant informed her of the existence of that decision. Borton v. Coos County, 51 Or LUBA 478 (2006).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A petitioner who asserts that the deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal is governed by ORS 197.830(3)(b) must demonstrate that he or she is "adversely affected" by the appealed land use decision and that the notice of intent to appeal was filed within 21 days after the petitioner first "knew or should have known of the [challenged] decision." LUBA will reject a petitioner's argument that ORS 197.830(3)(b) applies, where the petitioner fails to make either of those demonstrations. Clearwaters v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 600 (2005).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The statutory deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal under ORS 197.830(9) depends on the nature of the decision the local government adopted, not the nature of the decision the local government should have adopted. Whether the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal is governed by the first or second sentence of ORS 197.830(9) depends on whether the local government's decision was a post-acknowledgment plan or land use regulation amendment "processed pursuant to ORS 197.610 to 197.625." Clearwaters v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 600 (2005).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where it appears that the relevant statute requires that the 21-day deadline to file a notice of intent to appeal should be measured from the date the decision was reduced to writing and signed, the notice of intent to appeal was filed more than 21 days after that date, and petitioners offer no reason to believe the 21-day deadline should be measured from some other date, LUBA will grant the local government's motion to dismiss. Barry v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 680 (2005).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner notices construction activity on property, promptly investigates, discovers a building permit posted on the property, obtains a copy of the building permit and files an appeal with LUBA 14 days after first discovering the building permit posted on the property, the appeal is timely filed under 197.830(3)(b). Jebousek v. City of Newport, 50 Or LUBA 724 (2005).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where one of four applications seeks site plan approval but the other three applications concern post-acknowledgment plan or land use regulation amendments and the local government issues a single decision in response to those four applications, the second sentence of ORS 197.830(9) rather than the first sentence of ORS 197.830(9) applies. Under the second sentence of ORS 197.830(9), the 21-day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal begins to run on the date the local government mails notice "to parties entitled to notice under ORS 197.615." Lindsey v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 741 (2005).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where ORS 197.830(3) applies, it generally provides the filing deadline to LUBA only for decisions made without providing a hearing. However, in two circumstances ORS 197.830(3) can provide the LUBA filing deadline notwithstanding that the local government held a hearing: (1) where the decision differs from the proposal described in the notice of proposed action to such a degree that the notice did not reasonably describe the final action, and (2) where the local government fails to provide notice of hearing to a person entitled to such notice, and due to that failure the person does not appear at the hearing and become entitled to notice of the decision. Cutsforth v. City of Albany, 48 Or LUBA 304 (2004).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where no statute or code provision entitles the petitioner to notice of hearing for a proposed legislative decision, the petitioner may not file a belated appeal to LUBA pursuant to ORS 197.830(3), under the theory described in Leonard v. City of Hillsboro, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992), which depends on entitlement to notice of the hearing. Cutsforth v. City of Albany, 48 Or LUBA 304 (2004).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the local government conducts a hearing at which the petitioners appear, the local government has "provid[ed] a hearing" for purposes of ORS 197.830(3), and therefore ORS 197.830(9) rather than ORS 197.830(3) provides the deadline for filing an appeal of the decision to LUBA. Cutsforth v. City of Albany, 48 Or LUBA 304 (2004).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even assuming that a local government's failure to provide notice of the decision to petitioners who appeared at the hearing and became entitled to notice of the decision might provide a basis for untimely appeal to LUBA under the reasoning in Flowers v. Klamath County, 98 Or App 384, 780 P2d 227 (1989), the causative element inherent in Flowers is not met where the decision was signed and became final at the hearing, the petitioners offer no reason why they did not or could not know that the city had adopted the decision, final as of the date of the hearing, and the petitioners do not allege that the delay in filing the appeal was caused by the city's failure to provide notice of the decision. Cutsforth v. City of Albany, 48 Or LUBA 304 (2004).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A mistake in a city notice of decision regarding the number of days the notice recipient has to file an appeal with LUBA will not extend the statutory deadline for filing an appeal with LUBA. However, where a city does not clearly state that its notice of a post-acknowledgment land use regulation amendment is a "courtesy notice," rather than notice the city is required to send under ORS 197.615(2), the notice recipient is entitled to 21 days from the date the post-acknowledgment plan amendment notice is provided to file an appeal with LUBA under ORS 197.830(9). Dobson v. City of Newport, 47 Or LUBA 267 (2004).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Notwithstanding that under OAR 661-010-0015 a notice of intent to appeal is deemed filed with LUBA on the date it is mailed by registered or certified mail, LUBA is not at liberty to read a similar provision into notices of intent to appeal decisions on reconsideration under OAR 661-010-0021(5). Notices under OAR 661-010-0021(5) are filed on the date they are delivered to or received by LUBA. West Coast Media v. City of Tigard, 45 Or LUBA 703 (2003).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Untimely filing of a notice of intent to appeal a decision on reconsideration under OAR 661-010-0021(5) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and does not affect LUBA's review, absent prejudice to the substantial rights of the parties. West Coast Media v. City of Tigard, 45 Or LUBA 703 (2003).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Land use decisions appealed to LUBA pursuant to ORS 197.830(3) or (4) are not subject to the ORS 197.825(2)(a) exhaustion of remedies requirement absent circumstances where the local government voluntarily grants a local appeal, while decisions appealed pursuant to ORS 197.830(9) are subject to the exhaustion of remedies requirement. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 45 Or LUBA 758 (2003).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government conducts a hearing but fails to provide notice of the decision to a petitioner who appeared at the hearing, that failure of process does not obviate the requirement that the petitioner exhaust all administrative remedies below before appealing to LUBA. In such circumstances, the local government must accept a properly filed local appeal from the petitioner and cannot reject that local appeal on the basis of an imperfection that is caused by the local government's own procedural error. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 45 Or LUBA 758 (2003).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a notice of intent to appeal mistakenly identifies the wrong decision as the subject of the appeal, and that mistake is due to a local government's procedural error with regard to the petitioner, LUBA will treat the petitioner's mistake as a technical pleading error, read the notice to appeal the correct decision, and not dismiss an otherwise properly filed appeal. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 45 Or LUBA 758 (2003).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal filed within 21 days after the date an earlier tentative decision was made final by a second decision is timely filed under ORS 197.830(9). Dead Indian Memorial Rd. Neigh. v. Jackson County, 43 Or LUBA 597 (2002).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3)(b), where a petitioner does not have knowledge of a land use decision but observes activity or otherwise obtains information reasonably suggesting that a land use decision has been rendered, that petitioner is placed on notice to make inquires regarding the nature of the land use decision. The 21-day appeal deadline begins to run on the date that timely inquiries are made and the decision is discovered or, in the absence of timely inquiries, on the date the petitioner is placed on inquiry notice. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Evidence in the record that petitioners knew an application for a proposed subdivision was pending before the local government is not sufficient to establish, for purposes of ORS 197.830(3), that petitioners knew or should have known that the subdivision application would be approved or that the application included a proposal to develop a lot within petitioners' subdivision as an access street for the proposed subdivision. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 42 Or LUBA 607 (2002).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where at least one local hearing is provided, ORS 197.830(9) establishes a deadline of 21 days after the decision becomes final or 21 days after notice of the decision is mailed for appealing a land use decision to LUBA. Where no local hearing is provided, ORS 197.830(3) and (4) provide the deadlines for appealing land use decisions to LUBA. Warf v. Coos County, 42 Or LUBA 84 (2002).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(4) comprehensively addresses the situation where a local government makes a permit decision without a hearing pursuant to ORS 215.416(11) or 227.175(10). Warf v. Coos County, 42 Or LUBA 84 (2002).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal that is filed by first class mail 21 days after the appealed decision became final is not timely filed under ORS 197.830(9) and OAR 661-010-0015(1), where the notice of intent to appeal is not actually received by LUBA until 22 days after the appealed decision became final. Larner v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 471 (2002).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a planning director's decision to revoke a previously approved appeal fee waiver and reject petitioner's local appeal was final when rendered, and petitioner did not file a timely appeal with LUBA to challenge that decision, petitioner may not challenge the fee waiver revocation and denial of the local appeal in an appeal of a subsequent planning director letter that merely reiterates the earlier decision. Babbitt v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 151 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. That petitioners signed a petition to the local governing body expressing concern regarding the height of a dwelling is not sufficient to demonstrate knowledge of a building permit to construct that dwelling or the interpretation concerning the proper method of measuring building height contained in that building permit, for purposes of beginning the 21-day deadline for appealing the building permit to LUBA under ORS 197.830(3). Tirumali v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 565 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A 1995 decision denying a request for a variance to build a house that exceeds zoning height limits by 6.5 feet does not constitute a decision approving construction of a house that is 6.5 feet shorter. An appeal challenging a subsequent building permit that approves construction of a house that is reduced in height is not a collateral attack on the 1995 variance decision and will not be dismissed as untimely filed. Tirumali v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 565 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Any procedural error by a local government in failing to provide written notice of a proposed annexation decision to persons other than petitioner resulted in no prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights, and therefore provides no basis for reversal or remand of the annexation decision, where petitioner learned of the proposal and made a written appearance opposing the proposal. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 40 Or LUBA 78 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government fails to recognize that it is rendering a permit decision without providing a hearing or the opportunity for a local appeal as required by ORS 215.416(11) or 227.175(10), ORS 197.830(4) provides the applicable deadline for filing an appeal with LUBA. Neighbors for Sensible Dev. v. City of Sweet Home, 39 Or LUBA 766 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The "actual notice" standard of ORS 197.830(4)(a) is identical to the "actual notice" standard of ORS 197.830(3)(a). A petitioner receives "actual notice" of a decision when the petitioner is: (1) provided a copy of the decision; (2) provided written notice of the decision; or (3) circumstances exist that are sufficient to inform the petitioner of both the existence and substance of the decision. Neighbors for Sensible Dev. v. City of Sweet Home, 39 Or LUBA 766 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The brief mention in a staff report that an application was "approved in principle" is not sufficient to provide a petitioner with "actual notice" of a final, appealable land use decision pursuant to ORS 197.830(4)(a). Neighbors for Sensible Dev. v. City of Sweet Home, 39 Or LUBA 766 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where ORS 197.830(4) applies it provides a right to appeal directly to LUBA, within certain time limits, notwithstanding that the deadline for filing a local appeal has expired. In such circumstances, there is no local appeal available to be exhausted pursuant to ORS 197.825(2)(a). Neighbors for Sensible Dev. v. City of Sweet Home, 39 Or LUBA 766 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will not dismiss an appeal of a letter that provided notice of an earlier land use decision, provided the notice of intent to appeal adequately identifies the land use decision being appealed, and the notice of intent to appeal is filed within the period allowed by statute for appeal of the land use decision. Kent v. City of Portland, 39 Or LUBA 455 (2001).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a party receives notice of a land use decision by means of a follow-up clarification letter, an appeal of that clarification letter is sufficient to appeal the earlier land use decision, as long as the appeal is filed within the period in which the party could have timely appealed the land use decision. Kent v. City of Portland, 38 Or LUBA 942 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The "actual notice" requirement of ORS 197.830(5) does not necessarily require receipt of a limited land use decision. "Actual notice" is achieved when a person is informed of both the existence and substance of the decision. Robinson v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 785 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A party is "adversely affected," for purposes of ORS 197.830(5), only if the party demonstrates that the decision impinges on that party's use and enjoyment of its property, or otherwise detracts from interests personal to the party. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 400 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner alleges only that it is the applicant's business competitor and that the applicant appeared in opposition to the siting of petitioner's facility, petitioner has failed to demonstrate how the city's decision to approve the site design for the applicant's facility impinges on petitioner's use and enjoyment of its property or otherwise adversely affects petitioner. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 400 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will dismiss an appeal as untimely filed where the notice of intent to appeal was filed more than 21 days after the local decision became final and petitioner fails to demonstrate how it qualifies for an exception to the 21-day filing deadline provided in ORS 197.830(5). Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 400 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Amendments to the statutory deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal do not apply retroactively to land use decisions that were adopted and became final before the amended statute became effective, where the amending legislation does not indicate a legislative intent that the amendment should apply retroactively. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 38 Or LUBA 375 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3)(a) (1997) applies, and a notice of intent to appeal must be filed with LUBA within 21 days after a petitioner receives "actual notice" of a decision, where (1) the city mistakenly fails to realize it should be proceeding under ORS 227.175(10)(a) (1997); (2) the city therefore fails to provide notice to persons who are entitled to receive notice of the decision under ORS 227.175(10)(a) (1997); and (3) no local appeal is available that must be exhausted before appealing to LUBA. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 38 Or LUBA 375 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The "or should have known of the decision" language in ORS 197.830(3)(b) (1997) explicitly imposes an objective "discovery rule," and may have the effect of starting the 21-day appeal period before a petitioner receives written notice of or a copy of a decision. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 38 Or LUBA 375 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3)(a) (1997), a petitioner receives "actual notice" of the decision when the petitioner is provided (1) a copy of the decision; (2) written notice of the decision; or (3) information that is equivalent to written notice or a copy of the decision. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 38 Or LUBA 375 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the events a petitioner observed were not sufficient, in and of themselves, to provide "actual notice" of a land use decision more than 21 days before petitioner filed his notice of intent to appeal, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed under the "actual notice" standard of ORS 197.830(3)(a). That those events may have been sufficient to obligate petitioner to make inquires with the city if the deadline for filing the notice of intent to appeal were governed by the "knew or should have known of the decision" standard in ORS 197.830(3)(b) is irrelevant. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 38 Or LUBA 375 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8), the time for appealing an amendment to an acknowledged plan or land use regulation is measured from the time the decision was mailed in accordance with ORS 197.615 and OAR 660-018-0040. Where a party files a notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of the date the decision was mailed in accordance with the statute and rule, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed. Craig Realty Group v. City of Woodburn, 37 Or LUBA 1041 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.615(1) and OAR 660-018-0040 require that a local government send a copy of an ordinance amending local land use regulations and the findings supporting the ordinance, "accompanied by appropriate forms provided by" DLCD. Failure to submit the appropriate form with the decision and findings tolls the time to file a notice of intent to appeal with LUBA until 21 days after the proper notice is given. Craig Realty Group v. City of Woodburn, 37 Or LUBA 1041 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the availability of a local appeal is unclear and petitioner first seeks such a local appeal and then files a notice of intent to appeal with LUBA within 21 days after the local appeal is denied, petitioner's appeal to LUBA is timely. Hal's Construction, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 37 Or LUBA 981 (1999).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) authorizes the filing of a notice of intent to appeal after the 21-day deadline specified by ORS 197.830(8) where the approved proposal differs in some significant way from the proposal that is described in the notice of hearing, such that the notice "did not reasonably describe the local government's final action." A multifaceted zoo conditional use master plan with a permanent parking lot does not so differ from a multifaceted zoo conditional use master plan with a temporary parking lot that the notice of hearing "did not reasonably describe the local government's final action." Bigley v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 544 (2000).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal is timely filed where the county code specifies that land use decisions become final when mailed to the parties entitled to notice, and petitioner filed the notice of intent to appeal within 21 days of the date the county mailed the decision. Warrick v. Josephine County, 36 Or LUBA 796 (1999).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner fails to file a notice of intent to appeal within 21 days after the decision becomes final, the appeal will be dismissed, notwithstanding petitioner's allegation that she did not receive her mailed copy of the challenged decision until after the appeal period had expired. Roberts v. Clackamas County, 36 Or LUBA 170 (1999).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the county administratively approves development under ORS 215.416(11), but fails to provide an adjacent landowner with either the notice or the opportunity for local appeal required by statute, the time to file an appeal of that approval to LUBA is tolled until the landowner receives actual notice, pursuant to ORS 197.830(3). Bowlin v. Grant County, 35 Or LUBA 776 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A local government's notice of a post-acknowledgment decision is not sufficient to start the 21-day appeal period in ORS 197.830(8) where the post-acknowledgment decision is not yet final. Schaffer v. City of Turner, 35 Or LUBA 744 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. For purposes of starting the ORS 197.830(3)(b) appeal period for appealing a county decision rendered without a hearing, petitioner "knew or should have known" of a decision approving a grading permit authorizing a retaining wall where petitioner knew that the applicant was building a retaining wall and placing fill behind it and that the county had approved a grading permit for the subdivision authorizing 76,000 cubic feet of fill. Abadi v. Washington County, 35 Or LUBA 67 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even if no one requests notice of a post-acknowledgment plan amendment decision under ORS 197.615(2), the local government is required to mail notice of the decision to DLCD, thus there is always a mailing requirement under ORS 197.615 from which the period for appealing post-acknowledgment plan amendments is measured. City of Hillsboro v. Metro, 34 Or LUBA 775 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The appeal period provided in the second sentence of ORS 197.830(8) applies to any person with standing to appeal, and not only to the person or persons who are entitled to notice under ORS 197.615. City of Hillsboro v. Metro, 34 Or LUBA 775 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the challenged decision is an intergovernmental agreement that must be signed by representatives of both the county and the city, the decision becomes final under OAR 661-010-0010(3) when it bears the signatures of necessary decision makers. The unilateral signing of the agreement by the county commissioners does not render the decision final until the city's authorized representatives supply their signatures. Sparks v. Polk County and City of Monmouth, 34 Or LUBA 731 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Whether notice of decision is "required" under ORS 197.830(3) is determined by the procedure the local government followed, not by the procedure the local government should have followed. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 34 Or LUBA 561 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830 a notice of intent to appeal (NITA) must be filed with LUBA within 21 days after the decision being appealed became final. Where petitioner files a NITA 20 days after notice of the decision was mailed, but 22 days after the decision became final, petitioner's NITA is not timely filed, and LUBA does not have jurisdiction to hear the appeal. Dalton v. City of West Linn, 34 Or LUBA 438 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where persons receive notice of a nonfarm dwelling application and upon investigation discover that a property line adjustment was approved for the property without a hearing several months earlier, and petitioners file a notice of intent to appeal the property line adjustment decision within 18 days of actual notice of the property line adjustment decision, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed. Goddard v. Jackson County, 34 Or LUBA 402 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The statutory appeal period under ORS 197.830(8), which provides that the 21-day deadline to appeal to LUBA does not begin until required notice of the decision is given, applies notwithstanding the failure of a local government to correctly process a comprehensive plan or land use regulation amendment under ORS 197.610 to 197.625, and, accordingly, to provide the notice of decision as required by ORS 197.615. ODOT v. City of Oregon City, 34 Or LUBA 57 (1998).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When amendments to a county's comprehensive plan are processed according to post-acknowledgment procedures, the second sentence of ORS 197.830(8) governs, and appeals may be filed within 21 days of the date the decision is mailed, rather than the date the decision becomes final. DLCD v. Curry County, 33 Or LUBA 728 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A plan and land use regulation amendment processed pursuant to post-acknowledgment procedures may be appealed within 21 days of the date the decision is mailed, as provided in ORS 197.830(8), notwithstanding a local government's failure to comply with all required post-acknowledgment procedures. DLCD v. Curry County, 33 Or LUBA 728 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-10-010(3), a local decision becomes final on the date it is reduced to writing and signed by a decision maker, unless local legislation provides that the decision becomes final at a later date.

Therefore, the 21-day time limit for filing a notice of intent to appeal to LUBA begins on the date the decision is reduced to writing and signed, not the date of the session at which the local government orally made the decision. Brown v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 700 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Consistent with Wicks-Snodgrass v. City of Reedsport, 148 Or App 217, 939 P2d 625 (1997), appeals to LUBA must be filed within 21 days of the date the decision becomes final, not a later date such as that of mailing or receipt of notice of the decision. North Park Annex Bus. Trust v. City of Independence, 33 Or LUBA 695 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal to LUBA must be filed within 21 days of the date the decision becomes final, and misleading or outdated information regarding appeals to LUBA provided in a local government's notice of final decision does not affect that deadline. Elinski v. City of Lincoln City, 33 Or LUBA 670 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local code does not specify a date upon which a decision becomes final, OAR 661-10-010(3) specifies that the decision becomes final on the date it is reduced to writing and signed by the decision maker. Adams v. City of Ashland, 33 Or LUBA 552 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The 21-day time limit provided in ORS 197.830(8) for a petitioner to appeal a local land use decision to LUBA begins on the date the decision becomes "final," not the date the decision becomes "effective" under the local code. DeBates v. Yamhill County, 33 Or LUBA 526 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. If local ordinance does not define when a decision becomes final, it becomes final under OAR 661-10-010(3) when it is reduced to writing and bears the necessary signatures of the decision makers, regardless of the date notice of the decision is sent or erroneous information provided in that notice. DeBates v. Yamhill County, 33 Or LUBA 526 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A county's delay in providing petitioner with notice of decision does not toll the 21-day appeal period set forth in ORS 197.830(8), and under Wicks-Snodgrass v. City of Reedsport, 148 Or App 217, 939 P2d 625 (1997), LUBA has no jurisdiction over an appeal filed more than 21 days after the county's decision became final. Michael-Mark v. Yamhill County, 33 Or LUBA 409 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the county's first notice to petitioner was faulty and was not received before the initial local hearing, but a second notice that complied with ORS 197.763(8) was sent before subsequent local hearings, a petitioner is not denied his right to a hearing and is not excused from his obligation to file a timely notice of intent to appeal with LUBA. Epling v. Washington County, 33 Or LUBA 392 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS

197.610 to ORS 197.625, only state notice requirements must be followed to avoid tolling, under ORS 197.830(3), the 21-day appeal period provided in ORS 197.830(8). Petersen v. Columbia County, 33 Or LUBA 253 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the city explains in its decision to grant a development permit that a conditional use review is not required, a letter from the city planning director written five months later stating that the review is not required is not itself an appealable land use decision, and an appeal five months from the initial decision is not timely. Northwest Environmental Adv. v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 45 (1997).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A decision becomes final for purposes of an appeal to LUBA when the prescribed written notice of decision is mailed or personally delivered to the party seeking to appeal. J.C Reeves Corp. v. Washington County, 32 Or LUBA 263 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 610-10-015(1)(b), a notice of intent to appeal mailed to LUBA within the 21-day time limit, but received by LUBA after the 21-day time limit has expired, is not timely filed. J.C Reeves Corp. v. Washington County, 32 Or LUBA 263 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(b), which allows appeals "within 21 days of the date a person knew or should have known of the decision where no notice is required," does not apply where city and county provide properly noticed hearings of proceedings to amend local zoning ordinances. Waite v. City of La Grande, 31 Or LUBA 77 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The timely filing of a technically flawed notice of intent to appeal satisfies LUBA's jurisdictional requirements; and properly serving an amended notice of intent to appeal that corrects the technical violations in the original notice, although not expressly allowed by LUBA's rules, may avoid dismissal on the ground of prejudice to the substantial rights of the county. Markham v. Coos County, 31 Or LUBA 529 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. In determining whether a notice of intent to appeal is timely, LUBA will consider all evidence pertaining to when notice of the challenged decision was mailed to petitioner, including the metered date on the envelope used by the local government. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Columbia County, 31 Or LUBA 47 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Because of flooding during the week of February 5, 1996, which created de facto "holidays" at various state offices, a notice of intent to appeal delivered to LUBA on the first business day after the flooding will be considered timely under ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-015(1). Younger v. Jackson County, 31 Or LUBA 521 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Filing a petition for review prematurely is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which will not result in dismissal unless the moving party shows prejudice to its substantial rights. Cox v. Yamhill County, 30 Or LUBA 479 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. In determining when a document has been mailed for purposes of determining the timeliness of a notice of intent to appeal, LUBA will rely on the most persuasive evidence available. DLCD v. Yamhill County, 30 Or LUBA 465 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Because the city's decision to allow a continuation of an existing conditional use permit is not a limited land use decision under ORS 197.015, a subsequent statement of appeal rights in a notice letter provided by the city is not dispositive of whether petitioner's appeal was timely filed. Lloyd Dist. Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 30 Or LUBA 390 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A local government's reiteration of a previous land use decision in a notice letter does not create a new appealable decision, and the inclusion of a statement of appeal rights in the notice letter does not convert that notice into a separate land use decision. Lloyd Dist. Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 30 Or LUBA 390 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioners received notice of the city's earlier decision, and did not appeal that decision, a statement of appeal rights in a subsequent notice letter provided by the city cannot extend the deadline for appealing the previous final land use decision. Lloyd Dist. Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 30 Or LUBA 390 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8), the date for computing when an appeal period begins to run is the date the decision becomes final, not the date the notice of decision is received by petitioner. Lloyd Dist. Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 30 Or LUBA 390 (1996).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal to LUBA that designates a corrected decision is timely if filed within the period allowed for appeals of the original (final) decision. Caraher v. City of Klamath Falls, 30 Or LUBA 204 (1995).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The pursuit of a nonexistent local right of appeal does not suspend the date a land use decision becomes final for purposes of appeal to LUBA. No Casino Association v. City of Lincoln City, 30 Or LUBA 79 (1995).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When a party is entitled to notice of a post-acknowledgment plan or land use regulation amendment under ORS 197.615(2)(a)(A) and (B), ORS 197.830(8) provides that the local government decision becomes final as to that party on the date the notice of the decision is mailed, rather than on the date the notice of the decision is received. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Columbia County, 29 Or LUBA 597 (1995).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 12.140, a 10-year statute of limitations for initiating civil actions in Oregon courts, does not apply to LUBA's proceedings. Nehoda v. Coos County, 29 Or LUBA 251 (1995).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) applies only where a local government makes a land use decision without providing a hearing, and petitioners subsequently attempt to challenge that decision in an appeal to LUBA. Where a local government did not previously make a land use decision concerning the legality of an existing use, petitioner's timely appeal of the local government's new land use decision is not precluded under ORS 197.830(3)(b), because petitioners allegedly knew of the use's existence for several years. Penland v. Josephine County, 29 Or LUBA 213 (1995).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner was entitled to notice of the hearing on a development proposal and was not given such notice, but was not entitled to notice of the local decision, under ORS 197.830(3)(b), petitioner's notice of intent to appeal the local decision to LUBA is timely so long as it is filed within 21 days after petitioner "knew or should have known" of the local decision. Beveled Edge Machines, Inc. v. City of Dallas, 28 Or LUBA 790 (1995).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where ORS 197.830(3) applies, it provides a petitioner with a right to appeal directly to LUBA, within the time limits established by ORS 197.830(3)(a) and (b), notwithstanding that the deadline for filing a local appeal may have expired. In such circumstances, there is no local appeal available to be exhausted pursuant to ORS 197.825(2)(a). Beveled Edge Machines, Inc. v. City of Dallas, 28 Or LUBA 790 (1995).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A LUBA appeal must be initiated within 21 days after a local governing body adopts its written order, unless petitioners establish that (1) the local government plan or code grants a right to seek rehearing or reconsideration of the governing body's order; (2) petitioners sought such rehearing or reconsideration; and (3) under local legislation, such a request for rehearing or reconsideration has the effect of preventing the governing body's order from becoming a final decision. Bowen v. City of Dunes City, 28 Or LUBA 324 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the notice of public hearing given by the local government is inadequate, such that it does not "reasonably describe the local government's final [decision]," ORS 197.830(3) potentially provides a person adversely affected by the inadequate notice a right to file an appeal at LUBA long after the local decision is reduced to writing, notice of the decision is given, and the decision otherwise becomes final. Kevedy, Inc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 227 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(3) imposes a requirement that a reasonable person be able to tell from the notice of public hearing that the local government might take the action that the local government ultimately takes. Kevedy, Inc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 227 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of local hearing that includes a map showing all three tax lots included in a proposal is adequate to "reasonably describe the local governments final [decision]," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3), notwithstanding the failure of the notice to list each tax lot's address and the attachment of other maps to the notice which show only a portion of the property. Kevedy, Inc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 227 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Absent local code provisions analogous to ORS 197.830(3), where a notice of local hearing in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding fails to adequately describe the action ultimately taken by the local government and the time for filing a local appeal has expired, an adversely affected person's exclusive route of appeal is directly to LUBA. Kevedy, Inc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 227 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The time for appealing a local government land use decision is not extended simply because the local government issues a subsequent order correcting clerical errors in the land use decision. Kalmiopsis Audubon Society v. Curry County, 27 Or LUBA 640 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner files a notice of intent to appeal within 21 days after the decision maker's oral vote to adopt the challenged decision, but before the final written decision was adopted, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed under OAR 661-10-015(1), and petitioner will be permitted to amend the notice of intent to appeal to identify the correct date the challenged decision became final. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 27 Or LUBA 713 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal filed after respondent adopted a tentative oral decision, but before that decision was reduced to writing and became final, is filed "on or before the 21st day after the date the decision sought to be reviewed became final" and, therefore, is timely filed under OAR 661-10-015(1). Fraser v. City of Joseph, 27 Or LUBA 695 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The 21 day period provided by ORS 197.830(8) for appealing a limited land use decision to LUBA does not begin to run until a petitioner has been given the explanation of appeal rights to which it is entitled under ORS 197.195(3)(c)(H). Forest Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 215 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3), the 21 day period to appeal a decision to LUBA is measured from the date the petitioner actually receives notice of the decision, rather than from the date the decision became final and the notice was mailed. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 666 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. If a "permit" decision is erroneously is processed as a limited land use decision, without a public hearing or an opportunity to request a hearing through a local appeal, then the challenged decision is a "land use decision" made without providing a hearing, and the deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal with LUBA is governed by ORS 197.830(3). Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 666 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Decisions concerning development of property applying the elements of equitable estoppel require the exercise of factual and legal judgment and, therefore, are permits. Where a local government fails to provide a local public hearing or opportunity for appeal of such a permit decision, the deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal the decision to LUBA is governed by ORS 197.830(3). DLCD v. Benton County, 27 Or LUBA 49 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The three-year statute of ultimate repose provided by ORS 197.830(5)(a) does not apply "[i]f notice of a hearing or an administrative decision pursuant to ORS 197.763, 197.195, 215.416(11) or 227.175(10) is required but has not been provided." DLCD v. Benton County, 27 Or LUBA 49 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where ORS 227.173(3) requires a city to give written notice of its final decision to petitioner, the 21-day period provided by ORS 197.830(8) for filing a notice of intent to appeal to LUBA cannot expire before petitioner receives the notice to which she is entitled. Where such required written notice is not given, a notice of intent to appeal filed after a city planner orally informs petitioner that the city considers certain city council minutes to be its final decision is timely filed. Noble v. City of Fairview, 27 Or LUBA 649 (1994).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The appeal deadline provisions of ORS 197.830(3) requiring that a notice of intent to appeal be filed within 21 days after petitioner "knew or should have known or had actual notice of the decision" apply only where the local government fails to provide a hearing. DLCD v. Crook County, 25 Or LUBA 826 (1993).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local hearing is provided and a party is entitled to written notice of the decision under ORS 215.416(10), ORS 197.830(8) rather than ORS 197.830(3) establishes the deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8), a notice of intent to appeal must be filed within 21 days after a decision becomes final. DLCD v. Crook County, 25 Or LUBA 826 (1993).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8) and 215.416(10), a decision becomes final for purposes of appealing to LUBA "only after the required written notice of the decision is mailed or personally delivered to the party seeking to appeal." League of Women Voters v. Coos County, 82 Or App 673, 729 P2d 588 (1986). DLCD v. Crook County, 25 Or LUBA 826 (1993).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. If a notice of intent to appeal a post-acknowledgment zone change is filed more than 21 days after petitioner was given the notice of decision it is entitled to under ORS 197.615, the appeal must be dismissed. City of Grants Pass v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 722 (1993).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A county planner's misstatement to petitioner concerning when the county's decision would become final does not alter the time period for filing a notice of intent to appeal the county's decision to LUBA under ORS 197.830(8). City of Grants Pass v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 722 (1993).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where, under ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-015(1), a notice of intent to appeal is due on a legal holiday, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed if it is filed on the next business day. ORS 187.010(3); OAR 661-10-075(7). Garrigus v. City of Lincoln City, 25 Or LUBA 767 (1993).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the challenged decision approves a "permit," and the petitioner was entitled to written notice of the decision under ORS 227.173(3), the petitioner has 21 days from the date the notice was mailed to him to appeal the challenged decision to LUBA. A Storage Place v. City of Tualatin, 24 Or LUBA 637 (1993).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A local government's failure to provide a person with a required individual written notice of hearing is not sufficient, by itself, to entitle that person to be given individual written notice of the decision or to toll the 21 day deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal with LUBA until individual written notice of the decision is provided. Leonard v. Union County, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3), where a local government renders a decision without providing a hearing, an appeal to LUBA must be filed within 21 days of actual notice of the decision, where notice of the decision is required, or within 21 days of the date a person knew or should have known of the decision, where no notice of the decision is required. Leonard v. Union County, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The timely filing of a notice of intent to appeal is required for LUBA to have jurisdiction. Where the time for filing a notice of intent to appeal runs from the date a petitioner obtained actual knowledge of the decision or knew or should have known of the decision, it is petitioner's burden to establish when the requisite knowledge of the decision was obtained. Leonard v. Union County, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a person participated in the legislative proceedings that led to the challenged decision and also participated in a related land use proceeding where the challenged decision was discussed, that person knew or should have known of the challenged decision as early as the date the discussion of the challenged decision occurred. Leonard v. Union County, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. That a local government may have provided inadequate notice of a post-acknowledgment plan and land use regulation amendment to the Department of Land Conservation and Development (DLCD) will not excuse a person's failure to file a notice of intent to appeal that decision with LUBA within 21 days after the decision became final, where the person was not entitled to receive notice of the challenged decision from DLCD. Leonard v. Union County, 24 Or LUBA 362 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The 21-day period for filing a notice of intent to appeal established by ORS 197.830(8) begins to run only after the party seeking to appeal is given notice of the local government decision to which he is entitled by statute. Sparrows v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 318 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. ORS 197.830(8) tolls the running of the time for filing a notice of intent to appeal a post-acknowledgment comprehensive plan or land use regulation amendment for a petitioner who did not receive notice to which that petitioner is entitled under ORS 197.615. It does not toll the time for the filing of all notices of intent to appeal post-acknowledgment amendments simply because DLCD, or any other person entitled to notice under ORS 197.615, was not given such notice. Sparrows v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 318 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Even if petitioner were entitled under state statute to notice of local government hearings on comprehensive plan and land use regulation amendments and goal exceptions, and the local government failed to provide that notice, petitioner's notice of intent to appeal would only be timely if it was filed within 21 days after petitioner received actual notice of the challenged decision. Sparrows v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 318 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. As the party seeking review by LUBA, petitioner has the burden of establishing that LUBA has jurisdiction. Where a petitioner argues her notice of intent to appeal is timely because it was filed within 21 days after she received actual notice of the challenged decision, the petitioner must support her argument with affidavits, record citations or other evidence. Sparrows v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 318 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8) and 197.615, a notice of intent to appeal a post-acknowledgment plan amendment must be filed at LUBA within 21 days of the date parties who requested notice of the post-acknowledgment plan amendment decision under ORS 199.615(2)(a)(B), were mailed such notice. Crew v. Deschutes County, 23 Or LUBA 148 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(8), OAR 661-10-015(1) and 661-10-075(2)(a), an appeal must be dismissed if the notice of intent to appeal is not delivered to or received by LUBA on or before the 21st day after the decision sought to be reviewed became final. Pilling v. Crook County, 23 Or LUBA 51 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-10-015(1), so long as a notice of intent to appeal is filed before the expiration of the 21st day after the decision becomes final, the notice of intent to appeal is timely filed. Rabe v. City of Tualatin, 22 Or LUBA 832 (1992).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a city approves a permit without providing the public hearing or notice of decision and opportunity for a local appeal required by ORS 227.175(3) and (10), a notice of intent to appeal at LUBA is timely filed if it is filed within 21 days after petitioners received actual notice of the permit decision. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 22 Or LUBA 390 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a petitioner's deposition discloses she learned the city may have approved certain permits, and thereafter petitioner promptly pursues the matter with the city planning department and obtains copies of the permits, the date she obtained the copies of the permits from the planning department is the date of actual notice of the permits for purposes of computing the deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal at LUBA. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 22 Or LUBA 390 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The principles applicable to determining whether an organization has representational standing to appeal a decision to LUBA are also applicable to determining whether an organizational petitioner acting in its representational capacity is deemed to have actual notice for purposes of calculating the time for filing the notice of intent to appeal under ORS 197.830(3). Tuality Lands Coalition v. Washington County, 21 Or LUBA 611 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where one of a petitioner organization's members did not receive actual notice of a land use decision more than 21 days prior to the time the notice of intent to appeal was filed, an evidentiary hearing to establish that other individual members of the organization or the organization's board of directors had actual notice of the challenged decision more than 21 days before the challenged decision was made, is not warranted. Even if other members received such actual notice, petitioner's notice of intent to appeal in its representational capacity would be timely. Tuality Lands Coalition v. Washington County, 21 Or LUBA 611 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under ORS 197.830(3), a petitioner must file a notice of intent to appeal challenging a local government land use decision rendered without a hearing, within 21 days of "actual notice" or "the date a person knew or should have known of the decision," depending on whether notice was required or not. Rebmann v. Linn County, 21 Or LUBA 542 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Allegations that petitioners and petitioners' former attorney were sent a copy of the challenged decision by uncertified mail more than 21 days before the notice of intent to appeal was filed are insufficient to establish that petitioners had actual notice or knew or should have known of the decision more than 21 days before filing the notice of intent to appeal. Rebmann v. Linn County, 21 Or LUBA 542 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government fails to provide the statutorily required written notice of decision to a party entitled to receive such notice, the 21 day deadline for filing an appeal with LUBA does not begin to run until the required written notice of decision is provided. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 21 Or

LUBA 515 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where there is no local appeal available and a local government fails to provide the notice of hearing or hearing required by ORS 227.175(3) and (5) or 215.416(3) and (5) before making a decision on a permit, such permit decisions may be appealed to LUBA within 21 days after a person receives actual notice of the permit decision. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 21 Or LUBA 515 (1991).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. If the notice of hearing required by ORS 227.175(5) fails to indicate the possibility of the final action actually taken by the city, a petitioner's notice of intent to appeal to LUBA is timely if filed within 21 days after petitioner received actual notice of the decision. Torgeson v. City of Canby, 19 Or LUBA 623 (1990).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a county finds applicable approval standards are or can be met and grants first stage PUD approval, but includes a condition that (1) final grading and drainage plans be submitted later, and (2) approval of such plans follow a procedure that does not provide notice or an opportunity for further public involvement, the proper way to challenge the county's decision to proceed in such a manner is to appeal the first stage PUD approval decision. Parties may not fail to challenge that decision and appeal the subsequent approval of the final grading and drainage plans, arguing that such approvals are permits subject to the notice and hearing requirements of ORS 215.416, and that their failure to "appear" or file an appeal of such approvals within 21 days is excused because of the county's failure to observe such notice and hearing requirements. J.P. Finley & Son v. Washington County, 19 Or LUBA 263 (1990).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where the petitioner was never provided the written notice to which it was entitled under ORS 227.173(3), the 21-day period for the petitioner to appeal to LUBA did not expire. Harvard Medical Park, Ltd. v. City of Roseburg, 19 Or LUBA 555 (1990).

27.10.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Notice of Intent to Appeal. A notice of intent to appeal mailed to LUBA within the 21 day appeal period, but received by LUBA after the 21-day appeal period expires, is not timely filed. Oak Lodge Water District v. Clackamas County, 18 Or LUBA 643 (1990).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Under OAR 661-010-0067 written consent to extend the deadline for filing record objections also constitutes written consent to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review. But where a motion to extend the deadline to file record objections is not consented to by all parties, granting the motion would not also extend the deadline for filing the petition for review, which would create the possibility that the record might be supplemented after the petition for review is filed and necessitate delaying the appeal to allow petitioner to file an amended petition for review. WKN Chopin LLC v. Umatilla County, 65 Or LUBA 457 (2012).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Under OAR 661-010-0067(2), where all parties consent in writing to extend the deadline for filing record objections, the deadline for filing the petition for review is automatically extended for the same number of days unless the parties expressly provide otherwise. WKN Chopin LLC v. Umatilla County, 65 Or LUBA 459 (2012).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. The filing of a record objection suspends the briefing schedule, even if the objection was filed three days late, and LUBA will consider the untimely objections, absent a showing that the untimely filing prejudiced a party's substantial rights to a speedy review. JCK Enterprises, LLC v. City of Cottage Grove, 63 Or LUBA 582 (2011).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. The late filing of a record objection by intervenor-respondent does not prejudice the petitioner's substantial rights to speedy review, where settling the record must be delayed in any event due to the filing of an amended record prompted by the petitioner's earlier record objections. JCK Enterprises, LLC v. City of Cottage Grove, 63 Or LUBA 582 (2011).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Although parties may have additional motivation other than the integrity of the record to file record objections, including delaying the time for filing the petition for review, that does not mean that the record objection is without merit or was filed for the sole purpose of obtaining more time to file the petition for review. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 43 Or LUBA 617 (2002).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Record objections that are presented for the first time in the petition for review will be denied as untimely filed. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 41 Or LUBA 515 (2002).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. A motion to supplement the record filed after the petition for review and respondent's brief have been filed will be denied where it is not clear whether the document to be added to the record was placed before the decision maker, and no "unique circumstances" are identified to warrant supplementing the record at such a late state of the appeal. Root v. City of Medford, 36 Or LUBA 778 (1999).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Late filing of a record objection is a technical violation of LUBA rules and will not provide a basis for denying the record objection, absent prejudice to a party's substantial rights. Schaffer v. City of Turner, 35 Or LUBA

744 (1998).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Filing an objection to the record one day after the 10-day period established by OAR 661-10-026(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that will not prevent consideration of the objection unless the local government demonstrates the delay caused prejudice to its substantial rights. Northwest Environmental Advocates v. City of Portland, 32 Or LUBA 471 (1996).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Failure to file a record objection within the time required by LUBA rules may provide a basis for denying the record objection or for providing an abbreviated deadline for filing the petition for review after the record objection is resolved. However, even an untimely record objection suspends the deadline for filing the petition for review until the record objection is resolved. Cole v. Columbia County, 28 Or LUBA 62 (1994).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. The filing of an objection to the local record suspends the time for filing a petition for review, even if the objection is not timely filed. Failure to file a record objection in a timely manner may provide a basis for denying the record objection or setting an abbreviated time for filing the petition for review, but does not provide a basis for dismissing the appeal. Cole v. Columbia County, 27 Or LUBA 701 (1994).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. OAR 661-10-026(2) requires that objections to the record be filed within 10 days after the record is served on the party making the objection. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 786 (1993).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Filing an objection to the record two days after the date required by OAR 661-10-026(2), and within 10 days after the date petitioner received the record, is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that does not affect LUBA's review of the challenged decision. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 786 (1993).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Where the copy of the record initially served on petitioner was lost in the mail, LUBA will grant an extension of time for petitioner to file objections to the record. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 583 (1991).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. A record objection filed four days late, but before the petition for review is due, will suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review where respondent makes no attempt to explain how its substantial rights may have been prejudiced by a delay of four days in filing the record objection. Benjamin v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 600 (1990).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. OAR 661-10-026(2) requires that a record objection be filed within 10 days following service of the record on the person filing the record objection. Where a party alleges it never received the copy of the record the local government contends was served on the party by mail, and the party thereafter takes prompt action to obtain a copy of the record and advises respondent by mail that he assumes he will have 10 days from the date he actually received the record to file any objections, a record objection filed within 10 days after the party actually received the record is timely. Benjamin v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 600 (1990).

27.10.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Record Objections. Petitioner's failure to file his record objection until three days after the date required by OAR 661-10-026(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and will not result in rejection of the record objection where the respondent (1) was granted extensions to file the record in the appeal proceeding and related appeal proceedings, and (2) does not allege how it was prejudiced by the late filing of the record objection. Davis v. City of Bandon, 19 Or LUBA 507 (1990).

27.10.3 LUBA Rules/Procedures – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where petitioners do not file a petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, and where petitioners do not obtain written consent to extend the time for filing the petition for review under OAR 661-010-0067(2), ORS 197.830(11) and OAR 661-010-0030(1) require that LUBA dismiss the appeals. Branson v. Linn County, 81 Or LUBA 336 (2020).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under ORS 197.830(11) and OAR 661-010-0030(1), where a petition for review is not filed within the time established by a stipulated extension of the deadline for such filing, and where the petitioner does not obtain written consent to extend the deadline further, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Becker v. Jackson County, 79 Or LUBA 348 (2019).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. LUBA will allow an amendment to a petition for review to correct errors or omissions in a petition for review if doing so serves a purpose and will not materially interfere with either respondents' ability to respond to the petition for review or our ability to meet the statutory deadline for our final opinion. Where petitioner attempted to amend his petition for review—by adding allegations to an assignment of error, by adding record and case cites, and by "clarifying and refining text"—23 days after the response briefs were filed and two days before oral argument, and petitioner filed his renewed motion to amend his petition for review on the same date as oral argument, LUBA will deny petitioner's request. To allow such a request would not be fair or promote the speediest practicable review of land use decisions and would materially interfere with respondents' ability to respond to the petition for review. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or LUBA 1084 (2018).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Because the cross petition for review is the functional equivalent of a petition for review, OAR 661-010-0030(7) imposes the same filing deadline that applies to petitions for review, and LUBA strictly enforces that filing deadline for cross petitions for review in the same way it strictly enforces that filing deadline for the petition for review. LUBA will grant a motion to strike a cross petition for review that is filed one day late. Warren v. Josephine County, 66 Or LUBA 471 (2012).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under OAR 661-010-0067 written consent to extend the deadline for filing record objections also constitutes written consent to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review. But where a motion to extend the deadline to file record objections is not consented to by all parties, granting the motion would not also extend the deadline for filing the petition for review, which would create the possibility that the record might be supplemented after the petition for review is filed and necessitate delaying the appeal to allow petitioner to file an amended petition for review. WKN Chopin LLC v. Umatilla County, 65 Or LUBA 457 (2012).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under OAR 661-010-0067(2), where all parties consent in writing to extend the deadline for filing record objections, the deadline for filing the petition for review is automatically extended for the same number of days unless the parties expressly provide otherwise. WKN Chopin LLC v. Umatilla County, 65 Or LUBA 459 (2012).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. If a petition for review is delivered to the United States Postal Service and mailed to LUBA via "Priority Mail" it is mailed by "First Class Mail" and therefore filed on the date it was delivered to the United States Postal Service under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(a)(B), where the United States Postal Service defines "First Class Mail" to include "Priority Mail." Canfield v. Lane County, 59 Or LUBA 505 (2009).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a petitioner transmits the petition for review to LUBA in any way other than by first class mail with the United States Postal Service, the petition for review is not "filed" until it is received by LUBA. In that circumstance it is legally irrelevant whether the petitioner acted in good faith in using a carrier other than the United States Postal Service and it is legally irrelevant that the choice to transmit the petition for review by a means other than first class mail resulted in no delay in LUBA receiving the petition for review. Canfield v. Lane County, 59 Or LUBA 505 (2009).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Whether the OAR 661-010-0030(1) requirement that a LUBA appeal be dismissed if the petition for review is not filed within the 21-day deadline established by that rule is a jurisdictional requirement or merely a compulsory non-jurisdictional basis for dismissing the appeal, the 10-day rule in OAR 661-010-0065(2) that requires a motion to be filed within 10 days after discovery of a failure to comply with LUBA's rules does not apply to a motion to dismiss based on a petitioner's failure to comply with the deadline established by OAR 661-010-0030(1) for filing the petition for review. Canfield v. Lane County, 59 Or LUBA 505 (2009).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The failure of a pro se petitioner to sign a petition for review does not necessarily mean that that petitioner has "failed to timely file a petition for review" under OAR 660-010-0030(1), with the consequence that that petitioner must be dismissed from an appeal. Abeel v. City of Portland, 58 Or LUBA 247 (2009).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(a), a petition for review is filed with LUBA on the date it is mailed "by first class mail with the United States Postal Service." If the petition for review is filed with LUBA in any other manner, the petition for review is filed on the date it is delivered to LUBA. A petition for review that is delivered to a Postal Annex store before the filing deadline expires and is thereafter delivered to LUBA by United Parcel Service on a date after the filing deadline expires is not timely filed and the appeal must be dismissed. Lund v. City of Mosier, 58 Or LUBA 344 (2009).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a petition for review was not filed within the time required by LUBA's rules, and no written consent to extend the time for filing the petition for review under OAR-661-010-0067(2) was obtained, ORS 197.830(11) and OAR 661-010-0030(1) require that the appeal be dismissed. Verizon Wireless, LLC v. Clackamas County, 56 Or LUBA 660 (2008).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. A petitioner may not dismiss his attorney after the petition for review has been filed and the time for filing the petition for review has run and then submit a new or amended petition for review. Taylor v. City of Canyonville, 55 Or LUBA 681 (2007).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where the petition for review has already been filed, a petitioner may not supplement the arguments presented therein, and LUBA will deny a motion to file a revised petition for review. Knapp v. City of Corvallis, 55 Or LUBA 683 (2007).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a petitioner has decided to seek voluntary dismissal of the appeal, to avoid delay and prejudice to other parties the petitioner should file an unequivocal motion for dismissal as soon as reasonably possible. That obligation is not met where the petitioner files an equivocal motion to dismiss on the date the petition is due, based on information that petitioner was long aware of, and that is accompanied by a nonmeritorious motion to resettle the record and restart the deadline for filing the petition for review. Under such circumstances, LUBA will dismiss the appeal for failure to file the petition for review, not based petitioner's motion to dismiss. Ford v. Jackson County, 54 Or LUBA 434 (2007).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. When a local government provides a corrected cover page for the record, the corrected cover page is not a supplemental record and does not restart the 21-day deadline for filing the petition for review. Santiam Water Control District v. City of Stayton, 54 Or LUBA 549 (2007).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where it is undisputed that petitioner received the record, even though petitioner may not have received the letter that LUBA sent to petitioner advising him that LUBA had received the record, that does not excuse petitioner's failure to file a petition for review before the deadline expires. Anantha v. City of Portland, 54 Or LUBA 727 (2007).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where petitioner received a copy of the record that was filed with LUBA, he cannot reasonably claim that he was unaware that he was obligated to file his petition for review within the deadline established by ORS 661-010-0030(1). That petitioner may not have received the letter that LUBA sent to petitioner advising him that LUBA had received the record does not excuse petitioner's failure to timely file a petition for review. Bleu v. Clackamas County, 52 Or LUBA 606 (2006).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. While it is possible that LUBA might grant a petitioner's request that a notice of intent to appeal be treated as the petition for review, a petitioner may not wait until over two weeks after the deadline for filing the petition for review has expired to make such a request. Bleu v. Clackamas County, 52 Or LUBA 606 (2006).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Petitioner's presumption that the parties had an implicit agreement to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review pending settlement discussions does not excuse petitioner's failure to obtain and file a stipulation to that effect. Where respondent refuses to stipulate to an extension of the deadline for filing the petition for review after it has expired, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Byrtus v. City of Brookings, 51 Or LUBA 556 (2006).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where the record was mailed to and received by petitioner and LUBA, the deadline for filing the petition for review expires 21 days after the record is received by LUBA, and petitioner's claim that he did not receive a letter from LUBA advising him of the date LUBA received the record does not affect that deadline. Cunningham v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 58 (2005).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. OAR 661-010-0067(2) requires that a motion for extension of time to file a petition for review be denied where the motion is not consented to in writing by all parties, there is no indication that intervenors ever had plans or have plans to consent to extend the deadline, and no petition for review is filed within the 21-day deadline for filing a petition for review, pursuant to OAR 661-010-0030(1). ODOT v. City of Phoenix, 50 Or LUBA 548 (2005).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where there is no dispute that both the local government record and LUBA's letter acknowledging receipt of the record and identifying the deadline for filing the petition for review were mailed to the address that was specified by the lead petitioner, but the petition for review was not filed before that deadline expired, and petitioner did not obtain written consent to extend the time for filing the petition for review under OAR 661-010-0067(2), ORS 197.830(11) and OAR 661-010-0030(1) require that LUBA dismiss the appeal. That there may have been delays in forwarding documents from lead petitioner's Oregon address to his California address does not excuse failure to timely file the petition for review. Hawk v. Josephine County, 49 Or LUBA 451 (2005).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Allowing intervenors-petitioner to belatedly sign the signature page of a timely filed petition for review is not tantamount to allowing a late petition for review. Intervenors' failure to sign or join the petition for review prior to its filing is at most a technical violation that does not affect our review, absent prejudice to another party's substantial rights. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA 512 (2005).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where petitioners failed to file a petition for review on or before the deadline for filing the petition for review and petitioners were unable to secure the local government's agreement to suspend the deadline, the appeal must be dismissed. That petitioners were pro se petitioners and did not understand the LUBA appeal process does not excuse their failure to file a timely petition for review. Davis v. Wasco County, 48 Or LUBA 454 (2005).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The date the petition for review is postmarked is not necessarily determinative of the date the petition is "mailed," for purposes of OAR 661-010-0030(1) and 661-010-010-0075(2)(a)(B). Mason v. City of Corvallis, 48 Or LUBA 651 (2005).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Depositing the petition for review postage paid in a postal service deposit box on the date it is due is sufficient to "mail" and hence file the petition for review under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(a)(B), even if the petition for review is postmarked the following day, and even if the petition for review is deposited after the last collection time for that deposit box. Mason v. City of Corvallis, 48 Or LUBA 651 (2005).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Petitioners do not sustain their burden of demonstrating that a petition for review was timely filed, where the only evidence that bears on that question is (1) a postmark dated one day late and (2) an affidavit by petitioners' attorney averring that he arrived at the post office two minutes prior to midnight on the day the petition for review was due, and he was "certain" that he deposited the petition for review with the postal clerk before midnight. Bollinger v. City of Hood River, 46 Or LUBA 602 (2004).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Given the severe consequence that dismissal of an appeal represents, and the ease with which the risk of that consequence can be avoided by filing a record objection or precautionary record objection while record disputes are resolved, a prudent petitioner will always file a record objection or precautionary record objection with any other documents that may be filed to provide notice of the parties' negotiations concerning the content of the record. Laurance v. Douglas County, 44 Or LUBA 845 (2003).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. If a petition for review is filed with LUBA in any way other than by "first class mail with the United States Postal Service," OAR 661-010-0075(a)(A) applies and the date of filing is the date the petition for review is actually delivered to LUBA. Doob v. Josephine County, 43 Or LUBA 473 (2003).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under OAR 661-010-0065(4), LUBA may extend the deadline for filing the petition for review on its own motion without the written consent of all parties, where the extension is required to avoid prejudice to one or more party's substantial rights due to LUBA's failure to contemporaneously advise the parties that the record had been received. Confederated Tribes v. Jefferson County, 42 Or LUBA 597 (2002).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The deadline for filing the petition for review is strictly enforced, even where irregularities occur in providing petitioner with notice of the deadline for filing the petition for review. Allen v. Grant County, 41 Or LUBA 21 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Even assuming that petitioner failed to receive LUBA's order notifying petitioner of the deadline for filing the petition for review, and that lack of actual or imputed knowledge of that deadline might excuse failure to file the petition on or before the deadline, petitioner has an obligation to act promptly and request appropriate relief once he learns of the deadline, to avoid prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. An unjustified 21-day delay in filing for such relief prejudices other parties' substantial rights and is a sufficient basis to deny the requested relief. Allen v. Grant County, 41 Or LUBA 21 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The requirement at OAR 661-010-0030(1) that LUBA dismiss an appeal where the petition for review is not timely filed implements the statutory policy that "time is of the essence" in land use matters. That the statutes governing LUBA's review do not provide for dismissal where the petition is untimely filed does not mean that OAR 661-010-0030(1) is inconsistent with LUBA's governing statutes. Rookard v. Lane County, 41 Or LUBA 14 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Petitioners are entitled to rely on a Board order extending the time to file a petition for review, notwithstanding that the order was issued without the written agreement of all parties, where no party's substantial rights are prejudiced by the extension of time. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 573 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. An untimely filed petition for review requires dismissal of the appeal where petitioners rely on a motion to extend the time for filing the petition for review to avoid the deadline, but the motion is not signed by all the parties and petitioners are aware that all of the parties have not consented to the extension of time. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 377 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Petitioners do not have the right to rely on a Board order extending the time for filing a petition for review, where not all of the parties have stipulated to the extension of time and petitioners unreasonably believed that some of the intervenors were represented by a single attorney who had consented to the extension of time on behalf of only one intervenor. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 377 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Failure to file the petition for review within 21 days of LUBA's receipt of the record is not excused by the fact that LUBA's letter to the parties acknowledging receipt of the record failed to specify the date the record was received, where petitioner knew or should have known from service of the record and other information that the 21-day period to file the petition for review had commenced. Bybee v. City of Salem, 40 Or LUBA 187 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a motion to intervene has been filed and served but not yet received by LUBA and the parties, and an order extending the deadline for filing the petition for review is entered based on the mistaken understanding that all parties consent to the extension, the intervening party may thereafter object to the extension and is entitled to have the original deadline for filing the petition for review reestablished, if that can be done without prejudicing petitioner's substantial right to rely on the deadline that was established in the order. Pereira v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 760 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Although OAR 661-010-0067(2) authorizes LUBA to suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review to allow time to rule on a motion to dismiss, the filing of a motion to dismiss or a memorandum opposing a motion to dismiss does not automatically suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review. Wynnyk v. Jackson County, 39 Or LUBA 500 (2001).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. A motion to extend the deadline for filing a petition for review cannot be granted under OAR 661-010-0067(2) unless all parties, including intervenors, consent to the requested extension. Bauer v. City of Portland, 37 Or

LUBA 489 (2000).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Possible confusion about whether LUBA granted an initial request to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review is irrelevant, where petitioners fail to submit a petition for review within the extended deadline that was requested in the initial request. Root v. Crook County, 37 Or LUBA 257 (1999).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. OAR 661-010-0030 requires that the petition for review be filed within 21 days after the record is filed or settled. That deadline is not violated where petitioner in a consolidated appeal files its petition prior to the date the consolidated record is settled rather than waiting until after the consolidated record is filed. Friends of Clean Living v. Polk County, 36 Or LUBA 544 (1999).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Any request to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review under OAR 661-010-0067(2) must be signed by all parties, including intervenors-respondent. Genstar Land Company v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 832 (1999).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where the petition for review is filed more than 21 days after the date the record is settled, the appeal will be dismissed. North Park Annex v. City of Independence, 35 Or LUBA 512 (1999).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. A record objection filed after the deadline for filing the petition for review does not suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 34 Or LUBA 348 (1998).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. An appeal at LUBA will be dismissed where a petition for review is filed after the deadline established by OAR 661-010-0030(1), unless petitioner obtains the written consent of all parties to extend the filing deadline. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 34 Or LUBA 348 (1998).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where the city serves a copy of the record on petitioner via delivery on her doorstep, pursuant to petitioner's agreement with the city, the city's failure to serve the record on petitioner personally or to a person at petitioner's house does not violate OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b) or toll the date on which the petition for review is due. Peebles v. City of Wilsonville, 34 Or LUBA 235 (1998).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. When the petition for review is not filed within the time established under OAR 661-10-030(1), the appeal will be dismissed and the filing fee and deposit for costs forfeited to the governing body. Grammon v. City of Cove, 30 Or LUBA 31 (1995).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The requirement that a petitioner file a petition for review within 21 days after the record is settled will be strictly enforced, and failure to comply will result in dismissal of the appeal. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 532 (1995).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Although LUBA's rules distinguish between transmittal of the record, which is accomplished by actual delivery to LUBA, and service of the record on a petitioner, the rules do not distinguish between service in person or by first-class mail, under OAR 661-10-075(2)(b)(B), in determining when a copy of the record is served on a petitioner, as required by OAR 661-10-025. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 532 (1995).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where petitioner neither files a petition for review within the time provided by LUBA's rules nor obtains an extension of time to file the petition for review, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Reames v. Deschutes County, 28 Or LUBA 335 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a petitioner obtains the written consent of all parties to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review, filing the written agreement one day after the petition for review was due constitutes a technical violation of OAR 661-10-067(4) and does not prevent LUBA from granting an extension of time to file the petition for review under OAR 661-10-067(2). Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 746 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Failure to file a record objection within the time required by LUBA rules may provide a basis for denying the record objection or for providing an abbreviated deadline for filing the petition for review after the record objection is resolved. However, even an untimely record objection suspends the deadline for filing the petition for review until the record objection is resolved. Cole v. Columbia County, 28 Or LUBA 62 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The filing of an objection to the local record suspends the time for filing a petition for review, even if the objection is not timely filed. Failure to file a record objection in a timely manner may provide a basis for denying the record objection or setting an abbreviated time for filing the petition for review, but does not provide a basis for dismissing the appeal. Cole v. Columbia County, 27 Or LUBA 701 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. LUBA will not consider a motion for reversal that includes arguments not contained in the petition for review, where the motion for reversal is filed three weeks after the deadline for filing the petition for review. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 480 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where the petitioner neither files a petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, nor obtains an extension of time for filing the petition for review, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. ORS 197.830(10); OAR 661-10-030(1). Fleming v. Marion County, 27 Or LUBA 78 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. A motion to stay LUBA proceedings that is not signed by all parties is not the equivalent of a written stipulation by all parties for an extension of time to file the petition for review and, therefore, filing such a motion to stay LUBA proceedings does not suspend the time for filing a petition for review. Hackett v. Multnomah County, 26 Or LUBA 551 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. If a petition for review is not filed within the time required under LUBA's rules, ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require LUBA to dismiss the appeal. Hackett v. Multnomah County, 26 Or LUBA 551 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under OAR 661-10-067(2), LUBA may not extend the deadline for filing a petition for review, unless all parties consent to the extension. Zippel v. Josephine County, 26 Or LUBA 626 (1994).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where petitioners neither filed a petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, nor obtained an extension of time for filing the petition for review, LUBA will dismiss the appeal under ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1). Vominh v. City of Portland, 26 Or LUBA 58 (1993).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a request to amend the petition for review to add an assignment of error is delivered to LUBA two days before the final opinion and order is due, the request will be denied as untimely. Adler v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 546 (1993).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where petitioners neither file a petition for review within the time provided by LUBA's rules nor obtain an extension of time to file the petition for review, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Fleming v. Marion County, 25 Or LUBA 96 (1993).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. If an objection to the local record is filed, the time limits for filing the petition for review, respondents' briefs and LUBA's final opinion and order are suspended, regardless of whether the record objection is ultimately sustained or denied. OAR 661-10-026(5). DLCD v. Klamath County, 24 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where the petitioner has neither filed a petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, nor obtained an extension of time for filing the petition for review, ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require LUBA to dismiss the appeal. Compass Corporation v. City of Lake Oswego, 23 Or LUBA 593 (1992).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The untimely filing of a petition for review is not a technical violation of LUBA's rules. Weeks v. City of Tillamook, 23 Or LUBA 255 (1992).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. A motion to dismiss does not suspend the time for filing the petition for review. The only events that suspend the time for filing a petition for review in a LUBA appeal are the filing of (1) a motion for an evidentiary hearing, (2) a record objection, or (3) a written stipulation signed by all parties for an extension of time to file the petition for review. Weeks v. City of Tillamook, 23 Or LUBA 255 (1992).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where petitioners neither file a petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, nor obtain an extension of time to file the petition for review pursuant to LUBA's rules, ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require dismissal of the appeal. Hollywood Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 636 (1992).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where all parties acknowledge an oral agreement to extend the time for filing the petition for review was reached prior to the date the petition for review was required to be filed, that a stipulated motion for extension of time to file the petition for review was filed one day after the day the petition for review was otherwise due is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and will not result in dismissal of the appeal. Rabe v. City of Tualatin, 22 Or LUBA 832 (1992).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. If petitioner's motion for extension of time to file the petition for review does not satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-067(2) for the written consent of all parties, and the petition for review was not filed within 21 days after the date the Board received the record, the appeal must be dismissed. OAR 661-10-030(1). Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 535 (1992).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under LUBA's rules, if petitioner's motion for extension of time to file the petition for review does not satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-067(2) for the written consent of all parties, and a petition for review is not filed within 21 days after the date LUBA received the local record, the appeal must be dismissed. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. The provision of OAR 661-10-067(2) allowing extensions of time for filing the petition for review only where all parties to the appeal consent to such extension does not exceed LUBA's statutory authority. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a petitioner neither files a petition for review within the time required by LUBA rules, nor obtains an extension of time for filing the petition for review, ORS 197.830(8) and (10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require that LUBA grant respondent's motion to dismiss and request for award of petitioner's filing fee and deposit for costs. Keister v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 212 (1991).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Under ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1), in the absence of an agreement between the parties to extend the time for filing the petition for review, the consequence of failing to file a timely petition for review is dismissal of the appeal and award of petitioner's filing fee and deposit for costs to respondent. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 20 Or LUBA 431 (1991).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Where a petitioner neither files a petition for review within the time required by LUBA rules, nor obtains an extension of time for filing the petition for review, ORS 197.830(8) and (10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require that LUBA grant respondent's motion to dismiss and request for award of petitioner's filing fee and deposit for costs. McCauley v. Jackson County, Or 20 Or LUBA 176 (1990).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. A record objection filed four days late, but before the petition for review is due, will suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review where respondent makes no attempt to explain how its substantial rights may have been prejudiced by a delay of four days in filing the record objection. Benjamin v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 600 (1990).

27.10.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Petition for Review. Filing a motion to consolidate does not extend the time for filing a petition for review. Bloomer v. Baker County, 19 Or LUBA 90 (1990).

27.10.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Final Opinion. LUBA will suspend proceedings on an appeal pursuant to ORS 197.840(1)(d) and (2) where the legal issues on appeal are identical to the issues presented in a case pending before the Court of Appeals, and the Court's decision is likely to be dispositive in the pending appeal before LUBA. DLCD v. Clackamas County, 77 Or LUBA 584 (2018).

27.10.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Final Opinion. ORS 197.840(1)(b) and (d) allow LUBA to delay issuing a final opinion under certain circumstances. Those statutory bases for delaying or suspending LUBA's review are consistent with ORS 197.805, which provides not only that "time is of the essence" in reaching finality in matters involving land use, but also that LUBA's review must be made "consistently with sound principles of judicial review." Kamp v. Washington County, 50 Or LUBA 761 (2005).

27.10.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Final Opinion. LUBA will grant a motion to suspend its review of one decision under ORS 197.840(1)(b) until the Court of Appeals completes its review of a different decision, where the two decisions are related and the issue squarely before the Court is the status and nature of the decision before LUBA. Kamp v. Washington County, 50 Or LUBA 761 (2005).

27.10.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Final Opinion. LUBA's rules do not allow for a continuance following oral argument to allow a party to supplement the petition for review, respond to issues raised in a response brief, or add evidence to the record. Peterson v. City of Portland, 31 Or LUBA 112 (1996).

27.10.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Final Opinion. Where the Court of Appeals remands LUBA's decision, ORS 197.850(11) requires LUBA to respond to the court's mandate within 30 days. Therefore, LUBA will not grant a party's motion to stay its proceedings on remand over another party's objections. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 28 Or LUBA 274 (1994).

27.10.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Final Opinion. If an objection to the local record is filed, the time limits for filing the petition for review, respondents' briefs and LUBA's final opinion and order are suspended, regardless of whether the record objection is ultimately sustained or denied. OAR 661-10-026(5). DLCD v. Klamath County, 24 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. ORS 197.830(7)(a) requires that a motion to intervene be filed within 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Under OAR 660-010-0015(1)(b), a notice of intent to appeal is filed on the date it is mailed by registered or certified mail or the date it is received by LUBA. But OAR 660-010-0015(1)(b) does not set out two dates of filing, either of which may be relied upon as the date of filing for purposes of computing the deadline for filing a motion to intervene. Rather the rule makes the date of filing the date of mailing, if mailed by registered or certified mail, with the date of filing being the date the notice of intent to appeal is received by LUBA in all other circumstances. Holmberg v. Deschutes County, 76 Or LUBA 512 (2017).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. The filing of an amended response brief outside the time permitted for filing the response brief, and without permission from the Board to file an amended brief, is a violation of OAR 661-010-0035(1) and (5). MGP X Properties, LLC v. Washington County, 74 Or LUBA 378 (2016).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Under OAR 661-010-0075(8), where a deadline for filing a brief falls on a holiday, the filing must be performed on the next working day. Where the seven-day deadline for filing the reply brief fell on Thanksgiving, and the following day Friday all state offices were closed, including LUBA's, the "next working day" is the following Monday, so a reply brief filed on that Monday was timely filed. Kine v. City of Bend, 72 Or LUBA 423 (2015).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Because the cross petition for review is the functional equivalent of a petition for review, OAR 661-010-0030(7) imposes the same filing deadline that applies to petitions for review, and LUBA strictly enforces that filing deadline for cross petitions for review in the same way it strictly enforces that filing deadline for the petition for review. LUBA will grant a motion to strike a cross petition for review that is filed one day late. Warren v. Josephine County, 66 Or LUBA 471 (2012).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. An oral objection at oral argument to a reply brief that was filed more than three weeks earlier is untimely, and will not be considered. Oh v. City of Gold Beach, 60 Or LUBA 356 (2010).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Intervenor's failure to file a motion to intervene within 21 days of the date the notice of intent to appeal (NITA) was filed does not require denial of the motion where petitioner failed to serve the NITA on intervenor, as required by OAR 661-010-0015(3)(i). Ford v. Jackson County, 50 Or LUBA 359 (2005).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. The deadline for filing a motion to appear as an amicus is not a deadline that is rigidly enforced. Filing the motion to appear as amicus one day late, when the amicus brief was timely filed, does not prejudice other parties' substantial rights. Nelson v. Curry County, 48 Or LUBA 178 (2004).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Although a motion to dismiss may be filed at any time prior to the issuance of a final opinion and order, a party is not entitled to file unlimited motions on the same issue. When a party has had ample time to brief and argue jurisdictional issues, LUBA is not obligated to reconsider earlier orders regarding jurisdiction. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 46 Or LUBA 19 (2003).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. A technically deficient motion to intervene is sufficient to satisfy the 21-day deadline of ORS 197.830(7)(a) when an acceptable motion to intervene is subsequently filed and there is no prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. Griffin v. Jackson County, 40 Or LUBA 584 (2001).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Although OAR 661-010-0067(2) authorizes LUBA to suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review to allow time to rule on a motion to dismiss, the filing of a motion to dismiss or a memorandum opposing a motion to dismiss does not automatically suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review. Wynnyk v. Jackson County, 39 Or LUBA 500 (2001).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Failure to file a notice to intervene within the 21-day period prescribed by ORS 197.830(7) does not require that intervention be denied where the petitioner did not serve the notice of intent to appeal on intervenor until 53 days after the notice was filed with LUBA. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 932 (2000).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Where the local government mailed a copy of the decision to the applicant, and petitioners timely served a notice of intent to appeal on the applicant, the fact that the applicant's attorney did not receive a copy of either the decision or the notice of intent to appeal does not allow the applicant to file his motion to intervene beyond the 21-day deadline imposed by ORS 197.830(6). Slusser v. Polk County, 37 Or LUBA 1062 (2000).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. A motion to intervene is not timely filed where the person seeking to intervene files the original motion to intervene with LUBA more than 21 days from the date the notice of intent to appeal is filed, notwithstanding that that person served copies of that motion on the petitioner and the local government within the 21-day period. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 36 Or LUBA 801 (1999).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Untimely submission of a motion to file a reply brief is not a technical violation of LUBA's rules where the length of the proposed reply brief and the proximity of oral argument is such that respondents do not have adequate time to respond to the motion and prepare to respond to the proposed reply brief at oral argument. A 32-page reply brief filed two days before oral argument violates respondents' substantial rights to the speediest practicable review of the land use decision. Sequoia Park Condo. Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 36 Or LUBA 317 (1999).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Petitioner's failure to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the applicant does not toll the 21-day period to intervene under ORS 197.830(6), where the applicant nonetheless received a copy of the notice and did not file a motion to intervene within 21 days of receiving the notice. Bowlin v. Grant County, 35 Or LUBA 776 (1998).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. A motion to intervene that is filed by mail within 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed is timely filed under ORS 197.830(6), notwithstanding that the motion to intervene is not received by LUBA until 27 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Marshall v. City of Yachats, 35 Or LUBA 82 (1998).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Amendments to ORS 197.830(6) that shorten the statutory deadline for filing a motion to intervene in a LUBA appeal impair the existing right to participate in an appeal. Thus, the statute applies prospectively in the absence of an expression of legislative intent to the contrary. Gutoski v. Lane County, 33 Or LUBA 866 (1997).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. A challenge to LUBA's jurisdiction is not subject to the 10-day requirement of OAR 661-10-065(2), which governs motions that challenge an opposing party's failure to comply with statutes or LUBA's rules. Adams v. City of Ashland, 33 Or LUBA 552 (1997).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. A challenge to LUBA's jurisdiction is not subject to the 10-day requirement of OAR 661-10-065(2); it may be brought at any time prior to LUBA's issuance of a final opinion and order. Petersen v. Columbia County, 33 Or LUBA 253 (1997).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. The timeline imposed by our rules affecting reply briefs is intended less to provide a second opportunity for respondents to research issues already argued in their own brief than to provide a reasonable opportunity for respondents and this Board to review the reply brief. Lett v. Yamhill County, 32 Or LUBA 98 (1996).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Under OAR 661-10-067, time limits for documents other than the notice of intent to appeal and petition for review may be extended upon written consent of all parties, LUBA's motion, or the motion of a party. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. LUBA normally considers several factors in determining whether to accept a late petition for attorney fees and damages: (1) length of delay; (2) validity of the explanation of lateness; and (3) presence or absence of prejudice. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. A motion challenging LUBA's jurisdiction is not subject to the 10-day filing requirement for motions specified in OAR 661-10-065(2). Bowen v. City of Dunes City, 28 Or LUBA 324 (1994).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. If an objection to the local record is filed, the time limits for filing the petition for review, respondents' briefs and LUBA's final opinion and order are suspended, regardless of whether the record objection is ultimately sustained or denied. OAR 661-10-026(5). DLCD v. Klamath County, 24 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Neither statutes nor LUBA rules establish an exact deadline for filing a motion to intervene. A motion to intervene filed four days after the respondent's brief is filed is not untimely where the movant is an applicant of record who was not served with the notice of intent to appeal as required by ORS 197.830(8). Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 606 (1991).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. A motion to intervene, filed along with the intervenor-respondent's brief on the last day for filing a respondent's brief, will be allowed where there is no prejudice to petitioner caused by the delay in moving to intervene. Greuner v. Lane County, 21 Or LUBA 329 (1991).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. LUBA considers filing a cost bill two days later than required by OAR 661-10-075(1)(a) to be a technical violation of its rules which will not interfere with LUBA's consideration of the cost bill unless the parties' substantial rights are prejudiced. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 21 Or LUBA 569 (1991).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Where (1) intervenor-respondent's brief is filed 21 days late, (2) petitioners receive the brief less than one full day before oral argument, and (3) providing petitioners an opportunity to submit argument in response to the brief would delay issuance of LUBA's final opinion, the late filing of intervenor's brief is not an excusable technical violation of LUBA's rules. Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 189 (1990).

27.10.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Other Documents. Petitioner's motion to deny intervenor status, filed four days after a LUBA order determining the content of the local record was issued, is timely because, regardless of when a motion to intervene is filed, failure of the movant to participate in the proceedings below cannot be determined until it is known what the local record includes. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 19 Or LUBA 537 (1990).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. LUBA will exercise its discretion and find that attending a previously scheduled family vacation is a reasonable basis for rescheduling oral argument, particularly where the objecting party gives no specific reason for why they are not able to agree to any alternative date. Lundeen v. City of Waldport, 80 Or LUBA 1029 (2019).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Under ORS 197.830(11) and OAR 661-010-0030(1), where a petition for review is not filed within the time established by a stipulated extension of the deadline for such filing, and where the petitioner does not obtain written consent to extend the deadline further, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Becker v. Jackson County, 79 Or LUBA 348 (2019).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. OAR 661-010-0039 was amended in 2010 to require a request to file a reply brief be filed "within seven days of the date the respondent's brief is filed." That amendment created a filing deadline. Accordingly, LUBA will deny a motion to file a reply brief under OAR 661-010-0039 (effective in 2018), where petitioner did not move for an extension of time or obtain the written consent of the parties to file a late reply brief, petitioner filed the request to file its reply brief 48 days after the response briefs were filed and petitioner offered no explanation or justification for such an egregious delay, because the violation is not a mere "technical violation" under OAR 661-010-005. Yamhill Creek Solar, LLC v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 1031 (2018).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Under OAR 661-010-0050, an intervenor becomes a party to the appeal on the date the motion to intervene is filed. A petitioner seeking to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review pursuant to OAR 661-010-0067(2) must obtain the written consent of the intervenor and all parties, even if LUBA has not yet issued an order granting the motion to intervene. Danielson Trust v. Jackson County, 65 Or LUBA 437 (2012).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. A motion to reconsider a LUBA order is treated as a renewed motion for the same relief sought in the original motion. Because a motion to take evidence outside of the record suspends all other time limits in an appeal, a motion to reconsider an order denying the motion to take evidence, which is considered a renewed motion to take evidence, also suspends all other time limits. Stewart v. City of Salem, 61 Or LUBA 77 (2010).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. While OAR 661-010-0067(3) provides that certain time limits may be extended upon motion of a party, that rule must be interpreted consistently with ORS 197.830(7)(c), which mandates denial of a motion to intervene filed more than 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Accordingly, OAR 661-010-0067(3) does not authorize LUBA to grant a motion to extend the time to file the motion to intervene more than 21 days after the notice is filed. Grant v. City of Depoe Bay, 52 Or LUBA 811 (2006).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. OAR 661-010-0067(2) requires that a motion for extension of time to file a petition for review be denied where the motion is not consented to in writing by all parties, there is no indication that intervenors ever had plans or have plans to consent to extend the deadline, and no petition for review is filed within the 21-day deadline for filing a petition for review, pursuant to OAR 661-010-0030(1). ODOT v. City of Phoenix, 50 Or LUBA 548 (2005).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Under OAR 661-010-0067(5), a stipulated agreement to extend one deadline also automatically extends any contemporaneous and subsequent deadlines. Grahn v. City of Newberg, 49 Or LUBA 762 (2005).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. ORS 197.830(7) not only prescribes a 21-day deadline for filing a motion to intervene with LUBA, but dictates that failure to comply with that deadline shall result in denial of the motion. That the legislature chose to spell out the consequences for untimely filing of a motion to intervene indicates that the legislature wanted that deadline to be rigorously enforced and, by implication, not extended. Grahn v. City of Newberg, 49 Or LUBA 762 (2005).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. While LUBA may have general authority to adopt rules allowing for extension of less critical statutory deadlines, it is unlikely that the legislature intended LUBA to have the authority to adopt rules extending more critical deadlines, including the 21-day deadline for filing the motion to intervene. Grahn v. City of Newberg, 49 Or LUBA 762 (2005).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Under OAR 661-010-0065(4), LUBA may extend the deadline for filing the petition for review on its own motion without the written consent of all parties, where the extension is required to avoid prejudice to one or more party's substantial rights due to LUBA's failure to contemporaneously advise the parties that the record had been received. Confederated Tribes v. Jefferson County, 42 Or LUBA 597 (2002).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. The filing of a record objection does not automatically suspend resolution of other motions properly before the Board, or prioritize resolution of record objections over other motions. No Tram to OHSU v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 588 (2001).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. LUBA will deny a motion to extend the time to file a response to a motion to dismiss until LUBA rules on a pending record objection, absent a showing that resolving the record objection is necessary to resolve the motion to dismiss. No Tram to OHSU v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 588 (2001).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Petitioners are entitled to rely on a Board order extending the time to file a petition for review, notwithstanding that the order was issued without the written agreement of all parties, where no party's substantial rights are prejudiced by the extension of time. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 573 (2001).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Where LUBA provided timely notice of the date and time of oral argument to the county counsel and was not notified of any substitution of counsel, and the county's new attorney did not make inquiries with LUBA or the county counsel regarding the scheduling of oral argument and did not appeal at oral argument, LUBA will not schedule a second oral argument. Dudek v. Umatilla County, 40 Or LUBA 416 (2001).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. An untimely filed petition for review requires dismissal of the appeal where petitioners rely on a motion to extend the time for filing the petition for review to avoid the deadline, but the motion is not signed by all the parties and petitioners are aware that all of the parties have not consented to the extension of time. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 377 (2001).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Petitioners do not have the right to rely on a Board order extending the time for filing a petition for review, where not all of the parties have stipulated to the extension of time and petitioners unreasonably believed that some of the intervenors were represented by a single attorney who had consented to the extension of time on behalf of only one intervenor. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 377 (2001).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Where a motion to intervene has been filed and served but not yet received by LUBA and the parties, and an order extending the deadline for filing the petition for review is entered based on the mistaken understanding that all parties consent to the extension, the intervening party may thereafter object to the extension and is entitled to have the original deadline for filing the petition for review reestablished, if that can be done without prejudicing petitioner's substantial right to rely on the deadline that was established in the order. Pereira v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 760 (2001).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Where petitioners fail to obtain a stipulation from the county to extend the deadline for filing a petition for review pending resolution of a motion, an appeal will be dismissed if the petition for review is not filed within the deadline established by Board rules. Berry v. Jackson County, 35 Or LUBA 137 (1998).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Under OAR 661-10-067, time limits for documents other than the notice of intent to appeal and petition for review may be extended upon written consent of all parties, LUBA's motion, or the motion of a party. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. LUBA normally considers several factors in determining whether to accept a late petition for attorney fees and damages: (1) length of delay; (2) validity of the explanation of lateness; and (3) presence or absence of prejudice. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. OAR 661-10-065(4) simply provides that with the exception of objections to the record and motions for evidentiary hearing, the filing of a motion does not have the legal effect of automatically suspending the deadlines for future events in a LUBA appeal until the motion is resolved. Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 746 (1994).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Where a petitioner obtains the written consent of all parties to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review, filing the written agreement one day after the petition for review was due constitutes a technical violation of OAR 661-10-067(4) and does not prevent LUBA from granting an extension of time to file the petition for review under OAR 661-10-067(2). Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 746 (1994).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. A motion to stay LUBA proceedings that is not signed by all parties is not the equivalent of a written stipulation by all parties for an extension of time to file the petition for review and, therefore, filing such a motion to stay LUBA proceedings does not suspend the time for filing a petition for review. Hackett v. Multnomah County, 26 Or LUBA 551 (1994).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Under OAR 661-10-067(2), LUBA may not extend the deadline for filing a petition for review, unless all parties consent to the extension. Zippel v. Josephine County, 26 Or LUBA 626 (1994).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. LUBA will not grant a request for an extension of time to file respondents' briefs, over petitioner's objection, if the requested extension would necessitate a delay in oral argument and a delay in issuing LUBA's final opinion and order. Waugh v. Coos County, 26 Or LUBA 599 (1993).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Where parties object, a delay of five weeks or more in a LUBA proceeding is inconsistent with the legislative policy that "time is of the essence" in reaching final decisions in appeals to LUBA, and a request for such an extension will be denied. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 708 (1992).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Where all parties acknowledge an oral agreement to extend the time for filing the petition for review was reached prior to the date the petition for review was required to be filed, that a stipulated motion for extension of time to file the petition for review was filed one day after the day the petition for review was otherwise due is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and will not result in dismissal of the appeal. Rabe v. City of Tualatin, 22 Or LUBA 832 (1992).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. If petitioner's motion for extension of time to file the petition for review does not satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-067(2) for the written consent of all parties, and the petition for review was not filed within 21 days after the date the Board received the record, the appeal must be dismissed. OAR 661-10-030(1). Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 535 (1992).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Under LUBA's rules, if petitioner's motion for extension of time to file the petition for review does not satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-067(2) for the written consent of all parties, and a petition for review is not filed within 21 days after the date LUBA received the local record, the appeal must be dismissed. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. The provision of OAR 661-10-

067(2) allowing extensions of time for filing the petition for review only where all parties to the appeal consent to such extension does not exceed LUBA's statutory authority. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Where the copy of the record initially served on petitioner was lost in the mail, LUBA will grant an extension of time for petitioner to file objections to the record. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 583 (1991).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. Petitioner's failure to file her motion for an extension of time to file record objections until three days after the record objections were due is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which will not interfere with LUBA's review unless the substantial rights of other parties are affected. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 583 (1991).

27.10.6 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Extensions. LUBA will not grant a party's motion to continue an appeal proceeding pending the completion of other state agency or appellate court review proceedings, over the objections of other parties, where it cannot be determined when the other proceedings will be completed. Blatt v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 510 (1991).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. OAR 661-010-0039 was amended in 2010 to require a request to file a reply brief be filed "within seven days of the date the respondent's brief is filed." That amendment created a filing deadline. Accordingly, LUBA will deny a motion to file a reply brief under OAR 661-010-0039 (effective in 2018), where petitioner did not move for an extension of time or obtain the written consent of the parties to file a late reply brief, petitioner filed the request to file its reply brief 48 days after the response briefs were filed and petitioner offered no explanation or justification for such an egregious delay, because the violation is not a mere "technical violation" under OAR 661-010-005. Yamhill Creek Solar, LLC v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 1031 (2018).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. ORS 197.830(7)(a) requires that a motion to intervene be filed within 21 days after the notice of intent to appeal is filed. Under OAR 660-010-0015(1)(b), a notice of intent to appeal is filed on the date it is mailed by registered or certified mail or the date it is received by LUBA. But OAR 660-010-0015(1)(b) does not set out two dates of filing, either of which may be relied upon as the date of filing for purposes of computing the deadline for filing a motion to intervene. Rather the rule makes the date of filing the date of mailing, if mailed by registered or certified mail, with the date of filing being the date the notice of intent to appeal is received by LUBA in all other circumstances. Holmberg v. Deschutes County, 76 Or LUBA 512 (2017).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. LUBA will not consider an issue that was not raised in the petition for review and was raised for the first time in a motion that was received by LUBA one day before the statutory deadline for LUBA to issue its final opinion expired. Rawson v. Hood River County, 75 Or LUBA 200 (2017).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. LUBA will deny an untimely motion to intervene pursuant to ORS 197.830(7), where the movant was timely served a copy of the notice of intent to appeal with a certificate of filing showing the date the notice was filed. That LUBA staff allegedly misinformed the movant of the date the notice was filed is not a basis to toll the statutory deadline to intervene at ORS 197.830(7)(a). Central Oregon Landwatch v. Jefferson County, 62 Or LUBA 526 (2010).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Failure to contemporaneously serve a motion for attorney fees and cost bill on other parties as required by OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b) deprives those parties of the opportunity to respond to the motion, and prejudices their substantial rights. Because belated service and briefing on the motion would further delay reaching finality in the appeal, the movant's failure of service is not a "technical violation" under OAR 661-010-0005, and LUBA will not consider the motion. Swails v. Clackamas County, 61 Or LUBA 503 (2010).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. When a notice of intent to appeal (NITA) is filed on behalf of a "corporation or other organization" by a person who is not an active member of the Oregon State Bar and LUBA allows seven days for an attorney to file an amended NITA, failure to file an amended NITA within that time requires dismissal of the appeal. Sending a letter stating that an attorney will represent the corporation or organization is not a sufficient substitute for filing an amended NITA. Waluga Neighborhood Association v. City of Lake Oswego, 59 Or LUBA 380 (2009).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. If a petition for review is delivered to the United States Postal Service and mailed to LUBA via "Priority Mail" it is mailed by "First Class Mail" and therefore filed on the date it was delivered to the United States Postal Service under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(a)(B), where the United States Postal Service defines "First Class Mail" to include "Priority Mail." Canfield v. Lane County, 59 Or LUBA 505 (2009).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(a), a petition for review is filed with LUBA on the date it is mailed "by first class mail with the United States Postal Service." If the petition for review is filed with LUBA in any other manner, the petition for review is filed on the date it is delivered to LUBA. A petition for review that is delivered to a Postal Annex store before the filing deadline expires and is thereafter delivered to LUBA by United Parcel Service on a date after the filing deadline expires is not timely filed and the appeal must be dismissed. Lund v. City of Mosier, 58 Or LUBA 344 (2009).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where a petition for review was not filed within the time required by LUBA's rules, and no written consent to extend the time for filing the petition for review under OAR-661-010-0067(2) was obtained, ORS 197.830(11) and OAR 661-010-0030(1) require that the appeal be dismissed. Verizon Wireless, LLC v. Clackamas County, 56 Or LUBA 660 (2008).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where a petitioner has decided to seek voluntary dismissal of the appeal, to avoid delay and prejudice to other parties the petitioner should file an unequivocal motion for dismissal as soon as reasonably possible. That obligation is not met where the petitioner files an equivocal motion to dismiss on the date the petition is due, based on information that petitioner was long aware of, and that is accompanied by a nonmeritorious motion to resettle the record and restart the deadline for filing the petition for review. Under such circumstances, LUBA will dismiss the appeal for failure to file the petition for review, not based petitioner's motion to dismiss. Ford v. Jackson County, 54 Or LUBA 434 (2007).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. LUBA will deny petitioners' motion to dismiss an intervenor-respondent's brief that is filed one day late, where (1) the late-filed brief is filed 21 days before oral argument and is only five pages long, (2) the late-filed brief largely supplements the city's timely filed 24-page brief, and (3) petitioners neither allege nor demonstrate that their substantial rights were prejudiced by the late filing. O'Brien v. City of Portland, 52 Or LUBA 113 (2006).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. OAR 661-010-0067(2) requires that a motion for extension of time to file a petition for review be denied where the motion is not consented to in writing by all parties, there is no indication that intervenors ever had plans or have plans to consent to extend the deadline, and no petition for review is filed within the 21-day deadline for filing a petition for review, pursuant to OAR 661-010-0030(1). ODOT v. City of Phoenix, 50 Or LUBA 548 (2005).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Failure to object to a motion to intervene until after the intervenor has filed a response brief and shortly before oral argument is prejudicial to the intervenor's substantial rights and not a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules. Rose v. City of Corvallis, 49 Or LUBA 260 (2005).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Absent circumstances where delay in filing the motion to intervene is caused by the party objecting to intervention, ORS 197.830(7)(c) mandates that an untimely motion to intervene be denied. That the petitioner failed to object to the motion to intervene until after the intervenor's brief was filed with LUBA is an insufficient basis to allow an untimely motion to intervene. Rose v. City of Corvallis, 49 Or LUBA 260 (2005).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. ORS 197.830(7) not only prescribes a 21-day deadline for filing a motion to intervene with LUBA, but dictates that failure to comply with that deadline shall result in denial of the motion. That the legislature chose to spell out the consequences for untimely filing of a motion to intervene indicates that the legislature wanted that deadline to be rigorously enforced and, by implication, not extended. Grahn v. City of Newberg, 49 Or LUBA 762 (2005).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Petitioners do not sustain their burden of demonstrating that a petition for review was timely filed, where the only evidence that bears on that question is (1) a postmark dated one day late and (2) an affidavit by petitioners' attorney averring that he arrived at the post office two minutes prior to midnight on the day the petition for review was due, and he was "certain" that he deposited the petition for review with the postal clerk before midnight. Bollinger v. City of Hood River, 46 Or LUBA 602 (2004).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Given the severe consequence that dismissal of an appeal represents, and the ease with which the risk of that consequence can be avoided by filing a record objection or precautionary record objection while record disputes are resolved, a prudent petitioner will always file a record objection or precautionary record objection with any other documents that may be filed to provide notice of the parties' negotiations concerning the content of the record. Laurance v. Douglas County, 44 Or LUBA 845 (2003).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where a response brief was filed a week after the brief was due, and petitioners were not made aware that the response brief had been filed until they appeared at oral argument and thus were not prepared to respond to the brief, petitioners' substantial rights were prejudiced, and LUBA will reject the response brief. Griffin v. Jackson County, 41 Or LUBA 159 (2001).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. The deadline for filing the petition for review is strictly enforced, even where irregularities occur in providing petitioner with notice of the deadline for filing the petition for review. Allen v. Grant County, 41 Or LUBA 21 (2001).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Even assuming that petitioner failed to receive LUBA's order notifying petitioner of the deadline for filing the petition for review, and that lack of actual or imputed knowledge of that deadline might excuse failure to file the petition on or before the deadline, petitioner has an obligation to act promptly and request appropriate relief once he learns of the deadline, to avoid prejudice to other parties' substantial rights. An unjustified 21-day delay in filing for such relief prejudices other parties' substantial rights and is a sufficient basis to deny the requested relief. Allen v. Grant County, 41 Or LUBA 21 (2001).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. An untimely filed petition for review requires dismissal of the appeal where petitioners rely on a motion to extend the time for filing the petition for review to avoid the deadline, but the motion is not signed by all the parties and petitioners are aware that all of the parties have not consented to the extension of time. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 377 (2001).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Petitioners do not have the right to rely on a Board order extending the time for filing a petition for review, where not all of the parties have stipulated to the extension of time and petitioners unreasonably believed that some of the intervenors were represented by a single attorney who had consented to the extension of time on behalf of only one intervenor. Ballou v. Douglas County, 40 Or LUBA 377 (2001).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Failure to file the petition for review within 21 days of LUBA's receipt of the record is not excused by the fact that LUBA's letter to the parties acknowledging receipt of the record failed to specify the date the record was received, where petitioner knew or should have known from service of the record and other information that the 21-day period to file the petition for review had commenced. Bybee v. City of Salem, 40 Or LUBA 187 (2001).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. LUBA will not strike a late-filed respondent's brief, where the brief is filed 24 days before oral argument and the Board and parties will therefore have adequate time before oral argument to read the brief and prepare for oral argument. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 743 (2000).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Although OAR 661-010-0067(2) authorizes LUBA to suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review to allow time to rule on a motion to dismiss, the filing of a motion to dismiss or a memorandum opposing a motion to dismiss does not automatically suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review. Wynnyk v. Jackson County, 39 Or LUBA 500 (2001).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where the local government mailed a copy of the decision to the applicant, and petitioners timely served a notice of intent to appeal on the applicant, the fact that the applicant's attorney did not receive a copy of either the decision or the notice of intent to appeal does not allow the applicant to file his motion to intervene beyond the 21-day deadline imposed by ORS 197.830(6). Slusser v. Polk County, 37 Or LUBA 1062 (2000).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Untimely submission of a motion to file a reply brief is not a technical violation of LUBA's rules where the length of the proposed reply brief and the proximity of oral argument is such that respondents do not have adequate time to respond to the motion and prepare to respond to the proposed reply brief at oral argument. A 32-page reply brief filed two days before oral argument violates respondents' substantial rights to the speediest practicable review of the land use decision. Sequoia Park Condo. Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 36 Or LUBA 317 (1999).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. A LUBA staff misstatement concerning the correct date the record was settled by an order of the Board does not affect the date the record was settled. Parties who rely on LUBA staff to determine the date the record is settled rather than make that determination themselves by referring to the order on record objections assume the risk of such reliance. North Park Annex v. City of Independence, 35 Or LUBA 512 (1999).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where the petition for review is filed more than 21 days after the date the record is settled, the appeal will be dismissed. North Park Annex v. City of Independence, 35 Or LUBA 512 (1999).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where petitioner fails to demonstrate that its substantial rights have been prejudiced, a motion for voluntary remand filed by the local government one week prior to oral argument will be allowed. Smith v. Douglas County, 33 Or LUBA 682 (1997).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. When a party makes a colorable claim that it will be substantially prejudiced by LUBA's failure to enforce its rules, LUBA will enforce the rules. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. The requirement that a petitioner file a petition for review 21 days after the record is settled will be strictly enforced, and failure to comply will result in dismissal of the appeal. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 532 (1995).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Failure to file a request to file a reply brief "as soon as possible" after the respondents' brief is filed is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which, under OAR 661-10-005, does not affect LUBA's review unless the substantial rights of the parties are prejudiced. Shaffer v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 592 (1995).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where a petitioner obtains the written consent of all parties to extend the deadline for filing the petition for review, filing the written agreement one day after the petition for review was due constitutes a technical violation of OAR 661-10-067(4) and does not prevent LUBA from granting an extension of time to file the petition for review under OAR 661-10-067(2). Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 746 (1994).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. The filing of an objection to the local record suspends the time for filing a petition for review, even if the objection is not timely filed. Failure to file a record objection in a timely manner may provide a basis for denying the record objection or setting an abbreviated time for filing the petition for review, but does not provide a basis for dismissing the appeal. Cole v. Columbia County, 27 Or LUBA 701 (1994).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. LUBA will not consider a motion for reversal that includes arguments not contained in the petition for review, where the motion for reversal is filed three weeks after the deadline for filing the petition for review. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 480 (1994).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. If a petition for review is not filed within the time required under LUBA's rules, ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require LUBA to dismiss the appeal. Hackett v. Multnomah County, 26 Or LUBA 551 (1994).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. An intervenor-respondent's delay in filing a motion to intervene does not prejudice the rights of any party and provides no basis for denying the motion to intervene, where the appeal proceedings are suspended by a pending motion for evidentiary hearing and the time for filing the respondents' briefs has not yet expired. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 25 Or LUBA 816 (1993).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. If a notice of intent to appeal a post-acknowledgment zone change is filed more than 21 days after petitioner was given the notice of decision it is entitled to under ORS 197.615, the appeal must be dismissed. City of Grants Pass v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 722 (1993).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Filing an objection to the record two days after the date required by OAR 661-10-026(2), and within 10 days after the date petitioner received the record, is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that does not affect LUBA's review of the challenged decision. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 786 (1993).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where the petitioner has neither filed a petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, nor obtained an extension of time for filing the petition for review, ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require LUBA to dismiss the appeal. Compass Corporation v. City of Lake Oswego, 23 Or LUBA 593 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where a motion to intervene is filed three months after the notice of intent to appeal, with no explanation for why the motion was not filed earlier, the motion to intervene is not filed "as soon as practicable after the Notice of Intent to Appeal is filed," as required by OAR 661-10-050(2). Rhyne v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 703 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where intervenors' delay in filing their motion to intervene and brief results in no delay of the appeal and no prejudice to petitioners' substantial rights, the failures to file a timely motion to intervene and brief are technical violations of LUBA's rules and provide no basis for denying the requested intervention. Rhyne v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 703 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. The untimely filing of a petition for review is not a technical violation of LUBA's rules. Weeks v. City of Tillamook, 23 Or LUBA 255 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where a notice of intent to appeal is filed with LUBA more than 21 days after the date the challenged decision became final, under OAR 661-10-015(1) LUBA must dismiss the appeal. Crew v. Deschutes County, 23 Or LUBA 148 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Under ORS 197.830(8), OAR 661-10-015(1) and 661-10-075(2)(a), an appeal must be dismissed if the notice of intent to appeal is not delivered to or received by LUBA on or before the twenty-first day after the decision sought to be reviewed became final. Pilling v. Crook County, 23 Or LUBA 51 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where petitioners neither file a petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, nor obtain an extension of time to file the petition for review pursuant to LUBA's rules, ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require dismissal of the appeal. Hollywood Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 636 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. If petitioner's motion for extension of time to file the petition for review does not satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-067(2) for the written consent of all parties, and the petition for review was not filed within 21 days after the date the Board received the record, the appeal must be dismissed. OAR 661-10-030(1). Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 535 (1992).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Under LUBA's rules, if petitioner's motion for extension of time to file the petition for review does not satisfy the requirement of OAR 661-10-067(2) for the written consent of all parties, and a petition for review is not filed within 21 days after the date LUBA received the local record, the appeal must be dismissed. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 295 (1991).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Failure to file a respondent's brief within the time specified in an order issued by LUBA pursuant to OAR 660-10-026(5) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which will not interfere with LUBA's review unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Where petitioners have ample time to review respondent's brief prior to oral argument, their substantial rights are not prejudiced. Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 604 (1991).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Petitioner's failure to file her motion for an extension of time to file record objections until three days after the record objections were due is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which will not interfere with LUBA's review unless the substantial rights of other parties are affected. Gray v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 583 (1991).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. The statutory requirement to serve the notice of intent to appeal on an applicant of record is jurisdictional. However, failure to serve the notice of intent to appeal on an applicant of record within the time established by OAR 661-10-015(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which is not grounds for dismissing an appeal unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 606 (1991).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Under ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1), in the absence of an agreement between the parties to extend the time for filing the petition for review, the consequence of failing to file a timely petition for review is dismissal of the appeal and award of petitioner's filing fee and deposit for costs to respondent. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 20 Or LUBA 431 (1991).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. A motion to intervene in a LUBA proceeding which is filed five months after the notice of intent to appeal was filed is untimely under OAR 661-10-050(2). If the movant's brief is not filed until two days after oral argument, providing the other parties an opportunity to respond to that brief would delay the issuance of LUBA's final opinion. Under these circumstances, the tardy filing of the motion to intervene is not an excusable technical violation of LUBA's rules under OAR 661-10-005. Beck v. City of Tillamook, 20 Or LUBA 178 (1990).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Failure to timely file a petition for review will result in dismissal of the appeal. Bloomer v. Baker County, 19 Or LUBA 90 (1990).

27.10.7 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Time Limits – Failure to Comply. Where petitioner's cost bill is filed 38 days after LUBA's final opinion and order was issued, without a request for an extension of time or an explanation as to why the cost bill could not have been filed in accord with OAR 661-10-075(1)(a), the cost bill is untimely and will be denied. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Marion County, 18 Or LUBA 906 (1990).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where a local government declines to provide the email addresses of those individuals to whom the local government sent a copy of the final decision by email, a petitioner does not fail to meet their NITA service obligation under OAR 661-010-0015(2) by not serving the NITA on those individuals. Caldwell Farms, LLC v. City of Corvallis, 81 Or LUBA 348 (2020).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where LUBA issues two orders (1) providing the correct address for the local governing body's legal counsel, (2) requiring petitioner to file an amended NITA that complies with OAR 661-010-0015(2), and (3) notifying petitioner that failure to file a compliant NITA will result in dismissal of the appeal; and where the amended NITA fails to comply with LUBA's orders and OAR 661-010-0015(2), LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Wendt v. City of Klamath Falls, 81 Or LUBA 266 (2020).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where respondent moves to dismiss an appeal, alleging that petitioner failed to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the county, and after five weeks petitioner has neither advised LUBA that a copy of the notice of intent to appeal has been served on respondent nor filed a written response to the motion to dismiss, LUBA will dismiss the appeal for lack of jurisdiction. Mann v. Marion County, 74 Or LUBA 73 (2016).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where LUBA issues an order directing petitioner to file a supplemental certificate of service to establish that the notice of intent to appeal was served on the local government's legal counsel, and petitioner fails to do so within the deadline specified in the order, petitioner's appeal will be dismissed. Althauser v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 656 (2008).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Belated service of the notice of intent to appeal is a non-jurisdictional violation of LUBA's rules that will not interfere with LUBA's review absent a showing of prejudice to a party's substantial rights. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 51 Or LUBA 834 (2006).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. While service of the notice to intent to appeal is jurisdictional under ORS 197.830(9), the timing of that service is not. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 50 Or LUBA 735 (2005).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The statutes governing review of land use decisions are sui generis, and caution is appropriate in extrapolating to or from other statutory contexts and the statutes and rules governing LUBA's review. That the Oregon Supreme Court has interpreted statutes and rules governing civil appeals to require that timely service of a notice of appeal is jurisdictional does not lead to the conclusion that LUBA's rules, which do not make timely service jurisdictional, are inconsistent with the statutes governing LUBA's review. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 50 Or LUBA 735 (2005).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA's rules require the petitioner to timely serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the respondent, and to certify such service, but do not assign jurisdictional consequences to whether the respondent actually receives the notice. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 50 Or LUBA 735 (2005).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Where petitioner mails a notice of intent to appeal on the twenty-first day after the local decision becomes final by first-class mail with a "certificate of mailing" rather than by certified or registered mail, as provided in OAR 661-010-0015(1), the notice of intent to appeal is "filed" on the date it is received by LUBA, not on the date of mailing. Where LUBA receives such a notice of intent to appeal more than 21 days after the local decision becomes final, the appeal must be dismissed. McKnight v. City of Portland, 48 Or LUBA 292 (2004).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. When (1) the local government's record does not clearly show who was mailed written notice of a land use decision; (2) a petitioner asks the local government who was actually mailed written notice of the decision; and (3) the petitioner serves the notice of intent to appeal on the persons the local government states were mailed written notice of the decision, then petitioner has complied with LUBA's rules and LUBA will not dismiss the appeal. Copeland Sand & Gravel, Inc. v. Jackson County, 46 Or LUBA 653 (2004).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Mail service of the notice of intent to appeal is complete on deposit in the mail. That the county did not receive the notice does not waive its obligation to file the record with LUBA, particularly when it had actual knowledge that the notice had been filed with LUBA. Petersen v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 799 (2001).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Failure to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the applicant's attorney in a timely manner is a technical violation of LUBA's rules that does not require dismissal unless the substantial rights of the applicant have been prejudiced. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 932 (2000).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Petitioner's failure to serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on the applicant does not toll the 21-day period to intervene under ORS 197.830(6), where the applicant nonetheless received a copy of the notice and did not file a motion to intervene within 21 days of receiving the notice. Bowlin v. Grant County, 35 Or LUBA 776 (1998).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Service of copies of the notice of intent to appeal is a jurisdictional requirement under OAR 661-10-015(2); while late service of such notice is a technical violation that will not result in dismissal, a complete failure to provide such notice defeats LUBA's jurisdiction. Bruce v. City of Hillsboro, 32 Or LUBA 382 (1997).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The length of the notice list is irrelevant to petitioner's obligation to comply with the service of notice requirements. Bruce v. City of Hillsboro, 32 Or LUBA 382 (1997).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 610-10-015(1)(b), a notice of intent to appeal mailed to LUBA within the 21-day time limit, but received by LUBA after the 21-day time limit has expired, is not timely filed. J.C Reeves Corp. v. Washington County, 32 Or LUBA 263 (1996).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. LUBA will not grant the county's motion to dismiss based on petitioners' failure to timely serve a notice of intent to appeal on interested parties, when those parties have not moved for dismissal. Markham v. Coos County, 31 Or LUBA 529 (1996).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Petitioner's failure to serve a timely notice of intent to appeal on other interested and essential parties warrants dismissal of the appeal where a party establishes substantial prejudice from the delay in service. Winner v. Multnomah County, 30 Or LUBA 420 (1996).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Failure to serve the notice of intent to appeal on a respondent within the time required by OAR 661-10-015(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, which is not grounds for dismissal unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Where the notice of intent to appeal was served on respondent, at most, two days later than required by OAR 661-10-015(2), respondent's substantial rights were not prejudiced. Williams v. City of Philomath, 29 Or LUBA 563 (1995).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-10-075(2)(c)(B), a notice of intent to appeal is timely served if it is mailed on the same date it is filed with LUBA. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 23 Or LUBA 679 (1992).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. That a person is named as an applicant in both the application and the local government decision is sufficient to establish that person is an "applicant of record" entitled to service of the notice of intent to appeal under ORS 197.730(8) and, therefore, has standing to intervene under ORS 197.830(6)(b)(A). Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 606 (1991).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. The statutory requirement to serve the notice of intent to appeal on an applicant of record is jurisdictional. However, failure to serve the notice of intent to appeal on an applicant of record within the time established by OAR 661-10-015(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which is not grounds for dismissing an appeal unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 606 (1991).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Failure to timely serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on other parties and to include proof of service of the notice of intent to appeal when the notice of intent to appeal is filed are technical violations of LUBA's rules, which will result in dismissal only where a party's substantial rights are prejudiced. Tice v. Josephine County, 21 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Failure to timely serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on other parties is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, which will result in dismissal only where a party's substantial rights are prejudiced. Rebmann v. Linn County, 21 Or LUBA 542 (1991).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Under OAR 661-10-005, failure to serve the notice of intent to appeal on respondent within the time required by OAR 661-10-015(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which is not grounds for dismissal unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Schellenberg v. Polk County, 21 Or LUBA 507 (1991).

27.11.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Notice of Intent to Appeal. Respondent's right to "the speediest practicable review" is not materially affected by service of the notice of intent to appeal eight days later than required by OAR 661-10-015(2). Schellenberg v. Polk County, 21 Or LUBA 507 (1991).

27.11.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Intervention/ Participation. The ORS 197.830(7)(a) 21-day deadline for filing a motion to intervene, which is strictly enforced, is a filing deadline, not a service deadline. Housing Land Advocates v. City of Happy Valley, 73 Or LUBA 405 (2016).

27.11.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Intervention/ Participation. OAR 661-010-0050(2)(e) requires that the moving party who files a motion to intervene must contemporaneously serve a copy of the motion to intervene on all parties. Where the moving party fails to contemporaneously serve a copy of a motion to intervene, and that failure does not result in prejudice to any party's substantial rights, the moving party will be given a chance to correct the service error before the moving party is dismissed from the appeal. Housing Land Advocates v. City of Happy Valley, 73 Or LUBA 405 (2016).

27.11.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Intervention/ Participation. Intervenor's failure to file a motion to intervene within 21 days of the date the notice of intent to appeal (NITA) was filed does not require denial of the motion where petitioner failed to serve the NITA on intervenor, as required by OAR 661-010-0015(3)(i). Ford v. Jackson County, 50 Or LUBA 359 (2005).

27.11.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Record and Objections. When an intervening party is aware that the record has been filed, but fails to obtain a copy of the record in time to object and does not demonstrate why such a failure justifies a further delay in the appeal, untimely objections to the record will be rejected. Mountain West Investment v. City of Silverton, 38 Or LUBA 938 (2000).

27.11.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Record and Objections. Where the city serves a copy of the record on petitioner via delivery on her doorstep, pursuant to petitioner's agreement with the city, the city's failure to serve the record on petitioner personally or to a person at petitioner's house does not violate OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b) or toll the date on which the petition for review is due. Peebles v. City of Wilsonville, 34 Or LUBA 235 (1998).

27.11.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Record and Objections. Although LUBA's rules distinguish between transmittal of the record, which is accomplished by actual delivery to LUBA, and service of the record on a petitioner, the rules do not distinguish between service in person or by first-class mail, under OAR 661-10-075(2)(b)(B), in determining when a copy of the record is served on a petitioner, as required by OAR 661-10-025. Terrace Lakes Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Salem, 29 Or LUBA 532 (1995).

27.11.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Record and Objections. Petitioner's not serving a record objection on respondent until five days after it was filed with LUBA is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and, since respondent filed a timely response to the record objection, respondent's substantial rights were not prejudiced by the rule violation. Schmaltz v. City of Hood River, 21 Or LUBA 563 (1991).

27.11.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Other Documents. Delayed service of a certificate of compliance and a certificate of service to a party is a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules that provides no basis for LUBA to strike the response brief associated with the certificates, absent a showing that the delayed service prejudiced a party's substantial rights. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 547 (2018).

27.11.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Other Documents. Filing a motion to stay with LUBA is accomplished either by delivery to the Board or by mailing it to the Board by first class mail; a copy of a motion sent as an e-mail attachment is not sufficient to file a motion. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 71 Or LUBA 409 (2015).

27.11.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Other Documents. Failure to contemporaneously serve a motion for attorney fees and cost bill on other parties as required by OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b) deprives those parties of the opportunity to respond to the motion, and prejudices their substantial rights. Because belated service and briefing on the motion would further delay reaching finality in the appeal, the movant's failure of service is not a "technical violation" under OAR 661-010-0005, and LUBA will not consider the motion. Swails v. Clackamas County, 61 Or LUBA 503 (2010).

27.11.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Other Documents. Service of the petition for review by parcel post rather than by first class mail is a violation of OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b)(B). However, unless the slower delivery attributed to parcel post interferes with the respondent's ability to prepare the response brief, or otherwise prejudices other parties' substantial rights, that violation does not provide a basis to dismiss the appeal. Moreland v. City of Depoe Bay, 48 Or LUBA 136 (2004).

27.11.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Other Documents. Where LUBA provided timely notice of the date and time of oral argument to the county counsel and was not notified of any substitution of counsel, and the county's new attorney did not make inquiries with LUBA or the county counsel regarding the scheduling of oral argument and did not appeal at oral argument, LUBA will not schedule a second oral argument. Dudek v. Umatilla County, 40 Or LUBA 416 (2001).

27.11.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Other Documents. Untimely service of the petition for review is not a basis to dismiss the appeal, absent prejudice to a party's substantial rights. Allen v. Grant County, 39 Or LUBA 735 (2000).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Delayed service of a certificate of compliance and a certificate of service to a party is a "technical violation" of LUBA's rules that provides no basis for LUBA to strike the response brief associated with the certificates, absent a showing that the delayed service prejudiced a party's substantial rights. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 547 (2018).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Where LUBA issues an order directing petitioner to file a supplemental certificate of service to establish that the notice of intent to appeal was served on the local government's legal counsel, and petitioner fails to do so within the deadline specified in the order, petitioner's appeal will be dismissed. Althauser v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 656 (2008).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Where a party commits multiple violations of LUBA's rules regarding service, whether those violations are "technical violations" that shall not interfere with LUBA's review under OAR 661-01-0005 depends on the cumulative effect of those violations on other parties' substantial rights, rather than the individual effect of each violation. Moreland v. City of Depoe Bay, 48 Or LUBA 136 (2004).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Untimely service of the petition for review is not a basis to dismiss the appeal, absent prejudice to a party's substantial rights. Allen v. Grant County, 39 Or LUBA 735 (2000).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Failure to (1) serve a party with a copy of a certificate of service filed with LUBA, or (2) include a certificate of filing in the service copy of a document filed with LUBA is, at most, a technical violation of OAR 661-10-075(2)(c)(A) or 661-10-075(2)(c)(C), respectively, and will not interfere with LUBA's review unless parties' substantial rights are prejudiced. Gilson v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 598 (1991).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Failure to timely serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on other parties and to include proof of service of the notice of intent to appeal when the notice of intent to appeal is filed are technical violations of LUBA's rules, which will result in dismissal only where a party's substantial rights are prejudiced. Tice v. Josephine County, 21 Or LUBA 550 (1991).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Failure to timely serve a copy of the notice of intent to appeal on other parties is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, which will result in dismissal only where a party's substantial rights are prejudiced. Rebmann v. Linn County, 21 Or LUBA 542 (1991).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Under OAR 661-10-005, failure to serve the notice of intent to appeal on respondent within the time required by OAR 661-10-015(2) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules which is not grounds for dismissal unless the substantial rights of parties are prejudiced. Schellenberg v. Polk County, 21 Or LUBA 507 (1991).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Respondent's right to "the speediest practicable review" is not materially affected by service of the notice of intent to appeal eight days later than required by OAR 661-10-015(2). Schellenberg v. Polk County, 21 Or LUBA 507 (1991).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. Failure to timely serve a cost bill or petition for attorney fees is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, and a motion to strike such a cost bill or petition for attorney fees will be granted only if the moving party's substantial rights are prejudiced by the untimely service. Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 535 (1991).

27.11.5 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Service – Failure to Comply. A two week delay in LUBA's resolution of a cost bill or petition for attorney fees' due to the prevailing party's failure to comply with LUBA's requirements for service of such documents on other parties, does not constitute prejudice to the other parties' substantial right to the "speediest practicable review." Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 535 (1991).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. To be a prevailing party where the local government rescinds its decision on reconsideration after the applicant withdraws the application, the petitioner must demonstrate that the local government adopted a decision on reconsideration in accord with petitioner's position. A petitioner is not a prevailing party under that test where the appealed decision is rescinded because the applicant withdrew its application after filing a different application for the same development, and the petitioner fails to demonstrate that the new application was prompted by perceived vulnerabilities in the first decision. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Curry County, 71 Or LUBA 406 (2015).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. LUBA's rules allow for a prevailing local government to recover the cost of providing petitioner and LUBA with copies of the record, but do not provide for a prevailing intervenor-respondent to recover the cost of the copy of the record that the local government provided to intervenor. Kukaska v. Linn County, 70 Or LUBA 495 (2014).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. LUBA's administrative rules do not authorize a prevailing party to recover the cost of preparing a transcript of a city council hearing. Stewart v. City of Salem, 62 Or LUBA 465 (2010).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. There may be rare circumstances where a sustained cross-assignment of error has such a disproportionate impact upon the remand proceeding that it calls into question whether the petitioner is the prevailing party. When the sustained cross-assignment of error merely serves to clear up alleged errors in the wording of conditions of approval, that does not mean the petitioner is no longer the prevailing party. Curl v. City of Bend, 59 Or LUBA 513 (2009).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Petitioner is considered the prevailing party even though all of his assignments of error were denied, where LUBA sustains one of intervenor-petitioner's assignments of error and remands the local government's decision. Sommer v. Josephine County, 50 Or LUBA 721 (2005).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. So long as one of petitioner's assignments of error is sustained in whole or in part and results in reversal or remand of an appealed decision, petitioner is the prevailing party and entitled to recover the filing fee as costs under OAR 661-010-0075(1)(b)(A). Save Our Skyline v. City of Bend, 48 Or LUBA 643 (2004).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. A petitioner may be deemed the "prevailing party" for purposes of an award of costs, notwithstanding that the appeal was dismissed, only where petitioner establishes that the appeal played some causative role in the local government action that mooted or otherwise justified dismissal of the appeal. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Deschutes County, 44 Or LUBA 1 (2003).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Where it is not clear that petitioner's appeal prompted repeal of the challenged ordinance, and it is more probable that repeal was prompted by a Supreme Court decision that invalidated the ballot measure the ordinance was intended to implement, petitioner fails to establish the requisite causation between its appeal and repeal of the ordinance in order to be deemed the "prevailing party" for purposes of obtaining an award of costs. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Deschutes County, 44 Or LUBA 1 (2003)..

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Where a party appeals an adverse decision by LUBA, the Court of Appeals overturns LUBA's decision, and the Court of Appeals' decision is not subsequently appealed, that party is the prevailing party for purposes of awarding costs. Hausam v. City of Salem, 42 Or LUBA 587 (2002).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. In order for a petitioner to be deemed the prevailing party when a LUBA appeal is dismissed, the petitioner must establish that the petitioner's appeal played some causative role in the local government action that mooted or otherwise justified dismissal of the appeal. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 41 Or LUBA 600 (2002).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Where a local government adopts three separate decisions, but the second and third decisions simply readopt the earlier decisions with additional findings and the appeal of the third decision results in remand, petitioner is properly viewed as the prevailing party in all three appeals, notwithstanding that the first two appeals are dismissed as moot. Friends of Clean Living v. Polk County, 37 Or LUBA 979 (1999).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Under ORCP 54A(3), where petitioner voluntarily dismisses an appeal, and no circumstances indicate otherwise, intervenor-respondent is the prevailing party. Pfeifer v. City of Silverton, 33 Or LUBA 869 (1997).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Respondent is not considered the prevailing party when a LUBA appeal is dismissed because the challenged ordinance was rejected by the voters in a referendum election. Potter v. City of Astoria, 29 Or LUBA 590 (1995).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. A petitioner need not prevail on all of its assignments of error to be considered the "prevailing party" under OAR 661-10-075(1)(b). LUBA considers a petitioner to be the prevailing party if the challenged decision is reversed or remanded. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 29 Or LUBA 572 (1995).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Where a petitioner moves to dismiss its appeal or withdraws its notice of intent to appeal before the deadline for filing the petition for review has passed, respondent is not entitled to award of petitioner's filing fees and deposits for costs pursuant to ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-075(1)(c). However, as the prevailing party, respondent may be awarded the costs of copying the record. OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(B). Claremont Limited Partnership v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 785 (1995).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Although respondent is generally viewed as the prevailing party when an appeal at LUBA is dismissed, where the appeal is dismissed after petitioner's appeal results in the local government withdrawing its decision for reconsideration and adopting a new decision, petitioner is the prevailing party. Sewco Investments, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 678 (1994).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Petitioner is the prevailing party for purposes of awarding costs under OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(A), where petitioner prevails on two of six assignments of error and LUBA remands the challenged decision. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 26 Or LUBA 624 (1994).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. Where petitioner withdraws his notice of intent to appeal before the deadline for filing the petition for review has passed, respondent is not entitled to award of petitioner's filing fees and deposit for costs pursuant to ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-075(1)(c). However, as the prevailing party, respondent may be awarded the costs of copying the record. OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(B). Olson v. Neahkahnie Water District, 25 Or LUBA 792 (1993).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. OAR 661-10-075(1)(b) authorizes LUBA to award the costs of preparing the local record to a prevailing "governing body," but does not authorize an award costs to a prevailing intervenor-respondent. City of North Plains v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 623 (1993).

27.12.1 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Prevailing Party. While LUBA's rules do not expressly provide for return of petitioner's deposit for costs where petitioner is the prevailing party, it is LUBA's practice to return petitioner's deposit for costs under these circumstances. Tice v. Josephine County, 21 Or LUBA 596 (1991).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. Where the local government is the prevailing party, it is entitled to recover as costs the "copying costs for the required number of copies of the record," in an amount not to exceed the $150 deposit for costs. The required number of copies is two: one for petitioner and one for LUBA. Marine Street LLC v. City of Astoria, 37 Or LUBA 1018 (2000).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. Under OAR 661-010-0025(3), a local government may require that parties, other than the petitioner, who request a copy of the record in a LUBA appeal pay the cost of copying the record. However, the local government may not include the cost of providing such additional copies of the record to parties other than the petitioner in its cost bill. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 35 Or LUBA 825 (1998).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. When respondent is awarded costs of copying the record, the amount of the award is based on the per page copying rate specified in OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(C), but cannot exceed the amount of petitioner's deposit for costs. Respondent is not required to submit proof of actual copying costs. Jones v. Lane County, 29 Or LUBA 573 (1995).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(A) allows petitioners, as the prevailing parties, to recover the cost of their LUBA filing fee. City of Hood River*, 22 Or LUBA 803 (1991).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. The required number of copies of the record, for which a prevailing respondent is entitled to award of its copying costs, is the number of copies which OAR 661-10-025(2) and (3) requires to be provided to LUBA and to petitioners. Pinkham v. Clatsop County, 21 Or LUBA 247 (1991).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. Jackson County*, 18 Or LUBA 909 (1990).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. Although a local government may require that parties other than petitioner who request a copy of the record reimburse the county directly for the reasonable costs of copying the record, a local government may not properly include such copying costs, or other costs not allowed by OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(B), in its cost bill. Craven v. Jackson County, 18 Or LUBA 909 (1990).

27.12.2 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Amount. OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(A) does not allow petitioner, as the prevailing party, to recover costs for postage, photocopying, telephone calls or secretarial services. Gray v. Clatsop County, 18 Or LUBA 907 (1990).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Where an appeal is voluntarily dismissed on petitioner's motion, whether that dismissal results in forfeiture of the fee and deposit for costs under OAR 661-010-0075(1)(c) depends on whether the motion to dismiss is filed before or after the deadline for filing the petition for review. Sommer v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 783 (2006).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Where the petitioner requests voluntary dismissal of the appeal one day after the petition for review is due, LUBA will award the filing fee and deposit for costs to respondent under OAR 661-010-0075(1)(c), notwithstanding that LUBA's order dismissing the appeal was based on petitioner's request rather than petitioner's failure to file the petition for review. Sommer v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 783 (2006).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. OAR 661-010-0075(1)(c) provides for an award of the filing fee where the local record has been filed and an appeal is dismissed because a petitioner fails to file a petition for review on time. It does not apply where the record has been filed but the petition for review has not, and the appeal is dismissed based on the parties' stipulated dismissal dated one day after the deadline for filing the petition for review. Younger v. City of Oregon City, 48 Or LUBA 641 (2004).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Where a petitioner moves to withdraw the notice of intent to appeal and LUBA dismisses the appeal before the deadline for filing the petition for review expires, the petitioner does not fail to file a timely petition for review and the prevailing respondent is not entitled to an enhanced award of costs under OAR 660-010-0075(1)(c). Holtzman v. Jefferson County, 47 Or LUBA 618 (2004).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. However, as the prevailing party, respondent may be awarded the costs of copying the record. OAR 661-10-075(1)(b)(B). Olson v. Neahkahnie Water District, 25 Or LUBA 792 (1993).

City of Milwaukie*, 24 Or LUBA 206 (1992).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Where petitioners filed a motion to withdraw their appeal, and the appeal was dismissed, before the date the petition for review became due, petitioners did not fail to file their petition for review within the time required by LUBA's rules, and respondent is not entitled to award of petitioners' filing fee and deposit for costs pursuant to ORS 197.830(8) and OAR 661-10-075(1)(c). Simonson v. Marion County, 23 Or LUBA 706 (1992).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Where a petitioner neither files a petition for review within the time required by LUBA rules, nor obtains an extension of time for filing the petition for review, ORS 197.830(8) and (10) and OAR 661-10-030(1) require that LUBA grant respondent's motion to dismiss and request for award of petitioner's filing fee and deposit for costs. Keister v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 212 (1991).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Yamhill County*, 21 Or LUBA 533 (1991).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Under ORS 197.830(10) and OAR 661-10-030(1), in the absence of an agreement between the parties to extend the time for filing the petition for review, the consequence of failing to file a timely petition for review is dismissal of the appeal and award of petitioner's filing fee and deposit for costs to respondent. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 20 Or LUBA 431 (1991).

27.12.3 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Petition for Review Not Filed. Jackson County*, Or 20 Or LUBA 176 (1990).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. Where the petitioner prevails in at least one assignment of error that results in the challenged decision being reversed or remanded based on that sustained assignment of error, LUBA considers the petitioner the prevailing party and entitled to an award of the filing fee from respondents The fact that the petitioner did not prevail on a majority of assignments of error is immaterial. Curl v. City of Bend, 59 Or LUBA 513 (2009).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. There may be rare circumstances where a sustained cross-assignment of error has such a disproportionate impact upon the remand proceeding that it calls into question whether the petitioner is the prevailing party. When the sustained cross-assignment of error merely serves to clear up alleged errors in the wording of conditions of approval, that does not mean the petitioner is no longer the prevailing party. Curl v. City of Bend, 59 Or LUBA 513 (2009).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. Delaying oral argument in an appeal of a local government's decision following a remand from LUBA is not an authorized sanction for the local government's delay in responding to an order awarding costs to petitioners in the prior appeal that led to the remand. Rice v. City of Monmouth, 52 Or LUBA 786 (2006).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. Where there is uncertainty regarding which of two city council decisions denying local appeals of a hearings officer decision had the effect of making the hearings officer's decision final, and petitioners appeal both of those city council decisions to LUBA and no party moves to dismiss either of those appeals, the prevailing petitioners are entitled to recover both filing fees as costs under OAR 661-010-0075(1)(b)(A). Save Our Skyline v. City of Bend, 48 Or LUBA 643 (2004).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. City of Wilsonville*, 44 Or LUBA 819 (2003).

City of Sweet Home*, 40 Or LUBA 563 (2001).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. LUBA considers filing a cost bill eight days later than required by OAR 661-10-075(1)(a) to be a technical violation of its rules that will not interfere with LUBA's consideration of the cost bill unless a party's substantial rights are prejudiced. Jones v. Lane County, 29 Or LUBA 573 (1995).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. It is LUBA's practice to return to petitioner any portion of petitioner's deposit for costs that is not awarded to respondent. It is not necessary for petitioner to request refund of the unused portion of its deposit for costs. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 794 (1993).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. Although LUBA's rules authorize award of a petitioner's filing fee to respondent in certain circumstances (OAR 661-10-075(1)(c)), they do not provide for return of a filing fee to petitioner. Totman v. City of Grants Pass, 24 Or LUBA 46 (1992).

City of Jacksonville*, 21 Or LUBA 569 (1991).

27.12.4 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Costs – Generally. Where petitioner's cost bill is filed 38 days after LUBA's final opinion and order was issued, without a request for an extension of time or an explanation as to why the cost bill could not have been filed in accord with OAR 661-10-075(1)(a), the cost bill is untimely and will be denied. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Marion County, 18 Or LUBA 906 (1990).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where an intervenor-respondent submits a response to the petition for review that fails to comply with LUBA's rules for response briefs, LUBA issues an order instructing the intervenor-respondent to file an amended response brief complying with those rules within seven days, and the intervenor-respondent fails to file a compliant response brief, where LUBA issues another order explaining that it will neither consider the intervenor-respondent's submittal nor allow them to present oral argument seven days later, the intervenor-respondent has not "presented a position" for purposes of awarding attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Kimbrell v. City of Lincoln City, 81 Or LUBA 1019 (2020).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where the circumstances under which a local code provision applies are not clearly articulated in that provision or specified in any other local code provision, LUBA cannot say that an argument that the governing body misinterpreted that provision is one that "no reasonable lawyer would conclude * * * possessed legal merit" for purposes of awarding attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), even where the governing body's interpretation was required to be affirmed under ORS 197.829(1). Vannatta v. City of St. Helens, 80 Or LUBA 1018 (2019).

Linn County*, 80 Or LUBA 1021 (2019).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where an appeal involves novel legal issues, including the complex interface of state and county marijuana regulations with land use law, 108.9 hours is a reasonable amount of time to have spent pursuing an appeal before LUBA. MJAI Oregon 5, LLC v. Linn County, 80 Or LUBA 1021 (2019).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where the Oregon State Bar Economic Survey describes the average hourly rate for land use attorneys as $398 where petitioner's attorneys practice and $278 where the local government is located; where petitioner's attorney's law firm has a partner hourly rate of $475, an associate hourly rate of $240 to $295, and a paralegal hourly rate of $150; and where petitioner's counsel charged an average hourly rate of $272.66 over the entire LUBA appeal period, LUBA will conclude that those hourly rates are reasonable. MJAI Oregon 5, LLC v. Linn County, 80 Or LUBA 1021 (2019).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Because the law regarding the application of RLUIPA's Equal Terms provision to particular local zoning provisions is unsettled, and because conflicts exist between decisions from courts in the various federal circuits that have applied the Equal Terms provision to specific local zoning ordinances, it will be a rare occurrence where a party challenging a local government decision regarding RLUIPA will "present[] a position without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law" for purposes of awarding attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 80 Or LUBA 1026 (2019).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a local code provision states that certain fire safety guidelines are "suggested" but that the local government may require them when it finds that "such measures are necessary to protect public safety," an argument that the provision gives the local government discretion to require those measures without such a finding will not support an award of attorney fees because LUBA cannot say that no reasonable lawyer would have advanced that interpretation. Blu Dutch LLC v. Jackson County, 79 Or LUBA 1068 (2019).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a local code provision states that "a Fire Safety Inspection * * * shall occur prior to the issuance of building permits," an argument that the provision does not prohibit the local government from requiring such an inspection prior to development approval will not support an award of attorney fees because LUBA cannot say that no reasonable lawyer would have advanced that interpretation, particularly where LUBA notes that the provision "is not a model of clarity." Blu Dutch LLC v. Jackson County, 79 Or LUBA 1068 (2019).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Petitioner's argument that the county hearings officer's failure to adopt findings of compliance with a county code provision (Washington County Development Code (CDC 421-7.8)) is not a position presented "without probable cause" sufficient to entitle an award of attorney fees against a non-prevailing party, where LUBA agreed with petitioner that the hearings officer's failure to adopt any findings explicitly addressing CDC 421-7.8 would warrant remand, unless, as occurred here, other findings with respect to other standards (CDC 422) in the hearings officer's decision were sufficient to address the substantive standards set forth in CDC 421-7.8, and therefore the hearings officer's failure to adopt findings addressing CDC 421-7.8 was harmless error. McAndrew v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 1094 (2018).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a statute requires a local government to find that the land upon which a proposed motor vehicle dismantling business is to be located is "zoned for industrial use," and petitioner argues the county must also find that the business possesses a conditional use permit because the business is a conditional use in the city's industrial zone, LUBA will reject the argument because the statute only requires a finding that the land upon which the proposed business is to be located is "zoned for industrial use." However, that argument is not frivolous and was presented with "probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(15)(b). Devlin v. Linn County, 77 Or LUBA 559 (2018).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a statute requires a local government to find that the land upon which a proposed motor vehicle dismantling business is to be located is "zoned for industrial use," and petitioner argues the land upon which the proposed business is not zoned for industrial use because the business is encroaching on petitioner's exclusive farm use zoned property, LUBA will reject the argument where there is pending circuit court litigation between the parties that will resolve the parties' encroachment dispute. However, that argument is not frivolous and was presented with "probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(15)(b). Devlin v. Linn County, 77 Or LUBA 559 (2018).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The party seeking an award of attorney fees under the probable cause standard must clear a relatively high hurdle, and that hurdle is not met by simply showing that LUBA denied all of a party's objections to the record and/or attempts to introduce evidence not in the record for the Board to consider, because record objections and motions to take evidence are not part of the "entire presentation" described in Fechtig v. City of Albany, 150 Or App 10, 24, 946 P2d 280 (1997). A party's "presentation" includes a party's arguments on the merits of an appeal and on jurisdictional issues that may arise. Martin v. City of Central Point, 76 Or LUBA 463 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A prevailing party who did not incur any actual legal fees is not entitled to seek an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Grimstad v. Deschutes County, 76 Or LUBA 467 (2017).

27.13 Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.830(3) provides a remedy in the form of tolling of the appeal period when, after a hearing is held, the use that is approved by a land use decision differs to such a degree from the proposal described in the notice of hearing that a petitioner could have been misled by the notice of hearing regarding the nature of the proposal. A novel legal argument regarding the types or extent of deviation from a proposal described in a notice of hearing that could have misled a person was presented with "probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law" within the meaning of ORS 197.830(15)(b), and LUBA will not award attorney fees even if LUBA rejected the argument. Oral Hull Foundation v. Clackamas County, 76 Or LUBA 523 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where one of petitioner's assignments of error challenges a city's dismissal of petitioner's local appeal for failure to pay the appeal fee and argues that the city erred in dismissing his appeal on that basis because nothing in the city's code makes payment of an appeal fee jurisdictional, that argument meets the low probable cause standard that requires the prevailing party to demonstrate that every argument made by the nonprevailing party lacked probable cause, and LUBA will deny a motion for attorney fees from the city. Dang v. City of Rockaway Beach, 75 Or LUBA 485 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Attorney fees are not warranted against a city for defending its decision to impose exactions on proposed development under the theory that the development represented a "modification" of a planned unit development, warranting imposition of new conditions, where the applicant himself identified the application as one for a "modification," and complex factual and legal circumstances supported the reasonableness of the city's position that the proposed development required a modification of the planned unit development. Tokarski v. City of Salem, 75 Or LUBA 489 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA will not address arguments that attorney fees should be awarded against a city under ORS 197.835(10)(a) and ORS 197.796(5), where the motion for attorney fees invokes those statutes only with respect to two assignments of error that LUBA did not reach in its final opinion, and that the Court of Appeals did not review in its decision affirming LUBA's final opinion. Tokarski v. City of Salem, 75 Or LUBA 489 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where the issue of whether a county erred by removing property from its Goal 5 inventory of Deer General Winter Range was clearly resolved against petitioner in a prior appeal, petitioner's attempt to revive that issue in a subsequent appeal is barred under the holding in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153, 831 P2d 678 (1992), and constitutes a position presented "without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law * * *" under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Wood v. Crook County, 75 Or LUBA 494 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a petitioner both presents a position on the merits that meets the "probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law" standard in ORS 197.830(15)(b), and in response to an argument that the position on the merits is barred under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153, 831 P2d 678 (1992), presents a "probable cause" argument that the position is not barred by Beck, LUBA will deny a motion for an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Wood v. Crook County, 75 Or LUBA 494 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Attorney fees are not warranted under ORS 197.830(15)(b) against a petitioner whose only "position" presented was that a precautionary LUBA appeal should be suspended and not be dismissed until it became clear whether the local government would provide a local appeal, where the planning commission had scheduled a hearing to consider petitioner's request for a local appeal, but provided no notice or confirmation that the planning commission had in fact accepted the local appeal and would voluntarily provide a local appeal. Friends of the Lostine v. Wallowa County, 75 Or LUBA 546 (2017).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.835(10)(b) is phrased in mandatory terms, and requires that if LUBA reverses a local government decision to deny an application and orders the local government to approve the application under ORS 197.835(10)(a), LUBA must award attorney fees to the applicant against the city. Walter v. City of Eugene, 74 Or LUBA 671 (2016).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. While LUBA independently reviews attorney fee statements for reasonableness, the failure of an opposing party to contest such statements is at least some indication that the attorney fees sought are reasonable. Walter v. City of Eugene, 74 Or LUBA 671 (2016).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In a case where LUBA rejected a petitioner's argument that a proposed clubhouse adjacent to a golf course exceeds the ambiguous "design capacity" limits in OAR 660-033-0130(2)(a), LUBA will deny a motion for attorney fees where, given the ambiguity inherent in the administrative rule, LUBA is unable to say that no reasonable lawyer would present the argument that petitioner presented. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Curry County, 73 Or LUBA 396 (2016).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A motion for attorney fees was properly served on the opposing party by "first class mail" under OAR 661-010-0075(2)(b)(B) when it was served by certified mail, because certified mail is a type of first class mail. Oregonians in Action v. City of Lincoln City, 72 Or LUBA 457 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Although LUBA rejected a petitioner's argument that an ordinance that created limits on vacation rental use of single family second homes would exacerbate an identified shortage of residential land to meet the need for single family second homes, LUBA will deny a motion for attorney fees where, given the complexity of the existing vacation rental dwelling regulatory program and the changes to it, LUBA could not say that no reasonable lawyer would present the argument that petitioners presented. Oregonians in Action v. City of Lincoln City, 72 Or LUBA 457 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA's 2010 rule amendments to require that cross assignments of error be included in a cross petition for review were adopted to address a relatively complicated area of LUBA practice where intervenors who support the decision identify errors that, if corrected, might support the decision. An intervenor's failure in a 2014 appeal to know about the rule change and present his argument as a cross-assignment of error is not the kind of mistake that no reasonable lawyer would make and that failure does not warrant an award of attorney fees. Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 71 Or LUBA 381 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a city has PUD regulations that expressly permit commercial and industrial PUDs to be terminated but no PUD regulations that expressly permit residential PUDs to be terminated, an argument that the city may not permit the owner of an approved and partially constructed PUD to revoke the PUD approval for the undeveloped portion of the PUD by writing a letter to the planning department requesting such termination is not an argument that is so devoid of merit that it warrants an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Parkview Terrace Development LLC v. City of Grants Pass, 71 Or LUBA 381 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where neither the respondent nor the intervenor-respondent file a response brief, and intervenor-respondent files only a motion to dismiss, LUBA limits its review of petitioners' motion for attorney fees to the parties' jurisdictional arguments. Where the motion to dismiss is filed after the petition for review is filed, the jurisdictional question is initially framed by the petition for review. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 71 Or LUBA 392 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a jurisdictional statement in the petition for review attempts to incorporate argument on the merits in different section of the petition for review, and in doing so cites the wrong section of the petition for review, LUBA will nevertheless consider the incorporated argument on the merits, where the argument the petitioners intended to incorporate is obvious and no party was misled by petitioners' error. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 71 Or LUBA 392 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Following the principles articulated in Spencer Creek Neighbors v. Lane County, 152 Or App 1, 952 P2d 90 (1998), and Fechtig v. City of Albany, 150 Or App 10, 946 P2d 280 (1997), if any one of an intervenor-respondent's arguments in response to petitioners' four jurisdictional arguments meets the probable cause standard in ORS 197.830(15)(b), petitioner's request for an award of attorney fees must be denied. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 71 Or LUBA 392 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where petitioners argue that issuing a floodplain permit pursuant to a stipulated order required the exercise of policy or legal judgment, making the ORS 197.015(10)(b)(A) exception to the statutory definition of "land use decision" inapplicable, an intervenor-respondent's response to that argument satisfies the probable cause standard in ORS 197.830(15)(b), where intervenor points out the stipulated order clearly identifies improvements that must be relocated from the floodplain, improvements that must be removed altogether, and improvements that may remain where they are. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 71 Or LUBA 392 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where petitioners cite a code section that expressly requires a Type 2 (discretionary) procedure where a floodplain permit "no-rise certification" will be required, to argue in their petition for review jurisdictional statement that the ORS 197.015(10)(b)(A) ministerial exception to the statutory definition of "land use decision" does not apply, and intervenor then moves to dismiss based on a closely related code section that authorizes a Type 1 (nondiscretionary) procedure in some circumstances, but that closely related code section also expressly requires a Type 2 procedure where a "no-rise certification" will be required, that jurisdictional argument does not satisfy the probable cause standard in ORS 197.830(15)(b). In that circumstance, where the decision findings and a condition of approval expressly require a "no-rise certification," a reasonable lawyer would not move to dismiss and fail to address the code's "no-rise certification" language. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 71 Or LUBA 392 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under ORS 197.830(15)(b), a prevailing party may be awarded attorney fees against any other party that presented a position "without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law or factually supported information." The probable cause standard requires the prevailing party to demonstrate that every argument made by the nonprevailing party lacked probable cause, and that standard is not met where the nonprevailing party made several arguments that not only met the low probable cause threshold, but LUBA agreed with the non-prevailing party on that argument. Stevens v. City of Island City, 71 Or LUBA 430 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a local government, as a nonprevailing party, files the local record but does not file or join in a brief or other document at LUBA defending its decision, the local government does not present a position in the LUBA appeal and no award of attorney fees against the local government is possible under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Stevens v. City of Island City, 71 Or LUBA 430 (2015).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Although LUBA rejected petitioner's argument that the zoning ordinance imposed a mandatory maximum density standard on subdivisions in a particular zoning district, based on petitioner's failure to challenge the city council's reliance on the text of the alleged maximum density standard, where petitioner makes a strong contextual argument based on zoning sub-districts that do impose maximum density standards, LUBA will conclude the argument is "open to doubt, or subject to rational, reasonable or honest discussion," and not subject to an award of attorney fees. Greller v. City of Newberg, 70 Or LUBA 499 (2014).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a prevailing party seeking attorney fees makes a prima facie case that the petitioner's single argument presented was "lacking in probable cause," and the petitioner does not respond to the motion for attorney's fees, LUBA will award attorney's fees to the prevailing party. Clarke v. Coos County, 68 Or LUBA 550 (2013).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under ORS 197.830(15)(b), the requested attorney fees must be reasonable. While LUBA independently reviews attorney fee statements for reasonableness, the failure of an opposing party to contest such statements is at least some indication that the attorney fees sought are reasonable. Clarke v. Coos County, 68 Or LUBA 550 (2013).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A reasonable attorney could believe that an enforcement decision that determines that parking of tow trucks is authorized by a previously issued home occupation permit concerns the application of the city's home occupation regulations, and is thus a land use decision as defined at ORS 197.015(10)(a), because it is frequently unclear whether in making an enforcement decision regarding an existing permit the decision maker applies, or should have applied, a land use regulation. Noordhoff v. City of North Bend, 66 Or LUBA 442 (2012).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A petitioner's arguments that a city relied too heavily on an access road's excess capacity and failed to give appropriate weight to the demands that might be placed on the access road by the future development allowed under existing zoning are not sufficient to demonstrate error in a city decision that grants a waiver of setback, right-of-way dedication and right-of-way improvement standards for development of a triplex under a criterion that requires that the waiver is "not inconsistent with the general purpose of ensuring adequate public facilities," where the decision cites a number of reasons why the city did not believe the setback and right-of-way dedication and right-of-way improvement were necessary. However, petitioner's arguments were not "without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law or on factually supported information," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(15)(b), and therefore LUBA will deny a motion for an award of attorney fees against petitioner. Zirker v. City of Bend, 65 Or LUBA 445 (2012).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. For purposes of attorney fees under the "probable cause" standard in ORS 197.830(15)(b), no reasonable attorney would argue on appeal that a decision that reduces minimum residential density in a proposed five-lot subdivision violates a code provision that expressly authorizes reducing minimum residential density, without presenting some challenge to findings that address the code provision and conclude that reducing the density complies with the code provision. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 63 Or LUBA 522 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. For purposes of attorney fees under the "probable cause" standard in ORS 197.830(15)(b), a reasonable attorney could argue that a Metro code provision mandating a minimum residential density is violated by a decision that approves less than the minimum density, where the Metro code provision directly applies on its face to city subdivision decisions, but is no longer applicable due to the effect of other Metro code provisions and the city's implementation of the Metro minimum residential density requirement. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 63 Or LUBA 522 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a petitioner relies on arguments presented in an assignment of error to avoid attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), it is not sufficient to assert a "probable cause" argument on the merits of that assignment of error if the argument on the merits was waived. In that circumstance, to avoid attorney fees, the petitioner must also have presented a "probable cause" argument regarding the waiver challenge. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 63 Or LUBA 522 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A petitioner fails to present a "probable cause" argument in response to a waiver challenge under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), to an assignment of error, where the petitioner makes no response to the Miles waiver challenge and it is clear from the record that the issue raised in the assignment of error was not identified in the local notice of appeal. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 63 Or LUBA 522 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where an assignment of error is subject to two separate and independent waiver challenges, one under ORS 197.763(1) and another under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), to avoid attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b) the petitioner must make "probable cause" responses to both waiver challenges, in addition to a probable cause argument on the merits of the assignment of error. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 63 Or LUBA 522 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Only legal expenses necessarily related to the appeal of a challenged decision to LUBA are recoverable under ORS 197.835(10)(b); any legal expenses incurred prior to a tentative oral decision to deny an application are not recoverable. Stewart v. City of Salem, 63 Or LUBA 555 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Legal expenses to prepare for an appeal to LUBA that are incurred between the date of a tentative oral decision to deny an application and the final written decision denying the application are recoverable under ORS 197.835(10)(b). Stewart v. City of Salem, 63 Or LUBA 555 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.830(15)(b) implicitly allows recovery of the "reasonable value" of attorney services, and a local government against whom attorney fees are sought under that statute is free to argue that some portion of the requested fees are unreasonable or excessive. Stewart v. City of Salem, 63 Or LUBA 555 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A petitioner may recover attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b) for the time his attorney spent traveling to Salem for oral argument and for attending oral argument, even if petitioner delivered oral argument pro se while the attorney sat in the audience. Stewart v. City of Salem, 63 Or LUBA 555 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.830(15)(b) permits recovery only of attorney fees, and does not mention or allow recovery of other expenses, costs or disbursements. Stewart v. City of Salem, 63 Or LUBA 555 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In determining whether an award of attorney fees is warranted under ORS 197.830(15)(b) against a party who presented a position without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law or on factually supported information, the scope of the probable cause analysis is not limited to those issues or assignments of error that LUBA actually addressed in its opinion. McGovern v. Crook County, 63 Or LUBA 561 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under Zeitoun v. Yamhill County, 61 Or LUBA 515 (2010), where LUBA does not reach the merits of an assignment of error that a petitioner relies upon to satisfy the ORS 197.830(15)(b) probable cause test for attorney fees, and instead LUBA disposes of the assignment of error based on a waiver challenge, the petitioner must show that at least one of the petitioner's positions regarding the waiver issue also meet the probable cause test. McGovern v. Crook County, 63 Or LUBA 561 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where two separate and independent types of waiver challenges are directed at an assignment of error that a petitioner relies upon to avoid an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), the petitioner must demonstrate that at least one probable cause argument was made with respect to both types of waiver challenges. McGovern v. Crook County, 63 Or LUBA 561 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Arguments that new evidence submitted on remand regarding a 2000 decision allows petitioner to raise issues regarding that 2000 decision, even if no issues were raised regarding the 2000 decision during the initial appeal to LUBA, are sufficient to surpass the probable cause threshold for attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), where a reasonable attorney could argue, based on the new evidence submitted on remand, that an issue regarding the character and legality of the 2000 decision could not have been raised, or knowingly waived, during the first appeal. McGovern v. Crook County, 63 Or LUBA 561 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a front yard setback reduction standard requires that views of the ocean "will not be obstructed any more" by the portion of the building that would thereby be allowed to protrude into the front yard, and that portion of the building would only result in de minimis obstruction of limited oblique views through small side yards, a local government is within its interpretive discretion under Siporen v. City of Medford, 349 Or 247, 243 P3d 776 (2010), in finding that the "will not be obstructed any more" standard is met. However, petitioner's argument to the contrary was presented with "probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law or on factually supported information," and is not subject to an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Burton v. City of Cannon Beach, 63 Or LUBA 591 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In order for a party at LUBA to recover attorney fees under any statute authorizing an award of attorney fees, that party must be "represented" by an attorney before LUBA. Stewart v. City of Salem, 62 Or LUBA 465 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Recoverable attorney fees at LUBA are limited to efforts spent representing a party before LUBA, and not other matters that may fall within an attorney/client relationship. Stewart v. City of Salem, 62 Or LUBA 465 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. No statute authorizing recovery of attorney fees incurred before LUBA also authorizes LUBA to award attorney fees incurred before the Court of Appeals on appeal of a LUBA decision. Stewart v. City of Salem, 62 Or LUBA 465 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b) are not warranted where the petitioner argued that the county was required under its code to provide for continuation of existing streets in adjoining subdivisions and reasonable persons could disagree, based on the plat of the adjoining subdivision that showed a street apparently stubbed to the common property line, whether the code provision required that street to be continued into the proposed subdivision. Burness v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 555 (2011).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A petitioner's argument that the city's notice of hearing "did not reasonably describe the local government's final action" within the meaning of ORS 197.830(3) was not so lacking in merit as to justify an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), where the city's notice did not provide a great deal of detail about the precise mixed-use nature of the proposal, and petitioner raised a fair question about whether the map attached to the notice was adequate to elaborate on the precise nature of the proposal. Duenweg v. City of Medford, 61 Or LUBA 495 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under ORS 197.830, where a local government's notice of hearing is deficient a petitioner may be able to file a delayed LUBA appeal. A petitioner's failure to establish he was "misled" by the city's posted or published notice does not merit an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), where the LUBA decision that established that a person in petitioner's circumstances must establish that he was misled to be eligible to file a delayed notice of intent to appeal under ORS 197.830(3) was not issued until shortly before LUBA dismissed petitioner's LUBA appeal as untimely filed. Duenweg v. City of Medford, 61 Or LUBA 495 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA will deny a motion for attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15(b), where the party against whom attorney fees is sought did not file a brief, and the movant fails to identify any "position" the party presented in the appeal. Swails v. Clackamas County, 61 Or LUBA 503 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under ORS 197.830(15)(b) LUBA is to award attorney fees against a party it "presented a position without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law or on factually supported information." If a petitioner wishes to rely on arguments he made on the merits of an issue, and LUBA found that petitioner waived that issue under ORS 197.825(2)(a) and Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 506-507, 79 P3d 382 (2003), by failing to raise the issue during the local hearing and his local notice of appeal, petitioner may only rely on his arguments on the merits if he also had probable cause to believe his arguments in response to the county's waiver argument were well founded. Zeitoun v. Yamhill County, 61 Or LUBA 515 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where LUBA concludes that a petitioner had probable cause to believe his responses to a county's claims that he waived an issue by failing to raise the issue during the local hearing and in his local notice of appeal were well founded, even though LUBA ultimately concluded the issue was waived, petitioner may rely on his arguments on the merits of the issue in responding to a motion for attorney fees. Zeitoun v. Yamhill County, 61 Or LUBA 515 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Although LUBA and the Court of Appeals disagreed with intervenor that the holding in Citizens for Responsibility v. Lane County, 207 Or App 500, 142 P3d 486 (2006), a case involving firearms training facilities, should be extended to apply to dwellings on forest land that were not lawfully established, the argument that the same reasoning should apply to dwellings on forest land was not unreasonable and an award of attorney fees is not warranted. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 60 Or LUBA 493 (2010).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. When a challenged decision does not make it clear that the local government relied on its general planning and zoning authority to authorize residential through-the-fence (TTF) airport uses, rather than state statutes that explicitly authorize only commercial and industrial TTF programs, a petitioner satisfies the ORS 197.830(15)(b) probable cause standard by arguing that the decision improperly relied on the state statutes for authority in approving the residential TTF use. Port of St. Helens v. City of Scappoose, 59 Or LUBA 516 (2009).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. When a notice of intent to appeal (NITA) is filed more than 21 days after a local government's final decision and the petitioner relies on ORS 197.610 to 197.625 to argue that the NITA was timely filed because he did not receive notice of the decision pursuant to the statute, if the petitioner makes no reasonable attempt to show why the decision is a post-acknowledgment plan amendment subject to the statute or even if the statute did apply why he did not receive notice of the decision, then an award of attorney fees is warranted. Sommer v. City of Cave Junction, 58 Or LUBA 671 (2008).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. When a party prevails on at least one assignment of error an award of attorney fees is not warranted, even if its arguments on the other assignments of error were without merit. Waluga Neighborhood Association v. City of Lake Oswego, 58 Or LUBA 675 (2008).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The fact that a prevailing party is a neighborhood association has no bearing on whether an award of attorney fees is warranted. A neighborhood association must make the same demonstration as any other party to obtain an award of attorney fees. Waluga Neighborhood Association v. City of Lake Oswego, 58 Or LUBA 675 (2008).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. There was "probable cause to believe [a] position was well-founded" under ORS 197.830(15)(b) where one of the non-prevailing party's arguments in the appeal was based on actions by city planning staff that led the non-prevailing party to believe that a local appeal of a response to their letter to the planning staff was available to them. Ortman v. City of Forest Grove, 56 Or LUBA 813 (2008).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In determining whether to grant a motion for attorney fees, there is no different standard for attorneys and non-attorneys; rather, LUBA evaluates whether any reasonable lawyer would conclude that any of the positions taken by the party on appeal possesses legal merit. Sommer v. City of Cave Junction, 56 Or LUBA 818 (2008).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Nothing in the text of ORS 197.830(15)(b) or LUBA's rules prevents a prevailing party that is a governing body from being awarded attorney fees. Sommer v. City of Cave Junction, 56 Or LUBA 818 (2008).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. While it is close question, an argument that an amended franchise agreement between the county and a non-conforming landfill is a land use decision subject to LUBA's jurisdiction, because the agreement is a de facto nonconforming use verification or a de facto authorization to expand or alter the landfill, is an argument that a reasonable lawyer could advance. Accordingly, that argument is sufficient to avoid attorney fees under the ORS 197.835(15)(b) "probable cause" standard. Kamp v. Washington County, 55 Or LUBA 711 (2007).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a petitioner makes a prima facie case that a city's position was "lacking in probable cause," and the city does not respond to the motion for attorneys fees, the motion for attorney fees will be granted. 7th Street Station LLC v. City of Corvallis, 55 Or LUBA 732 (2008).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Even though petitioners' argument that a local comprehensive plan policy required broad evaluation of cumulative impacts of a development was rejected, petitioners' argument was "subject to reasonable, rational, or honest discussion" such that no award of attorneys fees was warranted. Wolfgram v. Douglas County, 54 Or LUBA 775 (2007).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. An award of attorney fees is not warranted against a party who, faced with the possibility that a concession agreement that was not appealed would later be immune to challenge in the absence of an appeal to LUBA, appealed the decision and argued that the decision had the effect of authorizing a conditional use. Dorall v. Coos County, 53 Or LUBA 622 (2007).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. When a petitioner submits a letter as the petition for review that is so grossly deficient that it is not even recognized as a petition for review, and that letter provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b) is warranted. Gallagher v. City of Myrtle Point, 50 Or LUBA 769 (2005).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. There is no bright line that separates significant impact land use decisions from those whose impacts are not sufficient to meet the test. Where a petitioner argues that a lot line adjustment constitutes a significant impact land use decision because the decision would violate covenants, conditions, and restrictions for the property that prevent abandonment of a golf course, LUBA will not award attorney fees when a petitioner is unable to link the significant impacts directly to the challenged decision. Jewett v. City of Bend, 48 Or LUBA 631 (2004).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. When a case is dismissed on jurisdictional grounds, the arguments presented on that issue determine whether attorney fees will be awarded. When an appeal is decided on the merits, whether attorney fees are awarded is determined by the arguments made in the assignments of error and the responses to those assignments of error. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 47 Or LUBA 625 (2004).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. When annexations are specifically listed in the definition of a "minor boundary change" and are not listed in the definition of a "major boundary change," no reasonable attorney would argue that annexations are a "major boundary change." Cape v. City of Beaverton, 47 Or LUBA 625 (2004).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. When a prior decision specifically rejects a party's argument made to LUBA, no reasonable attorney would repeat that argument without acknowledging the prior decision, providing some argument as to why the prior decision was wrong or should be overturned, or providing any other explanation or rationale for the argument. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 47 Or LUBA 625 (2004).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. An assertion that petitioner resided within the 250-foot notice area is based on factually supported information, where petitioner examined maps and physically measured the distance between her house and the subject property. The fact that more detailed or better-scaled maps not available to petitioner showed the contrary does not demonstrate that petitioner's factual assertion was not well-founded. Brinker v. Tillamook County, 44 Or LUBA 832 (2003).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A transfer to circuit court is a statutory alternative to dismissal where LUBA concludes that the appealed decision is not a land use decision, and a transfer is therefore properly treated as a dismissal of the appeal for purposes of determining who is the prevailing party. Maxwell v. City of Happy Valley, 44 Or LUBA 852 (2003).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The scope of the exception to LUBA's jurisdiction for decisions that are "fiscal" in nature is sufficiently ill-defined that LUBA's transfer of a precautionary appeal of a decision that establishes a reimbursement district to circuit court does not warrant an award of attorney fees against petitioner. Maxwell v. City of Happy Valley, 44 Or LUBA 852 (2003).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Filing a motion for voluntary remand does not "present a position" that may potentially justify an award of attorney fees pursuant to ORS 197.830(15)(b) and OAR 661-010-0075(1)(e). To the extent a motion for voluntary remand may be viewed as a "position," it is essentially is a concession of error. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 43 Or LUBA 592 (2002).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Oregon Rules of Civil Procedure 17, which allows sanctions for frivolous pleadings, is not applicable to proceedings before LUBA. ORS 197.830(15)(b) and OAR 661-010-0075(1)(e) provide the only standards for sanctioning frivolous positions presented to LUBA. Under those provisions, LUBA may not award attorney fees based on allegations that the local government acted in "bad faith" in failing to file a motion for voluntary remand earlier in the LUBA proceeding. Rogers v. City of Eagle Point, 43 Or LUBA 592 (2002).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. An award of attorney fees is not warranted against a party whose only "position" was an unsuccessful motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-0045 filed prior to the parties' briefs, where LUBA concludes that a reasonable lawyer would have filed the motion, notwithstanding LUBA's general practice to deny such motions as premature until the parties' briefs have been filed. Pynn v. City of West Linn, 42 Or LUBA 602 (2002).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a city zoning map correction procedure permits administrative corrections to current city zoning maps to make them consistent with the originally adopted zoning map or legal description upon which the original zoning was based, a city commits legal error by finding that the existing zoning map may be corrected to be consistent with an intermediate zoning map that is not included in the record before LUBA. An award of attorney fees under OAR 661-010-0075(1)(e)(A) and ORS 197.830(15)(b) is warranted, where the city argues that such findings are adequate and supported by substantial evidence. 6710 LLC v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 608 (2002).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where no attempt is made to justify the hourly rate used in a motion for attorney fees, and the requested hourly rate is significantly higher than the relevant hourly rates shown in an Oregon State Bar Economic Survey for the community for attorneys with the same number of years of experience, LUBA will reduce the requested attorney fees to reflect the hourly rate shown in the Oregon State Bar Economic Survey. 6710 LLC v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 608 (2002).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Filing a notice of intent to appeal does not present the position that a challenged decision is a final land use decision, for purposes of an award of attorney fees pursuant to OAR 661-010-0075(1)(e)(A) and ORS 197.830(15)(b), when the appeal is filed for precautionary purposes and the petitioners do not oppose the motion to dismiss. Harcourt v. Marion County, 40 Or LUBA 610 (2001).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA will award attorney fees pursuant to ORS 197.830(15)(b) where petitioner fails to articulate a legal basis for reversal or remand. Schaffer v. City of Turner, 37 Or LUBA 1066 (2000).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA will apply the factors provided in ORS 20.075 for guidance in exercising its discretion to determine whether the amount of attorney fees requested under ORS 197.830(15)(b) is reasonable. Schaffer v. City of Turner, 37 Or LUBA 1066 (2000).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Consistent with the legislative policies for timely resolution of land use disputes, and encouragement of alternative dispute resolution, LUBA will not consider attorney fees incurred in mediation or in pursuit of settlement in determining an award of reasonable attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Schaffer v. City of Turner, 37 Or LUBA 1066 (2000).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where petitioner files nothing more than a notice of intent to appeal, petitioner has not presented a position, for purposes of an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(14)(b). Lois Thompson Housing Project v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 580 (2000).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.835(10)(a)(A) mandates that LUBA reverse a land use decision where a "local government decision is outside the range of discretion allowed the local government under its comprehensive plan and implementing ordinances[.]" If a decision is reversed under ORS 197.835(10)(a)(A), ORS 197.835(10)(b) requires that LUBA award attorney fees to the applicant. However, those statutes do not apply to a land use decision that is reversed because it is outside the discretion allowed under an LCDC administrative rule. Morse Bros., Inc. v. Columbia County, 37 Or LUBA 85 (1999).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A local government's land use decision does not a present a "position" to the Board for the purpose of determining whether or not an award of attorney fees against the local government is required under ORS 197.830(14)(b). Wolverton v. Crook County, 36 Or LUBA 757 (1999).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A nonprevailing party that presents arguments for the extension of principles of LUBA case law does not present a position without probable cause to believe the position is well-founded in law. Abadi v. Washington County, 36 Or LUBA 748 (1999).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Respondent's attempt to distinguish petitioners' case from well-settled legal principles does not necessarily mean that such approach was void of any rational, reasonable or honest discussion meriting the recovery of attorney fees under OAR 661-010-0075(1)(e)(A) and ORS 197.830(14)(b). Witzel v. Harney County, 35 Or LUBA 806 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A prevailing party that moves for an award of attorney fees has the responsibility to not only allege any necessary facts to support its motion, but also to establish why, as a legal matter, it is statutorily entitled to relief. Gutoski v. Lane County, 35 Or LUBA 803 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA will not supply the legal arguments or analysis that establish that no reasonable lawyer could conclude that any of the legal points asserted on appeal possessed legal merit. Gutoski v. Lane County, 35 Or LUBA 803 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A prevailing party's bald assertion that any challenge to a local government's decision reviewed under the "clearly wrong" standard is one that no reasonable lawyer could conclude possessed legal merit is itself clearly wrong. Gutoski v. Lane County, 35 Or LUBA 803 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A petitioner does not "present a position" in a notice of intent to appeal, within the meaning of ORS 197.830(14)(b), for purposes of an award of attorney fees. Dornan v. Yamhill County, 35 Or LUBA 786 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Positions presented during the local proceedings that lead to a decision that is later appealed to LUBA are not positions presented to LUBA, for purposes of an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(14)(b). Dornan v. Yamhill County, 35 Or LUBA 786 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Arguments presented in a petition for attorney fees by the prevailing party at LUBA cannot, under ORS 197.830(14)(b), provide a basis for an award of attorney fees to the nonprevailing party in the appeal. Dornan v. Yamhill County, 35 Or LUBA 786 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A local government that simply files the local record and does not file or join in a brief or other document at LUBA defending its decision does not present a position "as a litigant" and cannot be required to pay attorney fees under ORS 197.830(14)(b). Hearne v. Baker County, 35 Or LUBA 768 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The city presented a position to LUBA for purposes of ORS 197.830(14)(b), where the city submitted a memorandum on jurisdiction, even though the city did not write a response brief, appear in the appeal, or participate in oral argument. Lewelling Neighborhood Dist. v. City of Milwaukie, 35 Or LUBA 764 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.845(3) authorizes an award of attorney fees when a quasi-judicial decision for which a stay has been granted is affirmed by LUBA. However, the attorney fees recoverable under ORS 197.845(3) are limited to attorney fees related to the stay. Walton v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 829 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.845(3) authorizes an award of attorney fees when a quasi-judicial decision for which a stay has been granted is affirmed by LUBA. Where LUBA dismisses the appeal, an award of attorney fees is not authorized by ORS 197.845(3). Walton v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 829 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where an appeal is dismissed for failure to exhaust remedies, but involves a complex interaction of the notice provisions of ORS 197.195 (governing notice of limited land use decisions), the tolling provisions of ORS 197.830(4) and the exhaustion requirement of ORS 197.825(2)(a), the question of LUBA's jurisdiction over the appeal was open to doubt and reasonable discussion, and no attorney fees are warranted under ORS 197.830(14)(b). Walton v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 829 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where LUBA dismisses an appeal prior to consideration of the merits of the appeal, LUBA will consider the arguments presented by petitioners in opposition to the motion to dismiss in deciding whether an award of attorney fees is warranted. Bruce v. City of Hillsboro, 34 Or LUBA 820 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where LUBA issues an order requiring that the notice of intent to appeal be served on all persons entitled to service of the notice under OAR 661-010-0015 and petitioners fail to do so, arguing instead that they should be able to rely on an erroneous statement by the city concerning the persons entitled to notice, petitioners present a position that is not "open to doubt, or debatable, or subject to rational, reasonable or honest discussion," and an award of attorney fees is warranted. Bruce v. City of Hillsboro, 34 Or LUBA 820 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. An evidentiary hearing to resolve "disputes regarding attorney fees" pursuant to OAR 661-010-0045(1) is not warranted where the motion for an evidentiary hearing is filed before LUBA has entered its final opinion. Ackerley Outdoor Advertising v. City of Portland, 34 Or LUBA 736 (1998).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The fact that the petitioner was attempting to purchase the property at issue in a LUBA appeal does not compel a conclusion that the appeal was brought without probable cause to believe it was well-founded. Pfeifer v. City of Silverton, 33 Or LUBA 869 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under ORCP 54A(3), where petitioner voluntarily dismisses an appeal, and no circumstances indicate otherwise, intervenor-respondent is the prevailing party. Pfeifer v. City of Silverton, 33 Or LUBA 869 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Attorney fees will not be awarded under ORS 197.830(14)(b) where LUBA's final opinion determined it was not "clear" that previously adopted comprehensive plan amendments rendered a decision to construct a bridge and related improvements the nondiscretionary culmination of the plan amendments. Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 33 Or LUBA 834 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A petitioner's failure to prevail on every assignment of error does not preclude an award of attorney fees against a local government that advances a non-meritorious defense to one or more assignments of error. Spencer Creek Neighbors v. Lane County, 33 Or LUBA 824 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA will award attorney fees where it determines that none of the arguments raised in response to a sustained assignment of error are "open to doubt, or subject to rational, reasonable, or honest discussion." Spencer Creek Neighbors v. Lane County, 33 Or LUBA 824 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Applying ORS 197.830(14)(b) and Contreras v. City of Philomath, 32 Or LUBA 465 (1996), an award of attorney fees is appropriate against a petitioner who does not present any issues that challenge the local government's final decision or the findings supporting that decision. Young v. City of Sandy, 33 Or LUBA 817 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Although ORS 197.830(14)(b) makes an award of attorney fees mandatory where LUBA finds that an appeal is not supported by probable cause, LUBA is afforded the discretion to determine what amount of attorney fees is "reasonable" under the specific facts of the case. Young v. City of Sandy, 33 Or LUBA 817 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The probable cause standard stated in ORS 197.830(14)(b) creates a low threshold. Brown v. City of Ontario, 33 Or LUBA 803 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.830(14)(b) will not be applied to punish LUBA appellants who vigorously pursue all reasonable legal arguments just because, when viewed with the benefit of hindsight, those arguments do not entitle them to prevail. Brown v. City of Ontario, 33 Or LUBA 803 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The context of ORS 197.830(14)(b) indicates that the statute was not intended to require an award of attorney fees where any single assertion set forth in a petition for review is not supported by probable cause. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 33 Or LUBA 796 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where LUBA determines that at least one of petitioner's arguments is sufficiently well-founded to avoid an award of attorney fees, the Board will not apply the ORS 197.830(14)(b) standard to all other assignments of error in search of an argument that does not meet that standard. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 33 Or LUBA 796 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. An award of attorney fees is not appropriate where petitioner raised issues that were subject to reasonable discussion, and LUBA cannot say that no reasonable lawyer would find petitioner's arguments were meritless. Fraley v. Deschutes County, 33 Or LUBA 790 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In determining whether an award of attorney fees is required, LUBA will not consider whether a party is represented by an attorney but only whether there is "no objective legal basis for the appeal," i.e., whether any reasonable lawyer would conclude that any of the positions taken by the party on appeal possesses legal merit. Squires v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 783 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In order to recover attorney fees under ORS 197.830(14)(b), the prevailing party must present LUBA with a signed and detailed statement of the amount of attorney fees which minutely itemizes or particularizes the services rendered and the time devoted to the services. Squires v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 783 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a county moves for voluntary remand before it presents any position before LUBA in the form of a response brief or otherwise, there is no basis on which to make a determination under ORS 197.830(14)(b) regarding an award of attorney fees. Eppich v. Clackamas County, 33 Or LUBA 774 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA's disposition of an appeal by memorandum opinion does not necessarily indicate that a petitioner's position was presented without probable cause to believe it was well founded. Arnold v. Columbia County, 33 Or LUBA 766 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Petitioner did not have probable cause to believe that a "preannexation agreement" entered into by the city and intervenor was an appealable final land use decision; accordingly, an award of attorney fees is required under ORS 197.830(14)(b). Crist v. City of Beaverton, 32 Or LUBA 495 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under ORS 197.830(14)(b), LUBA must make an award of attorney fees to a prevailing party if it determines that no reasonable lawyer would conclude that any of the legal points asserted on appeal possessed legal merit. In making this determination, LUBA will consider whether any of the issues raised on appeal were open to doubt, or subject to rational, reasonable or honest discussion. Contreras v. City of Philomath, 32 Or LUBA 465 (1996).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. An award of attorney fees to intervenor is appropriate under ORS 197.830(14)(b) where petitioners' appeal to LUBA purported to challenge actions by the city that could not even arguably be depicted as land use decisions subject to LUBA jurisdiction. Contreras v. City of Philomath, 32 Or LUBA 465 (1996).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Under ORS 197.830(14)(b), LUBA is required to award reasonable attorney fees to a prevailing party upon a finding that another party presented a position without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law or on factually supported information. Pfeifer v. City of Silverton, 32 Or LUBA 463 (1996).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where petitioner voluntarily dismisses his appeal, intervenors are not entitled to an award of attorney fees because neither party is the "prevailing party" for purposes of ORS 197.830(14)(b). Pfeifer v. City of Silverton, 32 Or LUBA 463 (1996), rev'd and rem'd, 146 Or App 191, 931 P2d 833 (1997).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. If a petition for attorney fees is included in a party's brief, the signed and detailed statement justifying the amount of the fees must be filed after the issuance of LUBA's opinion, and the opposing party may have 10 days to respond. Cox v. Yamhill County, 31 Or LUBA 270 (1996).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Before LUBA will consider a petition for attorney fees, the petition must be supported by a statement of the amount requested, supported by sufficient detail to justify the award. Cox v. Yamhill County, 31 Or LUBA 270 (1996).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Although OAR 661-10-075(1)(a) states that petitions for attorney fees must be filed within 14 days after LUBA's final order is issued, LUBA will allow a petition for attorney fees in the parties' briefs. Cox v. Yamhill County, 31 Or LUBA 270 (1996).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.845(3) requires an award of attorney fees and damages when LUBA affirms a quasi-judicial land use decision or limited land use decision for which a stay was granted. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA normally considers several factors in determining whether to accept a late petition for attorney fees and damages: (1) length of delay; (2) validity of the explanation of lateness; and (3) presence or absence of prejudice. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 30 Or LUBA 448 (1995).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where LUBA's final opinion and order remands the challenged decision for further proceedings, rather than reversing the decision and ordering the local government to approve petitioners' application, LUBA is not authorized to award attorney fees to petitioners under ORS 197.835(8). Spathas v. City of Portland, 29 Or LUBA 579 (1995).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where petitioner does not allege in its petition for attorney fees that the local government lacked probable cause to believe its positions in an appeal were well-founded or that those positions were presented primarily for a purpose other than to secure appropriate action by LUBA, the petition for attorney fees will be denied. ORS 197.830(15)(b); OAR 661-10-075(1)(d)(A). Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 26 Or LUBA 624 (1994).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Although positions taken by a party in an appeal before LUBA may be the basis for an award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), positions taken during local proceedings or in the challenged land use decision itself may not be the basis for an award of attorney fees by LUBA. Hastings Bulb Growers, Inc. v. Curry County, 25 Or LUBA 558 (1993).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where LUBA determines a local government decision is precluded by a prior circuit court judgment, LUBA will not conclude the local government presented argument to the contrary "without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded," where application of the principles of claim preclusion to the challenged decision is somewhat uncertain. In such circumstances LUBA will not award attorney fees pursuant to ORS 197.830(15)(b). Joines v. Linn County, 25 Or LUBA 759 (1993).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In order to award attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), LUBA must find that the petitioner presented a position (1) without probable cause to believe it was well-founded, and (2) primarily for a purpose other than securing appropriate action by LUBA. City of North Plains v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 623 (1993).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. The presentation of a losing argument before LUBA, of itself, does not satisfy the requirement of ORS 197.830(15)(b) that a party have presented a position "without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded." The fact that a party's attorney may have unsuccessfully presented contrary positions in other cases concerning somewhat related questions is also not enough to establish that the requirement of ORS 197.830(15)(b) is met. City of North Plains v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 623 (1993).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. LUBA's rejection of petitioners' arguments that the challenged decision is final, does not mean petitioners' arguments were presented without probable cause to believe they were well-founded. Whether a challenged decision is a "final" decision is, more often than not, far from obvious. City of North Plains v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 623 (1993).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where the prevailing party does not allege or argue that the opposing party "presented a position * * * primarily for a purpose other than to secure appropriate action by [LUBA]," LUBA will deny the prevailing party's petition for award of attorney fees pursuant to ORS 197.830(15)(b). Miller v. City of Dayton, 24 Or LUBA 616 (1992).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. ORS 197.835(8) only applies where LUBA reverses a local government's denial of a development application and orders that the development be approved. Where the challenged decision is simply a request for an interpretation of a local government's ordinances, and there is no development application for LUBA to order approved, a petition for attorney fees will be denied. Harmony House, Inc. v. City of Salem, 23 Or LUBA 683 (1992).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. An award of attorney fees against a local government pursuant to ORS 197.830(15)(b) is not justified simply because the local government presented a position on appeal which lacked legal foundation, or may have engaged in an improper course of conduct during the proceedings below. Bradbury v. City of Independence, 23 Or LUBA 670 (1992).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Even if the positions presented in petitioner's petition for review were not well-founded, that does not necessarily mean they were presented "primarily for a purpose other than to secure appropriate action by the board," as required for the award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Oregon Worsted Company v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 830 (1992).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Petitioner's desire to defer pursuing its appeal before LUBA, because of the possibility that the outcome of its action in federal court would make it unnecessary to seek additional remedies through the LUBA appeal, does not indicate the LUBA appeal was brought for an improper purpose, as required for the award of attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Oregon Worsted Company v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 830 (1992).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. A party's presentation of a losing argument before LUBA, standing alone, does not satisfy the requirement of ORS 197.830(15)(b) that a party have presented a position "without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded." Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 21 Or LUBA 571 (1991).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. In order to award attorney fees under ORS 197.830(15)(b), LUBA must determine that the parties against whom the award is requested presented a position without probable cause to believe it was well-founded, and primarily for a purpose other than securing appropriate action by LUBA. Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 535 (1991).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Petitioners' request for reversal of the appealed decision was presented with probable cause to believe it was well-founded where any of petitioners' challenges to the appealed decision (1) was presented with probable cause to believe it was well-founded, and (2) if upheld, would allow LUBA to reverse the appealed decision. Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 20 Or LUBA 535 (1991).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Where a county adopted additional standards, addressing annual gross farm income and crop density and acreage, for determining whether a proposed dwelling is "in conjunction with farm use," the county's argument to LUBA that its standards eliminate discretion from the determination of whether a dwelling is "in conjunction with farm use," although incorrect, was not presented without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded and, therefore, an award of attorney fees is not warranted. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 20 Or LUBA 494 (1990).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. Petitioner's challenge to nonessential findings is not sufficient to justify a finding by LUBA pursuant to ORS 197.830(15)(b) that petitioner's "position was presented without probable cause to believe the position was well-founded." Griffith v. City of Milwaukie, 19 Or LUBA 614 (1990).

27.13 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Attorney Fees. For attorney fees to be awarded under ORS 197.830(15)(b), LUBA must find both that the losing party lacked probable cause to believe its position was well founded and that its position was presented primarily for a purpose other than to secure appropriate action by LUBA. Bradbury v. City of Independence, 19 Or LUBA 584 (1990).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. In an appeal of a local government approval of a utility public way use permit authorizing installation of telecommunication-related facilities, LUBA will take official notice of portions of the local government's department of public works manual under ORS 40.090(7) where the manual was adopted by a local administrative order, as authorized by the local code, and where it is a reflection of rights derived from the local code authorizing the applicant to seek a permit to place the facilities in the right-of-way. Vaccher v. City of Eugene, 80 Or LUBA 10 (2019).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will not take official notice of adjudicative facts contained within an officially noticed document, regardless of whether those facts may be established through reference to sources whose accuracy may not reasonably be questioned. Shaff v. City of Medford, 79 Or LUBA 317 (2019).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Under ORS 40.090(2), while LUBA may take official notice of a report prepared by the United States Center for Disease Control as a public or private official act of the legislative, executive, or judicial department of the United States, it may not consider such a report to establish adjudicative facts not in the record. Shaff v. City of Medford, 79 Or LUBA 317 (2019).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Under ORS 40.090(2), while LUBA may take official notice of a manual prepared by the Oregon Department of Transportation as an official act of a state agency, it may not consider such a manual to establish adjudicative facts not in the record. Shaff v. City of Medford, 79 Or LUBA 317 (2019).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will not take official notice of a memorandum that is addressed to the local governing body and which bears a note indicating that it was prepared for the local governing body's consideration during a relevant proceeding, where the proponent of such official notice has not established that the memorandum is part of the local government comprehensive plan under ORS 40.090(7) and where, if the memorandum actually were before the local governing body in the proceeding, it would have been included in the record under OAR 661-010-0025(1)(b). Shaff v. City of Medford, 79 Or LUBA 317 (2019).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Because the general standards for admissibility of evidence, including evidentiary thresholds for relevance and probative value, do not apply to LUBA proceedings, arguments that an ordinance updating the local code is not relevant to LUBA's disposition of the appeal and that a DLCD notice of adoption regarding that ordinance is not probative provide no basis for denying a motion to take official notice of those documents as public law under ORS 40.090(7) and (2). Oster v. City of Silverton, 79 Or LUBA 1058 (2019).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. A Housing Strategy document that a city council accepts as guidance for staff is not an enactment or source of law that is subject to official notice under ORS 40.090(7). Crowley v. City of Hood River, 77 Or LUBA 117 (2018).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Aerial photographs and modified printouts of zoning maps generated from an electronic database, submitted in order to support a disputed question of fact, are not official enactments of a city or a source of law that is subject to official notice under ORS 40.090(7). Crowley v. City of Hood River, 77 Or LUBA 117 (2018).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Although local legislative history is generally not subject to official notice by LUBA and cannot be considered on appeal if it is not included in the local record, where the legislative history is contemporary commentary that was adopted by the city council when it adopted the legislation, LUBA will consider the commentary. Patel v. City of Portland, 77 Or LUBA 349 (2018).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Although LUBA may take official notice of commentary that was adopted with an ordinance, where that ordinance does not enact or amend the ambiguous zoning ordinance language at issue, it is of no significance in resolving the ambiguity. Patel v. City of Portland, 77 Or LUBA 349 (2018).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice of a county legal lot verification decision involving the same property at issue in an appeal of a county decision approving property line adjustments, for the limited purpose of resolving a dispute regarding LUBA's scope of review over the county decision approving property line adjustments. Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 308 (2017).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will not take official notice of a memorandum from the assistant director of the Oregon Department of Energy (DOE) to a staff person at the Oregon Department of Land Conservation and Development (DLCD) explaining the current opinion of the DOE, because such memorandum is not an "official act" of a state executive department pursuant to ORS 40.090(2). 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Jackson County, 76 Or LUBA 488 (2017).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. A petition for review filed in a previous appeal to LUBA that results in remand is not subject to official notice under Oregon Evidence Code (OEC) 202(7) in a subsequent LUBA appeal because it is not an "ordinance, comprehensive plan or enactment of" the city. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 488 (2016).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice of local government enactments, but LUBA does not have authority to take official notice of local legislative history or adjudicative facts. Martin v. City of Central Point, 73 Or LUBA 422 (2016).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. ORS 40.090(7) and Oregon Evidence Code 202(7) authorize official notice of city ordinances. Where a copy of an ordinance that is included in the record does not include the land use findings that were adopted to support the ordinance, but those findings were adopted as an appendix to the ordinance, LUBA will take official notice of the ordinance findings. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 72 Or LUBA 25 (2015).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will deny a motion to take official notice of a newspaper article, where the moving party cites no authority that would permit LUBA to take official notice of the newspaper article. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 72 Or LUBA 25 (2015).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice under Oregon Evidence Code 202(2) of a Program Level Biological Assessment prepared by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Hess v. City of Corvallis, 70 Or LUBA 283 (2014).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Under Oregon Evidence Code 202(7) LUBA may take official notice of "[a]n ordinance, comprehensive plan or enactment of any county or incorporated city in this state," as well as findings and maps incorporated by reference into the ordinance if those findings and maps are provided to LUBA. Root v. Klamath County, 63 Or LUBA 230 (2011).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA's authority to take official notice of a local government's ordinance does not extend to notice of evidence, if notice of that evidence is requested to resolve factual disputes, because LUBA's review is limited to the evidentiary record. Root v. Klamath County, 63 Or LUBA 230 (2011).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Under OEC 202(7) and ORS 40.090(7), LUBA may take official notice of a city "ordinance, comprehensive plan, or enactment." Where a party asks that LUBA take official notice of minutes that show the city accepted an ad hoc committee report and the report itself, even assuming the minutes and ad hoc committee report constitute city enactments, LUBA will deny that request where the party asks LUBA to take official notice of those documents for their evidentiary value. Friends of Yamhill County v. City of Newberg, 62 Or LUBA 5 (2010).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Where a party asks LUBA to take official notice of documents that appear to be drafts of early versions of Goal 4 (Forest Lands), suggested text revisions, and minutes of Land Conservation and Development Commission meetings where Goal 4 revisions were considered, but the party does not attempt to authenticate those documents, LUBA will nevertheless take official notice of those documents where opposing parties offer no reason to believe the documents are not what they appear to be. Anderson v. Coos County, 62 Or LUBA 38 (2010).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will not take official notice of what appears to be a Department of Land Conservation and Development internal memorandum discussing the history, interpretation and proper application of Goal 4, as legislative history of the adoption and amendment of Goal 4 and the Goal 4 administrative rule, where the party asking LUBA to take official notice does not establish that the memorandum was part of any Land Conservation and Development Commission deliberations concerning the adoption of or amendments to Goal 4 or the Goal 4 administrative rule. Anderson v. Coos County, 62 Or LUBA 38 (2010).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Under Oregon Evidence Code (OEC) 202(2), LUBA may take official notice of a Remand Order issued by the Land Conservation and Development Department. Friends of Yamhill County v. City of Newberg, 62 Or LUBA 211 (2010).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Where the petitioner requests that LUBA consider extra-record evidence in the form of a sign-up sheet that includes the city's rules for hearings, to support allegations that the city failed to abide by those rules, LUBA will take official notice of the city rules because they were adopted by resolution. However, LUBA will deny the motion with respect to extra-record copies of the sign-up sheet that were signed by participants in the proceeding below, where the petitioner fails to demonstrate how LUBA's consideration of the signed sheets would affect the outcome of the review proceeding. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 61 Or LUBA 520 (2010).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will take official notice of the decisional law and official acts of federal agencies, including a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) Airport Compliance Handbook and documents from an FAA enforcement proceeding. Port of St. Helens v. City of Scappoose, 58 Or LUBA 122 (2008).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will take official notice under OEC 202(2) of an Oregon Water Resources Department Order that modifies a water rights permit, because it is the official act of a state executive agency that establishes the law that governs access to and distribution of groundwater. Pete's Mtn. Home Owners Assoc. v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 287 (2007).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may not take official notice of facts within documents that are otherwise subject to notice under Oregon Evidence Code 202, if notice of those facts is requested for an adjudicative purpose, that is, to provide evidentiary support or countervailing evidence with respect to an approval criterion at issue in the challenged decision. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 55 Or LUBA 688 (2007).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Municipal wastewater permits issued by the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality are "official acts" of an executive agency and thus potentially subject to official notice under Oregon Evidence Code 202(2). Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 55 Or LUBA 688 (2007).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will not take official notice of an Oregon Department of Justice order denying a public records request, where the only reason the movant requests that LUBA consider the order is to establish an adjudicative fact, that is, that certain documents that the movant believes must exist in order to support the challenged decision in fact do not exist. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 55 Or LUBA 688 (2007).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Because the legislative commentary to Oregon Evidence Code 202(2) indicates that the scope of "official acts" subject to official notice is not limited to generally applicable laws, rules and regulations, non-binding guidelines for issuing permits adopted by the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality are subject to official notice. Tualatin Riverkeepers v. ODEQ, 55 Or LUBA 688 (2007).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. An intergovernmental agreement that is an official enactment of the city and county and that acts to define the substantive law that applies to land use applications within an urban growth area is subject to official notice under Oregon Evidence Code 202(7). Stoloff v. City of Portland, 51 Or LUBA 812 (2006).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice of city annexation resolutions in order to recognize the applicable law, but LUBA does not have authority to take notice of the facts contained in those resolutions regarding the number of people annexed into the city. Friends of Deschutes County v. Deschutes County, 49 Or LUBA 100 (2005).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. That LUBA may take judicial notice of an ordinance, comprehensive plan or enactment pursuant to OEC 202(7) does not mean that that item is or should be part of the record. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Medford, 47 Or LUBA 650 (2004).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Where the party requesting that LUBA take official notice of a planning map fails to establish that the map is the kind of "enactment" that is subject to official notice, LUBA will not take official notice. Friends of Eugene v. City of Eugene, 44 Or LUBA 239 (2003).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Federal census population figures and other data and petitioner's analysis of that data, offered to support petitioner's interpretation of an administrative rule, are not law that may be judicially recognized under Oregon Evidence Code 202, or material that may be considered in interpreting a statute or rule under the methodology described in PGE v. Bureau of Labor and Industries, 317 Or 606, 859 P2d 1143 (1993). Beaver State Sand and Gravel v. Douglas County, 43 Or LUBA 140 (2002).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. The Board will not reject an untimely and potentially prejudicial request at oral argument to take judicial notice of city legislation, where opposing parties had seven days after oral argument to respond to the request, did not request additional time, and no party demonstrated that the untimely request prejudiced the parties' substantial rights or the Board's ability to comply with its statutory deadlines. Pearl District Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 436 (2001).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice of an LCDC continuance order. DLCD v. City of Warrenton, 37 Or LUBA 933 (2000).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. A letter sent by intervenor's attorney to the circuit court on a matter related to a decision subject to LUBA's review is not judicially cognizable law of which LUBA can take official notice pursuant to OEC 202. Wilbur Residents v. Douglas County, 37 Or LUBA 156 (1999).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. City transportation plans and maps consulted by the decision makers are not part of the record unless they were submitted into the record below, although such plans and maps may be legislative enactments of which LUBA may take official notice pursuant to OEC 202. Volny v. City of Bend, 36 Or LUBA 760 (1999).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will grant a motion to strike documents attached to the petition for review, where those documents are neither part of the record submitted to LUBA nor documents of which LUBA may take official notice. Friends of Clean Living v. Polk County, 36 Or LUBA 544 (1999).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Soil tables produced by federal agencies are not official acts or enactments and thus judicially cognizable law subject to official notice, but rather are compilations of data beyond LUBA's authority to recognize outside the record under OEC 202. DLCD v. Crook County, 34 Or LUBA 243 (1998).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Planning documents not placed before the city decision maker during the local proceedings are not part of the record, but LUBA may take official notice of local government enactments under OEC 202(7). Downtown Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 31 Or LUBA 574 (1996).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. A local government decision on a quasi-judicial land use application is not an "ordinance, comprehensive plan or enactment" and, therefore, is not subject to official notice under OEC 202(7). Rochlin v. City of Portland, 29 Or LUBA 609 (1995).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Under OEC 202, LUBA may take official notice of local government enactments. However, LUBA has no authority to take official notice of adjudicative facts or local legislative history. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Wilsonville, 29 Or LUBA 604 (1995).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. A document of which LUBA takes official notice does not thereby become part of the local record which may provide evidentiary support for the challenged decision. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Wilsonville, 29 Or LUBA 604 (1995).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will disregard references in a petition for review to items which are neither in the record nor subject to official notice. LUBA cannot take official notice of a local government ordinance if it is not provided with a copy of the ordinance. Craven v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 125 (1995).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA will disregard references in a petition for review to the legislative history of a statute, where such references are supported neither by uncontested verbatim quotes nor by submission of a copy of the legislative history documents referred to. Craven v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 125 (1995).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Where a local government has adopted, by resolution or ordinance, certain portions of a technical document, only the adopted portions of the technical document are local government enactments of which LUBA may take official notice. Central Eastside Industrial Council v. Portland, 29 Or LUBA 541 (1995).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. A complaint filed by a county in a circuit court does not constitute a local government enactment of which LUBA may take official notice as judicially cognizable law, as set out in OEC Rule 202(7). Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 28 Or LUBA 561 (1995).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA routinely takes official notice of local government comprehensive plans and land use regulations which establish standards applicable to appealed decisions. McNamara v. Union County, 28 Or LUBA 722 (1994).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice of local government comprehensive plans and land use regulations under Oregon Evidence Code (OEC) Rule 202. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 27 Or LUBA 704 (1994).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Although LUBA is authorized to take official notice of judicially cognizable law, as set out in OEC Rule 202, LUBA does not have authority to take official notice of adjudicative facts. ODOT v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 141 (1994).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA is authorized to take official notice of judicially cognizable law, as set out in OEC Rule 202. However, a decision by a local government hearings officer on a quasi-judicial land use application is not a city or county "ordinance, comprehensive plan or enactment," subject to official notice under OEC Rule 202(7). Testa v. Clackamas County, 26 Or LUBA 604 (1993).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice of decisions of the Oregon Supreme Court. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 821 (1993).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA does not have authority to take official notice of adjudicative facts. Fleck v. Marion County, 25 Or LUBA 745 (1993).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LCDC enforcement orders are judicially cognizable law of which LUBA may take official notice. DLCD v. Klamath County, 24 Or LUBA 643 (1993).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA's review is limited by ORS 197.830(13)(a) to the record of the proceeding below, except in instances where an evidentiary hearing is authorized by ORS 197.830(13)(b). Therefore, local government enactments of which LUBA takes official notice under OEC 202 do not thereby become part of the local record which may provide evidentiary support for the challenged decision. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 291 (1992).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA may take official notice of state legislative or administrative history to aid in interpretation of state statutes or administrative rules. However, where such documents are not part of the local record, statements of fact in the documents cannot constitute evidentiary support for the challenged decision. Adkins v. Heceta Water District, 23 Or LUBA 207 (1992).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA lacks authority to take official notice of adjudicative facts. Murray v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 247 (1991).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Pursuant to the legislative policy of ORS 197.805 that LUBA's decisions be made consistently with sound principles governing judicial review, LUBA has authority to take official notice of judicially cognizable law, as defined in OEC 202. OEC 202(4) authorizes LUBA to take official notice of state regulations. Blatt v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 337 (1991).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA does not have authority to take official notice of adjudicative facts, as set out in OEC 201. LUBA's review is limited by ORS 197.830(13)(a) to the record of the proceeding below, except in instances where an evidentiary hearing is authorized by ORS 197.830(13)(b), and where facts outside the record are essential to determining whether LUBA has jurisdiction or whether an appeal is moot. Blatt v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 337 (1991).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. Findings of fact incorporated by reference into a local government moratorium ordinance are part of the judicially cognizable law of which LUBA is authorized to take official notice. Oregon Evidence Code Rule 202(7). Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 21 Or LUBA 214 (1991).

27.14 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Official Notice. LUBA cannot take official notice of local legislative history. Therefore, because LUBA's review is confined to the record of the local proceeding, LUBA cannot consider local legislative history if it is not in the record. 19th Street Project v. City of The Dalles, 20 Or LUBA 440 (1991).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Transfer to circuit court is not appropriate where LUBA concludes that one of the issues to be decided in an appeal is not within LUBA's scope of review. LUBA cannot transfer a discrete "issue" to circuit court, rather, LUBA can only transfer to circuit court a decision that LUBA concludes is not a "land use decision." ORS 34.102(4). Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 78 Or LUBA 463 (2018).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Transfer to circuit court is not appropriate where LUBA concludes that it lacks jurisdiction because petitioner has failed to establish that it is adversely affected by the decision under ORS 197.830(3). MGP X Properties, LLC v. Washington County, 74 Or LUBA 378 (2016).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. LUBA will reject an argument that a party was required to file a motion to transfer earlier than 14 days after an opposing party filed a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction because the opposing party had consistently questioned jurisdiction during the proceedings below. OAR 661-010-0075(b) imposes the 14-day deadline from the date that LUBA's jurisdiction is challenged in the proceedings before LUBA. Bishop v. Deschutes County, 72 Or LUBA 103 (2015).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. ORS 34.102 allows an appeal filed with LUBA to be transferred to circuit court and treated as a writ of review if the notice of intent to appeal to LUBA was filed with LUBA within the 60-day deadline for filing a writ of review, measured from the date of the challenged decision, and appears to assign to the circuit court the responsibility for determining whether the notice was filed within the 60-day deadline. Accordingly, where a motion to transfer is filed and LUBA has determined that the appealed decision is not reviewable as a land use decision, LUBA will transfer the appeal to circuit court without resolving arguments that the notice was not filed within the 60-day deadline. Bishop v. Deschutes County, 72 Or LUBA 103 (2015).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. A determination that a condition of land use approval has or has not been complied with generally does not result in a land use decision, unless that determination involves the direct application of a comprehensive plan or land use regulation. Egge v. Lane County, 70 Or LUBA 1 (2014).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Under OAR 661-010-0075(11)(b), petitioners have 14 days from the date a party files a motion challenging LUBA's jurisdiction over an appealed decision to file a conditional motion to transfer the appeal to circuit court, in the event LUBA sustains the jurisdictional challenge. Where petitioners do not file a conditional motion to transfer, and LUBA concludes it lacks jurisdiction, it will dismiss the appeal. Early v. Jackson County, 70 Or LUBA 273 (2014).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Under ORS 34.102(4), LUBA only has the authority to transfer to Circuit Court an appeal of a decision that LUBA concludes is not a land use decision or limited land use decision subject to LUBA's jurisdiction. LUBA lacks authority to transfer to circuit court discrete "issues" raised in an appeal of a land use decision or limited land use decision, while retaining jurisdiction and review authority over the remainder of the decision. Macfarlane v. Clackamas County, 70 Or LUBA 497 (2014).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Under ORS 34.102(4) and OAR 661-010-0075(11)(c), LUBA will grant a contingent motion to transfer an appeal of a decision that withholds final plat approval to circuit court, notwithstanding the local government's argument that the decision is not a quasi-judicial decision and for that reason is not reviewable by the circuit court under ORS 34.102(2). Whether the decision qualifies as a quasi-judicial decision is a question for the circuit court to answer. Calvary Construction v. City of Glendale, 61 Or LUBA 50 (2010).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where LUBA concludes that the decision on appeal is not a land use decision or limited land use decision because it is a fiscal decision, and transfers the decision to circuit court, LUBA need not also consider whether the appealed decision fails to qualify as a land use or limited land use decision for the additional reason that it is not a "final" decision. Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 61 Or LUBA 123 (2010).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where LUBA concludes that the decision on appeal is not a land use decision or limited land use decision, because it is a fiscal decision, and transfer's the decision to circuit court, LUBA need not also determine whether petitioner's notice of intent to appeal was filed within the 21-day deadline established by OAR 661-010-0015(1). Whether the appeal was timely filed will be for the circuit court to decide, and the only relevant question regarding the timeliness of the appeal will be whether the appeal was filed within the 60 days allowed by ORS 34.030. Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 61 Or LUBA 123 (2010).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. LUBA lacks authority to grant a motion to transfer an appeal to circuit court once the Board has issued a final opinion and order dismissing that appeal. Ehle v. City of Salem, 55 Or LUBA 685 (2007).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. LUBA will grant a motion to transfer to circuit court an appeal of an ordinance that establishes a permitting process for closing mobile home parks, where the petitioner alleges but does not substantiate that the decision concerns the application of statewide planning goals, comprehensive plan provisions or land use regulations. Century Drive Mobile Home Park, LLC v. City of Bend, 53 Or LUBA 1 (2006).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. A motion to transfer to circuit court in the event LUBA concludes the challenged decision is not a land use decision or limited land use decision will be denied when the appeal is dismissed as untimely. Mazorol v. City of Bend, 52 Or LUBA 136 (2006).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Under OAR 661-010-0075(11)(b), a precautionary motion to transfer a LUBA appeal to circuit court may be filed when a motion is filed that challenges LUBA's jurisdiction. If such a precautionary motion to transfer is filed, and LUBA determines it does not have jurisdiction, LUBA will transfer the appeal to circuit court. But if no such precautionary motion to transfer is filed within 10 days after the motion challenging LUBA's jurisdiction is filed, and LUBA later determines that it does not have jurisdiction, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Barnas v. City of Portland, 51 Or LUBA 750 (2006).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Petitioner's late filing of a motion to transfer is a technical violation of OAR 661-010-0075(11)(b) where it is filed approximately five months after the first motion challenging LUBA's jurisdiction, but only 16 days after an amended motion to dismiss is filed, and the motion to transfer could not have been ruled on before LUBA ruled on the jurisdictional challenge in any event. ZRZ Realty Company v. City of Portland, 49 Or LUBA 309 (2005).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. A motion to transfer to circuit court will be granted where LUBA determines it lacks jurisdiction over a final decision or determination that is contingent on future land use approvals and does not make any land use determinations or apply the goals or local land use regulations or comprehensive plan. ZRZ Realty Company v. City of Portland, 49 Or LUBA 309 (2005).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Because circuit court jurisdiction under the writ of review statutes does not include jurisdiction over non-final decisions or decisions rendered moot by other decisions, dismissal rather than transfer to circuit court is the appropriate disposition where LUBA concludes that the appealed decisions are either moot or are not final decisions. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 46 Or LUBA 672 (2004).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. LUBA may only transfer an appeal to circuit court under ORS 34.102(4) and OAR 661-010-0075(11), where the decision being appealed is not a land use or limited land use decision and therefore not subject to LUBA's exclusive jurisdiction. LUBA lacks authority to transfer discrete issues raised in an appeal, while retaining jurisdiction over other issues or aspects of the appeal. Rookard v. Lane County, 41 Or LUBA 14 (2001).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. A request to transfer an appeal to circuit court under OAR 661-010-0075(11) is timely when filed within 10 days of the date a party or LUBA raises an issue regarding whether LUBA has jurisdiction over the appeal. An objection that the petition for review fails to establish LUBA's jurisdiction is insufficient to state a cognizable jurisdictional challenge that would trigger the 10-day deadline in OAR 661-010-0075(11). Garrard v. City of Newport, 40 Or LUBA 258 (2001).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where LUBA determines that it lacks jurisdiction to review a county decision because initial review jurisdiction over an appeal lies with the Columbia River Gorge Commission, a motion to transfer the appeal to the circuit court pursuant to OAR 661-010-0075(11) and ORS 19.230 will be denied, because no purpose would be served by transferring the appeal to circuit court. Lois Thompson Housing Project v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 580 (2000).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. A late filing of a motion to transfer to circuit court is a technical violation of LUBA's rules, where the filing is one day late, and the opponents do not demonstrate that the late filing prejudiced the substantial rights of one or more of the opposing parties. Baker v. City of Woodburn, 37 Or LUBA 563 (2000).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where LUBA determines a challenged decision is not a land use decision or limited land use decision and petitioner has filed a conditional motion to transfer as provided by OAR 661-010-0075(11)(c), the appeal will be transferred to circuit court. Hashem v. City of Portland, 34 Or LUBA 629 (1998).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where LUBA lacks jurisdiction over the challenged decision because it is not a "land use decision," and petitioners do not file a motion pursuant to OAR 661-10-075(11), requesting that LUBA transfer the appeal to circuit court, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Franklin v. Deschutes County, 29 Or LUBA 79 (1995).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. LUBA will deny a motion to suspend an appeal proceeding until a writ of review proceeding challenging a related decision can be transferred to LUBA from circuit court, if petitioner objects to the delay and there is no indication that a motion to transfer has been submitted to the circuit court. Poddar v. City of Cannon Beach, 26 Or LUBA 592 (1993).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where no request to transfer an appealed decision to circuit court is filed at LUBA within 10 days after the date the respondents' briefs are due, as required by OAR 661-10-075(10)(b), LUBA will dismiss an appeal of a challenged decision over which it lacks jurisdiction. Many Rivers Group v. City of Eugene, 25 Or LUBA 518 (1993).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where LUBA determines the challenged decision is not a land use decision or a limited land use decision, it will transfer the appeal to the circuit court. Curtis Serve N Save v. City of Eugene, 24 Or LUBA 341 (1992).

27.15 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Transfers to Circuit Court. Where LUBA determines an appealed decision is not reviewable as a land use decision, and a request to transfer the appeal to circuit court pursuant to ORS 19.230 was not filed within 10 days after the respondent's brief was due, as required by OAR 661-10-075(10)(b), LUBA will dismiss the appeal. Miller v. City of Dayton, 22 Or LUBA 661 (1992).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. While the county has an unqualified right to timely withdraw its decision for reconsideration under ORS 197.830(13)(b), that provision also requires the county to affirm, modify, or reverse its decision "within such time as the board may allow." LUBA's rules provide that a local government's decision on reconsideration "shall be filed with the Board within 90 days after the filing of the notice of withdrawal or within such other time as the Board may allow." OAR 661-010-0020(1). Accordingly, where a local government requests 180 days to reconsider its decision on reconsideration, LUBA will treat the local government's notice of withdrawal as including a motion to extend the time for filing the county's decision on reconsideration. Deschutes County Farm v. Deschutes County, 79 Or LUBA 1049 (2019).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. The legislature has granted LUBA broad authority to manage the proceedings before it. Accordingly, where a local government files a notice to withdraw its decision for reconsideration under ORS 197.830(13)(b) after the petition for review was filed but prior to the deadline of the filing of the respondent's brief, and the local government's explanation for withdrawing its decision demonstrates it is attempting to eliminate confusion, clarify findings, change its decision, narrow disputed issues, or eliminate the need for appeal, LUBA will grant the local government's request for an extension of time to provide a copy of the decision on reconsideration. Deschutes County Farm v. Deschutes County, 79 Or LUBA 1049 (2019).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. OAR 661-010-0021(1) provides that a "copy of the decision on reconsideration shall be filed with the Board within 90 days after the filing of the notice of withdrawal or within such other time as the Board may allow." This rule explicitly contemplates that LUBA may modify the deadline for the local government to file a copy of the decision on reconsideration, including allowing the local government a time period longer than 90 days. McDougal v. Lane County, 78 Or LUBA 1016 (2018).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Neither ORS 197.830(13)(b) nor OAR 661-010-0021 dictate the scope of the issues that must be addressed when a local government withdraws a decision for reconsideration after it has been appealed to LUBA. The statute and rule also do not dictate how a local government must address offers of additional evidence at a reconsideration hearing. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Crook County, 76 Or LUBA 396 (2017).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. In Dexter Lost Valley Community Assn. v. Lane County, 255 Or App 701, 300 P3d 1243 (2013), the Court of Appeals rejected the distinction that LUBA previously drew between motions for voluntary remand that are opposed by one or more parties and the unilateral right a respondent has to withdraw a decision for reconsideration under ORS 197.830(13)(b). Under LUBA's current rules all parties must join in a motion for voluntary remand. Where one or more parties oppose a local government's request to be allowed to reconsider a decision that has been appealed to LUBA, ORS 197.830(13)(b) is now the sole authority for LUBA to allow such reconsideration. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Crook County, 75 Or LUBA 523 (2017).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a county's request to be allowed to reconsider a post-acknowledgement plan amendment is styled a motion for voluntary remand but is filed before the response brief was filed, LUBA will treat the motion to reconsider the decision under ORS 197.830(13)(b). Under ORS 197.830(13)(b), a motion to reconsider a post-acknowledgment plan amendment that is filed before the response brief is filed is timely filed. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Crook County, 75 Or LUBA 523 (2017).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a county withdraws an appealed decision for reconsideration pursuant to OAR 661-010-0021(1), and a new decision is adopted to repeal the appealed decision and petitioner does not refile its notice of intent to appeal or file an amended notice of intent to appeal, LUBA will dismiss the appeal. In that circumstance, where petitioner thereafter files a cost bill seeking an a award of costs to recover its filing fee and no party objects to the cost bill, LUBA will assume that petitioner is the prevailing party, even if petitioner fails to allege the appeal played a causative role in the decision on reconsideration to repeal the appealed decision. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 73 Or LUBA 367 (2016).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. LUBA's supervisory role over land use decisions that have been withdrawn for reconsideration under OAR 661-010-0021 includes taking action to reactivate the appeal if the local government fails to take timely action on the reconsideration. LUBA's supervisory role does not extend to issuing interlocutory orders regarding the propriety of actions taken by the local government following withdrawal of the decision or regarding the need to disclose ex parte contacts or consider challenges to the impartiality of individual decision makers. Columbia Riverkeeper v. Clatsop County, 68 Or LUBA 524 (2013).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Under ORS 197.830(13)(b) a local government has a unilateral right to withdraw a decision on appeal to LUBA for reconsideration, provided the local government's request for withdrawal is filed "prior to the date set for filing the record." Where LUBA grants an uncontested request to extend the deadline for filing the record, the extended deadline for filing the record becomes the "date set for filing the record," within the meaning of ORS 197.830(13)(b). Columbia Riverkeeper v. Clatsop County, 63 Or LUBA 509 (2011).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. LUBA will deny a city's voluntary motion to remand where the petition for review has not yet been filed and motion does not explicitly state that the city will address all of petitioner's issues regarding the appealed decision. Jacobsen v. City of Winston, 61 Or LUBA 536 (2010).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. LUBA will grant a motion for voluntary remand over a petitioner's objections where the appeal concerns both a property line adjustment and a conditional use permit and although it appears the property line adjustment might be subject to reversal, it is not clear whether the property line adjustment is essential to the conditional use permit approval. Fenn v. Douglas County, 56 Or LUBA 261 (2008).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. LUBA will grant a motion for voluntary remand of a property line adjustment decision over a petitioner's objections where the statutes governing property line adjustments recently changed and although the property line adjustment decision appears to violate the statutes that were in effect when the decision was rendered, it is unclear whether the property line adjustment would be barred by the amended statutes. Fenn v. Douglas County, 56 Or LUBA 261 (2008).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Opponents of land use approval have no legal right to comment on the findings that a city adopts to support its decision to grant land use approval, and opponents similarly have no legal right to comment on amended findings that a city adopts after it withdraws a decision following an appeal to LUBA under 197.830(13)(b). Loprinzi's Gym v. City of Portland, 56 Or LUBA 358 (2008).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a local government's motion for voluntary remand does not make clear that it will address all of the allegations of error set forth in the petition for review, the local government does not provide a sufficient basis for LUBA to grant the motion over a party's objections. Examilotis v. Coos County, 55 Or LUBA 708 (2007).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Notwithstanding that under OAR 661-010-0015 a notice of intent to appeal is deemed filed with LUBA on the date it is mailed by registered or certified mail, LUBA is not at liberty to read a similar provision into notices of intent to appeal decisions on reconsideration under OAR 661-010-0021(5). Notices under OAR 661-010-0021(5) are filed on the date they are delivered to or received by LUBA. West Coast Media v. City of Tigard, 45 Or LUBA 703 (2003).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Untimely filing of a notice of intent to appeal a decision on reconsideration under OAR 661-010-0021(5) is a technical violation of LUBA's rules and does not affect LUBA's review, absent prejudice to the substantial rights of the parties. West Coast Media v. City of Tigard, 45 Or LUBA 703 (2003).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Even though granting a motion for voluntary remand would give a local government a second chance to respond to issues that it failed to respond to in the appealed decision, a motion for voluntary remand will not be denied for that reason alone, because forcing the local government to defend a decision that it does not believe is defensible would not serve the ORS 197.805 goal of quickly reaching finality in land use matters. Doob v. Josephine County, 43 Or LUBA 130 (2002).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Denial of a motion for voluntary remand may be warranted if it is shown that a local government is making only half-hearted attempts to respond to relevant issues and then seeking serial voluntary remands to correct those half-hearted attempts. Doob v. Josephine County, 43 Or LUBA 130 (2002).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a land use decision has been withdrawn for reconsideration under OAR 661-010-0021, but LUBA later determines that the LUBA appeal was not timely filed and for that reason dismisses the appeal, LUBA will not address arguments about the possible consequences of that dismissal on the local proceedings to reconsider the withdrawn decision. Larner v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 471 (2002).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. A notice of intent to appeal a decision on reconsideration that duplicates the initial notice of intent to appeal is sufficient to challenge the substance of the decision on reconsideration, where no one argues that the decision on reconsideration is materially different from the initial decision. Piltz v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 461 (2002).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. A notice of withdrawal of a decision for reconsideration under OAR 661-010-0021(1) and ORS 197.830(12)(b) must be filed on or before the date the record is due. A notice of withdrawal filed after that date will be denied. Bates v. City of Cascade Locks, 37 Or LUBA 993 (1999).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a county gives adequate assurances that it will comprehensively review petitioner's assignments of error, LUBA will grant a motion for voluntary remand and will not assume the motion for voluntary remand is motivated by delay or other improper reasons simply because there has been a lengthy course of litigation in the matter. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine Co., 35 Or LUBA 117 (1998).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a local government moves for voluntary remand of its decision after the record and petition for review have been submitted to the Board, LUBA will allow the motion when the voluntary remand is more likely to result in a thorough and expeditious resolution of the land use matter than would a review by the Board. Deal v. City of Hermiston, 34 Or LUBA 767 (1998).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. The burden is on the local government seeking voluntary remand to show that the remand is more likely to bring about a thorough and expeditious resolution of the land use matter than would LUBA review. Deal v. City of Hermiston, 34 Or LUBA 767 (1998).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Whether multiple enactments constitute a single decision for purposes of appeal to LUBA depends on the relationship between the enactments. Where a decision on reconsideration reenacts the original decision together with a supplemental enactment that is characterized as an "integral part" of the reconsidered decision, there is a single decision for purposes of appeal of the decision on reconsideration to LUBA. Barnard Perkins Corp. v. City of Rivergrove, 34 Or LUBA 660 (1998).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. OAR 661-10-021, which allows a local government to withdraw a limited land use decision for reconsideration, does not impose an obligation on the parties to make or waive additional objections after the 14-day period for comment allowed under ORS 197.195(3)(c)(A). Clark v. City of Albany, 29 Or LUBA 325 (1995).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. It is not necessary for a party who filed a motion to intervene before a decision was withdrawn for reconsideration to refile its motion to intervene, or file a second motion to intervene, if an original notice of intent to appeal is refiled, or an amended notice of intent to appeal is filed, after the decision on reconsideration is filed with LUBA. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 29 Or LUBA 39 (1995).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Under OAR 661-10-021, a local government has a unilateral right to withdraw a decision for reconsideration if the notice of withdrawal is filed on or before the date the record is due. A motion for voluntary remand may be filed after the record is filed and, if granted by LUBA, is not governed by the provisions of OAR 661-10-021, including the 90-day deadline specified in that rule for decisions on reconsideration. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 29 Or LUBA 26 (1995).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. OAR 661-10-075(6) requires a local government to be represented by an attorney in a LUBA appeal. Therefore, a local government's notice of withdrawal of the challenged decision, pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b), is properly submitted by the local government's attorney. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Neither ORS 197.830(12) nor OAR 661-10-021 establishes any requirements regarding the nature of the local government proceedings conducted after withdrawal. However, the local government must follow any applicable requirements its own land use regulations impose for making a new final decision. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a local government decision maker authorizes the withdrawal of a challenged local government decision for reconsideration, pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b), that decision is reflected in the Notice of Withdrawal filed with LUBA, and that notice is part of the local record of the proceedings leading to the local government's decision on reconsideration. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Letters to and from LUBA concerning the filing of a local government decision on reconsideration and refiling of a notice of intent to appeal, pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b), postdate the adoption of the challenged decision on reconsideration and, therefore, are not part of the local record. They are, however, part of LUBA's record. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 712 (1994).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. While ORS 197.830(12)(b) grants a local government the unilateral power to withdraw an appealed decision for reconsideration before the date the record is due, it does not eliminate the discretion LUBA has under ORS 197.835 and 197.805 to grant a motion for voluntary remand after the record is filed, in accordance with sound principles of judicial review. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 27 Or LUBA 45 (1994).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a local government withdraws a challenged decision for reconsideration pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b) and OAR 661-10-021(1), OAR 661-10-021(3) requires that the decision on reconsideration itself, not simply notice of the decision, be filed with LUBA and served on the parties to the LUBA appeal. Home Builders Association v. City of Portland, 26 Or LUBA 653 (1994).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Neither ORS 197.830(12)(b) nor OAR 661-10-021 prescribes the scope of a local government's reconsideration of a decision that is withdrawn following the filing of a notice of intent to appeal. Therefore, the scope of reconsideration may be determined by the local government that withdraws its decision. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 26 Or LUBA 645 (1994).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Where a local government withdraws a challenged land use decision for reconsideration pursuant to ORS 197.830(12)(b) and OAR 661-10-021 and thereafter adopts a decision on reconsideration, and petitioner does not refile the original notice of intent to appeal or file an amended notice of intent to appeal within the time provided in OAR 661-10-021(5)(a), the appeal will be dismissed. Matrix Development v. City of Tigard, 25 Or LUBA 557 (1993).

27.16 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Withdrawal of Decision. Under ORS 197.830(12)(b) and OAR 661-10-021(1), LUBA cannot refuse to allow a local government to withdraw a challenged decision for reconsideration, so long as the local government files a notice of withdrawal on or before the date the record is due. Fraser v. Wallowa County, 25 Or LUBA 788 (1993).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. Where two appeals concern the same decision, but the petitioner in one appeal will raise different issues than the petitioner in the other appeal, LUBA will not consolidate the appeals or suspend the second appeal while the first appeal is suspended for settlement discussions, where LUBA will ultimately have to reach the issues that will be raised in the second appeal in any event and the parties in first appeal agree not to take any action that would moot the second appeal while it is still pending at LUBA. Doherty v. Morrow County, 43 Or LUBA 627 (2002).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. When LUBA grants a stipulated motion for voluntary remand, LUBA leaves it to the parties to ensure that the procedures they agree to employ on remand are adequate to accommodate the rights of any persons who are entitled to participate in those proceedings on remand. LUBA does not review and approve those procedures in advance. Boly v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 537 (2001).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. Although parties to a stipulated voluntary remand may be bound by an agreement to limit the issues on remand concerning a disputed parking lot, non-parties are not bound by the stipulation and such non-parties have not waived their right to raise issues under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153-54, 831 P2d 678 (1992), where the notice of hearing that preceded the only local hearing on the remanded decision failed to refer to the parking lot. Boly v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 537 (2001).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. A county governing body's decision to enter a settlement agreement that includes an agreement that the governing body will adopt certain ordinances does not render the public hearings that are subsequently held prior to adopting such ordinances something other than the kind of public hearing required by ORS 215.060, where the county counsel advised the governing body that it was free not to adopt the settlement ordinances and a transcript of the local proceedings shows the governing body did not believe it was legally bound to adopt the settlement ordinances without modification. Waibel v. Crook County, 40 Or LUBA 67 (2001).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. Potential parties in a LUBA appeal can reasonably foresee that the appeal may lead to the challenged decision being affirmed, reversed or remanded, as a result of a decision on the merits or a stipulation by the parties. But such potential parties cannot reasonably foresee that the parties in a LUBA appeal will stipulate that LUBA should order the local government to adopt an amended decision. Waibel v. Crook County, 39 Or LUBA 749 (2000).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. Under ORS 197.860, private litigants at LUBA may stipulate that a challenged decision should be remanded and replaced with a different decision. However, persons who were not parties in the initial appeal who participate in the proceedings on remand may appeal the amended decision to LUBA. Waibel v. Crook County, 39 Or LUBA 749 (2000).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. Under ORS 197.860, parties may reach a mediated settlement in a LUBA appeal and request that LUBA order the local government to adopt a particular amended decision. However, in issuing such an order, LUBA does not review the amended decision on the merits and persons who appeal the amended decision to LUBA may raise any issues on appeal that they did not waive by failing to participate in the initial LUBA appeal. Waibel v. Crook County, 39 Or LUBA 749 (2000).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. A motion requesting a stay for mediation does not suspend the deadline for filing the petition for review, where respondent does not join in the motion and does not agree to enter mediation. Wynnyk v. Jackson County, 39 Or LUBA 500 (2001).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. Under ORS 197.860 all parties, including intervenors-respondent, must stipulate that an appeal be suspended to allow the parties to enter mediation. Where intervenors-respondent do not stipulate that the appeal should be suspended to allow mediation, the appeal will not be suspended. Genstar Land Company v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 832 (1999).

27.17 LUBA Procedures/Rules – Mediation. ORS 197.860 allows LUBA to stay an appeal proceeding for mediation only if all parties stipulate to such a stay. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 699 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Arguments that a local code provision required the local government to deny an application when it concluded that another local code provision was not met provide no basis for reversal or remand absent a challenge to the local government's primary conclusion that it could not, consistent with the Fifth Amendment, deny the application for failure to meet the second provision. Southwest Hills Residential League v. City of Portland, 81 Or LUBA 778 (2020).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Provisions of a challenged ordinance that refer to or rely on provisions of a prior ordinance that LUBA remanded are invalid, even where the prior ordinance contained a severability clause purporting to allow unchallenged aspects of the prior ordinance to take effect after LUBA's remand. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 80 Or LUBA 80 (2019).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Statements made by three city councilors in a public hearing two weeks before the city council's final vote to adopt the challenged decision and findings do not provide a basis to reverse or remand the city's decision. Watts v. City of Tualatin, 80 Or LUBA 339 (2019).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A petitioner's challenge to a county's amendments to its comprehensive plan that expand the allowable locations in the county that could be the subject of an application to change the plan designation to rural commercial and rural industrial, that argue that the county's adopted and acknowledged rural commercial and rural industrial zones impermissibly allow urban uses in contravention of Goal 14 are an impermissible collateral attack on an acknowledged land use regulation where no provisions of the county's code were amended by the challenged decision. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 79 Or LUBA 253 (2019).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A local code amendment adopted to implement provisions of ORS 197.724 is not an "action[] taken under ORS 197.722 to ORS 197.728" so as to place the amendment decision outside of LUBA's scope of review pursuant to ORS 197.726(1). Instead, such an amendment is an action taken under ORS 197.646(1), which requires local governments to amend their land use regulations "to comply with a new requirement in land use statutes." McCaffree v. Coos County, 79 Or LUBA 512 (2019).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When a party raises an issue for the first time at oral argument LUBA will ignore all statements made at oral argument, by any party, that go beyond the issues framed in the briefs and the evidence cited in the record, and will confine its review to the issues framed in the briefs, the evidence cited in the record, and the portions of the oral argument that discuss those issues and evidence. See OAR 661-010-0040(1) and ORS 197.835(2)(a). Conte v. City of Eugene, 78 Or LUBA 289 (2018).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will affirm a city governing body's code interpretation where a prohibition on adjustment "[t]o allow an increase in density in the [low density residential] RL zone" does not specify what denominator should be used to determine whether a proposed adjustment increases the density in the RL zone, or explain how "density in the RL zone" is measured, and the city used as the denominator the gross acreage of a subdivision as a whole, rather than the acreage of individual properties. Hunt v. City of the Dalles, 78 Or LUBA 509 (2018).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The city's comprehensive plan housing goal, Goal 10, and its policies and implementing measures, provide further contextual support for the city's interpretation of its code regarding a prohibition on lot size adjustment "[t]o allow an increase in density in the [low density residential] RL zone" by using as the denominator the gross acreage of a subdivision as a whole, rather than the acreage of individual properties. One of the Goal 10 housing goals is to "[p]romote the efficient use of vacant land by encouraging infill development which is sensitive to existing neighborhoods, and by encouraging new development which achieves the density allowed by the comprehensive plan." The city's interpretation is consistent with Goal 10 and the policies and implementing measures because it interprets "density" and "acre" to allow new infill development of vacant land to achieve a density that is allowed by the comprehensive plan. Hunt v. City of the Dalles, 78 Or LUBA 509 (2018).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where petitioners argue the city's ordinance adopting legislative text amendments to the city's zoning ordinances is inconsistent with applicable city comprehensive plan and subordinate plans, but where the city adopted findings addressing most of the cited comprehensive plan goals and policies, petitioners must do more than simply disagree with the city's conclusions. Given the generally worded language of most of the goals and policies at issue, and the leeway a governing body has in balancing and weighing consistency of a zoning text amendment with a variety of competing policy objectives, petitioners must demonstrate that the city council failed to meaningfully consider a reasonably specific and pertinent comprehensive goal or policy to state a basis for remand or reversal. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 76 Or LUBA 15 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will decline to consider citations to projections and estimates regarding future demand for fossil fuels in the Oregon Freight Plan where the projections and estimates are citied to resolve an evidentiary challenge, and such "adjudicatory facts" are not cognizable within a document that is itself subject to judicial notice. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 76 Or LUBA 15 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will review a decision that amends a local government's comprehensive plan pursuant to ORS 197.835(6), for compliance with the statewide planning goals. In addition, ORS 197.835(9)(a)(C) and (D) provide that LUBA shall reverse or remand a land use decision if LUBA finds that the local government "[m]ade a decision not supported by substantial evidence in the whole record;" or "[i]mproperly construed the applicable law." Finally, pursuant to Citizens Against Irresponsible Growth v. Metro, 179 Or App 12, 16 n 6, 38 P3d 956 (2002), although a local government is not required to adopt findings supporting a legislative decision, the record on appeal must be sufficient to demonstrate that "required considerations were indeed considered." Deumling v. City of Salem, 76 Or LUBA 99 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a party submits a brief that does not defend the decision on appeal, but rather makes a limited concession in the brief regarding all assignments of error in the petition for review and asks "that LUBA not address any of the substantive issues presented in the petition for review," LUBA will deny the request. That request would in effect be the equivalent of granting a voluntary remand after the record and petition for review had been filed, contrary to the Court of Appeals' holding in Dexter Lost Valley Community Assn. v. Lane County, 255 Or App 701, 706-08, 300 P3d 1243 (2013). Hagan v. City of Grants Pass, 76 Or LUBA 196 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where no brief is filed in a LUBA appeal in support of the decision on appeal, there is a risk that LUBA will not recognize potentially meritorious arguments in response to the legal challenges. Where LUBA is reasonably confident how legal issues should be resolved, it will resolve them; but where LUBA is not reasonably confident how legal issues should be resolved, and the decision's findings are inadequate, LUBA will remand for additional findings even where petitioner does not explicitly challenge the adequacy of the findings. Hagan v. City of Grants Pass, 76 Or LUBA 196 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A petitioner does not waive his right to assign procedural error at LUBA by failing to object to the procedural error below, where the alleged procedural error occurred after the close of the evidentiary record, and the city council meeting to adopt the final decision did not include an opportunity for parties to lodge procedural objections. Grahn v. City of Yamhill, 76 Or LUBA 258 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA may take official notice of a county legal lot verification decision involving the same property at issue in an appeal of a county decision approving property line adjustments, for the limited purpose of resolving a dispute regarding LUBA's scope of review over the county decision approving property line adjustments. Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 308 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. An appeal of a 2014 decision approving seven property line adjustments is not a "collateral attack" on a subsequent and unappealed 2017 decision verifying four of the seven properties adjusted as lawfully created lots, where the 2017 decision did not purport to approve the configuration or boundaries adjusted in the 2014 decision, but simply determined that four of the parcels at issue were lawfully created. Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 308 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Petitioner's allegations that applicants for quasi-judicial land use approval purchased property from the city and helped elect the mayor and city councilors falls far short of demonstrating disqualifying bias under Fasano v. Washington Co. Comm., 264 Or 574, 507 P2d 23 (1973). Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 75 Or LUBA 38 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In evaluating a bias challenge, LUBA is to limit its consideration to the quasi-judicial matter where the bias challenge is raised and may not consider actions by the decision maker that are unrelated to that matter. Columbia Riverkeeper v. Clatsop County, 267 Or App 578, 341 P3d 790 (2014). Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 75 Or LUBA 38 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. It would be inconsistent with sound principles of judicial review, ORS 197.805, for LUBA to resolve a constitutional challenge to the procedure a city uses to approve an annexation, in a direct appeal of the city decision approving the annexation, when the same issue is pending before a circuit court in a writ of mandamus proceeding between the same parties, seeking to compel the city to approve the annexation under a different procedure. J4J Misc PAC v. City of Jefferson, 75 Or LUBA 120 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider an issue that was not raised in the petition for review and was raised for the first time in a motion that was received by LUBA one day before the statutory deadline for LUBA to issue its final opinion expired. Rawson v. Hood River County, 75 Or LUBA 200 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will decline to render an advisory interpretation of ORS 215.441, which extends certain protections to a "church or other nonresidential place of worship" in county zones allowing such uses, where LUBA concludes that the applicable Wildlife Area (WA) overlay zone does not allow churches at all, and thus there is no need to resolve the parties' dispute regarding whether locating a proposed church within an existing dwelling results in a "nonresidential place of worship." Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 284 (2017).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA need not address assignments of error alleging that a condition of approval requiring an applicant seeking a four-lot subdivision to construct a road violates the needed housing statutes or the Takings Clause of the U.S. Constitution, where LUBA has already concluded on sub-statutory and sub-constitutional grounds that the city erred in imposing the condition. Tokarski v. City of Salem, 74 Or LUBA 124 (2016).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not resolve assignments of error challenging an alternative theory of approval, vested rights, that the parties argued about below, but which the final decision maker did not consider. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 74 Or LUBA 299 (2016).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will deny an assignment of error that challenges a decision made several years prior to the appealed decision as an impermissible collateral attack on the previous unappealed decision. Martin v. City of Central Point, 74 Or LUBA 312 (2016).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When called upon to determine the applicability or meaning of a statute, LUBA is not limited to the parties' arguments. Kaplowitz v. Lane County, 74 Or LUBA 386 (2016).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Challenges to a hearings officer's conclusions regarding provisions of the local building code are within LUBA's scope of review, even though the local building code provisions are not "land use regulations." ORS 197.835(9)(a)(D) expressly authorizes LUBA to reverse or remand a decision where the local government "[i]mproperly construed the applicable law," and the applicable law is not limited to land use regulations. Gross v. Jackson County, 74 Or LUBA 563 (2016).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider the parties' arguments about whether a city erred by faulting an applicant for referring to proposed open space as a park, where the accuracy of the applicant's description of the open space was not a basis for the city's denial of the permit application. J. Conser and Sons, LLC v. City of Millersburg, 73 Or LUBA 57 (2016).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where LUBA denies a motion to dismiss, because the notice of intent to appeal was timely filed with regard to one of the two decisions identified in the notice of intent to appeal, but the petition for review has not yet been filed, any disagreement between the parties about LUBA's scope of review concerning the petition for review is premature. Lifestyle Ventures v. Clackamas County, 73 Or LUBA 388 (2016).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a decision that rezoned property specifically authorized development of the rezoned property in advance of adoption of a concept plan for the area, in an appeal of a subsequent decision approving development of the property, LUBA's scope of review does not permit review of an argument that the concept plan must be adopted before development may be approved for the rezoned property. Raising a legal issue in the development approval decision that was resolved in the rezoning decision constitutes an improper collateral attack on the rezoning decision. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 72 Or LUBA 25 (2015).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's scope of review under ORS 197.835(9) includes authority to determine whether the decision on review "[i]mproperly construed the applicable law[.]" Where LUBA has jurisdiction to review a land use decision, it also has jurisdiction to review challenges to that decision's construction of "applicable law," even if that "applicable law" is not a statewide planning goal, a comprehensive plan provision or a land use regulation. Carlsen v. City of Portland, 39 Or LUBA 93, 98-100, aff'd in part and rem'd in part on other grounds, 169 Or App 1, 8 P3d 234 (2000). Bend/Sisters Garden RV Resort, LLC v. City of Sisters, 72 Or LUBA 200 (2015).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. While local laws that do not qualify as land use laws might be so unrelated to land use laws that LUBA's scope of review to consider violations of "applicable law" would not include such laws, a city's business licensing regulations qualify as "applicable law" under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(D), where those business licensing regulations are intertwined with the land use issues in a LUBA appeal. Bend/Sisters Garden RV Resort, LLC v. City of Sisters, 72 Or LUBA 200 (2015).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a petitioner ignores 13 pages of findings in the local government's final decision that attempt to address the issues the petitioner raised on local appeal, and instead challenges only the findings in the underlying decision that was affirmed by the local government's final decision, the petition for review provides no basis to reverse or remand the local government's final decision. Dion v. Baker County, 72 Or LUBA 307 (2015).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not distinguish between parties who are represented by lawyers and parties that appear on their own behalf, in determining whether the party took the required steps to preserve its right at LUBA to assign procedural error. ODFW v. Crook County, 72 Or LUBA 316 (2015).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA may consider a challenge that a decision approving a conditional use permit is inconsistent with a resolution that bars extension of sewer outside a sewer district, even if the resolution is not itself a land use regulation, where the resolution qualifies as "applicable law," and is therefore within LUBA's scope of review. ORS 197.835(9)(a)(D). Pennock v. City of Bandon, 72 Or LUBA 379 (2015).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a city ordinance adopts a new zoning district but does not apply the zoning district to any property, arguments challenging possible impacts of applying the new zoning district are premature, and such arguments must await a city decision that actually applies the new zoning district to some property in the city. Oregonians in Action v. City of Lincoln City, 71 Or LUBA 234 (2015).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. An assignment of error that challenges a local government's modification of a condition of approval imposed in a prior decision, on the basis that the original condition of approval proposed dredging or filling that would trigger application of a comprehensive plan policy, is an impermissible collateral attack on the prior decision and provides no basis for reversal or remand. McCaffree v. Coos County, 70 Or LUBA 15 (2014).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not entertain arguments based on equitable estoppel unless the proponent first provides a sufficient basis to conclude that the legislature granted LUBA the authority to reverse or remand a land use decision based on equitable doctrines. Macfarlane v. Clackamas County, 70 Or LUBA 126 (2014).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In an appeal of a decision modifying a permit approval, a petitioner's arguments that prior unappealed decisions extending that permit approval were wrongly decided are viewed as collateral attacks on decisions that were not before the local government in processing the modification, and are not before LUBA on appeal of that modification decision. McLaughlin v. Douglas County, 70 Or LUBA 314 (2014).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Even if prior permit extension decisions are not land use decisions that could have been appealed to LUBA, they are nonetheless final decisions to extend the permit, not intermediate or interlocutory decisions that can be challenged in an appeal of a subsequent decision modifying the permit. McLaughlin v. Douglas County, 70 Or LUBA 314 (2014).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In considering whether the proposed modifications to a previously approved conditional use comply with conditional use approval criteria, if legal issues raised in the modification proceedings are relevant issues regarding approval standards that could not have been raised when the original proposal was approved, the local government is required to address those issues. Conversely, if the arguably relevant issues raised in the modification proceedings could have been fully raised when the original proposal was approved, those legal issues are not a product of the modification and the local government is not required to consider those issues. Tolbert v. Clackamas County, 70 Or LUBA 388 (2014).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a previously approved conditional use is being modified to eliminate one part of the previously approved use, and conditions of that previous approval are to be modified or eliminated, where the original condition was imposed solely to ensure the part of the conditional use that is to be eliminated is consistent with relevant approval standards, no explanation is required to eliminate such conditions of approval. However, where it is not clear whether the original condition of approval was imposed at least in part to ensure that part of the conditional use that is to be retained is consistent with one or more relevant approval standards, and an issue is raised concerning whether the proposed modification or elimination of the condition would cause the modified conditional use to violate one or more applicable approval standards, the local government is obligated to explain why the condition can be eliminated or modified without causing the modified conditional use to no longer comply with relevant approval standards. Tolbert v. Clackamas County, 70 Or LUBA 388 (2014).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A hearings officer properly declines to address issues regarding the prior rezoning of the area in which the subject property is located, where the issues are not relevant to any of the approval criteria that apply to the current development review proposal or the variance, which post-date that rezoning decision by several years. Vesper Park v. Washington County, 68 Or LUBA 106 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will deny an assignment of error that challenges the county's decision that Goal 5 does not apply to a proposed post-acknowledgement plan amendment to amend the county's map of lands eligible for a destination resort because the county failed to compare the location of "other inventoried Goal 5 resources" to the properties proposed to be included on the map where petitioners do not identify any inventoried Goal 5 resource that proposed plan amendment "would affect" under OAR 660-023-0250(3). Root v. Klamath County, 68 Or LUBA 124 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will strike documents attached to the petition for review that are offered as "context" for interpreting an administrative rule adopted in 1990, where the documents are not subject to official notice, long post-date the 1990 administrative rule, and could not provide "context" for interpreting the rule. Fritch v. Clackamas County, 68 Or LUBA 184 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a city adopts a new transportation system plan (TSP) that includes a general alignment for a new regional trail but expressly does not authorize a specific alignment, the TSP cannot be challenged based on the adverse impacts of a specific alignment. However, the TSP can be challenged based on legal challenges to the regional trail that do not depend on a specific alignment. Terra Hydr Inc. v. City of Tualatin, 68 Or LUBA 279 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the decision on appeal is a land use decision, LUBA has jurisdiction under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(D) to review the decision for compliance with "applicable law." "Applicable law" is not limited to land use regulations. Beaumont-Wilshire Neighbors v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 393 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Whether LUBA should include certain kinds of non-land use laws in reviewing land use decisions is somewhat unsettled. But where LUBA has previously reviewed city decisions for compliance with the city's storm water management manual, LUBA will consider the storm water management manual requirements as "applicable law," and within LUBA's scope of review under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(D). Beaumont-Wilshire Neighbors v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 393 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. OAR 660-033-0140 provides that certain permits on agricultural and forest land are void after two years if the use is not initiated within that time period. Where the county development code includes language that is nearly identical to much of the language in OAR 660-033-0140, it is reasonable to conclude the code was adopted to implement OAR 660-033-0140. Gould v. Deschutes County, 67 Or LUBA 1 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a county makes it sufficiently clear that it adopted its similarly worded version of OAR 660-033-0140 to apply in all county zones, including those that apply to agricultural and forest lands, the county code version of OAR 660-033-0140 applies in place of OAR 660-033-0140 on agricultural and forest lands after the county code version of OAR 660-033-0140 is acknowledged. Gould v. Deschutes County, 67 Or LUBA 1 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where contract consents to annexation have been executed and recorded and there is nothing on the face of the contract consents that calls their validity into question, LUBA does not have authority under ORS 197.835 to consider the contract consent parties' claims that the contract consents were invalidly coerced or that those contract consents have been unilaterally revoked. Claims that the contract consents are invalid or have been revoked must be pursued in circuit court. Roads End Water District v. City of Lincoln City, 67 Or LUBA 452 (2013).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. If an intervenor-respondent wishes to request that LUBA remand a county decision so that the county can apply a different statute than the one the county applied in the appealed decision, that request is not properly presented to LUBA where the intervenor-respondent neither filed a cross petition for review nor raised the issue in a cross assignment of error in the intervenor-respondent's response brief. WKN Chopin LLC v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 1 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where on remand of a decision that amends a county zoning ordinance, the county adopts a new ordinance with new amendments, but does not explicitly or implicitly re-adopt the original ordinance, on appeal to LUBA of the new ordinance the petitioner cannot challenge the original ordinance or the findings adopted on remand that are intended to support the original ordinance. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 265 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA has statutory authority only to dismiss, affirm, reverse or remand a land use decision, and probably lacks statutory or inherent authority to "vacate" a previously issued final opinion and order on remand from the Court of Appeals, based solely upon the parties' stipulation. Conte v. City of Eugene, 66 Or LUBA 479 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where on remand from the Court of Appeals the parties stipulate to "vacate" LUBA's original final opinion and order and "reinstate" the underlying local government decision, the parties' intent can be given effect consistent with LUBA's dispositional authority by issuing a final opinion and order that either dismisses the appeal or affirms the local government decision. Conte v. City of Eugene, 66 Or LUBA 479 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA only has authority to affirm, remand or reverse land use decisions and does not have authority to grant injunctive or mandatory relief. LUBA will deny assignments of error where LUBA lacks authority to grant the relief that is requested under those assignments of error. Mingo v. Morrow County, 65 Or LUBA 122 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. It is the local government that determines—either explicitly or implicitly—whether the party with the burden of proof has carried his or her burden of proof. A local government decision must conclude that the governing criteria are satisfied—presumably because the party with the burden of proof carried his or her burden. Once that decision is made, it is subject to LUBA review to determine whether the local government's decision is supported by substantial evidence. Mingo v. Morrow County, 65 Or LUBA 122 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a disputed reply brief, a motion to strike and a motion to take evidence all revolve around an issue that is beyond LUBA's scope of review and has no bearing on a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, LUBA will summarily deny the reply brief and motions. Treadmill Joint Venture v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 213 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A petitioner's argument that a yet-to-be-developed voluntary, educational septic system maintenance program will not improve upon the city's existing mandatory, regulatory septic system maintenance program is premature. It would be improper for LUBA to speculate about what that voluntary, educational program would look like before the new program is developed and adopted. Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Dunes City, 65 Or LUBA 358 (2012).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The validity of a conservation easement acquired by the city from the applicant's predecessor-in-interest as a condition of partition approval cannot be challenged in the context of a subsequent decision that relies on the easement to deny an application for development within the easement. Bundy v. City of West Linn, 63 Or LUBA 113 (2011).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When an issue has been decided in a prior proceeding, the prior decision on that issue may preclude relitigation of the issue in a subsequent proceeding if the five requirements set out at Nelson v. Emerald People's Utility Dist., 318 Or 99, 103, 104, 862 P2d 1293 (1993) are met. Those requirements are: (1) the issue in the two proceedings is identical; (2) the issue was actually litigated and was essential to a final decision on the merits in the prior proceeding; (3) the party sought to be precluded had a full and fair opportunity to be heard on that issue; (4) the party sought to be precluded was a party or was in privity with a party to the prior proceeding; and (5) the prior proceeding was the type of proceeding to which preclusive effect will be given. Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In two decisions LUBA has concluded that issue preclusion does not apply in the land use context, based on the fifth factor in Nelson v. Emerald

People's Utility Dist. However, the Court of Appeals reserved its opinion on that issue in Lawrence v. Clackamas County, 180 Or App 495, 504, 43 P3d 1192 (2002). Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Because only one sustainable basis for denying a permit application is required, LUBA need not address additional assignments of error after sustaining one basis for denial. Where additional assignments of error are relatively straightforward and can be resolved within the statutory deadline for issuing LUBA's decision, LUBA may resolve those additional assignments of error where they would provide additional independent bases for sustaining the decision. However, where those additional assignments of error present close and difficult questions of law, and may require LUBA to consider issues that the parties have not briefed, LUBA will not decide such assignments of error. Onsite Advertising Services LLC v. Washington County, 63 Or LUBA 414 (2011).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA sometimes chooses to reject an issue on the merits rather than on the basis of a waiver challenge, where the merits of the issue are straightforward, quicker to resolve than the waiver challenge, and result in denial of the assignment of error. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 63 Or LUBA 522 (2011).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where LUBA resolves an issue adversely to a party but remands a land use decision for other reasons that party may not fail to appeal LUBA's decision and then raise that same issue in an appeal of the local government's decision following LUBA's remand. Anderson v. Coos County, 62 Or LUBA 38 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a county's decision that land is not suitable for commercial forest use misapplies the test that LUBA determined must be applied in an earlier appeal, but the county also properly applies and adequately explains why the land does not qualify as suitable for commercial forest uses under the correct test, the county's misapplication of the test does not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Anderson v. Coos County, 62 Or LUBA 38 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA normally resolves jurisdictional challenges before considering any other arguments on the merits. However, LUBA will consider those other arguments on the merits where petitioner's "jurisdictional" challenge is really an argument for a limited scope of review of a decision that petitioner concedes is a land use decision, and LUBA's resolution of the arguments on the merits makes it unnecessary to resolve petitioner's scope of review arguments. Parker Johnstone Wilsonville Honda v. ODOT, 62 Or LUBA 116 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where an assignment of error and the argument in support of that assignment of error does not specifically mention a transportation system plan policy that requires a public hearing before selecting a roadway alignment, the issue of whether that policy has been violated is adequately stated for LUBA review where the petitioner does include an argument that a public hearing is required and was not provided and in the petition for review cites to pages in the record where another party specifically cites the transportation system plan policy. Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 62 Or LUBA 142 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where an assignment of error challenges a finding that the land use decision maker did not rely on in adopting the decision on appeal, LUBA need not address the assignment of error. However, where the issue presented by that assignment of error is fully briefed, all parties wish LUBA to decide the issue and the issue is sure to arise again, LUBA may address and resolve the issue. Kuhn v. Deschutes County, 62 Or LUBA 165 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. While LUBA has held that a motion to take evidence under OAR 661-010-045 is not necessary to consider affidavits or evidence outside the record for the limited purpose of establishing LUBA's jurisdiction over the challenged decision, a motion to take evidence is necessary to consider affidavits offered to establish whether LUBA's scope of review includes a particular issue. Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA has jurisdiction over "land use decisions" as defined in ORS 197.015(10)(a). In reviewing land use decisions, LUBA's scope of review extends to issues regarding a decision's compliance with federal law. Foland v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 264 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not have the authority to apply the doctrine of severance to sever unconstitutional provisions from an ordinance and thereby affirm the ordinance on appeal. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. No statute authorizes LUBA to reconsider a previously issued final opinion. Boucot v. City of Corvallis, 61 Or LUBA 459 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Arguments that a permit applicant failed to raise any issue concerning a refund of permit fees in his appeal of the permit denial provide no basis for a motion to dismiss. Waiver of issues for failure to raise those issues in a local proceeding or prior LUBA appeals may affect LUBA's scope of review, but such waiver does not affect LUBA's jurisdiction to review a decision that qualifies as a land use decision. Sperber v. Coos County, 61 Or LUBA 477 (2010).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not consider arguments that are presented for the first time at oral argument. Hardesty v. Jackson County, 58 Or LUBA 162 (2009).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. To give preclusive effect to an earlier unappealed land use decision and thus bar raising issues in a subsequent decision on a related, but separate, permit proceeding, the issue must concern particular development that was proposed, considered and approved in the earlier unappealed decision. Where the earlier decision approved only improvements to the second and third floor of a building, and did not purport to approve the first floor reconstruction that is at issue in the subsequent permit proceeding, on appeal of that subsequent permit to LUBA the petitioner is not precluded from raising issues regarding the first floor reconstruction. VanSpeybroeck v. Tillamook County, 56 Or LUBA 184 (2008).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Even if a prior conditional use permit implicitly approved reconstruction of the first floor of an existing building used for a nonconforming use, failure to appeal the prior decision would not necessarily preclude petitioner from arguing on appeal of a subsequent building permit to reconstruct the first floor that the building permit requires nonconforming use review, where the first floor plan authorized in the building permit approval proposes expansions and alterations not depicted on the first floor plan submitted as part of the prior conditional use application. VanSpeybroeck v. Tillamook County, 56 Or LUBA 184 (2008).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a petitioner appeals a street vacation decision to LUBA, but does not appeal zone change or site plan review decisions that preceded the street vacation decision, petitioner may not assert legal errors in the decisions that were not appealed as a basis for reversing the decision that was appealed. Olson v. City of Springfield, 56 Or LUBA 229 (2008).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a petitioner appeals a street vacation decision that was approved by applying newly adopted street vacation standards, but petitioner does not appeal the ordinance that adopted the new street vacation standards, petitioner may not challenge the legal propriety of amending the street vacation standards. Olson v. City of Springfield, 56 Or LUBA 229 (2008).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA is not bound to accept as true factual assertions in petitioner's affidavit in the record. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 56 Or LUBA 240 (2008).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When no response brief is filed, LUBA will nevertheless address a petitioner's assignments of error on the merits, and summary reversal or remand is not appropriate. Tennant v. Polk County, 56 Or LUBA 455 (2008).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When a decision is appealed to LUBA and withdrawn by the city for reconsideration, and a decision is made on reconsideration, any alleged errors made in the original decision that was withdrawn for reconsideration do not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the decision on reconsideration. Bullock v. City of Ashland, 56 Or LUBA 677 (2008).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. If two resolutions are properly viewed as separate and independent decisions, a petitioner's failure to appeal one of those resolutions would generally be fatal to any challenges to determinations made in the unappealed resolution. However, where the two resolutions are adopted contemporaneously to approve a permit application, the two resolutions purport to resolve different legal issues but only have only minor wording differences and both resolutions are supported by the same findings document, an appeal of either resolution is sufficient to allow petitioners to challenge legal determinations in both resolutions. Siporen v. City of Medford, 55 Or LUBA 29 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not affirm a local government's decision based on a vested rights theory where the county did not address or adopt that theory in its decision. Dunn v. Yamhill County, 55 Or LUBA 206 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA has authority to interpret ORS 197.352, or any other statute, as may be necessary in the context of reviewing a land use decision that is subject to LUBA's jurisdiction. Welch v. Yamhill County, 55 Or LUBA 697 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's scope of review includes review of a final land use decision and review of any interlocutory decisions that are a necessary part of the final land use decision. Meadow Neighborhood Assoc. v. Washington County, 54 Or LUBA 124 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In reviewing a challenge to a moratorium, LUBA's scope of review is limited to determining whether the moratorium was adopted in violation of ORS 197.505 to 197.530. Thunderbird Hotels, LLC v. City of Portland, 54 Or LUBA 487 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's scope of review is established by statute, and the parties in a LUBA appeal may not expand that scope of review simply by making arguments that exceed LUBA's scope of review, even if no party objects to such arguments. Thompson v. Umatilla County, 54 Or LUBA 531 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. ORS 215.780(2) and ORS 197.835(6) and (7) together limit LUBA's scope of review when considering an appeal of a post-acknowledgement plan amendment to impose reduced minimum lot or parcel sizes in an EFU zone pursuant to ORS 215.780(2) to exclude review for statewide planning goal compliance, where the reduced minimum lot or parcel sizes have already been reviewed for compliance with the statewide planning goals by the Land Conservation and Development Commission under ORS 215.780(2) and found to comply with the statewide planning goals. Thompson v. Umatilla County, 54 Or LUBA 531 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's scope of review is not limited to the local government record under ORS 197.835(2)(a) when LUBA is considering whether the decision on appeal is a land use decision that is subject to LUBA review. Making that threshold jurisdictional inquiry does not entail "[r]eview of the decision," within the meaning of ORS 197.835(2)(a). Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 54 Or LUBA 692 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA is not precluded from reviewing a confidential communication from the city attorney to the city council, where a member of the city council provided a copy of the communication to petitioner and thereby waived the privilege that might otherwise preclude LUBA consideration of the communication. Home Builders Association v. City of Eugene, 54 Or LUBA 692 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where petitioners cite a broadcast tower approval criterion that encourages collocation but refer to their undeveloped argument concerning that criterion as "contextual backdrop," LUBA will consider that argument as contextual backdrop rather than an argument that might justify reversal or remand. Belluschi v. City of Portland, 53 Or LUBA 455 (2007).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where petitioners are aware of two prior city decisions that extended the effective date of a preliminary public facility improvement agreement and do not appeal those prior decisions, petitioners cannot collaterally attack those decision in an appeal of a subsequent decision that relies on those prior unappealed decisions. Lockwood v. City of Salem, 51 Or LUBA 334 (2006).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider an intervenor-respondent's argument that petitioner's challenge to a lot depth variance should be rejected because the lot depth variance the city approved was unnecessary under applicable zoning regulations, where the city did not consider that issue below. Lockwood v. City of Salem, 51 Or LUBA 334 (2006).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. If the argument included in support of an assignment of error clearly alleges that findings are not supported by substantial evidence, the fact that an assignment of error that challenges the adequacy of the city's findings does not expressly include a substantial evidence challenge does not preclude LUBA review of the substantial evidence arguments that follow that assignment of error. Neighbors 4 Responsible Growth v. City of Veneta, 51 Or LUBA 363 (2006).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Petitioners must do more than argue that a county erroneously relied on a noise study that assumed that the DEQ standards for existing noise sources apply; petitioners must identify which new noise source standards they believe apply and why. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 51 Or LUBA 383 (2006).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the issues of whether a regional sewerage plan was properly adopted and whether its adoption is a land use decision were not before the circuit court in writ of review proceeding, issue preclusion does not apply and petitioners are not foreclosed from arguing to LUBA that the decision to adopt the plan is a land use decision and that it violates Goal 11 and the Goal 11 administrative rule. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Springfield, 50 Or LUBA 109 (2005).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In an appeal of a land use decision that applies an acknowledged comprehensive plan policy a petitioner may not challenge the validity of the acknowledged comprehensive plan policy. Sommer v. Josephine County, 49 Or LUBA 134 (2005).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider an interpretive argument that is presented at oral argument but was not included in the petition for review and was not presented to the local government. Regen v. Lincoln County, 49 Or LUBA 386 (2005).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Arguments that an "island" annexation under ORS 222.750 must be remanded because the record does not include consents necessary to establish the validity of previous annexations that rendered the subject area an "island" are essentially collateral attacks on annexation decisions not before the Board, and therefore do not provide a basis for reversing or remanding the challenged island annexation. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 49 Or LUBA (512).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Arguments that the city erred in proceeding with an annexation election prior to determining whether the proposed annexation complied with applicable land use standards do not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the post-election decision, where the decision to proceed in that order was made in a pre-election decision that was appealed to LUBA but dismissed as untimely. Such arguments are essentially a collateral attack on a decision not before LUBA. Cutsforth v. City of Albany, 49 Or LUBA 559 (2005).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not review an assignment of error alleging that a county improperly retained part of the petitioner's local appeal fee, where the county's alleged actions in retaining the fee postdate the challenged decision before LUBA and are embodied in a different decision that is not before LUBA. Sisters Forest Planning Comm. v. Deschutes County, 48 Or LUBA 78 (2004).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where it is undisputed that a city has adopted a Wetlands Resource Plan that has been acknowledged by LCDC, the acknowledged Wetlands Resource Plan and implementing regulations apply in reviewing an application for subdivision approval and neither Goal 5 nor its implementing regulations apply directly. Doob v. City of Grants Pass, 48 Or LUBA 245 (2004).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. An assertion in a local notice of appeal that the planning commission erroneously interpreted the comprehensive plan to require preservation of an overlay zoning on the subject property is sufficient to raise an issue, under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), regarding whether the overlay zone had expired. Staus v. City of Corvallis, 48 Or LUBA 254 (2004).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. An argument that the assignments of error in the petition for review are directed at decisions not before LUBA is not a basis to dismiss an appeal of a decision otherwise within LUBA's jurisdiction. If that argument is correct, the proper disposition is to reject the assignments of error in the petition for review and affirm the challenged decision, not to dismiss the appeal. Such arguments are more correctly viewed as a scope of review challenge rather than a jurisdictional challenge. Butte Conservancy v. City of Gresham, 47 Or LUBA 282 (2004).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Assignments of error that are in substance a collateral attack on determinations made in an earlier unchallenged decision do not provide a basis to reverse or remand the challenged decision. Butte Conservancy v. City of Gresham, 47 Or LUBA 282 (2004).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a city decision must be remanded in any event and resolving an assignment of error would require LUBA to determine whether a disputed city decision "rezoned" property within the meaning of ORS 227.186(9)(b), LUBA will not decide that assignment of error where (1) the statute is ambiguous, (2) LUBA has not interpreted the statute before, (3) the parties provide no legislative history and the statutory deadline for issuing LUBA's opinion has already expired, and (4) the city might provide the notice on remand making the allegation of error moot. Rhodes v. City of Talent, 47 Or LUBA 574 (2004).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Issue preclusion does not apply where the party asserting issue preclusion does not demonstrate that the required elements for issue preclusion are present and it appears that the legal conclusion in the prior land use decision that forms the basis for the party's issue preclusion argument was not essential to the prior land use decision. DeBoer v. Jackson County, 46 Or LUBA 24 (2003).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a 2003 permit to construct a parking deck does not purport to allow construction of a dwelling that was the subject of a 2001 permit, petitioners may not challenge the 2001 permit approval for the dwelling in an appeal of the 2003 permit decision. Shoemaker v. Tillamook County, 46 Or LUBA 433 (2004).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a notice of intent to appeal identifies a planning department's decision to approve a permit without a hearing as the appealed decision, but does not identify a subsequent hearings officer's decision dismissing a local appeal of that planning department decision, LUBA may not consider assignments of error directed at the hearings officer's decision. Dead Indian Memorial Rd. Neigh. v. Jackson County, 43 Or LUBA 511 (2003).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. An applicant who threatened a mandamus proceeding below to compel the county to approve its application did not benefit by gaining a time advantage where the county took 1,045 days to render its decision in its initial proceedings and 614 days in its proceedings on remand, and the applicant is therefore not judicially estopped from asserting a position before LUBA that may differ from the position it asserted below in support of the threatened mandamus proceeding. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 42 Or LUBA 565 (2002).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA may review a challenge to findings that an applicable criterion is satisfied even though the findings were made in a planning commission recommendation to the board of county commissioners, where it is clear that the criterion must be satisfied in order to approve an application and the board of county commissioners approves the application. Doty v. Coos County, 42 Or LUBA 103 (2002).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not review petitioner's interpretational challenges to several alternative interpretations of an approval criterion, where the local government finds, and LUBA affirms, that the criterion is satisfied even if it is interpreted in the manner that petitioner argues it should be interpreted. Arlington Heights Homeowners v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 185 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a planning director's decision to revoke a previously approved appeal fee waiver and reject petitioner's local appeal was final when rendered, and petitioner did not file a timely appeal with LUBA to challenge that decision, petitioner may not challenge the fee waiver revocation and denial of the local appeal in an appeal of a subsequent planning director letter that merely reiterates the earlier decision. Babbitt v. City of Portland, 41 Or LUBA 151 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In reviewing a land use decision, LUBA's scope of review does not include matters over which LCDC has acknowledgment review authority under ORS 197.251. Citizens Against Irresponsible Growth v. Metro, 40 Or LUBA 426 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a transportation plan has been submitted to LCDC for acknowledgment review and LCDC has conducted that review with regard to Goal 12 and the Transportation Planning Rule (TPR), LUBA does not have authority to thereafter review the regional transportation plan for compliance with the TPR. That limit on LUBA's scope of review is not affected by the fact that the TPR was adopted to implement both Goal 12 and the ORS 197.712(2)(e) obligation concerning public facility plans, where the statutory obligation is not shown to impose transportation planning obligations that are different than those imposed by Goal 12. Citizens Against Irresponsible Growth v. Metro, 40 Or LUBA 426 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not have jurisdiction to review a regional transportation plan to determine whether it is consistent with a regional framework plan consistency requirement, where such consistency is also required by Goal 2 and LCDC has jurisdiction to review the regional framework plan and regional transportation plan for compliance with Goal 2. Citizens Against Irresponsible Growth v. Metro, 40 Or LUBA 426 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A regional framework plan requirement for "findings" that a transportation plan is consistent with the regional framework plan is not within LUBA's scope of review where both plans have been submitted to LCDC for acknowledgment review under ORS 197.251. LCDC's review for plan-to-plan consistency under Goal 2 either includes review of the "findings" requirement or renders it legally irrelevant. Citizens Against Irresponsible Growth v. Metro, 40 Or LUBA 426 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a city planner expresses an opinion in a transmittal letter, but the city council decision that is transmitted with the letter clearly does not express that opinion, the expression of opinion is not reviewable by LUBA in an appeal of the city council's decision. Robson v. City of La Grande, 40 Or LUBA 250 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The law of the case doctrine, as articulated in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), does not preclude a county from relying on newly acquired evidence to address a remanded legal issue. A party is not precluded from updating its evidence on remand, nor is the county precluded from reaching a new or different conclusion based on that evidence. DLCD v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 221 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When a city imposes a condition on development approval and relies on that condition in both its initial approval and its reapproval after withdrawing the decision for reconsideration, a petitioner's failure to raise issues regarding the condition during the evidentiary proceedings on reconsideration precludes petitioner from challenging the adequacy or validity of the condition in a subsequent LUBA appeal of the decision on reconsideration. DLCD v. City of Warrenton, 40 Or LUBA 88 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The law of the case doctrine does not apply to an appeal of a new application, even if that application is similar to a prior application that resulted in a decision that was remanded by LUBA. Durig v. Washington County, 40 Or LUBA 1 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A petitioner may not challenge the merits of the underlying decision in an appeal of a local decision maker's determination that there is no local appeal available to challenge that decision. Robinson v. City of Silverton, 39 Or LUBA 792 (2001).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will dismiss an appeal of a component of a local decision for lack of finality where it is clear that the local government has separated an otherwise unitary land use decision into separate components, and remanded some of those components for further local proceedings. Besseling v. Douglas County, 39 Or LUBA 177 (2000).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will deny a motion to consider evidence that is not included in the record, where the moving party fails to demonstrate that any of the criteria for granting such a motion under OAR 661-010-0045(1) are met and the evidence the moving party seeks to have included does not render the appeal moot. Dept. of Transportation v. City of Eugene, 38 Or LUBA 814 (2000).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Challenges that are directed at a previously approved preliminary plat for a planned unit development in an appeal of final plat approval are an impermissible collateral attack on the prior decision. Bauer v. City of Portland, 38 Or LUBA 715 (2000).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Interpretations that allow a local government to adopt decisions that violate applicable state statute are not deference under Clark v. Jackson County, 313 Or 508, 836 P2d 710 (1992). Ashley Manor Care Centers v. City of Grants Pass, 38 Or LUBA 308 (2000).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A city's interpretation of a "no adverse effect" standard to permit some adverse impacts on adjacent properties, so long as the impacts do not affect the uses on those properties, is not clearly wrong. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 38 Or LUBA 183 (2000).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A petitioner does not waive any rights to present argument in a subsequent LUBA appeal by failing to appeal a prior LUBA decision and assign error to conclusions in that prior LUBA decision, where the conclusions were dictum and would not have provided a basis for appeal. Jackson County Citizens League v. Jackson County, 38 Or LUBA 37 (2000).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Petitioner does not waive its right to argue at oral argument that a prior LUBA decision was wrongly decided, notwithstanding that petitioner was aware of the prior decision and did not present argument concerning that decision in its petition for review, where respondent argues in its response brief in response to an assignment of error that the prior LUBA decision is controlling. Jackson County Citizens League v. Jackson County, 38 Or LUBA 37 (2000).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In considering whether a farm management plan has been substantially complied with, a county is not required to consider issues that could have been presented in a prior, unappealed decision that authorized a property line adjustment for the two parcels that were the subject of the farm management plan. Rochlin v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 237 (1999).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA has jurisdiction to review a statutory challenge to a plan amendment even though the statutory challenge was not raised in a LUBA appeal when the plan was originally adopted, where the statutory question presented when the plan was first adopted is different from the statutory question presented by the plan amendment decision. Commercial Real Estate Economic Coalition v. Metro, 37 Or LUBA 171 (1999).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not have statutory authority to dismiss an appeal of a land use decision and direct that particular actions be taken by the city following such dismissal. Genstar Land Company Northwest v. City of Sherwood, 36 Or LUBA 787 (1999).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where parties stipulate that LUBA may dismiss an appeal or a petitioner withdraws the notice of intent to appeal, LUBA's decision dismissing the appeal expresses no position on the legal effect of actions that may have been taken or may yet be taken pursuant to an agreement entered into by parties to the appeal. Genstar Land Company Northwest v. City of Sherwood, 36 Or LUBA 787 (1999).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's dismissal of an appeal at petitioner's request expresses no opinion on the merits of any underlying agreement or any actions taken by the local government that may form the basis for petitioner's decision to request that its appeal be dismissed. Genstar Land Company Northwest v. City of Sherwood, 36 Or LUBA 612 (1999).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The law of the case doctrine does not bar petitioners from raising issues that were resolved or could have been raised in a prior decision approving the challenged land use proposal, where the challenged decision revisits, on a de novo basis, certain issues resolved in a prior decision, and the issues raised in the present appeal all pertain to matters that the challenged decision revisited. Sequoia Park Condo. Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 36 Or LUBA 317 (1999).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not consider arguments that a city erred in approving a modified PUD Master Plan, where the LUBA appeal challenges a preliminary plat decision that is subject to the previously approved PUD Master Plan and petitioner does not appeal a separate city decision that modifies the PUD Master Plan. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 437 (1999).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Petitioner may not prevail on a LUBA appeal unless his assignments of error are sufficiently developed to allow review and provide some legal basis for remand or reversal. Schaffer v. City of Turner, 35 Or LUBA 350 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When the only decision appealed is a decision changing the required sequence of PUD phases, and the assignments of error provide no basis for reversing or remanding that decision, the decision will be affirmed. LUBA will reject assignments of error that challenge other related decisions that were not appealed. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 120 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a county gives adequate assurances that it will comprehensively review petitioner's assignments of error, LUBA will grant a motion for voluntary remand and will not assume the motion for voluntary remand is motivated by delay or other improper reasons simply because there has been a lengthy course of litigation in the matter. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine Co., 35 Or LUBA 117 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not evaluate common law rights of access, unless those rights of access are incorporated into a local land use standard. Applegate Estates v. City of Klamath Falls, 35 Or LUBA 112 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the petition for review challenging a post-acknowledgment decision raises an issue concerning the propriety of the city relying on documents that were prepared for a pending periodic review, the issue of whether ORS 197.644(2) and OAR 660-025-0040 deprive LUBA of jurisdiction to review the challenged decision is necessarily presented and may be included in a state agency brief submitted under ORS 197.830(7). Citizens for Florence v. City of Florence, 34 Or LUBA 793 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a local government denies petitioner's local appeal as being not timely filed, LUBA review of that decision is limited to the rejection of the local appeal and does not extend to the merits of the underlying land use decision. Confederated Tribes v. Jefferson County, 34 Or LUBA 565 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the land use decision appealed. In reviewing an appealed land use decision, LUBA may not consider whether a code amendment that is applied in the challenged decision was properly adopted, where the decision adopting the code amendment was not appealed. Femling v. Coos County, 34 Or LUBA 328 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's scope of review is not precluded or affected when petitioner assigns error to a plan amendment but fails to assign error to a corresponding zone change. Under ORS 197.175(2)(b) and 197.835(7)(b), zoning ordinances must conform to and comply with the local government's comprehensive plan, therefore a remand on the basis of error respecting the plan amendment would necessarily invalidate the corresponding zone change. Geaney v. Coos County, 34 Or LUBA 189 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA is not required to defer to an interpretation by a hearings officer. Thus, the proper standard of review is not whether the hearings officer's interpretation is contrary to the ordinance's express terms or policy, but rather whether that interpretation is reasonable and correct. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 14 (1998).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where LUBA cannot tell which of several conceivable interpretations of a local ordinance the city intended, the implied interpretation is not adequate for review. Bradbury v. City of Bandon, 33 Or LUBA 664 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In determining whether a previous local decision vacated lot lines, LUBA considers only what the record establishes the county did in that previous decision, not what the county should have done. Koo v. Polk County, 33 Or LUBA 487 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A decision maker's finding that a petitioner has not raised an issue below with sufficient statements and evidence to enable the decision maker to respond does not compel LUBA to reach the same conclusion. Arnett v. City of Lake Oswego, 33 Or LUBA 384 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The standard applied under ORS 197.829 to LUBA's review of a city council's interpretation of its charter is whether such interpretation was reasonable and correct. Western PCS, Inc. v. City of Lake Oswego, 33 Or LUBA 369 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In complying with the city's demand that it file an application for a conditional use permit in order to continue its operation, petitioner accepted the validity of that demand for the purposes of the proceeding on its application, and LUBA therefore cannot review the decision to require a conditional use permit. Recovery House VI v. City of Eugene, 33 Or LUBA 327 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. ORS 197.540 grants LUBA review authority over any moratorium, including any extension of a moratorium under ORS 197.530(2), and LUBA may invalidate any improperly extended moratorium. Manning v. City of St. Paul, 33 Or LUBA 193 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's authority to review and invalidate an improperly extended moratorium does not include authority to invalidate the initial adoption of a moratorium, where initial adoption was not appealed to LUBA within 21 days after the initial adoption became final. Manning v. City of St. Paul, 33 Or LUBA 193 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA cannot employ the rules of statutory construction to interpret plan and code provisions even when it does so only as a means to establish a baseline from which to determine whether a local government interpretation is "clearly wrong" or "beyond a colorable defense." Downtown Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 140 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will defer under ORS 197.829(1) to a local government's interpretation of conditional use permit criteria even when that interpretation is at odds with LUBA's own interpretation of identical statutory criteria governing an application for a nonfarm dwelling. Ray v. Douglas County, 32 Or LUBA 388 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where petitioners contend that a condition impermissibly defers compliance with local criteria, but fail to identify the approval criteria to which the condition relates and fail to provide any argument supporting their position, petitioners' allegation is insufficiently developed for LUBA review. Just v. Linn County, 32 Or LUBA 325 (1997).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Since the rule of deference to a local government's interpretation of its plan and land use regulations, which is codified in ORS 197.829(1), does not apply to our review of local government decisions not made by the governing body, the exceptions to the rule, set forth in ORS 197.829(1)(a) to (d), also do not apply. ODOT v. Clackamas County, 32 Or LUBA 118 (1996).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Comments made by city council members during the course of their deliberations that are not reflected in the county's final written findings are not relevant in determining whether the county complied with ORS 227.173(2). Miller v. City of Joseph, 31 Or LUBA 472 (1996).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Only actions undertaken by the city prior to the date of the final decision being appealed are relevant to LUBA's review. Assignments of error that relate to actions undertaken by the city after the date of its final decision will be denied. Tucker v. City of Adair Village, 31 Or LUBA 382 (1996).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's scope of review is limited by ORS 197.835 to a review of the decision made by the county. LUBA does not have statutory authority to issue advisory opinions. Brugh v. Coos County, 31 Or LUBA 158 (1996).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA usually will not consider arguments made for the first time at oral argument before the Board. DLCD v. Polk County, 31 Or LUBA 69 (1996).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When a county has made detailed findings explaining why a challenged decision is not a land use decision under its local regulations or, alternatively, why the decision is exempt from review under those regulations, and those findings are not clearly wrong, LUBA will defer to the county's interpretation of its own regulations. Leathers v. Washington County, 31 Or LUBA 43 (1996).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Although knowing the applicable standard of review is useful to any party to an appeal to LUBA, a petitioner need not specify the correct standard of review in the petition for review in order to obtain a decision on the merits. Huntzicker v. Washington County, 30 Or LUBA 397 (1996).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. While ORS 197.829(2) allows LUBA to interpret local land use regulations in the absence of interpretations by the local government, LUBA need not search the record, or make interpretations or draw conclusions that are not clearly evident. Canby Quality of Life Committee v. City of Canby, 30 Or LUBA 166 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. While LUBA need not piece together evidence which could explain a city's conclusion, it must consider evidence identified by intervenor-respondent in its brief that support the city's findings that an applicable standard has been met. Canby Quality of Life Committee v. City of Canby, 30 Or LUBA 166 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. When a local governing body determines that policies contained in its comprehensive plan are inapplicable to its decision, LUBA's review is limited to whether the governing body's interpretation of the policies and its subsequent determination of their inapplicability satisfies ORS 197.829(1). East Lancaster Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Salem, 30 Or LUBA 147 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In an appeal of a decision approving a 100-lot PUD on land zoned R-1 and subject to a Goal 5 designation, LUBA will not review a challenge to the city's earlier decision to zone the site for residential development rather than open space. Petitioners cannot collaterally attack the city's decision by arguing that residential development is inconsistent with the Goal 5 designation. Friends of Neabeack Hill v. City of Philomath, 30 Or LUBA 46 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Petitioners cannot, in a subsequent proceeding, collaterally attack conditions imposed in an earlier, unappealed, decision. Wakeman v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 521 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Although LUBA may not itself order a local government to refund a fee charged for a local appeal, local fee payment issues are part of the land use appeals structure, capable of violating applicable legal standards and providing a basis for remand. Gensman v. City of Tigard, 29 Or LUBA 505 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Petitioners' contention that the county inappropriately zoned their property at the time the comprehensive plan was adopted is not relevant to petitioners' appeal of the county's denial of a comprehensive plan map amendment and zone change. Sandgren v. Clackamas County, 29 Or LUBA 454 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the city council conducted a separate proceeding on the question of whether off-street parking use of certain property requires a conditional use permit, petitioners participated in that proceeding, and city council minutes indicate a final, appealable decision interpreting the local code in this regard was made, petitioners cannot challenge that decision in their appeal of the city's subsequent decision on an application for site plan approval for such off-street parking. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 29 Or LUBA 391 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Because LUBA's review is limited to the record of an appealed decision, LUBA cannot rely on a determination in another case that a proposed golf course is not a commercial use to support a determination, in the case on appeal, that a proposed golf driving range is not a commercial use. Moore v. Clackamas County, 29 Or LUBA 372 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's review of a local government decision applying its code mineral and aggregate resources chapter for compliance with ORS 215.283 does not extend to a review of the code chapter for compliance with ORS 215.283 in respects unrelated to the challenged decision. Mission Bottom Assoc. v. Marion County, 29 Or LUBA 281 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not have the authority to reject an otherwise properly filed appeal on the basis of an equitable defense of laches. Nehoda v. Coos County, 29 Or LUBA 251 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Unless an evidentiary hearing is granted, LUBA's review is limited to the local record. Therefore, if a motion for evidentiary hearing is not filed, LUBA will not consider discussion in a party's brief or oral argument concerning matters not in the local record. Nehoda v. Coos County, 29 Or LUBA 251 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The submittal of a land use permit application leads to one local review process, including any local appeals, and culminates in one final local land use decision appealable to LUBA. Any relevant issues concerning the acceptance, processing and approval or denial of such application may be raised in an appeal to LUBA, subject to the requirements of ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2) that such issues have been raised below. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 238 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Although ORS 197.825(2)(a) requires that local appeals be exhausted, the fact that the local code may limit the scope of review of a local appellate body in considering a local appeal does not similarly limit LUBA's scope of review. Save Amazon Coalition v. City of Eugene, 29 Or LUBA 238 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where petitioner appeals a decision by a local governing body not to accept petitioner's appeal of a planning commission decision, LUBA's scope of review is limited to whether the governing body correctly decided not to accept petitioner's local appeal. LUBA will not review the merits of the planning commission decision. Cummings v. Tillamook County, 29 Or LUBA 550 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA is required to defer to a local governing body's interpretation of any enactment which the governing body of that jurisdiction adopted, regardless of whether the governing body of another jurisdiction also adopted the same enactment. Opus Development Corp. v. City of Eugene, 28 Or LUBA 670 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the challenged decision was adopted by a decision maker other than the local governing body, and the decision fails to contain an interpretation of relevant code provisions, LUBA may interpret the local code. Beveled Edge Machines, Inc. v. City of Dallas, 28 Or LUBA 790 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the dispute between the parties involves an ethical dispute concerning the application of disciplinary rules of the Oregon State Bar that have no direct bearing on the merits of the decision appealed to LUBA, LUBA will not attempt to resolve such ethical dispute. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 28 Or LUBA 788 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In reviewing a decision adopted by a local governing body, LUBA must review the governing body's interpretation of local code provisions and may not interpret the local code in the first instance, unless there is "no possible rational dispute" regarding the correct interpretation. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 618 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Determining whether an advisory body, which submitted a recommendation to the local decision maker in a land use proceeding, violated provisions of the Public Meetings Law in the manner its meetings were held is beyond LUBA's scope of review. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 618 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. For ORS 197.829(4) to apply to LUBA's review of a governing body's interpretation of its own code, the connection between the local code provision and the statewide planning goal it is arguably designed to implement must be a close one. ORS

197.829(4) was not adopted to allow LUBA to reconsider the propriety of the original acknowledgment of comprehensive plans and land use regulations. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 28 Or LUBA 591 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the challenged decision was made by the hearings officer and petitioners contend a zoning district purpose statement is a mandatory standard applicable to proposed development, LUBA may determine, in the first instance, whether the provision is an approval applicable to the proposal. Ellison v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 521 (1995).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A respondent or intervenor-respondent who wishes to challenge some aspect of an appealed decision must file either a cross-petition for review or a separate appeal. LUBA will not consider assignments of error included in a respondent's brief. Spathas v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 351 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A petitioner at LUBA may not raise an argument for the first time at oral argument or in a post-oral argument memorandum. DLCD v. Douglas County, 28 Or LUBA 242 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where petitioner appeals local government decisions issuing a building permit and denying a request for a local appeal of the building permit, and petitioner's notice of intent to appeal is filed more than 21 days after petitioner had actual notice of the building permit decision but within 21 days of the decision that there is no right to a local appeal, the notice of intent to appeal is untimely filed with regard to the building permit decision and the only issue to be resolved in the LUBA appeal is whether the local government determination that there is no right to a local appeal of the building permit decision is erroneous. Mills v. City of Yachats, 28 Or LUBA 736 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA is not authorized to remand a challenged decision to a local government for the local government to conduct evidentiary hearings, without first resolving the assignments of error raised by a petitioner. ORS 197.835(9)(a). Tri-County Metro. Trans. Dist. v. City of Beaverton, 28 Or LUBA 78 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Under ORS 197.829, LUBA is required to defer to a local governing body's interpretation of its own enactment, unless that interpretation is contrary to the express words, purpose or policy of the local enactment or to a state statute, statewide planning goal or administrative rule which the local enactment implements. Melton v. City of Cottage Grove, 28 Or LUBA 1 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. ORS 197.829(4) was not adopted to allow LUBA to reconsider the propriety of the original acknowledgment of comprehensive plans and land use regulations. Identification of an allegedly incorrect interpretation of such acknowledged comprehensive plan or land use regulation provisions is a condition precedent for invoking review under ORS 197.829(4). Historical Development Advocates v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 617 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A planning director's decision that a development has satisfied the requirements of local ordinances is inadequate for review if it does not identify which provisions of the ordinances it addresses, does not set out the facts relied on, and does not relate the facts to the ordinance provisions addressed. Hart v. Jefferson County, 27 Or LUBA 612 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In an appeal to LUBA from one local government decision, petitioners may not collaterally attack an earlier, separate local government decision that was not appealed. Sahagian v. Columbia County, 27 Or LUBA 341 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Statements by individual decision makers made early in the local proceedings, that granting adjustments to code requirements would have a negative impact on the neighborhood, do not show the decision makers ignored applicable criteria in later adopting a final written decision granting the adjustment. It is the final written decision that is subject to LUBA review. Edwards v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 262 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In an appeal of a local government decision granting an adjustment, LUBA's scope of review does not include challenges to the adequacy of rules of procedure for granting adjustments previously adopted by the local government in a separate unappealed decision. Edwards v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 262 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Neither law of the case nor issue preclusion applies in a LUBA appeal of a land use decision made after a prior remand by LUBA, where the second appeal involves different parties and a new application for a revised project was submitted after remand. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 27 Or LUBA 243 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a party's argument is based solely on a document not in the local record, another party objects to LUBA's consideration of that document, and the party making the argument does not move for an evidentiary hearing pursuant to ORS 197.830(13)(b) or offer any other basis on which LUBA might consider the document, LUBA will reject the argument. Dorgan v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 64 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Claim and issue preclusion may not be asserted against a petitioner in a LUBA appeal based on a prior circuit court proceeding where the circuit court proceeding ended in a stipulated judgment and where petitioner had no notice of and was not a party to the circuit court proceeding. DLCD v. Benton County, 27 Or LUBA 49 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. ORS 197.829(1), (2) and (3) essentially codify the standard of review imposed by Clark v. Jackson County, 313 Or 508, 836 P2d 710 (1992). ORS 197.829(4) limits or qualifies the Clark standard of review in certain circumstances. Zippel v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 11 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Except as provided in 197.830(13)(b), LUBA's review is limited to the local government record. A motion to participate as an amicus will be denied where the only reason stated for the request is to present expert testimony and other evidence that is not included in the local government record. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 26 Or LUBA 647 (1994).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA may not expand its review beyond the evidentiary record submitted by the local government simply because the evidence outside the local government record is relevant. Waugh v. Coos County, 26 Or LUBA 300 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's review is limited to what is approved by the challenged decision. LUBA will not review the legal sufficiency of a development permit that the challenged decision does not purport to approve. Hixson v. Josephine County, 26 Or LUBA 159 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA may not reweigh evidence or substitute its judgment for that of a local government concerning a proposal's compliance with applicable standards. Hixson v. Josephine County, 26 Or LUBA 159 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's scope of review is determined by ORS 197.835 and 197.763(1). That local government regulations may allow or require the local governing body's scope of review to be narrowed during local appeals does not similarly narrow LUBA's scope of review. Cummings v. Tillamook County, 26 OR LUBA 139 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a prior local government land use decision was not appealed, neither the merits of the prior decision nor any errors that allegedly occurred in the proceedings leading to that decision, are before LUBA in an appeal of a subsequent local government land use decision. Perry v. Yamhill County, 26 Or LUBA 73 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not grant a motion to file an amicus brief where the proposed amicus brief raises only an issue that is not raised in the petition for review. Friends of Bryant Woods v. City of Lake Oswego, 26 Or LUBA 594 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA reviews the local government's final written order. That the final written order may not accurately reflect oral comments made by the local decision maker during its deliberations provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Derry v. Douglas County, 26 Or LUBA 25 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. It is the practice at LUBA for a party that wishes LUBA to consider a document not in the local record, for one of the purposes listed in ORS 197.830(13)(b) or OAR 661-10-045(1), to attach that document to its brief and explain in its brief why LUBA should consider the document. If another party does not object to LUBA considering the document, the document becomes part of LUBA's record and is considered for the requested purpose. If an objection is made, the party offering the document may file a motion for evidentiary hearing under OAR 661-10-045. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 25 Or LUBA 656 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. While a local government has authority to regulate the conduct of local proceedings, including the conduct of local appeals, it may not limit LUBA's review authority in ways not authorized by statute. Choban v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 572 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not deny a request for voluntary remand of a challenged land use decision, simply because different approval criteria may apply on remand. Petitioners are entitled to obtain review by LUBA to assure a correct decision is rendered, whatever approval criteria may be applicable. Hastings Bulb Growers, Inc. v. Curry County, 25 Or LUBA 558 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Whether LUBA has authority to reverse a local government decision denying land use approval and order the local government to grant land use approval, based on the doctrine of equitable estoppel, is unclear. Pesznecker v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 463 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. While local governments are free to adopt code provisions governing local proceedings, such local requirements do not limit LUBA's scope of review. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 25 Or LUBA 411 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the challenged decision does not approve a plan amendment or zone change, and the local government's plan and land use regulations are acknowledged, the Statewide Planning Goals do not apply directly to the proposal. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 25 Or LUBA 411 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA is not bound by legal precedents established by circuit court decisions in unrelated cases. Skydive Oregon v. Clackamas County, 25 Or LUBA 294 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a county failed to interpret ORS 215.213(2)(d)(C) as allowing an aggregate processing facility that conducts part of the processing on-site but completes the process of making aggregate into asphalt or Portland cement off-site, and the party wishing to assign the county's interpretive failure as error did not appeal the county's decision to LUBA or file a cross-petition for review, LUBA will not consider the interpretive question. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 238 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where an applicant neither files its own appeal of the local governing body's decision granting the requested development approval nor files a cross-petition for review in the LUBA appeal filed by the opponents, the question of whether a local appeal by the opponents should have been dismissed by the governing body is not properly presented to LUBA. Miller v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 169 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the planning commission delegated to the city manager authority to grant extensions of PUD overall development plan approval, and neither the planning commission's decision nor the city manager's decision exercising that authority was appealed, LUBA will not consider arguments that the planning commission improperly delegated authority to the city manager in an appeal of a subsequent city decision granting final PUD approval. Westlake Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Lake Oswego, 25 Or LUBA 145 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the challenged decision characterizes an alleged nonconforming use as a "reprographics, blueprint and printing business," and petitioner does not challenge that characterization in his petition for review, petitioner may not challenge the characterization for the first time in post oral argument memoranda. Rhine v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 557 (1993).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA does not apply land use decision making approval criteria in the first instance. It is the local government's responsibility to consider the evidentiary record, identify the applicable standards, make the decision in the first instance and explain the basis for its decision in its findings. ODOT v. City of Waldport, 24 Or LUBA 344 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In determining the nature and scope of the challenged decision, the language of (1) a prior and related determination, (2) an earlier major partition application pertaining to the subject land, and (3) the challenged decision itself, are instructive. Woosley v. Marion County, 24 Or LUBA 231 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where nothing in the caption, findings or decision itself suggests that the challenged decision approves a lot line adjustment, a lot line adjustment was not approved. Barker v. City of Cannon Beach, 24 Or LUBA 221 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA reviews the final written decision of the local government decision making body, not statements that may have been made during the local proceedings by individual decision makers. Linebarger v. City of The Dalles, 24 Or LUBA 91 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where LUBA remands a local government decision, and the local government makes a new decision after remand, petitioners may not contend in an appeal to LUBA challenging the new local government decision, that the original local government decision should have been reversed rather than remanded. Bouman v. Jackson County, 23 Or LUBA 628 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will not address issues which are raised by petitioners for the first time at oral argument, and are not included in the assignments of error and supporting argument required to be set out in the petition for review. OAR 661-10-030(3)(b). Bouman v. Jackson County, 23 Or LUBA 628 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where the petition for review does not contain assignments of error set forth under separate headings, as required by OAR 661-10-030(3)(d), LUBA will only consider those arguments set forth in the petition for review which are stated clearly enough to afford respondents an opportunity to respond. Heiller v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 551 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In reviewing local government decisions, LUBA's role as an appellate tribunal is to review the local government's explanation of why it believes its decision satisfies relevant approval standards. LUBA's function is not to identify the relevant approval standards or to interpret relevant code and plan language in the first instance. Warren v. City of Aurora, 23 Or LUBA 507 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The subject of LUBA's review is the local government's final written decision, not statements made during the proceedings leading to adoption of a challenged land use decision. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 23 Or LUBA 159 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In order to establish estoppel, petitioners must show (1) the local government made a false representation with knowledge of the facts, (2) petitioner was ignorant of the truth, (3) the local government intended that petitioner act upon the false representation, and (4) petitioner in fact acted upon the false representation. That a local government planner stated his opinion that an application is approvable is not adequate to establish estoppel. Schoppert v. Clackamas County, 23 Or LUBA 138 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will consider arguments expressed in the petition for review that are stated clearly enough to afford the other parties an opportunity to respond. Silani v. Klamath County, 22 Or LUBA 735 (1992).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA reviews the decision maker's final written decision, not statements made during the proceedings leading to adoption of the challenged decision. Such statements are preliminary and subject to change in the final decision. Toth v. Curry County, 22 Or LUBA 488 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. That a previously approved zone change included a condition providing that if a conditional use permit for a mobile home park on the subject property is not obtained, the property would revert to its previous zoning, does not make the merits of the previous rezoning decision subject to LUBA's review in an appeal of the local government decision approving the conditional use permit. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 22 Or LUBA 369 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In reviewing a local government decision concerning a nonconforming use, LUBA may consider a letter which was not submitted to the decision maker during the local proceedings leading to adoption of the initial decision, but was submitted to and considered by the decision maker during reconsideration proceedings. Warner v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 220 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where findings are inadequate to allow review of a local government's decision, LUBA will remand the decision. Seger v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 162 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a local code requires a determination of compliance with applicable ordinance requirements at the time of subdivision outline plan approval and that the final plat be approved if it is "in substantial conformance with the outline plan," a petitioner may not fail to appeal the decision granting outline plan approval and thereafter, in an appeal of the final plan approval, challenge the subdivision's compliance with plan and code provisions found to be satisfied at the time of outline plan approval. Sandler v. City of Ashland, 21 Or LUBA 483 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA's rules require that petitioners' assignments of error and argument be in the petition for review. LUBA cannot consider an issue raised by petitioner for the first time at oral argument. Ward v. City of Lake Oswego, 21 Or LUBA 470 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In reviewing a moratorium decision, LUBA's scope of review is limited to determining whether the moratorium complies with the requirements of ORS 197.505 to 197.530. Western Pacific Development v. City of Brookings, 21 Or LUBA 445 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The reviewable land use decision in an appeal before LUBA is the local government's final written decision, not what individual parties, staff or members of the decision making body may have stated from time to time during the course of local government proceedings. Waker Associates, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 588 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. The subject of LUBA's review is the final written decision adopted by the local government, not oral comments made by individual local decision makers. Hale v. City of Beaverton, 21 Or LUBA 249 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. In reviewing a local government decision adopting a moratorium, LUBA's scope of review is limited to determining whether the moratorium was adopted in violation of ORS 197.505 to 197.530. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 21 Or LUBA 149 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Neither a local government's adoption of prior moratoria nor the intent of individual residents testifying in support of the challenged moratorium provides a basis for finding the challenged moratorium was adopted in violation of ORS 197.505 to 197.530. Schatz v. City of Jacksonville, 21 Or LUBA 149 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA cannot take official notice of local legislative history. Therefore, because LUBA's review is confined to the record of the local proceeding, LUBA cannot consider local legislative history if it is not in the record. 19th Street Project v. City of The Dalles, 20 Or LUBA 440 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. No statutory or rule provisions require a petition for review to conform with requirements for pleadings in circuit court proceedings. If a petition for review does not set out facts and legal argument sufficient to persuade LUBA that there is a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, LUBA simply affirms the decision. Dolan v. City of Tigard, 20 Or LUBA 411 (1991).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA reviews a local government's final written decision. The oral comments of individual members of the local decision making body are not relevant to LUBA's review, and do not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Neuenschwander v. City of Ashland, 20 Or LUBA 144 (1990).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. If petitioners believe the assessor has not properly considered the restrictions the county's timber zone puts on their property, their remedy is with the county board of equalization. Petitioners cannot claim in an appeal to LUBA that the assessment of their property over the years constituted a "false representation," such that the county is estopped from denying their application for a nonforest dwelling. Sabin v. Clackamas County, 20 Or LUBA 23 (1990).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Under ORS 197.540, which limits LUBA's scope of review in appeals of moratoria, LUBA reviews a moratorium based on the record made during the local proceedings, and invalidates the moratorium if the local government failed to adopt findings, supported by substantial evidence, demonstrating that the relevant standards in ORS 197.520(2) and (3) are satisfied. Davis v. City of Bandon, 19 Or LUBA 327 (1990).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. While the ORS 197.520(3) "compelling need" standard for adoption of a moratorium "not based on a shortage of key facilities" is stringent, the proper focus of LUBA's review is on the requirements of the statute, particularly the findings required by ORS 197.520(3)(a) through (e). Davis v. City of Bandon, 19 Or LUBA 327 (1990).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. LUBA will consider legislative or administrative history materials, when such materials are necessary to its interpretation of statutes, administrative rules or ordinances, regardless of whether the materials are in the record of the proceedings below. Foland v. Jackson County, 18 Or LUBA 731 (1990).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. It is within LUBA's authority to take official notice of Department of Land Conservation and Development official publications as "public * * * official acts of the * * * executive * * * department of this state." ORS 40.090(2). Foland v. Jackson County, 18 Or LUBA 731 (1990).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. A petitioner may not quote large sections of a local government's comprehensive plan, fail to attack the findings adopted by the local government and expect that LUBA will supply legal argument showing why the quoted plan provisions may be violated. Walker v. City of Beaverton, 18 Or LUBA 712 (1990).

28.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Generally. Where a county previously approved use of 145 acres for a golf course, the county is not bound by res judicata or collateral estoppel to approve use of an additional 55 acres for that golf course where the issues, property and parties are not the same. Douglas v. Multnomah County, 18 Or LUBA 607 (1990).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. An affidavit of the owner of the subject property stating that a particular structure is removable does not establish, as a matter of law, that the structure is removable where photographs depict the structure as being located on the subject property during the rainy season over many years. Armstrong v. Jackson County, 81 Or LUBA 651 (2020).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where a local code provision allows a reduced setback where "the required setback would prohibit the placement of the residential structure on the parcel due to topography," and where the decision-maker denied a reduced setback in part because they concluded that there was a buildable area within the setback envelope that did not contain steep slopes, even if LUBA agrees with the petitioners that credible evidence weighs overwhelmingly in favor of a finding that the entire setback envelope contains steep slopes, LUBA must affirm the denial where the petitioners fail to challenge the decision-maker's further conclusion that steep slopes do not prohibit development but, instead, require further assessment, and where the petitioners did not provide any expert assessment that the entire setback envelope was unbuildable due to steep slopes. Velasquez v. Jackson County, 80 Or LUBA 1 (2019).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where LUBA concludes that a local government's conclusion that an application did not meet an applicable approval criterion was a valid basis for denial, although any error committed with respect to alternative or independent bases for denial would generally not provide a basis for reversal or remand, remand is nonetheless required where LUBA also concludes that the local government failed to address a threshold argument from the applicant that, if correct, would prevent the local government from applying criteria that would prohibit approval of the application. M & T Partners, Inc. v. City of Salem, 80 Or LUBA 221 (2019).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Local governments are not required to condition approvals rather than deny noncompliant applications. H2D2 Properties, LLC v. Deschutes County, 80 Or LUBA 528 (2019).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. LUBA need not address a petitioner's challenges to a county's alternative basis for denial, that the subject property is designated as undevelopable "open space," where LUBA has affirmed the county's primary basis for denial, that the subject property is designated as undevelopable "common area." Where LUBA has affirmed one basis for denial, any error committed with respect to alternative or independent bases would not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Kine v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 407 (2017).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where LUBA affirms a local decision-maker's interpretation and conclusion regarding the applicability of a comprehensive plan policy, no purpose would be served by addressing other challenges to alternative bases for local government's decision to deny the application. Kine v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 419 (2017).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where LUBA has affirmed a local government's primary interpretation of a comprehensive plan policy, supporting the local government's decision to deny the application, LUBA need not resolve challenges to independent, alternative interpretations supporting denial. Kine v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 419 (2017).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. A decision by the city that it will not approve any road that is located in the conceptual location approved in a previously approved conceptual development plan, and that is also shown in the city's adopted transportation systems plan and the adopted area refinement plan for the city, would not be a land use decision that is "in compliance with the acknowledged plan and land use regulations." ORS 197.175(2)(d). GPA 1 LLC v. City of Corvallis, 74 Or LUBA 527 (2016).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where a road is proposed in the conceptual location approved in a previously approved conceptual development plan, and is also shown in the city's adopted transportation systems plan and the adopted area refinement plan for the city, the city has a heightened obligation under Commonwealth Properties v. Washington County, 35 Or App 387, 400, 582 P2d 1384 (1978), to either (1) approve the proposed alignment that is consistent with the planned and approved location, or (2) make it very clear which of five other alternative proposed alignments the city will accept. GPA 1 LLC v. City of Corvallis, 74 Or LUBA 527 (2016).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. LUBA typically affirms a decision denying an application for land use approval as long as there is one valid basis for denial, notwithstanding other invalid bases for denial. However, LUBA will remand a county governing body's decision that reverses a planning commission approval of a conditional use, where the only valid basis for denial is a correctable findings and evidentiary deficiency, and the governing body's choice to reverse the planning commission decision rather than remand was based on the governing body's erroneous conclusion that the proposed conditional use is prohibited as a matter of law. In that circumstance, LUBA will remand the decision for the governing body to consider whether the planning commission decision should be remanded rather than reversed. Hood River Valley PRD v. Hood River County, 67 Or LUBA 314 (2013).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In denying an application for land use approval based on a finding that the application does not comply with applicable criteria, the local government's findings must be sufficient to inform the applicant either what steps are necessary to obtain approval or that it is unlikely that the application will be approved. Bridge Street Partners v. City of Lafayette, 56 Or LUBA 387, 394 (2008). Housing Authority of Jackson County v. City of Medford, 65 Or LUBA 295 (2012).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Although it is only necessary for one assignment of error to be sustained to uphold a denial of a permit application, LUBA will review other assignments of error if they are capable of arising again if a solution to the first assignment is found on remand. Wilson v. Washington County, 63 Or LUBA 314 (2011).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Because only one sustainable basis for denying a permit application is required, LUBA need not address additional assignments of error after sustaining one basis for denial. Where additional assignments of error are relatively straightforward and can be resolved within the statutory deadline for issuing LUBA's decision, LUBA may resolve those additional assignments of error where they would provide additional independent bases for sustaining the decision. However, where those additional assignments of error present close and difficult questions of law, and may require LUBA to consider issues that the parties have not briefed, LUBA will not decide such assignments of error. Onsite Advertising Services LLC v. Washington County, 63 Or LUBA 414 (2011).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In general, to successfully overcome a denial of a permit on evidentiary grounds, a petitioner must demonstrate that the burden of proof was met as a matter of law. Adams v. Jackson County, 54 Or LUBA 103 (2007).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To support a denial decision, the local government need only establish the existence of one adequate basis for denial. Once LUBA has rejected all assignments of error directed at one of several alternative bases for denial, LUBA will not reach other assignments of error, absent a showing that resolving such assignments of error in petitioner's favor would provide a basis for reversal or remand. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Hood River County, 47 Or LUBA 256 (2004).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To successfully challenge a permit denial decision on evidentiary grounds, a petitioner must demonstrate that it met its burden of proof as a matter of law. That is a particularly difficult burden where the relevant approval standard is subjective. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hillsboro, 46 Or LUBA 680 (2004).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where a local government finds that a zoning map amendment applicant failed to demonstrate that the request was consistent with a number of applicable criteria, and on appeal to LUBA the applicant fails to challenge the city's findings concerning two of those applicable criteria, the city's decision must be affirmed. Doman v. City of Woodburn, 45 Or LUBA 158 (2003).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Remand is necessary where the hearings officer cites a nonexistent requirement for "substantial and compelling findings," and appears to apply that standard in determining that the applicant does not satisfy the stability standard. Elliott v. Jackson County, 43 Or LUBA 426 (2003).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. LUBA must affirm a decision denying a permit to site a dog kennel prohibited on high-value farmland, where petitioner fails to challenge the county's alternative finding that the subject property is high-value farmland because it is predominantly composed of a combination of two high-value soils. Tri-River Investment Co. v. Clatsop County, 37 Or LUBA 195 (1999).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. A petitioner challenging a city's denial of its land use application on evidentiary grounds bears the burden of demonstrating that only evidence supporting the application can be believed and that, as a matter of law, such evidence establishes compliance with each of the applicable criteria. Wiley Mtn., Inc. v. City of Albany, 36 Or LUBA 449 (1999).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. A county's finding that a proposed nonforest dwelling is inconsistent with forest uses is inadequate where the finding is so conclusory that it fails to inform the applicant either what steps are necessary to obtain approval or that it is unlikely that the application can be approved. Eddings v. Columbia County, 36 Or LUBA 159 (1999).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. A local government need only adopt one sustainable basis to deny a request for permit approval. Where petitioner fails to challenge all of the city's bases for denial, the decision must be affirmed. Lee v. City of Oregon City, 34 Or LUBA 691 (1998).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In challenging a decision denying a permit on evidentiary grounds, it is not sufficient to show the evidence would also have supported approval of the permit. The evidence must show that petitioner sustained his burden of proof as a matter of law. Lee v. City of Oregon City, 34 Or LUBA 691 (1998).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where a local government denies a permit application following remand from the Court of Appeals and specifies more than one basis for the denial, in reviewing a subsequent appeal of the denial on remand LUBA need only review and sustain one of the bases for denial. Johns v. City of Lincoln City, 34 Or LUBA 594 (1998).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where a hearings officer's interpretation that the county's street frontage requirement mandates street frontages be on a public road or street is contrary to the plain language of the county's zoning ordinance, a denial of a partition based solely on that interpretation will be reversed. Miller v. Clackamas County, 31 Or LUBA 104 (1996).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Even though a city's denial of a land use application need only include findings adequate to demonstrate that one applicable criterion is not satisfied, before the city can reach such a conclusion it must first explain the applicable criteria, state the facts the city relied upon in reaching the decision and justify the decision based upon the criteria and facts. Boehm v. City of Shady Cove, 31 Or LUBA 85 (1996).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. While findings of noncompliance with applicable criteria need not be exhaustive, they must at least either inform the applicant of the standards the application does not meet or of the steps necessary to satisfy the standards. Boehm v. City of Shady Cove, 31 Or LUBA 85 (1996).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where the challenged decision denies an application, the local government need only adopt findings, supported by substantial evidence, demonstrating that one or more standards are not met. To challenge a denial on evidentiary grounds, petitioner must demonstrate compliance with all applicable criteria as a matter of law. Gionet v. City of Tualatin, 30 Or LUBA 96 (1995).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To support denial of a land use permit, a local government need only establish the existence of one adequate basis for denial. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 28 Or LUBA 632 (1995).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where the challenged decision denying development approval fails to inform the applicant of the steps it must take to gain approval of its application or, alternatively, of the standards the application does not meet, the decision must be remanded. Ellis v. City of Bend, 28 Or LUBA 332 (1994).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where the challenged decision is one to deny proposed development, LUBA must sustain the decision if there are adequate findings, supported by substantial evidence in the record, determining that one applicable standard is not met. Newsome v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 578 (1994).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where an approval standard for partitioning timber zoned property into nonresource parcels requires that the subject property be "generally unsuitable land for the production of farm or forest products," and petitioner does not challenge a county determination that the subject property is generally suitable for farm use, that determination provides an independent basis for affirming the county's decision to deny the partition. Newsome v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 578 (1994).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Only one sustainable basis for a decision to deny a conditional use permit is required. Where such a sustainable basis for denial exists, LUBA does not consider challenges to other unrelated aspects of the decision. Brentmar v. Jackson County, 27 Or LUBA 453 (1994).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Only one sustainable basis for a decision to deny a request for land use approval is required. Salem-Keizer School Dist. 24-J v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 351 (1994).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To support a denial, a local government need only establish the existence of one adequate basis for denial. Kangas v. City of Oregon City, 26 Or LUBA 177 (1993).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. It is the applicant's burden to establish compliance with each relevant approval standard. Consequently, where the applicant fails to establish compliance with a single approval standard, a decision denying an application will be affirmed. Adler v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 546 (1993).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. For LUBA to sustain a challenged decision to deny proposed development, the local government need only adopt findings supported by substantial evidence that the proposal fails to meet one applicable standard. Oregon Raptor Center v. City of Salem, 25 Or LUBA 401 (1993).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. For LUBA to sustain a local government's denial decision, LUBA must find that the local government adopted findings supported by substantial evidence, demonstrating that one or more applicable standards are not met. Decuman v. Clackamas County, 25 Or LUBA 152 (1993).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In order to overturn, on evidentiary grounds, a local government determination that an applicable approval criterion is not met, it is not sufficient for petitioners to show there is substantial evidence in the record to support their position. Rather, petitioners must demonstrate they sustained their burden of proof of compliance with applicable criteria, as a matter of law. Thomas v. City of Rockaway Beach, 24 Or LUBA 532 (1993).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where the challenged decision is one to deny proposed development, the local government need only adopt findings, supported by substantial evidence, demonstrating that at least one standard is not satisfied. Stockwell v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 358 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To overturn on evidentiary grounds a local government's determination that an applicable approval criterion is not met, petitioners must demonstrate they sustained their burden of proof of compliance with applicable criteria, as a matter of law. Stockwell v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 358 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To overturn a local government determination that an applicable approval criterion is not met, on evidentiary grounds, petitioners must demonstrate that they sustained their burden to establish compliance with the applicable criterion as a matter of law. Chauncey v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 599 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. It is the applicant's burden to establish compliance with each relevant approval standard. Consequently, where the applicant fails to establish compliance with a single approval standard, a decision denying an application must be affirmed. West v. Clackamas County, 23 Or LUBA 558 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. LUBA must sustain a local government decision to deny a proposed plan or code amendment, if the decision demonstrates that one or more applicable standards are not met. Hess v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 343 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. It is the applicant's burden to establish compliance with each applicable approval standard, and a local government may not approve a proposal unless each approval standard is met. LUBA will sustain a decision denying land use approval, if such a decision demonstrates that one or more approval standards are not met. Seger v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 334 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. For LUBA to overturn a local government's denial decision, petitioners must establish that the proposed development meets all applicable standards as a matter of law. Rath v. Hood River County, 23 Or LUBA 200 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where there is conflicting believable evidence in the record, LUBA cannot say a reasonable decision maker could only believe the evidence relied upon by petitioner, and will reject a challenge to the evidentiary support for a decision denying development approval. Joyce v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 116 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To overturn on evidentiary grounds a local government's determination that an applicable approval criterion is not met, it is not sufficient for petitioners to show that there is substantial evidence in the record to support their position. Rather, the "evidence must be such that a reasonable trier of fact could only say petitioners' evidence should be believed." Barber v. Marion County, 23 Or LUBA 71 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where evidence in the record establishes that with adequate drainage a parcel could be put to farm use, petitioner has not established as a matter of law that the proposed nonfarm use is located on land "generally unsuitable" for farm use. Barber v. Marion County, 23 Or LUBA 71 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where a petitioner challenges a local government's decision to deny his application, the petitioner must establish compliance with all relevant standards as a matter of law. Where reasonable people could draw inferences from evidence cited in the record to support either the local government's or the petitioner's position, LUBA may not conclude as a matter of law that all relevant standards are met. Coyner v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 79 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. A local government's denial of a development application will be sustained if the local government's determination that any one approval standard is not satisfied is sustained. Goffic v. Jackson County, 23 Or LUBA 1 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In order to overturn, on evidentiary grounds, a local government determination that an applicable approval criterion is not met, it is not sufficient for petitioners to show there is substantial evidence in the record to support their position. Petitioners must demonstrate they sustained their burden of proof of compliance with the criterion as a matter of law. Kane v. City of The Dalles, 22 Or LUBA 608 (1992).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In order to overturn, on evidentiary grounds, a local government's determination that an applicable approval criterion is not met, it is not sufficient for petitioner to show there is substantial evidence in the record to support his position. Rather, the evidence must be such that a reasonable trier of fact could only say that petitioner's evidence should be believed. Samoilov v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 446 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. A local government's denial of a land development application will be sustained if the local government's determination that any one approval standard is not satisfied is sustained. Patton v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 415 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In challenging on evidentiary grounds a local government's determination that applicable approval standards are not met, petitioner must demonstrate that the applicant carried his burden of demonstrating compliance with those standards as a matter of law. Patton v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 415 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In challenging a determination of noncompliance with an approval standard on evidentiary grounds, petitioners bear a heavy burden. The evidence must be such that a reasonable trier of fact could only say petitioners' evidence should be believed. Wickwire v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 278 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. LUBA may reverse or remand a county's determination that an applicant failed to carry his burden to demonstrate compliance with statewide planning goal exception criteria only where it is demonstrated the exception requirements are met as a matter of law. Carsey v. Deschutes County, 21 Or LUBA 118 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where LUBA upholds one or more bases for a county's decision denying a request for land use approval, findings concerning an additional basis for denying approval provide no basis for reversal or remand, even if such findings are erroneous. Carsey v. Deschutes County, 21 Or LUBA 118 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In order to overturn on evidentiary grounds a local government's determination that an applicable approval criterion is not met, petitioner must demonstrate that he sustained his burden of proof of compliance with applicable criteria as a matter of law. Walton v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 69 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. A local government's denial of a land use development application will be sustained if the local government's determination that any one approval criterion is not satisfied is sustained. McCaw Communications, Inc. v. Polk County, 20 Or LUBA 456 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In denying an application, the local government need only adopt findings demonstrating that one or more of the applicable approval standards are not met. West v. Clackamas County, 20 Or LUBA 433 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. To overturn on evidentiary grounds a local government's determination that an applicable approval standard is not met, it is not enough for a petitioner to show that there is substantial evidence in the record to support his position. Rather, the evidence must be such that a reasonable trier of fact could only say the petitioner's evidence should be believed. West v. Clackamas County, 20 Or LUBA 433 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where a development denial decision is based on determinations of noncompliance with more than one applicable approval standard, LUBA will affirm the denial if petitioner does not successfully challenge every determination of noncompliance. Adams v. Jackson County, 20 Or LUBA 398 (1991).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. If findings in support of a denial of quasi-judicial land use approval adequately explain a sufficient basis for denial, they will be upheld. Forest Park Estate v. Multnomah County, 20 Or LUBA 319 (1990).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In challenging a denial on evidentiary grounds, petitioner must show the evidence is such that a reasonable decision maker could only say petitioner's evidence should be believed. Forest Park Estate v. Multnomah County, 20 Or LUBA 319 (1990).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. In order to overturn a county determination that a nonconforming use does not exist on evidentiary grounds, it is not sufficient for petitioner to show there is substantial evidence in the record to support its position, rather the evidence must be such that a reasonable trier of fact could only say petitioner's evidence should be believed. J and D Fertilizers v. Clackamas County, 20 Or LUBA 44 (1990).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where the city did not base its decision to deny land use approval on anticipated traffic impacts, a challenge to the city's findings concerning traffic impacts provides no basis for reversal or remand. J.K. Land Corporation v. City of Gresham, 19 Or LUBA 66 (1990).

28.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Denials. Where the county denies a proposed use because it violates a particular plan provision on two different bases, petitioner does not state grounds on which LUBA may grant relief if petitioner challenges only one basis for the county's denial. Garre v. Clackamas County, 18 Or LUBA 877 (1990).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. In the context of a reasons exception to allow a data center use on agricultural land, while a local government cannot judge whether a property has a service-based locational advantage without a complete understanding of the extent of services in the alternative locations, the absence of an inventory of existing infrastructure in the record does not undermine the decision-maker's conclusion that the exception area provides a "significant comparative advantage," for purposes of OAR 660-004-0022(3)(c), where alternative sites were not rejected based upon the unavailability of services. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Morrow County, 81 Or LUBA 508 (2020).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. Speculation that a reasons exception to allow an industrial use on agricultural land will hasten future zone change applications does not establish that the exception will not "cause only minimal loss of reproductive resource lands" for purposes of OAR 660-004-0022(3)(c); however, the fact that that an equal amount of land elsewhere in the jurisdiction will be rezoned from industrial to agricultural does not demonstrate that that criterion is met where the findings do not discuss the quality or productivity of the resource lands in the proposed exception area or otherwise attempt to describe, in qualitative terms, what removing the agricultural zoning of the proposed exception area means for resource land productivity. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Morrow County, 81 Or LUBA 508 (2020).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. In the context of a reasons exception to allow a data center use on agricultural land, that a site is under contract or currently used for the disposal of wastewater; that a site is in federal ownership and that its ownership transfer timeline is unknown; that much of a site is covered in wetlands and that removal and fill of the wetlands will increase risk and will increase costs in an amount in the tens of thousands of dollars; that a site is too close to other existing or planned data centers to avoid general, undefined issues of facility proximity and interdependence; and that a site is inconsistent with the applicant's objective of ultimately extending services to a particular property do not necessarily establish that those sites "cannot reasonable accommodate the use" for purposes of OAR 660-004-0020(2)(b). 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Morrow County, 81 Or LUBA 508 (2020).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. In determining whether to take a reasons exception under ORS 197.732(2)(c), where a local government finds that there is a public need to provide certain residents, many of whom are of limited financial means and mobility, with close access to the proposed uses, the local government does not err in concluding that "[a]reas that do not require a new exception cannot reasonably accommodate the use" under ORS 197.732(2)(c)(B) because the proposed location is the only location that is accessible to the residents. VanSickle v. Klamath County, 80 Or LUBA 241 (2019).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. Where a petitioner argues a Geographic Information System map in the record suggests that a portion of the Willamette River Greenway included in a city's Goal 15 exception is located outside the city limits, but within county limits, and therefore the county is also required to join in or approve its own Goal 15 exception, petitioner fails to allege a basis for remand or reversal because as a matter of law the official Willamette River Greenway overlay zone boundary is the boundary mapped by the Oregon Department of Transportation, which confirms the greenway overlay zone is entirely within city limits. Deumling v. City of Salem, 76 Or LUBA 99 (2017).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. OAR 660-004-0022(6), which provides the standards for approving an exception to Goal 15, allows adverse effect on habitat as long as the adverse effect is not "significant." An argument that challenges a local government's findings that with mitigation, impacts to riparian habitat from a proposed new bridge project will not be significant because the need for mitigation at all demonstrates that the bridge will have a "significant adverse effect" on riparian values provides no basis for reversal or remand. Deumling v. City of Salem, 76 Or LUBA 99 (2017).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. An ordinance that amends a county's comprehensive plan map and zoning maps, in order to implement an earlier decision that adopted findings taking exception to statewide planning goals, is a land use decision as defined at ORS 197.015(10)(a), because it "amends" the county's comprehensive plan and land use regulations, even if the ordinance itself does not adopt the exceptions or otherwise "apply" any statewide planning goals. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 72 Or LUBA 475 (2015).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. Where a county adopts an ordinance amending its comprehensive plan map and zoning map, in order to implement an earlier decision that adopted findings taking exceptions to statewide planning goals, it may be that those earlier adopted findings cannot be challenged in the appeal of the ordinance. However, even in that event, that does not mean that LUBA lacks jurisdiction over the ordinance, only that if the petitioner raises no challenges to the ordinance that are within LUBA's scope of review, LUBA will affirm the ordinance. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 72 Or LUBA 475 (2015).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. In reviewing a county's decision that property is irrevocably committed to nonresource uses, LUBA is not required to give any deference to the county's explanation for why it believes the facts demonstrate compliance with the legal standards for a committed exception. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 38 Or LUBA 62 (2000).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. ORS 197.732(6), which applies to LUBA's and LCDC's review of goal exception decisions, does not require LUBA to perform a comprehensive and independent evaluation of a proposed goal exception, but is satisfied by a reasoned opinion. Laurance v. Douglas County, 33 Or LUBA 292 (1997).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. Even where a local government's findings supporting an "irrevocably committed" goal exception address all factors made relevant under OAR 660-04-028, and are supported by substantial evidence in the record, it is still LUBA's responsibility to determine whether the findings demonstrate compliance with the standard of ORS 197.732(1)(b) that "existing adjacent uses and other relevant factors make uses allowed by the applicable goal impracticable." 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Columbia County, 27 Or LUBA 474 (1994).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. OAR 660-04-022(1) states reasons adequate to justify a goal exception "include but are not limited to" those set out in that section. Where OAR 660-04-022(1) applies, in the absence of some explanation in the decision or argument in the local government's brief that it intended to justify its goal exception on some other basis, LUBA will assume the local government's findings are intended to satisfy OAR 660-04-022(1)(a) to (c). Pacific Rivers Council, Inc. v. Lane County, 26 Or LUBA 323 (1993).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. Under ORS 197.732(6)(b), LUBA is authorized to determine whether a local government's findings and reasons satisfy the standards of ORS 197.732(1). Pacific Rivers Council, Inc. v. Lane County, 26 Or LUBA 323 (1993).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. Where a county does not adopt a goal exception as part of its comprehensive plan, the exception is not valid. Schrock Farms, Inc. v. Linn County, 24 Or LUBA 58 (1992).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. Statutory, goal and administrative rule provisions require that the findings and reasons justifying a goal exception be adopted as part of the comprehensive plan. Failure to include such findings and reasons in the plan is sufficient grounds for reversal or remand of the decision. Caine v. Tillamook County, 22 Or LUBA 687 (1992).

28.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Goal Exceptions. LUBA will not reverse or remand on evidentiary grounds a local government decision that the "irrevocable commitment" goal exception standard is not met, unless petitioner establishes, as a matter of law, that the only reasonable conclusion which can be reached based on the evidence in the whole record is that the "irrevocable commitment" standard is satisfied. Chambers v. Clackamas County, 19 Or LUBA 355 (1990).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where comprehensive plan provisions provide, using mandatory language, that certain resource plan and zoning designations shall be used to conserve or protect fish and wildlife habitat from conflicting uses and that land use proposals that have undesirable impacts on those resources shall be reviewed during the plan and zone amendment processes, a local governing body errs in interpreting those provisions to conclude that it may apply nonresource plan and zoning designations to property mapped as fish and wildlife habitat and that any impacts may be evaluated and, if necessary, mitigated during subsequent review of development proposals. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Linn County, 81 Or LUBA 338 (2020).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where a prior decision approved a plan amendment and zone change for the subject property and included a condition of approval limiting the type of future development to a "retail shopping center" and the size of future development to a certain square footage of gross leasable area, but where the prior decision approved no specific development, voluntary descriptions, statements, or representations made by the applicant during the prior proceeding regarding the particular store with which the shopping center would be developed are not binding on the applicant in a subsequent site plan review proceeding unless they were memorialized in conditions of approval for the prior decision. M & T Partners, Inc. v. City of Salem, 80 Or LUBA 221 (2019).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where a significant resource overlay zone provision requires that (1) resource sites not be altered or impacted to a degree that destroys their significance, (2) the proposed development not result in the loss of habitat for threatened or endangered species, (3) all feasible alternatives to the development that would not result in a substantial adverse impact on identified resource values be considered and rejected, (4) the development be sited on the property in such a manner that minimizes adverse impacts on identified resources, and (5) documentation be provided regarding requirements for state or federal permits or licenses and that appropriate resource management agencies have reviewed the development proposal against their plans, policies, and programs, the local government does not err in concluding that that provision applies at the development stage rather than the PAPA stage. VanSickle v. Klamath County, 80 Or LUBA 241 (2019).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. That an alteration to a proposed PAPA is required by LUBA's decision in a prior appeal and reduces the subject acreage does not mean as a matter of law that the proposed PAPA is not "altered to such an extent that the materials submitted no longer reasonably describe the proposed change," thereby requiring notice of the alteration to DLCD pursuant to ORS 197.610(6). Save TV Butte v. Lane County, 80 Or LUBA 422 (2019).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Under ORS 197.610(6), if a proposed PAPA is altered to such an extent that the notice submitted to DLCD under ORS 197.610(1) and (3) no longer reasonably describes it, the local government must submit notice of the alterations to DLCD at least 10 days before the final evidentiary hearing, which DLCD thereafter provides to the public. The larger statutory scheme at ORS 197.610 to 197.625 is intended to expand notice and participatory options for DLCD and a broader audience that may not receive local notice. A local government's errors under ORS 197.610(6) require remand where they are of a kind or degree that calls into question whether the ORS 197.610 to 197.625 process nevertheless performed its function. Save TV Butte v. Lane County, 80 Or LUBA 422 (2019).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where notice under ORS 197.610(6) is sent to DLCD 17 days after the final evidentiary hearing occurred and describes the "date of first evidentiary hearing" and the "date of final hearing" but does not identify the date of the "final evidentiary hearing," where there is a disparity between the text of the notice and the text of an ordinance included with the notice regarding the subject acreage, and where the notice is sent during a time when the record is left open only for evidence that is responsive to evidence that was submitted earlier, the totality of the errors in the submission of the notice and in the notice itself are of a kind and degree that make it doubtful that the ORS 197.610 to 197.625 process performed its function, and remand is required. Save TV Butte v. Lane County, 80 Or LUBA 422 (2019).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Petitioners fail to establish that the city erred in concluding that rezoning a property to neighborhood commercial is consistent with Statewide Planning Goal 5 when the rezoning the subject property constitutes a PAPA for purposes of applying Goal 5, which provides that local governments are not required to apply Goal 5 in consideration of a PAPA unless the PAPA affects a Goal 5 resource by allowing new uses that "could be conflicting uses with a particular significant Goal 5 resource site on an acknowledged resource list." The city's PAPA is a very limited one, that in relevant part simply applies the zones implementing the city's comprehensive plan designations that the acknowledged comprehensive plan has already designated for the corresponding uses. Because the challenged PAPA simply implements that acknowledged plan designation choice with the exercise of little or no discretion, the PAPA does not authorize any "new uses" for purposes of OAR 660-023-0250(3) and Goal 5. Renken v. City of Oregon City, 79 Or LUBA 82 (2019).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where a local code provision, which is acknowledged to comply with Goal 5, allows the construction of a reservoir for surface mining in conjunction with an irrigation district, but requires that sites proposed for that use be added to the local government's inventory of non-significant mineral sites through a post-acknowledgment plan amendment (PAPA), such a PAPA does not allow "new uses that could be conflicting uses" with a Goal 5 resource, and therefore does not require further analysis under Goal 5, where the construction of a reservoir is otherwise allowed for a recreation-oriented facility without a PAPA. Bishop v. Deschutes County, 79 Or LUBA 380 (2019).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. A Metro arbitration decision subject to an arbitration process devised by Metro that contemplates that the final decision the comprehensive plan designation of an area of land shared by two cities and a county will be determined in the post-acknowledgement plan amendments (PAPA) adopted by the cities and county is not itself a "final" "land use decision." Watts v. Metro, 78 Or LUBA 429 (2018).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. A Metro arbitration decision issued pursuant to a Metro arbitration process to arrive at a solution for the comprehensive plan designation for a disputed area of land jointly owned by two cities and a county, and which contemplates that the final decision regarding the comprehensive plan designation of the area will occur during the post-acknowledgment plan amendments, is not a "zoning" decision for purposes of ORS 268.393(6), which is part of the statute implementing Ballot Measure 56. Watts v. Metro, 78 Or LUBA 429 (2018).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. LUBA will dismiss an appeal of a hearings officer's decision approving a post-acknowledgment plan amendment (PAPA) because the decision is not a final decision, notwithstanding that the county code states that the hearings officer's decision on a PAPA is the county's final decision, and the county board of commissioners merely ratifies the hearings officer's decision, where it is reasonably clear that the county commissioners' ratification decision is the county's final decision on the application for purposes of appeal to LUBA. Setniker v. Polk County, 74 Or LUBA 134 (2016).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. A reference in an ordinance to a city's engineering design manual is not sufficient to incorporate the manual into the city's acknowledged plan and land use regulations. Shamrock Homes LLC v. City of Springfield, 68 Or LUBA 1 (2013).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Goal 2 is not violated by adopting a plan amendment that references unacknowledged land use regulations. Shamrock Homes LLC v. City of Springfield, 68 Or LUBA 1 (2013).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. That a county's comprehensive plan was acknowledged in the 1990s to comply with Goal 4 does not shield the county from the obligation, at ORS 197.646(1) and (3), to apply subsequently adopted amendments to Goal 4 or the Goal 4 rule until the county incorporates those amendments into its comprehensive plan. Because the Goal 4 rule was amended in 2008 and 2011 to provide a prioritized list of data sources a county must consider when determining whether land is forest land subject to Goal 4, the county cannot simply apply its acknowledged comprehensive plan standards for identifying forest land, but must also apply the amended Goal 4 rule, until the county incorporates those rule amendments into its comprehensive plan. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 66 Or LUBA 45 (2012).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Because OAR 660-006-0010 provides a set of prioritized, mandatory sources of data and a prescribed alternative method that must be used to determine whether land is forest land subject to Goal 4, the applicability of OAR 660-006-0010 cannot be avoided by concluding, based on different data or different methodology, that land is not forest land subject to Goal 4. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 66 Or LUBA 45 (2012).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. An order that simply adopts additional findings following a LUBA remand, but does not "change" any acknowledged comprehensive plan or land use regulation, is not a post-acknowledgment plan amendment, and the deadline to appeal the order to LUBA is therefore 21 days from the date the decision became final, pursuant to the first sentence of ORS 197.830(9), not 21 days from the date that notice of the order was mailed. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. The 21-day period to appeal to LUBA under the second sentence of ORS 197.830(9) commences on the date notice of the decision is mailed to "parties entitled to notice under ORS 197.615." The "notice" referred to in ORS 197.830(9) is the written notice that ORS 197.615(4) requires the local government to mail to participants, not the copy of the final decision that ORS 197.615(1) requires the local government to submit to DLCD. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where a petitioner participated in the proceedings leading to adoption of a post-acknowledgment plan amendment, and received timely notice of the decision, the deadline to appeal the decision to LUBA is 21 days from the date the notice was mailed to petitioner, not 21 days from the date the local government submits a copy of the decision to DLCD. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Under ODOT v. City of Oregon City, 153 Or App 705, 959 P2d 615 (1998), the deadline to appeal a post-acknowledgment plan amendment to LUBA under the second sentence of ORS 197.830(9) is 21 days from the date the local government mails notice of the decision to parties entitled to notice, even for persons who did not participate in the proceedings and thereby become entitled to notice. However, ODOT does not suggest that notice failures to some parties tolls the 21-day deadline for a petitioner who did receive notice but failed to appeal the decision to LUBA within the 21-day period. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 433 (2012).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Failure to assign error to the county's primary finding, pursuant to ORS 197.835(7), that the text amendment is consistent with "specific policies" in the county's comprehensive plan that are the basis for the amendment, makes it unnecessary to address the petitioner's challenge to the county's alternative findings that the amendment is consistent with the statewide planning goals. Waste Not of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 65 Or LUBA 142 (2012).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. A local government's failure to provide notice to the Department of Land Conservation and Development of a proposed amendment to the zoning map requires remand. NE Medford Neighborhood Coalition v. City of Medford, 53 Or LUBA 277 (2007).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. LUBA's scope of review over periodic review land use decisions extends to all legal issues that are properly within LUBA's statutory scope of review, but it does not include review for compliance with statewide planning goals or other questions that are within LCDC's scope of review in periodic review. Century Properties, LLC v. City of Corvallis, 50 Or LUBA 691 (2005).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. LUBA's scope of review under ORS 197.835(9) must be read together with and is limited by ORS 197.825(2)(c), which excludes periodic review matters over which LCDC has review authority under ORS 197.628 to 197.650. Under those statutes, a city land use decision could be narrowly tailored to comply with a periodic review work task, and still be reversible by LUBA because it exceeds the city's jurisdiction, is based on an improper construction of a law that LCDC does not consider in periodic review or because the city committed procedural errors in adopting the decision. Century Properties, LLC v. City of Corvallis, 50 Or LUBA 691 (2005).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. It is not within LUBA's scope of review to address whether existing code design review standards comply with the ORS 197.307(3)(b) requirement for "clear and objective" approval standards, in the context of a post-acknowledgment plan amendment that rezones property to allow uses that will be subject to approval under the existing design review standards, where the challenged decision does not amend the design review standards or attempt to bring any part of the city's code into compliance with ORS 197.307(3)(b). NWDA v. City of Portland, 47 Or LUBA 533 (2004).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Assignments of error arguing that an ordinance adopted to satisfy a periodic review work task does not comply with Goals 2 and 14 are matters subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Land Conservation and Development Commission. Manning v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 1 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where county comprehensive plan standards for identifying agricultural land implement the Goal 3 definition of agricultural land, and an evidentiary challenge to a finding under the comprehensive plan standards that certain land is agricultural land is inseparable from the question of whether that land is agricultural land under Goal 3, LUBA lacks jurisdiction to address the challenge under the county's comprehensive plan standards. Manning v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 1 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. The Land Conservation and Development Commission has exclusive jurisdiction to review allegations that a county's proceedings under periodic review failed to comply with Goal 1 and LCDC's rules for conducting periodic review. Manning v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 1 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. LUBA has exclusive jurisdiction to review allegations that a county's proceedings failed to comply with procedural requirements that are independent of goal or administrative-rule based procedural requirements. Manning v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 1 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where the challenged decision is adopted to fulfill a periodic review work task, and the issue before LUBA can be framed as either (1) a matter of compliance with a statute, comprehensive plan or land use regulation or (2) a matter of compliance with a statewide planning goal or administrative rule, LUBA has jurisdiction over the issue only if the statutory, plan or code obligation goes beyond or is different from the obligation imposed by the goal or rule. City of Woodburn v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 423 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. An argument that a county comprehensive plan amendment adopted to fulfill a periodic review work task is inconsistent with a city comprehensive plan provision is an issue that is cognizable as a Goal 2 consistency issue, and thus is an issue that is within LCDC's exclusive jurisdiction. City of Woodburn v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 423 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Findings challenges are necessarily derivative of the underlying criteria the findings address. Where the county code requires adoption of findings supporting legislative decisions, whether jurisdiction to review an adequate findings challenge in a legislative decision adopted to fulfill a periodic review work task lies with LUBA or LCDC depends on whether the findings address goal or rule compliance issues subject to LCDC's exclusive jurisdiction. City of Woodburn v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 423 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. A local code requirement for findings demonstrating that legislative decisions are "in the public interest and will be of general public benefit" does not implicate any Goal or rule requirements, and thus a challenge that the local government failed to adopt adequate findings addressing that criterion in adopting a decision to fulfill a periodic review work task is subject to LUBA's exclusive jurisdiction. City of Woodburn v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 423 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. An initial notice of a proposed post-acknowledgment amendment submitted to DLCD pursuant to ORS 197.610(1) and OAR 660-018-0020(1) that does not include the "text" of the proposed amendment as defined by OAR 660-018-0020(2) is inadequate to perform the notice function required by ORS 197.610(1). No Tram to OHSU v. City of Portland, 44 Or LUBA 647 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. An initial notice of a proposed post-acknowledgment amendment submitted to DLCD pursuant to ORS 197.610(1) and OAR 660-018-0020(1) that includes the text of the proposed amendment as that term is defined in OAR 660-018-0020(2), but was submitted approximately 23 days prior to the city's initial evidentiary hearing is adequate to perform the notice function required by ORS 197.610(1). No Tram to OHSU v. City of Portland, 44 Or LUBA 647 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where a city has a process requiring that proposed amendments to a comprehensive plan and zoning code be subject to hearing and review by the planning commission and proposed design review guidelines be subject to hearing and review by the design commission, a notice of proposed amendment regarding the matters before the planning commission is not sufficient to apprise DLCD or others who receive notice pursuant to ORS 197.610(2) of the design review proceedings. No Tram to OHSU v. City of Portland, 44 Or LUBA 647 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. An initial notice of a proposed post-acknowledgment amendment submitted to DLCD pursuant to ORS 197.610(1) and OAR 660-018-0020(1) that erroneously states that the initial evidentiary hearing had been held and does not indicate whether further opportunities to provide evidence are available is not adequate to satisfy ORS 197.610(1), which requires that notice of proposed post-acknowledgement land use amendments be submitted to DLCD at least 45 days prior to the initial evidentiary proceedings on those amendments. No Tram to OHSU v. City of Portland, 44 Or LUBA 647 (2003).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Not every violation of the requirement at ORS 197.610(1) and its implementing rule that a local government provide notice of proposed post-acknowledgment plan amendments to the Department of Land Conservation and Development (DLCD) more than 45 days before the initial public hearing is a substantive error that must result in remand. Failure to specify all of the proposed zone changes on the form provided to DLCD is, at most, procedural error that does not warrant remand absent a demonstration of prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. Stallkamp v. City of King City, 43 Or LUBA 333 (2002).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. A post-acknowledgment amendment to an ordinance implementing Goal 5 must be remanded, where the city failed to provide the notice to DLCD required by ORS 197.610(1) and 197.615(1). Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 41 Or LUBA 453 (2002).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. LCDC's 1985 acknowledgement of a county's rural residential zone has the legal effect of establishing that the rural residential zoning district may be applied consistent with Goal 14 to rural lands outside a UGB. However, the 1985 acknowledgment does not have the legal effect of establishing that all future applications of the zoning district to particular properties, no matter what the circumstances, will necessarily comply with Goal 14. DLCD v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 221 (2001).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. A finding that Goal 14 is satisfied because the provision of community sewer or water systems would be economically infeasible does not establish that such systems will not be constructed, where it is possible that an application for clustered residential development may make such community services economically feasible and the county did not adopt conditions of approval or other mechanisms to prohibit the establishment of community sewer or water systems. DLCD v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 221 (2001).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. The deadline for filing a notice of intent to appeal for decisions adopted pursuant to ORS 197.610 through 197.625 is 21 days from the date notice is mailed to DLCD and to parties entitled to notice under ORS 197.615. DeBell v. Douglas County, 39 Or LUBA 695 (2001).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. An appeal that challenges a legislative decision that is final more than 21 days after the notice of legislative decision is mailed to parties entitled to notice pursuant to ORS 197.615 will be dismissed as untimely filed. DeBell v. Douglas County, 39 Or LUBA 695 (2001).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. LUBA has no jurisdiction to review provisions of an acknowledged comprehensive plan for compliance with the Transportation Planning Rule, where those plan provisions are not amended by the challenged decision and are not affected by the challenged decision in a way that affects their compliance with the statewide planning goals. Dept. of Transportation v. Douglas County, 34 Or LUBA 608 (1998).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where petitioners' arguments are directed at unamended provisions of an acknowledged comprehensive plan rather than the comprehensive plan amendments adopted by the challenged decision, petitioners present no basis for reversal or remand. Dept. of Transportation v. Douglas County, 34 Or LUBA 608 (1998).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. During periodic review, the existing, acknowledged versions of the county's plan and zoning ordinance continue to apply until they are amended as a result of the acknowledgment of a final decision. Where periodic review is ongoing, the county may amend its plan and zoning map by redesignating and rezoning property to any existing acknowledged designation or zone, as long as the amendment does not violate any statute, rule or statewide planning goal, and LUBA has jurisdiction to review such amendments. Brown v. Jefferson County, 33 Or LUBA 418 (1997).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. In approving comprehensive plan and zoning map amendments, the county's findings must demonstrate that Goal 14 is satisfied without reliance on past practices or on plan and code provisions that are subject to revision during periodic review. Brown v. Jefferson County, 33 Or LUBA 418 (1997).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where the county's decision to apply overlay zoning directly implements plan policies that were previously determined to comply with the statewide planning goals, and the policies are sufficiently specific to provide the basis for case-by-case evaluation of development applications, ORS 197.835(7)(b) does not require the local government to apply the goals independently to the decision. Cuddeback v. City of Eugene, 32 Or LUBA 418 (1997).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where challenged post-acknowledgment comprehensive plan and land use regulation amendments do not directly affect a local government's acknowledged Goal 5 inventory, and petitioner does not identify any inventoried Goal 5 resources allegedly affected by the challenged amendments, petitioner provides no basis for reversal or remand. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 29 Or LUBA 68 (1995).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. When LUBA reviews a post-acknowledgment comprehensive plan or land use regulation amendment for compliance with Goal 8, the relevant concern is whether the amendment has direct or secondary effects on "recreation areas, facilities and opportunities" inventoried and designated by the acknowledged plan to meet the local government's recreational needs. Goal 8 does not require that there will be no adverse effects on any recreational activity occurring in the vicinity of the proposed amendment. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 28 Or LUBA 561 (1995).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where a post-acknowledgment code amendment adds a certain type of use to the uses allowed in a particular zone, comprehensive plan provisions which do not refer to that type of use and could be consistent with a number of different code amendments are not "specific" policies providing the basis for the code amendment, as referred to in ORS 197.835(5)(b). Melton v. City of Cottage Grove, 28 Or LUBA 1 (1994).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where, under applicable 1991 statutory provisions, (1) a local government elected to proceed with periodic review under the 1989 statutes that were in effect when its periodic review was initiated, and (2) a comprehensive plan and land use regulation amendment adopted as part of such periodic review is appealed to LUBA, LUBA's review is governed by the statutes in effect in 1989. Williams v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 602 (1994).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Under applicable 1989 statutory provisions, matters subject to periodic review by DLCD were excluded from LUBA's jurisdiction. Under ORS 197.640(3)(1989), where a plan or land use regulation amendment is subject to periodic review, DLCD has review authority over matters concerning the amendment's compliance with the statewide planning goals. Williams v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 602 (1994).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Comprehensive plan amendments must comply with the Statewide Planning Goals. ORS 197.175(2)(a). Where a challenged comprehensive plan amendment does not address Goal 9 (Economic Development), and Goal 9 appears to be relevant to the challenged decision, LUBA will remand the decision. Graville Properties, Ltd. v. City of Eugene, 27 Or LUBA 583 (1994).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where post-acknowledgment legislative land use regulation amendments make portions of a county's acknowledged program for wetlands protection inapplicable to rural wetlands, the county must demonstrate, either in the decision or through argument and citations to the record in its brief, that with regard to rural wetlands, the amendments result in a program that complies with Goal 5 and the Goal 5 rule. Redland/Viola/Fischer's Mill CPO v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 560 (1994).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where property is the subject of a concurrent comprehensive plan map amendment and zone change, the zone change is made under an unacknowledged plan amendment and must comply with those statewide planning goals applicable to the unacknowledged plan amendment. ORS 197.175(2)(e) and 197.625(3)(b). Roloff v. City of Milton-Freewater, 27 Or LUBA 256 (1994).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Any amendment to an acknowledged land use regulation must comply with all applicable statewide planning goals, if the comprehensive plan "does not contain specific policies or other provisions which provide the basis for the regulation." ORS 197.835(5)(b). Roloff v. City of Milton-Freewater, 27 Or LUBA 256 (1994).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. If a local government does not provide notice to DLCD of a post-acknowledgment comprehensive plan or land use regulation amendment, as required by ORS 197.610 and 197.615, it improperly construes substantive provisions of applicable law and, under ORS 197.835(7)(a)(D), the challenged post-acknowledgment amendment decision must be remanded. Oregon City Leasing, Inc. v. Columbia County, 26 Or LUBA 203 (1993).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. The post-acknowledgment amendment notice requirements of ORS 197.610(1) and 197.615(1) are procedural in nature. Local government failure to follow these requirements provides a basis for reversal or remand only if such error prejudiced petitioner's rights to an adequate opportunity to prepare and submit its case and a full and fair hearing before the local government. Oregon City Leasing, Inc. v. Columbia County, 25 Or LUBA 129 (1993).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. After acknowledgment, unless a challenged local government land use decision is an amendment to an acknowledged comprehensive plan or land use regulation or a new land use regulation, LUBA has no authority to reverse or remand the decision for failure to comply with the statewide planning goals. O'Mara v. Douglas County, 25 Or LUBA 25 (1993).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. If a single legislative decision both approves plan and land use regulation amendments with regard to some Goal 5 resource sites and denies such amendments with regard to other sites, such a legislative decision would not qualify as a decision from which an appeal to this Board is foreclosed under ORS 197.830(2) and 197.620(1). ODOT v. Klamath County, 25 Or LUBA 761 (1993).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. If a challenged permit decision misconstrues an acknowledged land use regulation, that provides a basis for reversing or remanding the decision under ORS 197.835(6) and (7)(a)(D). It does not mean the challenged decision is a land use regulation amendment. Heceta Water District v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 402 (1993).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Under ORS 197.835(5)(b), an amendment to a local government land use regulation is subject to reversal or remand for failure to comply with the Statewide Planning Goals, unless the comprehensive plan contains "specific policies * * * which provide the basis for" the amended regulation. Ramsey v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 291 (1992).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. In periodic review, DLCD is not limited in its goal compliance review of post-acknowledgment plan and land use regulation amendments to particular goal requirements that may have triggered a periodic review factor under ORS 197.640(3) (1989). Therefore, while LUBA has concurrent jurisdiction to review post-acknowledgment plan and land use regulation amendments submitted for periodic review, under ORS 197.825(2)(c) (1989) LUBA's scope of review over such amendments does not include review for goal compliance. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. City of Troutdale, 23 Or LUBA 219 (1992).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Amendments to acknowledged comprehensive plans and land use regulations are reviewable by LUBA for compliance with the statewide planning goals. Gray v. Clatsop County, 22 Or LUBA 270 (1991).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Amendments of acknowledged comprehensive plans and land use regulations must be consistent with controlling provisions of the acknowledged comprehensive plan. DLCD v. Polk County, 21 Or LUBA 463 (1991).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Where an acknowledged land use regulation previously authorized a particular use, but is amended to adopt new approval standards for the use, LUBA has authority to review the new approval standards for compliance with the Statewide Planning Goals. McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 19 Or LUBA 421 (1990).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. LUBA has authority to review any amendment to an acknowledged comprehensive plan for compliance with the goals. Foland v. Jackson County, 18 Or LUBA 731 (1990).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Whether a comprehensive plan amendment complies with a particular goal in certain instances may be determined by the acknowledgment of a plan or land use regulation provision controlling such an amendment, if the amendment cannot be invalidated without holding, in all but name, that the acknowledged plan or land use regulation provision is also invalid. Foland v. Jackson County, 18 Or LUBA 731 (1990).

28.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Post-acknowledgment Amendments. Statutory requirements do not become inapplicable after acknowledgment of local government plans and land use regulations. LUBA has authority to review an amendment to an acknowledged plan and zoning map to determine whether it complies with the destination resort statute. Foland v. Jackson County, 18 Or LUBA 731 (1990).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A local government's findings that a prohibition on establishing new fossil fuel terminals (FFTs) and expanding existing FFTs will "[l]imit development in or near areas prone to natural hazards" is supported by an adequate factual base where most of the local government's industrial zoning is in areas with high levels of liquefaction susceptibility and where the prior ability of FFTs to expand storage capacity has not yielded many seismic upgrades. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 81 Or LUBA 683 (2020).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A local government's findings that there is adequate existing storage capacity to accommodate a modest growth in fossil fuel demand and, therefore, that a prohibition on establishing new fossil fuel terminals (FFTs) and expanding existing FFTs will "[l]imit fossil fuels distribution and storage facilities to those necessary to serve the regional market" are (1) inadequate where natural gas falls under a local government's definition of fossil fuels and where the findings do not address natural gas needs and (2) unsupported by an adequate factual base where the record establishes that natural gas demand will increase and where there is no evidence of the amount of terminal and storage capacity needed for natural gas generally. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 81 Or LUBA 683 (2020).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Although balancing competing comprehensive plan policies is permissible in the quasi-judicial context only when the standards themselves are incompatible, local governments have more flexibility to balance policies in the legislative context. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 81 Or LUBA 683 (2020).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A local government's findings that a prohibition on establishing new fossil fuel terminals (FFTs) and expanding existing FFTs will "[m]aintain and strengthen [the local government's] comparative economic advantages including access to a high-quality workforce" because the prohibition will apply to only one type of business are inadequate where they fail to consider the relationship between the FFTs, any products they make locally available to other businesses, and any resulting impact on the workforce. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 81 Or LUBA 683 (2020).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A local government's findings that a prohibition on establishing new fossil fuel terminals (FFTs) and expanding existing FFTs will not result in any impacts on the intermodal transportation system are unsupported by an adequate factual base where the record establishes that a constriction in one component of an intermodal system, such as a pipeline, may shift demand to other modes, thereby increasing truck traffic. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 81 Or LUBA 683 (2020).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where local code amendments allow accessory uses and structures in an EFU zone, arguments that (1) the amendments improperly exempt such structures from a local code requirement that steps be taken to minimize adverse impacts on farm and forest uses and (2) the provisions governing such uses are inconsistent with ORS 215.213(3)(b) provide no basis for reversal or remand where the amended code is comparable to the prior code and where the petitioner does not develop any argument explaining why the amendments are substantive instead of technical. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 80 Or LUBA 80 (2019).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Provisions of a challenged ordinance that refer to or rely on provisions of a prior ordinance that LUBA remanded are invalid, even where the prior ordinance contained a severability clause purporting to allow unchallenged aspects of the prior ordinance to take effect after LUBA's remand. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 80 Or LUBA 80 (2019).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where a local government legislatively decreases the height limit in one part of a historic district and increases the height limit in another part of the historic district, findings that focus on the importance of creating incentives for development of vacant parcels in the historic district, determine that the new height limits are lower than those outside the historic district, and conclude that "the issue of consistency [is] best left to the Landmarks Commission who remain charged with reviewing future development proposals" are not adequate to explain how the new height limits comply with a comprehensive plan policy that requires the local government to "preserv[e] and complement[] historic resources." Restore Oregon v. City of Portland, 80 Or LUBA 158 (2019).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. While the "raise it or waive it" requirement of ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3) does not apply to legislative proceedings, where a party has an opportunity to object to a procedural error during a legislative proceeding, the party must do so in order to seek remand based on that error. McCaffree v. Coos County, 79 Or LUBA 512 (2019).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A proposed land use that requires a conditional land use permit must be processed under quasi-judicial, rather than legislative, procedures where the applicable county code provision specifies that conditional uses in the exclusive farm use zone are subject to conditional use criteria and "shall be reviewed" according to the county's quasi-judicial review procedures. Further, according to Strawberry Hill 4-Wheelers v. Board of Comm., 287 Or 591, 602-03, 601 P2d 769 (1979), the Oregon Supreme Court established a three-factor test to determine whether a land use matter is quasi-judicial or legislative, and where all three factors indicate that the county's action is quasi-judicial in nature, the county also erred in processing the application under its legislative rather than its quasi-judicial procedures. VanDyke v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 530 (2018).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Principles of preservation that would govern a quasi-judicial decision, e.g., the "raise it or waive it" requirements of ORS 197.763(1), do not apply to an appeal of a legislative decision. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 76 Or LUBA 15 (2017).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A city's findings addressing future regional demand for fossil fuels, the key support for city's prohibition on any expansion of existing fossil fuel terminals, is not supported by an "adequate factual base," as required by Statewide Planning Goal 2, where city ignored uncontradicted projections of moderate growth in demand for fossil fuels, and instead relied on unsupported speculation that demand will actually plateau or decline. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 76 Or LUBA 15 (2017).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. LUBA will review a decision that amends a local government's comprehensive plan pursuant to ORS 197.835(6), for compliance with the statewide planning goals. In addition, ORS 197.835(9)(a)(C) and (D) provide that LUBA shall reverse or remand a land use decision if LUBA finds that the local government "[m]ade a decision not supported by substantial evidence in the whole record;" or "[i]mproperly construed the applicable law." Finally, pursuant to Citizens Against Irresponsible Growth v. Metro, 179 Or App 12, 16 n 6, 38 P3d 956 (2002), although a local government is not required to adopt findings supporting a legislative decision, the record on appeal must be sufficient to demonstrate that "required considerations were indeed considered." Deumling v. City of Salem, 76 Or LUBA 99 (2017).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A city's process in adopting amendments to a subarea plan to approve a proposal to construct a new bridge does not violate Goal 2 where the city provided opportunities for review and comment on the proposed plan amendments by the public, and provided notice to neighborhood associations of the plan amendment proceedings, despite a very compressed period of time for public input regarding a fairly complex proposal. Deumling v. City of Salem, 76 Or LUBA 99 (2017).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. City comprehensive plan goals, other adopted city plans and sub-plans, Metro Regional Framework and Regional Transportation Plans, and the Oregon Transportation Plan and Oregon Freight Plan are subject to judicial notice under ORS 40.090(4) or (7). However, LUBA will not consider "adjudicative facts" or facts found within judicially cognizable documents that are asserted for an "adjudicative" purpose, i.e., to provide evidentiary support or countervailing evidence with respect to an applicable approval criterion in an adjudicatory setting. Columbia Pacific v. City of Portland, 75 Or LUBA 552 (2017).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. The law of the case doctrine is not applicable in appeals of legislative land use decisions. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 488 (2016).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. In order to successfully challenge a legislative decision, a petitioner must demonstrate that the challenged provisions are facially inconsistent with applicable law and are incapable of being applied consistently with controlling law. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 68 Or LUBA 264 (2013).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where a city adopts a new transportation system plan (TSP) that includes a general alignment for a new regional trail but expressly does not authorize a specific alignment, the TSP cannot be challenged based on the adverse impacts of a specific alignment. However, the TSP can be challenged based on legal challenges to the regional trail that do not depend on a specific alignment. Terra Hydr Inc. v. City of Tualatin, 68 Or LUBA 279 (2013).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Findings supporting a legislative decision that amends the Oregon Highway Plan to provide a process for modifying mobility standards need not address issues raised below regarding whether future decisions approving higher mobility standards will cause increased congestion of specific transportation facilities and increase pollution contrary to Goal 6, where Goal 6 will apply directly to any future decisions approving higher mobility standards for specific transportation facilities, and such issues cannot be meaningfully addressed in a legislative decision adopting general amendments to the Oregon Highway Plan. Setniker v. ODOT, 66 Or LUBA 54 (2012).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. The absence of findings addressing whether an ordinance adopted on remand is consistent with applicable comprehensive plan policies is not a basis for reversal or remand, where the ordinance merely deletes text from the original ordinance subject to remand, on remand the county adopted findings concluding that the original ordinance is consistent with the plan policies, and the petitioner identifies nothing in the deletions accomplished by the remand ordinance that might cause the county to reach a different conclusion with respect to the remand ordinance. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 265 (2012).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A comprehensive plan policy requiring that the county consider proximity to residential uses and seasonal wind directions when making land use decisions relative to industrial or other uses likely to pose a threat to air quality does not apply to a legislative text amendment that simply adds landfill expansions to the list of uses potentially allowed in the EFU zone. Such a policy is directed at specific development proposals with a limited geographic focus, not legislative text amendments affecting large areas of the county. Waste Not of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 65 Or LUBA 142 (2012).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. LUBA does not have the authority to apply the doctrine of severance to sever unconstitutional provisions from an ordinance and thereby affirm the ordinance on appeal. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Even where no authority requires findings in support of a legislative decision, there must be enough in the way of findings or accessible material in the record to show that applicable criteria were applied and required considerations considered. Where the record of the legislative rezoning decision includes no findings or accessible material supporting the local government's view that the Transportation Planning Rule (TPR) does not apply to the decision, the local government can avoid remand only if it demonstrates in its response brief, as a matter of law, that the TPR does not apply to the rezoning decision and is not a required consideration. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. The obligation to adopt findings under OAR 660-007-0060(2), part of the Metropolitan Housing Rule, is triggered only by plan and land use regulation amendments that are either intended to comply with the construction and density mix standards in the rule or that impact local government provisions complying with those standards. J.T. Smith Companies v. City of West Linn, 54 Or LUBA 339 (2007).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A legislative decision that establishes a floor area ratio (FAR) standard for residential housing does not trigger application of the construction and density mix standards in OAR chapter 660, division 7, where the petitioner fails to demonstrate that the FAR standard affects the city's obligation to provide for an overall density of eight or more dwelling units per acre. J.T. Smith Companies v. City of West Linn, 54 Or LUBA 339 (2007).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Absent a focused challenge from petitioners, staff reports analyzing proposed floor area ratio (FAR) standards for residential development and concluding that the FAR standards would have no impact on future residential construction and development are sufficient to demonstrate that the FAR standards are consistent with Goal 10. J.T. Smith Companies v. City of West Linn, 54 Or LUBA 339 (2007).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. LUBA will reject an argument that a legislative decision must be remanded to adopt findings addressing whether a proposed land use regulation is consistent with applicable comprehensive plan policies, where the petitioner identifies no local obligation to adopt findings, and the local government cites to a staff report that concludes the regulation is consistent with applicable plan policies. J.T. Smith Companies v. City of West Linn, 54 Or LUBA 339 (2007).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where a petitioner appeals a legislative decision (1) that adopts a new zone potentially applicable to a number of properties but (2) does not actually apply that new zone to any property, the only challenges LUBA can meaningfully review are facial challenges to the new zone, that is, arguments that the new zone is facially inconsistent with controlling legal standards. LUBA cannot meaningfully review hypothetical challenges that anticipate future decisions to apply the new zone to particular property. Okray v. City of Cottage Grove, 47 Or LUBA 297 (2004).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where a decision includes discrete determinations that, viewed in isolation, would constitute quasi-judicial decisions, whether the decision is viewed as legislative or quasi-judicial depends on the character of the whole decision. The entire decision will either be legislative or quasi-judicial, not a hybrid of both. NWDA v. City of Portland, 47 Or LUBA 533 (2004).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Assuming, without deciding, that it is reversible error to combine a unitary legislative proceeding with a geographically and otherwise unrelated site-specific proposal, a city decision that applies a height bonus to a particular property that is within a 535-acre study area subject to a number of legislative plan and land use regulation amendments is not geographically or otherwise unrelated to the legislative proceeding. NWDA v. City of Portland, 47 Or LUBA 533 (2004).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Although all legislative decisions need not be supported by findings when the local government can supply argument and citation to the record in its brief to demonstrate compliance with the applicable criteria, such arguments must be based on evidence contained in the record rather than created out of whole cloth. Naumes Properties, LLC v. City of Central Point, 46 Or LUBA 304 (2004).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A decision to annex property owned by more than 60 property owners and encompassing more than 125 acres is not directed at a "closely circumscribed factual situation" or "a relatively small number of persons," and thus is not subject to notice requirements and hearing procedures prescribed by ORS 197.763 for a quasi-judicial land use decision. Miner v. Clatsop County, 46 Or LUBA 467 (2004).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Even absent a specific legal requirement that a legislative decision be supported by findings, remand may be necessary if LUBA and the appellate courts cannot perform their review function without the missing findings to determine whether applicable decision making criteria are satisfied. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 435 (2002).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where a county's legislative decision changes the comprehensive plan designation for a property from Industrial to Primary Agriculture, and the record does not reflect that the county considered other potentially suitable designations or explained why other potentially suitable designations should not be applied, the decision and record are insufficient to demonstrate that applicable criteria were considered. Manning v. Marion County, 42 Or LUBA 56 (2002).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. A county decision to amend a property description of a significant aggregate site in its comprehensive plan to mirror the property description contained in its mineral sites inventory, along with other, unrelated policy and housekeeping amendments, is a legislative, and not a quasi-judicial, decision. DeBell v. Douglas County, 39 Or LUBA 695 (2001).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. The highly deferential standard of review stated in ORS 197.829(1) and Clark v. Jackson County, 313 Or 508, 836 P2d 710 (1992), is expressly limited to interpretations by local governments of comprehensive plan and land use regulations. It does not apply to enactments by local governments of comprehensive plan and land use regulations. Downtown Community Assoc. v. City of Portland, 32 Or LUBA 1 (1996).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. There is no statutory or administrative law requirement that all legislative land use decisions be supported by findings. However, where a challenged legislative land use decision was made by the local governing body and the apparently applicable legal standards at issue on appeal are local comprehensive plan provisions, the interpretation of those provisions must initially be made by the governing body in its decision. Central Eastside Industrial Council v. Portland, 29 Or LUBA 429 (1995).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. The absence of findings in support of a legislative decision is not in itself a basis for reversal or remand. It is possible for respondents to defend against a challenge to a legislative decision through argument in their briefs and citations to plan provisions, code provisions and evidence in the record. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 29 Or LUBA 68 (1995).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where a legislative comprehensive plan amendment adopts policies arguably relevant to OAR 660-12-060, either the decision must be supported by findings addressing OAR 660-12-060 or respondents must demonstrate, through arguments in their briefs and citation to provisions of the local government's plan and regulations or the record that the challenged policies comply with OAR 660-12-060. Opus Development Corp. v. City of Eugene, 28 Or LUBA 670 (1995).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. There is no statutory or administrative law requirement that all legislative decisions be supported by findings. However, where there is a local code provision requiring that findings be adopted in support of legislative decisions, the absence of such findings, or the adoption of purely conclusory findings, can provide a basis for reversal or remand. Foster v. Coos County, 28 Or LUBA 609 (1995).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. That a legislative land use decision is not supported by findings is not, in itself, a basis for reversal or remand, because no applicable legal standard requires that all legislative land use decisions be supported by findings. Redland/Viola/Fischer's Mill CPO v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 560 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. With regard to providing an explanation of the basis for a challenged legislative decision, the Goal 2 "adequate factual base" requirement will be satisfied if the decision is supported by either (1) findings demonstrating compliance with applicable legal standards, or (2) argument and citations to facts in the record, in respondents' briefs, adequate to demonstrate compliance with applicable legal standards. Redland/Viola/Fischer's Mill CPO v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 560 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Where petitioners contend legislative land use regulation amendments are inconsistent with certain arguably relevant comprehensive plan provisions, and those plan provisions are not interpreted in the challenged decision, LUBA must remand the challenged decision for the local government to adopt the necessary plan interpretations as part of its decision. Redland/Viola/Fischer's Mill CPO v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 560 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Statewide Planning Goal 2 requires that comprehensive plan and land use regulation amendments have an adequate factual base, regardless of whether they are legislative or quasi-judicial in nature. Rea v. City of Seaside, 27 Or LUBA 443 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Statewide Planning Goal 2 requires that planning decisions and actions have an adequate factual base, regardless of the legislative or quasi-judicial nature of the decision. The Goal 2 requirement for an adequate factual base is equivalent to the requirement for substantial evidence in the whole record. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. City of North Plains, 27 Or LUBA 372 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. There is no legal requirement that a local government adopt findings to support a legislative land use decision. However, where the local government does not adopt findings explaining why a challenged legislative decision complies with applicable approval criteria, LUBA relies upon the responding parties to provide argument and citations to the record to assist the resolution of petitioners' allegations. DLCD v. Fargo Interchange Service District, 27 Or LUBA 150 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. There is no legal requirement that local governments adopt findings in support of legislative land use decisions. Where a local government does not adopt findings explaining why a challenged legislative land use decision complies with applicable approval criteria, LUBA relies on the responding parties to provide argument and citations to the record to assist in the resolution of petitioners' allegations. Andrews v. City of Brookings, 27 Or LUBA 39 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. For LUBA review of a legislative land use decision, either the legislative land use decision must be accompanied by findings addressing relevant legal standards or the local government must explain in its brief how the challenged legislative decision complies with applicable legal standards. McInnis v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 1 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Although nothing requires that all legislative land use decisions be supported by findings, in order for LUBA to perform its review function, it is necessary either that legislative land use decisions be accompanied by findings demonstrating compliance with relevant legal standards or that respondent explain in its brief how the challenged legislative decision complies with applicable legal standards. Rea v. City of Seaside, 26 Or LUBA 444 (1994).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. No statute or appellate court case requires that all legislative land use decisions be supported by findings. Absent allegations by petitioner that a legislative decision violates particular legal standards, a local government's failure to adopt findings in support of that legislative decision addressing the statewide planning goals and local comprehensive plan is not, of itself, a basis for reversal or remand of the decision. Oregon City Leasing, Inc. v. Columbia County, 25 Or LUBA 129 (1993).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. ORS 215.130(1) indicates the legislature contemplated that legislative land use decisions could be adopted by the electorate. However, nothing exempts legislative land use decisions from the procedural and substantive requirements applicable to the enactment of legislation affecting land use. Therefore, a decision adopted by the electorate is subject to the requirements governing legislative land use decisions. Riverbend Landfill Company v. Yamhill County, 24 Or LUBA 466 (1993).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. While nothing requires that all legislative land use decisions be supported by findings, in order for LUBA to perform its review function, it is necessary either that legislative land use decisions be accompanied by findings of compliance with relevant legal standards or that respondents explain in their briefs how the legislative decision complies with applicable legal standards. Riverbend Landfill Company v. Yamhill County, 24 Or LUBA 466 (1993).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. There is no statutory requirement that legislative decisions be supported by substantial evidence. Riverbend Landfill Company v. Yamhill County, 24 Or LUBA 466 (1993).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. That the electorate may have exceeded its authority in adopting land use legislation by initiative, is a question bearing on the merits of an appeal from such a decision, not on LUBA's jurisdiction to review the appealed decision. Riverbend Landfill Company v. Yamhill County, 24 Or LUBA 607 (1992).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(C) does not require a legislative land use decision to be supported by substantial evidence. Where petitioners cite no independent basis for a requirement that the challenged legislative land use decision be supported by substantial evidence, petitioners provide no basis for reversal or remand. Cope v. City of Cannon Beach, 23 Or LUBA 233 (1992).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(C) does not impose a substantive requirement that legislative land use decisions be supported by substantial evidence in the whole record. Alexiou v. Curry County, 22 Or LUBA 639 (1992).

28.5 LUBA Scope of Review – Legislative Decisions. Although not required by statute, findings in support of legislative amendments to a comprehensive plan may be required to permit LUBA to determine whether the plan, as amended, complies with the statewide planning goals. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 22 Or LUBA 307 (1991).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Raising an issue before the local government, in the reply brief, and at oral argument, but not in the petition for review, is not sufficient to raise an issue in an appeal to LUBA and thereby avoid that issue being precluded from LUBA's review in a subsequent appeal under the law of the case doctrine articulated in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 150, 831 P2d 678 (1992). Crowley v. City of Hood River, 81 Or LUBA 490 (2020).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a county's Goal 5 ESEE analysis and program make a decision to fully allow uses that conflict with inventoried wildlife habitat, and the county zones the property to fully allow those conflicting uses, the county is not required to remove the property from its wildlife habitat inventory. But where the county does remove the property from its wildlife habitat inventory and LUBA rejects all challenges to the Goal 5 ESEE analysis and program and remands on a different issue, in a subsequent appeal of the county's decision on remand a petitioner may not assign error to the county's removal of the property from its wildlife habitat inventory because that is a resolved issue under Beck v. Tillamook County, 313 Or 148, 153, 831 P2d 678 (1992). Wood v. Crook County, 74 Or LUBA 278 (2016).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where LUBA remands a decision and identifies two courses of action the local government may take to resolve the issue that led to remand, and the local government selects one of those course of action on remand, in a subsequent appeal a petitioner may not assign error based on an issue that is outside the scope of the chosen course of action. Wood v. Crook County, 74 Or LUBA 278 (2016).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The law of the case doctrine is not applicable in appeals of legislative land use decisions. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 488 (2016).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The "law of the case" doctrine described in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), does not apply to bar consideration of an issue raised on appeal of a decision on remand, if the issue is substantially the same as an issue raised in an unresolved assignment of error in the appeal of the original decision. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hood River, 72 Or LUBA 1 (2015).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where the applicant for a vested right determination argued below that it had not lost its vested right and argued for an interpretation of the vested rights standard that would result in a conclusion that the vested right had not been discontinued, on appeal to LUBA the applicant has not waived the ability to challenge the interpretation the local government adopted to support its conclusion that the vested right had been discontinued, even if the applicant's specific arguments against that interpretation were not raised below. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hood River, 72 Or LUBA 1 (2015).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The holding in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), precludes a petitioner at LUBA from arguing that in adopting a decision after remand from LUBA, the local government erred in amending the location of the coastal shorelands boundary on the acknowledged comprehensive plan map without processing the decision as a post-acknowledgement plan amendment (PAPA) pursuant to the requirements in ORS 197.610, where the issue could have been, but was not, raised during the appeal of the local government's initial decision approving a tentative master plan and subdivision. Oregon Coast Alliance v. Curry County, 68 Or LUBA 233 (2013).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where on remand from LUBA a county addresses the remand issues by adopting different ordinances at different times for each separate remand issue, a challenge to a setback adjustment provision adopted in one remand ordinance is not waived under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), by the petitioner's failure to raise that challenge in an earlier appeal of a different remand ordinance that did not adopt the setback adjustment provision. Iberdrola Renewables v. Umatilla County, 67 Or LUBA 149 (2013).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Under the reasoning in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), a petitioner is precluded from raising issues in a subsequent appeal of a decision made after a voluntary remand. The law of the case doctrine is not dependent on whether LUBA reached a decision on the merits in the prior appeal; rather, the doctrine precludes issues from being raised piecemeal throughout the course of appellate review. Poto v. Linn County, 67 Or LUBA 162 (2013).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), to preserve an issue on appeal, the issue must be raised at all stages in the appeal proceedings where it can be raised, and failure to raise the issue during the first appeal proceedings precludes LUBA's review of that issue. The Beck waiver doctrine is not limited to issues actually raised and resolved in the initial appeal proceedings. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 265 (2012).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The waiver doctrine articulated in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), applies both to legislative and quasi-judicial land use decisions. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 265 (2012).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Even if all of the assignments of error challenging a decision on remand are barred from relitigation or waived under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), and thus not within LUBA's scope of review, that only means LUBA will affirm the decision, not that the decision on remand is not within LUBA's jurisdiction. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 427 (2012).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), precludes a petitioner from challenging the terms of a condition imposed on remand that is identical to a condition imposed in the original decision, whose terms were not challenged in the initial appeal to LUBA. That the identical terms were embodied in a nominally "new" condition does not allow the petitioner to advance challenges to the decision on remand that could have been, but were not, advanced in the initial appeal. Devin Oil Co. v. Morrow County, 65 Or LUBA 104 (2012).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where on remand a county relies for the first time on signalization of an intersection to ensure compliance with the Transportation Planning Rule, the issue of whether the county could rely on signalization could not have been raised in the initial appeal, and is not waived under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153, 831 P2d 678 (2002). Setniker v. Polk County, 63 Or LUBA 38 (2011).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The law of the case doctrine in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153, 831 P2d 678 (2002), operates even against persons who did not, but could have, participated in the first appeal, and precludes such persons from raising issues that could have been raised in the first appeal, but were not raised. Setniker v. Polk County, 63 Or LUBA 38 (2011).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), a party at LUBA fails to preserve an issue for review if, in a prior stage of a single proceeding, that issue is decided adversely to the party or that issue could have been raised and was not raised. Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Arguments that a permit applicant failed to raise any issue concerning a refund of permit fees in his appeal of the permit denial provide no basis for a motion to dismiss. Waiver of issues for failure to raise those issues in a local proceeding or prior LUBA appeals may affect LUBA's scope of review, but such waiver does not affect LUBA's jurisdiction to review a decision that qualifies as a land use decision. Sperber v. Coos County, 61 Or LUBA 477 (2010).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a county does not appear to defend its decision and LUBA concludes in an unappealed decision that the county lacks authority under its development code to condition final partition plat approval on the applicant first executing an agreement and providing financial guarantees to construct roads within the partition, the county may not in its decision on remand again impose that condition of approval and include a belated interpretation of its development code to assert such authority. Under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153, 831 P2d 678 (1992), a county is bound in its proceedings on remand by all issues that were resolved against the county in LUBA's first decision. Sperber v. Coos County, 60 Or LUBA 44 (2009).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. When a local code provision prevents persons who were not "parties" during the initial proceedings from participating on remand from LUBA, a person who failed to challenge his classification as a "witness" rather than a "party" in the initial proceeding is precluded from raising a challenge to that classification in a subsequent LUBA appeal. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 60 Or LUBA 131 (2009).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Because the issue of the adequacy of the findings addressing the seven factors of OAR 660-033-0020(1)(a)(B) was not raised in the initial appeal, and was not one of the issues on remand, the issue cannot be raised for the first time in a challenge to the county's decision on remand. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 60 Or LUBA 131 (2009).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. When a petitioner did not challenge the legality of a 2000 boundary line adjustment (BLA) in disputing when a parcel was lawfully created, that petitioner may not challenge the legality of that 2000 BLA in a subsequent LUBA appeal after LUBA remanded the decision to the county for other reasons. McGovern v. Crook County, 60 Or LUBA 177 (2009).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a city approved a tri-plex without notice or hearings and the dispute in a prior LUBA appeal of that decision was whether any discretionary approval criteria applied to the decision, petitioners did not waive their right to argue in an appeal of the decision that followed notice and a hearing that the tri-plex violates a particular setback requirement, even though it might have been theoretically possible for petitioners to comb through the development code and locate that criterion in the earlier appeal. Zirker v. City of Bend, 59 Or LUBA 1 (2009).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a subdivision approval decision is appealed to LUBA and remanded, and the same subdivision is approved a second time following remand and appealed a second time to LUBA, those appeals are two phases of the same case, and issues that LUBA decided in its first decision may not be the subject of assignments of error in the appeal of the second subdivision decision. Welch v. Yamhill County, 58 Or LUBA 29 (2008).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Petitioners do not waive their right to argue that a second subdivision approval decision that relies on Ballot Measure 37 waivers and post-dated Ballot Measure 49 was precluded by Ballot Measure 49 by failing to make that argument in their appeal of an earlier subdivision decision that predated Ballot Measure 49. The subject of that earlier appeal was the county's pre-Ballot Measure 49 subdivision approval decision, not the county's post-Ballot Measure 49 subdivision approval decision. Welch v. Yamhill County, 58 Or LUBA 29 (2008).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. An issue may be waived so that it cannot be raised in a second appeal regarding the same land use application where the issue is "plainly cognizable." The possibility that a county might adopt a second decision approving a subdivision based on Ballot Measure 37 waivers after Ballot Measure 49 takes effect was not plainly cognizable in a LUBA appeal of an earlier subdivision that pre-dated Ballot Measure 49. Welch v. Yamhill County, 58 Or LUBA 29 (2008).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where no issue was raised during the initial proceedings or initial appeal to LUBA regarding whether a property could be used as a "woodlot" and thus be put to "farm use" for purposes of ORS 215.203(2), that issue cannot be raised for the first time on appeal of the decision on remand, pursuant to Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153, 831 P2d 678 (1992). Wetherell v. Douglas County, 58 Or LUBA 638 (2009).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a petitioner raises an issue and LUBA rejects that issue but remands a permit decision on other grounds, the petitioner may not raise the rejected issue for a second time in the local government's decision on remand. Save Our Skyline v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 12 (2007).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The issue of whether logging activities prior to the application should be considered part of proposed "grading activities" is waived, where that issue could have been but was not raised in the initial LUBA appeal of the preliminary grading permit. That LUBA remanded the grading permit decision to identify evidence regarding the feasibility of complying with final grading permit standards does not open the door to raise new issues that could have been but were not raised in the initial appeal. Angius v. Washington County, 52 Or LUBA 222 (2006).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Issues that could have been raised but were not raised during a prior LUBA appeal cannot be raised in appeal of the decision on remand, under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992). Frewing v. City of Tigard, 52 Or LUBA 518 (2006).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Issues that could have been, but were not, raised in the first appeal to LUBA are waived in any appeal of the decision on remand under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992). Findings adopted on remand explaining why proposed development is allowed in a public facility zone do not open the door to allow a petitioner to raise issues regarding whether the development is consistent with Statewide Planning Goal 17 (Coastal Shorelands). Moreland v. City of Depoe Bay, 50 Or LUBA 44 (2005).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. When an earlier decision was remanded by LUBA based on issues regarding the safety of a proposed road design, and the local government specifically limits the remand proceedings to the issues remanded by LUBA, petitioners may not challenge the proposed road's location under the local government's transportation system plan when that locational issue could have been, but was not raised, in the earlier appeal. McCulloh v. City of Jacksonville, 49 Or LUBA 345 (2005).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. It would be inconsistent with the legislative policies that "time is of the essence in reaching final decisions in matters involving land use and that those decisions [should] be made consistently with sound principles governing judicial review" to allow a petitioner to fail to raise a constitutional challenge to an applicable statute in an initial LUBA appeal and, following LUBA's remand on other grounds, allow that petitioner to raise the constitutional challenge in a second LUBA appeal challenging the local government's decision on remand. Morsman v. City of Madras, 47 Or LUBA 80 (2004).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a city does not seek appellate court review of LUBA's initial decision that the city's actions to secure consents to annexation are subject to heightened scrutiny, it may not argue in a subsequent appeal of its decision on remand that its actions to secure consents to annexation are subject only to a requirement that there be a rational basis for the city's actions. Morsman v. City of Madras, 47 Or LUBA 80 (2004).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Under the Beck v. City of Tillamook waiver principle, issues that have been conclusively resolved at a prior point in a single continuous land use proceeding are not reviewable for a second time by LUBA or an appellate court at a later point in that proceeding. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 470 (2004).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Generally, issues that were conclusively resolved in a final discretionary land use decision, or that could have been but were not raised and resolved in that earlier proceeding, cannot be raised to challenge a subsequent application for permits necessary to carry out the earlier final decision. Safeway, Inc. v. City of North Bend, 47 Or LUBA 489 (2004).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a final discretionary permit approval resolved issues regarding how "lot area" is determined for purposes of calculating the number of parking spaces for proposed development, those issues cannot be revisited and applied as a basis to deny a subsequent parking lot application that is consistent with the earlier final discretionary decision. Such a denial is an impermissible collateral attack on the earlier decision. Safeway, Inc. v. City of North Bend, 47 Or LUBA 489 (2004).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where the court of appeals remands a city decision because the city failed to establish in its initial decision that its finding concerning a need for commercial land was (1) supported by substantial evidence, or (2) not critical to its initial decision, and the city finds on remand that the finding was not critical to its decision and readopts its decision, petitioners are entitled to challenge the adequacy of the remaining findings to support the city's rezoning decision even if the adequacy of those findings were not challenged in the first appeal. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 44 Or LUBA 698 (2003).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where LUBA finds in its first decision that it is not clear what road construction standards apply or what those standards require in considering alternative alignments under OAR 660-012-0065(5)(a), a petitioner did not waive its right to argue in a second appeal that no road standards apply to one of the considered alignments. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 41 Or LUBA 476 (2002).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Although parties to a stipulated voluntary remand may be bound by an agreement to limit the issues on remand concerning a disputed parking lot, non-parties are not bound by the stipulation and such non-parties have not waived their right to raise issues under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 153-54, 831 P2d 678 (1992), where the notice of hearing that preceded the only local hearing on the remanded decision failed to refer to the parking lot. Boly v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 537 (2001).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. When a city imposes a condition on development approval and relies on that condition in both its initial approval and its reapproval after withdrawing the decision for reconsideration, a petitioner's failure to raise issues regarding the condition during the evidentiary proceedings on reconsideration precludes petitioner from challenging the adequacy or validity of the condition in a subsequent LUBA appeal of the decision on reconsideration. DLCD v. City of Warrenton, 40 Or LUBA 88 (2001).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The law of the case doctrine does not apply to an appeal of a new application, even if that application is similar to a prior application that resulted in a decision that was remanded by LUBA. Durig v. Washington County, 40 Or LUBA 1 (2001).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. A petitioner must do more than merely raise an issue concerning Goal 14 to raise an issue concerning compliance with local provisions that implement Goal 14. Failure to raise an issue concerning the local provisions below precludes a petitioner from raising an issue concerning those local provisions for the first time on appeal. Durig v. Washington County, 40 Or LUBA 1 (2001).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Potential parties in a LUBA appeal can reasonably foresee that the appeal may lead to the challenged decision being affirmed, reversed or remanded, as a result of a decision on the merits or a stipulation by the parties. But such potential parties cannot reasonably foresee that the parties in a LUBA appeal will stipulate that LUBA should order the local government to adopt an amended decision. Waibel v. Crook County, 39 Or LUBA 749 (2000).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Under ORS 197.860, parties may reach a mediated settlement in a LUBA appeal and request that LUBA order the local government to adopt a particular amended decision. However, in issuing such an order, LUBA does not review the amended decision on the merits and persons who appeal the amended decision to LUBA may raise any issues on appeal that they did not waive by failing to participate in the initial LUBA appeal. Waibel v. Crook County, 39 Or LUBA 749 (2000).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where an issue is resolved in a prior appeal, a petitioner in a subsequent appeal of a city's decision on remand may not raise that issue again. Schwerdt v. City of Corvallis, 38 Or LUBA 174 (2000).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Petitioners are not precluded from raising arguments on appeal that pertain to assignments of error that were raised, but not finally decided, in a prior appeal to LUBA on the same application. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 38 Or LUBA 62 (2000).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. An argument that could have been presented in a prior LUBA appeal that led to remand, but was not, is waived in a subsequent LUBA appeal of the local government's decision on remand. Jackson County Citizens League v. Jackson County, 38 Or LUBA 37 (2000).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a county finds in its initial decision that the soils on a property are less productive than the same types of soils on adjoining properties due to slope and soil wetness, and no party challenges that finding, the county need not consider that issue in making a decision on remand from LUBA of its initial decision. Carlson v. Benton County, 37 Or LUBA 897 (2000).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. An issue that could have, but was not, raised in the initial petition for review before LUBA in an appeal that was voluntarily remanded, may not be included in an assignment of error in a later appeal of a decision following remand. Riggs v. Douglas County, 37 Or LUBA 432 (1999).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. LUBA has jurisdiction to review a statutory challenge to a plan amendment even though the statutory challenge was not raised in a LUBA appeal when the plan was originally adopted, where the statutory question presented when the plan was first adopted is different from the statutory question presented by the plan amendment decision. Commercial Real Estate Economic Coalition v. Metro, 37 Or LUBA 171 (1999).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where petitioner could have but did not challenge coordinated city population projections in its initial appeal before LUBA, petitioner waives the right to challenge those projections in its appeal of the decision on remand. DLCD v. Douglas County, 37 Or LUBA 129 (1999).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The law of the case doctrine does not bar petitioners from raising issues that were resolved or could have been raised in a prior decision approving the challenged land use proposal, where the challenged decision revisits, on a de novo basis, certain issues resolved in a prior decision, and the issues raised in the present appeal all pertain to matters that the challenged decision revisited. Sequoia Park Condo. Assoc. v. City of Beaverton, 36 Or LUBA 317 (1999).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Petitioners may not raise issues concerning a landscaping approval standard in an appeal to LUBA following remand of an earlier city decision by LUBA, where LUBA's remand was based on a more general "adverse impact" standard. Petitioners waived their right to raise issues under the landscaping standard by failing to raise any issue regarding that standard in the first LUBA appeal. Port Dock Four, Inc. v. City of Newport, 36 Or LUBA 68 (1999).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Principles of res judicata do not prohibit petitioner from raising issues before LUBA regarding the nonconforming use status of a proposed dog kennel, even if those issues could have been raised in an earlier, unappealed county decision approving site design review for the kennel, because the nonconforming use status of the proposed use was not at issue during the site design review proceedings. Marquam Farms Corp. v. Multnomah County, 35 Or LUBA 392 (1999).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The law of the case doctrine does not bar petitioner from arguing that the city's action on remand from LUBA so altered the proposed development that the city must revisit a variance granted in the original decision. Dodds v. City of West Linn, 35 Or LUBA 101 (1998).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. A local government's decision following remand from LUBA that a modified site plan complies with conditions of approval that were imposed by its initial decision that led to the first LUBA appeal raises new issues that petitioners may challenge in a subsequent LUBA appeal challenging the local decision on remand. Winkler v. City of Cottage Grove, 33 Or LUBA 543 (1997).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where an issue raised by petitioners regarding the county's decision to include intervenor's site in its Goal 5 inventory was decided in a prior LUBA appeal of the same decision, that issue cannot be raised again. O'Rourke v. Union County, 31 Or LUBA 174 (1996).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. When a local government limits its remand proceedings to issues that were the basis for LUBA's remand order, issues that were not raised in the first appeal, and are not within the scope of the issues that were the basis for LUBA's remand, cannot be raised in a subsequent appeal to LUBA. O'Rourke v. Union County, 31 Or LUBA 174 (1996).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Law of the case only applies where an issue has been resolved in an earlier appeal. The county cannot rely on petitioners' failure to assign error under Goal 3 in a previous appeal to conclude that LUBA has made a de facto determination that the county's findings establish compliance with its own agricultural lands goal. Brown v. Coos County, 31 Or LUBA 142 (1996).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The doctrine of waiver does not apply to issues that were the basis of a LUBA remand, but rather only to issues that were decided adversely to petitioners or that petitioners failed to raise in the prior LUBA appeal. Collins v. Klamath County, 28 Or LUBA 553 (1995).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a local government's decision is remanded, but the local government's failure to adopt findings defining certain relevant terms in its land use regulation is not the basis for the remand, petitioners may not raise the local government's failure to adopt such definitional findings in a second appeal to LUBA challenging the local governments decision on remand. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 28 Or LUBA 159 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Unresolved issues, which may be considered in a local government proceeding on remand from LUBA, and raised in a subsequent appeal to LUBA from a local decision on remand, include (1) issues presented in the first appeal that LUBA either sustains or does not consider, and (2) issues that could not have been raised in the first LUBA appeal. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 28 Or LUBA 32 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where petitioner did not appeal a previous LUBA decision concerning a related matter to the court of appeals, petitioner may not collaterally attack that previous LUBA decision in a subsequent appeal to LUBA. McKenzie v. Multnomah County, 27 Or LUBA 523 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. In a second appeal to LUBA, challenging a local government decision made on remand after a first LUBA appeal, petitioner cannot raise arguments which were not, but could have been, made in the first LUBA appeal. Laine v. City of Rockaway Beach. 27 Or LUBA 493 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where petitioner failed to raise an issue concerning compliance with DEQ noise standards in his first appeal of a decision approving an auto repair home occupation permit, he may not raise that issue in an appeal of the local government's decision following remand. Wuester v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 314 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Neither law of the case nor issue preclusion applies in a LUBA appeal of a land use decision made after a prior remand by LUBA, where the second appeal involves different parties and a new application for a revised project was submitted after remand. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 27 Or LUBA 243 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where petitioner failed to raise the issue of compliance with a particular comprehensive plan provision in its first appeal to LUBA, and failure to comply with that plan provision was not a basis for LUBA's remand of the local government's first decision, petitioner may not raise that issue for the first time in a subsequent appeal to LUBA from the local government decision adopted after remand. ODOT v. Clackamas County, 27 Or LUBA 141 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where petitioners seek to challenge a local government interpretation that a code standard is satisfied because the number of a certain type of uses in an area is "not unusual," petitioners did not waive their argument by failing to raise it in a previous appeal to LUBA, where the previous decision simply noted there is "nothing unusual" about the concentration of the use in the area, but did not express the challenged interpretation. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 106 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a local government limits its remand proceedings to the issues that were the basis for LUBA's remand, issues that were not raised in the first appeal, and are not within the scope of the issues that were the basis for LUBA's remand, cannot be raised in a subsequent appeal to LUBA. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 106 (1994).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where LUBA remands a local government decision for an interpretation of ambiguous code provisions, and no appeal is taken from LUBA's determination concerning the code's ambiguity, petitioner is barred from arguing before LUBA that the disputed code provision is unambiguous, in an appeal from the local decision on remand. McGowan v. City of Eugene, 26 Or LUBA 9 (1993).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where LUBA, in its final opinion and order, rejects an argument made by petitioners and petitioners do not appeal LUBA's decision, under the doctrine of waiver, LUBA cannot consider that issue in a subsequent appeal from the local government's decision on remand. However, LUBA may review issues that could not have been raised in the prior appeal. Simmons v. Marion County, 25 Or LUBA 647 (1993).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where petitioners' arguments in a LUBA petition for review challenging a local government's decision on remand after a prior LUBA appeal either were raised or could have been raised during the prior LUBA proceedings, such arguments may not be raised in the LUBA appeal after remand. Adler v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 546 (1993).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where petitioners argue a city cannot approve an amendment to a PUD development plan on remand from LUBA, because the underlying development plan approval expired after LUBA remanded the initial city decision approving the amendment, petitioners did not waive this issue. The issue was not ripe to be raised at the time of the city's initial proceedings on the amendment or during petitioners' first appeal to LUBA. Gage v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 449 (1993).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where LUBA's decision on petitioners' first appeal found the local government erred by failing to interpret and apply certain code provisions to the subject application, and petitioners did not appeal that LUBA decision, petitioners have waived the argument that a separate application is required to give the local government jurisdiction to apply the code provisions in question. Gage v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 449 (1993).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a petitioner mentions an issue in passing in its petition for review, but does not specifically assign the issue as error, LUBA does not address that issue in its final opinion and order remanding the challenged decision, and petitioner does not seek judicial review of LUBA's decision, petitioner cannot assign that issue as error in a subsequent appeal to LUBA from the local government decision on remand. Caine v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 209 (1993).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. A local government's failure to comply with procedural requirements of ORS 197.763 on remand from LUBA does not allow a petitioner to raise issues in a second appeal to LUBA that are otherwise barred by the doctrine of waiver articulated in Mill Creek Glen Protection Assoc. v.

Umatilla County, 88 Or App 522, 527, 746 P2d 728 (1987). Caine v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 209 (1993).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where a local government made determinations regarding the application of certain code provisions to a proposed use in its initial decision on a permit application, and that decision is remanded by LUBA for other unrelated reasons, compliance of the proposed use with those code provisions is an old, resolved issue that cannot be raised in an appeal of a new decision made by the local government after remand. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 296 (1992).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. Where LUBA determines that a code section is not an applicable approval criterion but remands a land use decision on other grounds, a petitioner may not fail to appeal LUBA's decision and then reassert the applicability of the code section in a subsequent LUBA appeal of the decision on remand. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 23 Or LUBA 565 (1992).

28.6.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Prior LUBA Appeal. The "law of the case" or "waiver" doctrine does not limit a local government's ability to adopt a different decision, or different findings in support of its decision, after its initial decision is remanded by LUBA. Eckis v. Linn County, 22 Or LUBA 27 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where allegedly deficient findings appear for the first time in the challenged decision, a petitioner is allowed to challenge the adequacy of those findings. Matthews v. Lane County, 81 Or LUBA 757 (2020).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Failure to meet the preservation requirement of ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3) and the exhaustion requirement of ORS 197.825(2)(a) and Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), rev den, 336 Or 615 (2004), removes issues from the scope of LUBA's review; it does not deprive LUBA of jurisdiction to review final land use decisions. Nehmzow v. Deschutes County, 81 Or LUBA 571 (2020).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner cites over one hundred pages of the record in its preservation of error statement, but the respondents do not argue that the issues were not raised during the local proceeding and the petitioner provides more focused record citations in their reply brief, and where it is evident from the challenged decision itself that the issues were raised during the local proceeding, such failure to adequately specify in the petition for review where the issues were preserved is a technical violation that does not prejudice the respondents' substantial rights. Nehmzow v. Deschutes County, 81 Or LUBA 571 (2020).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners fail to show where in the record that they raised several issues at the local level despite having been given an opportunity to raise the issues, LUBA will conclude that the issues were not preserved and thereby waived. Johnson v. City of Philomath, 81 Or LUBA 473 (2020).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3), a member of a decision-making body is not a participant in a local proceeding and, while planning staff may be participants in a land use proceeding, any issue that is raised in a staff response to decision-maker questions that is provided to the decision-making body after the record has closed may not be raised for the first time at LUBA. Marek v. City of Corvallis, 81 Or LUBA 91 (2020).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an applicant generally argued below that the local government could apply only clear and objective standards, and where the applicant more specifically argued that the local government could not apply certain local safety standards regulating roads and connectivity because the term "safety" is subjective and undefined in the local code, argued that the local government could not apply certain ODOT standards referenced in the local safety standards because they are undefined and not clear and objective, and opposed a proposed ODOT condition of approval as not clear and objective, LUBA will conclude that an argument that the local government erred by refusing to analyze whether the applicable criteria are "clear and objective" under ORS 197.307(4) was sufficiently raised for purposes of ORS 197.835(3), ORS 197.195(3)(c)(B), and ORS 197.763(1). Buffalo-Bend Associates, LLC v. Clackamas County, 81 Or LUBA 66 (2020).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner fails to satisfy OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d) or to establish that the issues raised in its six assignments of error were raised as required by ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3) where the petitioner broadly cites its submittals into the record during the proceedings before the local government. Such a broad citation is not a technical violation where it interferes with the substantial rights of the parties by improperly shifting the burden to the respondents to review over one hundred pages of the record to determine whether the issues raised in six assignments of error in an overlength, 68-page petition for review have been preserved. H2D2 Properties, LLC v. Deschutes County, 80 Or LUBA 528 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner is not required to anticipate erroneous findings or interpretations in a final decision in order to challenge them at LUBA. Where petitioner raised an issue before the city council regarding fees and argued that the local appeal was invalid because of an allegedly invalid fee waiver decision, petitioner could not have anticipated the city's decision along with its attendant findings and interpretations, until the city issued its final decision. Accordingly, petitioner did not have the opportunity to raise specific challenges to the city's decision regarding the fee waiver during the local proceeding and therefore may raise them for the first time on appeal to LUBA. Riverview Abbey Mausoleum Company v. City of Portland, 79 Or LUBA 38 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.835(4)(a), where a staff report confirms that the subject property is in an overlay district where "development is allowed to have limited lengths of steeper grades," but where the applicable approval criteria for that overlay district are not cited in any notices sent or staff reports prepared by the local government, a petitioner may raise the argument that the local government erred in failing to adopt findings regarding compliance with those criteria for the first time on appeal to LUBA. Roten v. City of Turner, 79 Or LUBA 124 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A county errs in accepting with the applicant's final written argument, for purposes of determining whether at least three dwellings existed on surrounding lots or parcels on January 1, 1993, and therefore whether the subject property qualifies for a forest template dwelling under ORS 215.750, an email from a contractor who worked on one of the surrounding dwellings , even where the email is intended to provide context for evidence submitted by opponents, and thereby rebut opponents' arguments concerning that evidence. Under ORS 197.763(6)(e), new evidence may not be submitted with an applicant's final written argument and, under ORS 197.763(9), such an email is evidence rather than argument. In addition, opponents are not precluded from raising a county's admission of new evidence with the applicant's final written argument as procedural error on appeal to LUBA merely because they failed to object during the local proceedings, where the opportunity to object was provided after the county had already considered evidence, deliberated, and made its oral decision, and where the record was closed and no further testimony was allowed. Eng v. Wallowa County, 79 Or LUBA 421 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A county errs in accepting with the applicant's final written argument, for purposes of determining whether at least three dwellings existed on surrounding lots or parcels on January 1, 1993, and therefore whether the subject property qualifies for a forest template dwelling under ORS 215.750, an email from a contractor who worked on one of the surrounding dwellings , even where the email is intended to provide context for evidence submitted by opponents, and thereby rebut opponents' arguments concerning that evidence. Under ORS 197.763(6)(e), new evidence may not be submitted with an applicant's final written argument and, under ORS 197.763(9), such an email is evidence rather than argument. In addition, opponents are not precluded from raising a county's admission of new evidence with the applicant's final written argument as procedural error on appeal to LUBA merely because they failed to object during the local proceedings, where the opportunity to object was provided after the county had already considered evidence, deliberated, and made its oral decision, and where the record was closed and no further testimony was allowed. Eng v. Wallowa County, 79 Or LUBA 421 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. While the "raise it or waive it" requirement of ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3) does not apply to legislative proceedings, where a party has an opportunity to object to a procedural error during a legislative proceeding, the party must do so in order to seek remand based on that error. McCaffree v. Coos County, 79 Or LUBA 512 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioner argues the county committed a procedural error that prejudiced his substantial rights when the board of county commissioners failed to consider a written statement that petitioner submitted to the board of commissioners at the hearing, but petitioner does not establish that the board of county commissioners actually failed to consider petitioner's written statement, and petitioner failed to object to the alleged procedural error below, petitioner has not established that the county committed a procedural error or violated an applicable legal standard. Carkulis v. Lincoln County, 79 Or LUBA 610 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A party asserting a procedural error must demonstrate that the procedural error was objected to during the proceedings below, if there was an opportunity to lodge an objection. Accordingly, where a dispute may exist regarding whether petitioners objected to the county's process during the proceedings below, LUBA will allow a motion to take evidence outside the record to consider a document for the limited purpose of allowing petitioners to cite to that document to establish, if the point is disputed in a response brief, that petitioners attempted to lodge objections to the county's process. Eng v. Wallowa County, 79 Or LUBA 1024 (2019).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA will reject a county's interpretation of its code—that a code provision which sets forth approval criteria regarding an application for a variance to the minimum lot size requirements within the county's urban growth area may not apply to the county's decision because it only applies to decisions made by the county's planning director but not to decisions made by the planning commission or board of county commissioners—that was made for the first time in its response brief, because that interpretation is not reflected in the decision and is therefore not an interpretation by the local government. City of Albany v. Linn County, 78 Or LUBA 1 (2018).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Relying upon a local government staff report's citation to local code provisions is insufficient to "raise" an "issue" for purposes of bringing an appeal before LUBA under those code provisions pursuant to ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3) because no party to the proceedings below would understand from the staff report that an "issue" had been "raise[d]" regarding compliance with those code provisions. McAndrew v. Washington County, 78 Or LUBA 21 (2018).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA's review of limited land use decisions is limited to issues raised before the local government, unless (1) the local government did not satisfy the procedural requirements of ORS 197.195, or (2) the limited land use decision adopted differs significantly from the proposal described in the local notice of proposed action. Kamps-Hughes v. City of Eugene, 78 Or LUBA 457 (2018).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument that the issue raised in an assignment of error is waived is not a basis to dismiss the appeal as moot. If LUBA agrees with that argument, the appropriate disposition would be to deny the assignment of error and affirm the local government's decision, not to dismiss the appeal as moot. McNichols v. City of Canby, 78 Or LUBA 1090 (2018).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A city might be obligated to reopen the evidentiary record to accept relevant local legislative history in interpreting local law in an on-the-record hearing, but where petitioner never took the position that it had relevant legislative history to offer and at LUBA merely suggested that such legislative history might exist, the city did not err by limiting its remand proceedings to the evidentiary record that was submitted to LUBA in the appeal that led to remand. McLoughlin Neighborhood Association v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 377 (2018).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The issue that proposed dwellings do not qualify for historic preservation incentives on the merits is a different issue than whether the proposed dwellings are even eligible for consideration for an award of historic preservation incentives. And raising the first issue does not give fair notice to decision makers regarding a need to address the second issue. Friends of Canemah v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 434 (2018).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Arguments that a city erred by failing to adopt findings that address particular spacing and orientation guidelines provide no basis for remand, where petitioners failed to raise any issue concerning those guidelines before the close of the evidentiary record and failed to identify those guidelines in their local notice of appeal. Friends of Canemah v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 434 (2018).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner does not waive his right to assign procedural error at LUBA by failing to object to the procedural error below, where the alleged procedural error occurred after the close of the evidentiary record, and the city council meeting to adopt the final decision did not include an opportunity for parties to lodge procedural objections. Grahn v. City of Yamhill, 76 Or LUBA 258 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The issue of whether a county erred in adopting a reasons exception to Statewide Planning Goal 3 under both the catch-all provision at OAR 660-004-0022(1) and the specific provisions for rural industrial use at OAR 660-004-0022(3) was adequately raised below for purposes of ORS 197.763(1), where a participant argued below that the county cannot adopt exceptions under both provisions but must choose one or the other. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Jackson County, 76 Or LUBA 270 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The issue of whether a proposed solar facility qualifies as "industrial development" for purposes of standards at OAR 660-004-0022(3) for adopting a reasons exception for industrial uses was sufficiently raised below, where a party expressed uncertainty whether the proposed facility qualifies as an industrial use, the decision-maker recognized that a potential issue had been raised, and the decision-maker adopted responsive findings concluding that the use is an industrial use. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Jackson County, 76 Or LUBA 270 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where during the hearing a party objects that a city councilor disclosed the existence, but not the substance, of ex parte communications, the objection is sufficient under ORS 197.763(1) to raise an issue regarding the adequacy of the disclosure. J4J Misc PAC v. City of Jefferson, 75 Or LUBA 120 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner fails to raise an issue with the specificity that is required by ORS 197.763(1) when the arguments in the cited record pages merely allege without developed explanation that the subject parcel was created by partition in 1980 as a sub-standard size parcel in the FF-20 zone, and therefore may not raise the issue that the post-partition zoning of the property to a zone that requires a 20-acre minimum parcel size means that the one-acre parcels approved by the county in 1980 were not lawfully created. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 75 Or LUBA 151 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.835(4), where a local government fails to list an applicable permit approval standard in its notice of hearing, a petitioner is generally entitled to raise issues for the first time at LUBA based on the standard omitted from the notice. But under the last sentence of ORS 197.835(4), LUBA may refuse to allow a petitioner to raise a new issue in that circumstance, where LUBA finds the omitted standard was discussed during the local proceedings and petitioner could have raised issues concerning that standard during the local proceedings. Rawson v. Hood River County, 75 Or LUBA 200 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A general assertion before the city that an applicant failed to demonstrate that a proposed subdivision complies with Title I of the Metro Urban Growth Management Functional Plan is sufficient to preserve the right to raise an issue at LUBA regarding the "Housing Capacity" section of Title I, because that is the only substantive section of Title I. But that general assertion might be insufficient if Title I was a lengthy, multi-section Title. Housing Land Advocates v. City of Happy Valley, 75 Or LUBA 227 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner's right to raise an issue concerning an applicable approval criterion that is not listed in the prehearing notice required by ORS 197.763(3) is a qualified right under ORS 197.835(4), and LUBA may refuse to consider that issue if LUBA finds that notwithstanding the notice failure "the issues could have been raised before the local government[.]" Long v. City of Tigard, 75 Or LUBA 390 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner does not raise an issue clearly, and at one point in the local proceedings takes the opposite position concerning that issue that petitioner takes in its brief at LUBA, the petitioner did not adequately preserve the issue for LUBA review. Long v. City of Tigard, 75 Or LUBA 390 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a city adopts findings that express four different reasons why the city concluded a "change in the neighborhood" criterion for rezoning was met, and petitioner fails to challenge all of those reasons, petitioner fails to demonstrate a basis for remand under the "change in the neighborhood" criterion. Long v. City of Tigard, 75 Or LUBA 390 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument that a city should demand more of an applicant than "just minimally" complying with rezoning standards is not sufficient to preserve a right to argue that the proposed rezoning violates those rezoning standards. Long v. City of Tigard, 75 Or LUBA 390 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A city's error in failing to provide petitioner with a copy of a land use application, when requested, does not result in prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights where petitioner had access to the copy of the application at the planning department throughout the city planning commission's and city council's proceedings and after the city provided petitioner a copy of the application seven days before the city council hearing, petitioner made no request for additional time to present his arguments. Long v. City of Tigard, 75 Or LUBA 390 (2017).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner argues that an issue was raised during two planning commission meetings, but provides only a general cite to the minutes and DVD recordings of the meetings, without a more specific record cite the petitioner has failed to establish that the issue was raised during the proceedings below. Neil v. Columbia County, 74 Or LUBA 442 (2016).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. General expressions of concern that traffic from additional rural residential development would degrade the quality of a rural residential neighborhood are insufficient under ORS 197.763(1) to raise issues regarding consistency with comprehensive plan policies that promote rural residential neighborhoods, absent specific citation to such policies during the proceedings below. Neil v. Columbia County, 74 Or LUBA 442 (2016).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A general argument raised below that the applicant to expand a destination resort failed to provide a comprehensive wildlife management plan does not provide fair notice of specific issues raised on appeal regarding noncompliance with code standards that require "no net loss" of wildlife resources and imposition of a conservation easement. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 540 (2016).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner is not required to anticipate that a city will adopt allegedly erroneous interpretations and object to those interpretations to preserve a right to assign error at LUBA based on those allegedly erroneous interpretations. And assuming a city is legally required to impose a specific condition of approval, a petitioner is not required to anticipate a city will fail to impose the condition of approval in its final written decision and object to that failure during the proceedings that lead to that written decision. Fernandez v. City of Portland, 73 Or LUBA 107 (2016).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the challenged decision annexed both a parcel and a portion of a county road, and the notice of public hearing that the city provided described the application for annexation as including only the parcel and did not reference in any way the portion of the county road that was annexed, the notice of public hearing did not reasonably describe the city's final action, and ORS 197.835(4)(b) allows petitioner to raise new issues. Altamont Homeowners' Assoc., Inc. v. City of Happy Valley, 73 Or LUBA 126 (2016).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Because ORS 197.835(3) limits LUBA's review to issues raised before the "local hearings body," issues raised only to a local appeal body that did not conduct a hearing are insufficient to demonstrate that the issues were raised before the local hearings body for purposes of ORS 197.835(3). Kliewer v. City of Bend, 73 Or LUBA 321 (2016).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the applicant for a vested right determination argued below that it had not lost its vested right and argued for an interpretation of the vested rights standard that would result in a conclusion that the vested right had not been discontinued, on appeal to LUBA the applicant has not waived the ability to challenge the interpretation the local government adopted to support its conclusion that the vested right had been discontinued, even if the applicant's specific arguments against that interpretation were not raised below. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hood River, 72 Or LUBA 1 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an applicant submits a supplemental burden of proof just prior to a hearing on remand, to clarify that a proposed mine would operate year round rather than only during a four month period as had been previously understood by LUBA and the other parties, and that supplemental burden of proof is not made available to the parties until the beginning of the hearing on remand, those opposing parties cannot be expected to discover the longer proposed operating time and object to the modification prior to the close of hearing on remand. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 72 Or LUBA 45 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the applicant's supplemental burden of proof clarifying that a proposed mine will operate year round rather than only four months a year, as was previously understood, was submitted too late on remand to allow opponents time to object prior to the close of the hearing on remand, but the record was held open for 12 days after the hearing at opponents' request and they fail to raise any issue regarding the change to a year round operation, they may not raise that issue at LUBA. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 72 Or LUBA 45 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Explanations contained in staff reports and at planning commission and city council hearings that the city processed applications for a zone change, planned development and variance according to a consolidated procedure under the city's code and that the city council would make the final decision on all three applications are not sufficient to raise an "issue" within the meaning of ORS 197.763(1) that the city exceeded its jurisdiction under the city's code when it consolidated the three applications, and the issue is waived. Harrison v. City of Cannon Beach, 72 Or LUBA 182 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(1) requires that issues that "may be the basis for an appeal to the Land Use Board of Appeals" must be raised locally to preserve them for review at LUBA. ORS 197.835(3) limits LUBA review to preserved issues. But the issues addressed by those statutes are limited to issues that "may be the basis for an appeal to" LUBA and those statutes do not apply to limit the defenses a local government may raise in defending its decision at LUBA in responding to preserved issues that are raised by petitioners at LUBA. Bend/Sisters Garden RV Resort, LLC v. City of Sisters, 72 Or LUBA 200 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where as part of final written argument the applicant submits five letters from experts that include new evidence, a general objection that the five letters include new evidence is sufficient to preserve that objection before LUBA. Because expert testimony almost always includes new professional opinion, even if limited to commenting on other evidence already in the record, an opponent need not specify which portions of the expert testimony the opponent believes constitutes new evidence, in order to satisfy the "raise it or waive it" requirement of ORS 197.763(1). Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 72 Or LUBA 275 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. OAR 660-023-0180(7) requires that a local government conduct an ESEE analysis to determine whether to allow, limit or prevent new conflicting uses within the impact area of a Goal 5 resource. Where a petitioner raised general issues of compliance with OAR 660-023-0180(7) during the proceedings below, but in its findings the county declined to conduct an ESEE analysis to determine whether to allow, limit or prevent new conflicting uses, on appeal to LUBA the petitioner may challenge the county's finding that it need not conduct an ESEE analysis. The petitioner is not required to anticipate that the county will adopt findings concluding that no ESEE analysis is required. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 72 Or LUBA 275 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioner was not given required written notice of hearing but learned of the hearing and appeared at the hearing and participated, he may not assign error to the failure to give notice where he had an opportunity to object to the notice failure and did not do so. That failure to object constitutes a waiver of the issue under ORS 197.763(1) and a failure preserve the right to assign procedural error. Pennock v. City of Bandon, 72 Or LUBA 379 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner argues below that the proposal is not consistent with the comprehensive plan for reasons that are relevant considerations under several applicable comprehensive plan policies, the petitioner may challenge the adequacy of the findings that were ultimately adopted to establish consistency with those plan policies, even if the petitioner failed to cite the plan policies specifically. Kine v. City of Bend, 72 Or LUBA 423 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The petitioner failed to raise the issue below that the upland portion of a creek should be included within the coastal shoreland boundary as a riparian resource, where the only arguments made below regarding the creek concerned flooding and the only arguments regarding the shoreland boundary and riparian resources did not concern the creek. Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Brookings, 71 Or LUBA 14 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under the law of the case principle articulated in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), the parties in a LUBA appeal of a decision following LUBA's remand of an earlier decision may not revisit legal issues that were resolved by LUBA in the prior appeal. Where the board of county commissioners could have reviewed the first decision and resolved interpretive issues differently than the hearings officer did in the first decision, but did not do so prior to the first LUBA appeal, the board of commissioners may not revisit resolved interpretive issues in the decision following remand and is not entitled to the deferential standard of review required by ORS 197.829(1) and Siporen v. City of Medford, 349 Or 247, 243 P3d 776 (2010), in the second appeal. Gould v. Deschutes County, 71 Or LUBA 78 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. As a general proposition, a board of commissioners is free to interpret its land use regulations. But a hearings officer would not be free to interpret county land use regulations differently than LUBA did following a LUBA remand of the hearings officer's initial decision, and the board of commissioners is also not free to do so in a local appeal of the hearings officer's decision following LUBA's remand. Gould v. Deschutes County, 71 Or LUBA 78 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A hearings officer's decision on a property owner's request for an interpretation as to whether approving a floating home development in a zone that allows such development requires an exception to Goal 14 is a quasi-judicial decision rather than a legislative decision. Consequently, the "raise it or waive it" provisions of ORS 197.763(1) apply. Squier v. Multnomah County, 71 Or LUBA 98 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The issue of whether repeal and re-adoption of the county's land use ordinances had the effect of eliminating the acknowledged status of the readopted ordinances was not raised with the specificity required by ORS 197.763(1), where during the proceedings below the petitioner made the very different argument that repeal and re-adoption did not have the effect of acknowledging one of readopted land use ordinances. Squier v. Multnomah County, 71 Or LUBA 98 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under OAR 661-010-0030(4)(d), a party must demonstrate that an issue raised in an assignment of error was preserved during the proceedings below. Although failure to demonstrate such might be viewed as a "technical violation" under OAR 661-010-0005, and need not interfere with LUBA's review proceeding so long as preservation of the issue is addressed elsewhere in the petition for review, a reply brief, or at oral argument, but a complete failure to address preservation of an issue amounts to an effective waiver of that issue. Mackenzie v. City of Portland, 71 Or LUBA 155 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Once a party has withdrawn a local appeal it has "affirmatively waived" the issues presented in that local appeal, and a different party may not subsequently advance such affirmatively waived issues before LUBA absent a demonstration that the party incorporated or asserted the affirmatively waived issues below in a manner that informed the local government and parties that the issues remain live issues that need to be addressed. Mackenzie v. City of Portland, 71 Or LUBA 155 (2015).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Because it is common for a multi-phased tentative subdivision approval to include conditions of approval that apply only to certain phases of development, it is incumbent on a petitioner to raise at the local proceeding any issues involving a legal standard that requires either (1) independent approval of a particular phase of development or (2) the conditioning of construction of an earlier phase of development on fulfillment of conditions applicable to a subsequent phase. Carver v. Washington County, 70 Or LUBA 23 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Code procedures and submittal requirements for a pre-application conference are not "applicable criteria" for purposes of ORS 197.835(4)(a), which allows a petitioner to raise new issues regarding applicable approval criteria that a local government omits from the notice of hearing, and the local government's failure to list pre-application conference code provisions in the notice of hearing does not allow a petitioner to avoid the raise it or waive it requirements of ORS 197.763(1). Knapp v. City of Jacksonville, 70 Or LUBA 259 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 215.416(11)(a)(D) and (E) do not provide authority for LUBA to consider issues that were not raised prior to the close of the initial evidentiary hearing. ORS 215.416(11)(a)(D) operate at the initial de novo evidentiary hearing to allow all issues to be raised, not after that evidentiary hearing to allow issues not raised at the de novo hearing to be raised at LUBA. Del Rio Vineyards, LLC v. Jackson County, 70 Or LUBA 368 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. In circumstances where the local government makes a decision without holding a hearing, ORS 197.835(3) does not apply to limit the issues that LUBA may consider in an appeal of that decision. Devin Oil Co. Inc. v. Morrow County, 70 Or LUBA 420 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government adopts findings that a specific issue has been waived, on appeal to LUBA a petitioner cannot assign error to the merits of the issue without first successfully challenging the finding that the issue was waived. Dion v. Baker County, 70 Or LUBA 438 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the petitioner argued below only that comprehensive plan transportation policies require construction of bike lines on streets adjoining proposed development, but on appeal to LUBA argues instead that the city's code should be interpreted to require construction of bike lanes, the issue of whether the city's code requires construction of bike lanes was not raised below in a manner that allowed the city and applicant to respond, and the issue is waived. SCAN v. City of Salem, 70 Or LUBA 468 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.835(3) does not apply to limit the issues that LUBA may consider when the challenged decision is issued by the local government without holding a hearing, because there was no local "hearings body" within the meaning of ORS 197.835(3) to raise an issue before, and no "land use hearing[]" within the meaning of ORS 197.763(1) to which the procedures in ORS 197.763 would apply. Devin Oil Co. Inc. v. Morrow County, 70 Or LUBA 512 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA will deny an objection that the minutes of a city council hearing are incomplete, because the minutes fail to summarize the oral arguments of petitioner's attorney, where the same arguments are found in writing elsewhere in the record, and petitioner's argument that the defect in the minutes is "material" rests on speculation that petitioner will advance assignments of error to which, petitioner speculates, the respondent might raise waiver challenges. Port of Umatilla v. City of Umatilla, 70 Or LUBA 527 (2014).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Raising a general transportation issue under a local zoning change approval criterion that addresses a number of concerns, without citing the transportation planning rule (TPR) or any of the substantive requirements of the TPR, is not sufficient to preserve a technical TPR argument for review at LUBA. Savage v. City of Astoria, 68 Or LUBA 225 (2013).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where planning staff initially takes a position that a zoning amendment proposal does not comply with an applicable approval standard, but later changes its position and takes the position that the proposal complies with the approval standard, the planning staff's initial position may be sufficient to preserve the issue of whether the proposal complies with the applicable approval standard for LUBA review. But where planning staff takes the position that a proposed zone change complies with the transportation planning rule (TPR) and never changes its position regarding the TPR, the staff position is not sufficient to preserve an issue of TPR compliance for LUBA review. Savage v. City of Astoria, 68 Or LUBA 225 (2013).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(3)(b) requires a local government's notice of quasi-judicial land use hearing "[l]ist the applicable criteria from the ordinance and the plan that apply to the application at issue." The transportation planning rule (TPR) is not part of a local government's "ordinance" or "plan" and a local government's failure to list the TPR in its notice of hearing does not excuse petitioner's failure to preserve her issue concerning the TPR for LUBA review by raising it before the local government. Savage v. City of Astoria, 68 Or LUBA 225 (2013).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The technical support for level of service figures in a traffic impact study (TIS) is a critical part of the TIC and the fact that the draft TIS does not include that technical support in the TIS appendix might require remand so that the final TIS with the technical support appendix could be added to the record. However, where no issue was raised before the local government concerning the missing technical support appendix, the issue is waived. Lowery v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 339 (2013).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument that a fee imposed on development is actually a "franchise fee" and therefore subject to a 20-year term is a different issue than an argument that the city has no legal authority to require the developer to pay the fee and therefore cannot consider the fee as a "benefit" for purposes of an approval criterion requiring that the development be consistent with the overall needs of the community. Raising the first issue did not give the city and applicant fair notice of the second issue, and therefore the second issue is waived under ORS 197.763(1). STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 360 (2013).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument below that the challenged ordinance should be conditioned to require rededication of vacated rights-of-way as proposed by the applicant is sufficient to raise the issue of whether a condition requiring rededication is necessary to ensure that the rights-of-way are rededicated. Conte v. City of Eugene, 66 Or LUBA 334 (2012).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the planning staff reports to the planning commission and to the city council both took the position that a comprehensive plan right-of-way vacation policy established criteria that must be applied in granting a proposed right-of-way vacation, the staff reports were sufficient to raise the issue of whether the city council was obligated to at least adopt findings addressing the comprehensive plan right-of-way vacation policy and petitioner was not required to separately raise that issue to preserve the issue for appeal to LUBA. Heitsch v. City of Salem, 65 Or LUBA 187 (2012).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner waives an assignment of error arguing that the hearings officer committed procedural error in accepting new evidence after the close of the evidentiary record, where the petitioner could have objected to the alleged error in the appeal of the hearings officer's decision to the planning commission, but did not. Conte v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 326 (2012).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. To preserve an issue under the particular terms of a superseded ordinance governing nonconforming uses, it is insufficient to make general arguments that the right to expand the nonconforming use had been lost through abandonment or discontinuance. Hood River Citizens for a Local Economy v. City of Hood River, 65 Or LUBA 392 (2012).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner adequately raises the issue of whether a vested right to construct an expansion of a nonconforming use was lost through discontinuance based on common law and local code provisions, notwithstanding that most of petitioner's arguments below were based on a statute that applies only to counties, where the petitioner's discontinuance argument was not limited to the statute, and the applicant understood petitioner to be raising discontinuance under other authorities and responded to the issue. Hood River Citizens for a Local Economy v. City of Hood River, 65 Or LUBA 392 (2012).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. To raise an issue of constitutional violation with sufficient specificity for purposes of ORS 197.763(1), at a minimum the constitutional provision at issue must be cited or the substance of the constitutional provision argued to the decision maker. A claim for relief from setbacks required under a wetland protection zone is not sufficient to put the decision maker on notice that the petitioner believes that denial of relief would violate the federal Takings Clause. Bundy v. City of West Linn, 63 Or LUBA 113 (2011).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A city's findings that a 40-foot right-of-way is sufficient to accommodate a 14-foot one-way travel surface and two 11-foot shoulders for on-street parking are sufficient to satisfy a criterion that a setback reduction will not "create traffic hazard," where opponents failed to argue below that wider than normal vehicles might not be able to park on the eleven-foot shoulders without extending onto the 14-foot travel surface. Burton v. City of Cannon Beach, 63 Or LUBA 300 (2011).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. To preserve an argument challenging the adequacy or evidentiary support of findings made pursuant to an approval standard, a party must demonstrate that the issue of compliance with that standard was raised below with the specificity required under ORS 197.763(1). Olstedt v. Clatsop County, 62 Or LUBA 131 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A general statement of concern that a proposed campground would cause "interactions between livestock and people" is insufficient under ORS 197.763(1) to raise the issue of compliance with a local code analogue to the ORS 215.296(1) that requires a finding that the proposed use will not force a significant change in or significantly increase the cost of accepted farm practices on surrounding lands devoted to farm use. Olstedt v. Clatsop County, 62 Or LUBA 131 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Local planning staff are considered "participants" in an ORS 197.763 hearing and can in some circumstances raise issues for purposes of ORS 197.763(1). Where planning staff raise an issue below regarding whether the subject parcel was legally created for purposes of an applicable approval criterion and propose a resolution, and that resolution is adopted in the county's final decision, parties may challenge the county's resolution of the issue, even if no party other than staff raised that issue below. Olstedt v. Clatsop County, 62 Or LUBA 131 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.835(4)(a), a party may raise "new issues" to LUBA if the notice of hearing under ORS 197.763(3) failed to list an applicable approval criterion that the local government applied in making its land use decision. Olstedt v. Clatsop County, 62 Or LUBA 131 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner notes a code provision below requiring that subdivisions comply with lot size and dimensions requirements, but does not argue that including internal roads in the calculation of lot size violates the five-acre minimum lot size, the issue of how internal roads affect calculation of lot size is not raised with the specificity required by ORS 197.763(1) and is waived. Burness v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 182 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument raised below that the application fails to address a general code section that includes a sub-section requiring that private roads be vested in a homeowner's association is insufficient to raise with the specificity required by ORS 197.763(1) the issue of whether proposed private roads located on easements must have the underlying fee vested in the homeowner's association. Burness v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 182 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When a respondent argues that an issue raised in an assignment of error was not raised below and the petitioner does not respond to the argument or identify in the record where the issue was raised, LUBA will not search the record on the petitioner's behalf, and will deny the assignment of error. Brockman v. Columbia County, 62 Or LUBA 394 (2011).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The issue of compliance with a local procedural rule requiring the local government to offer participants the opportunity to request a continuance of a hearing that is not the initial evidentiary hearing was not raised below with sufficient specificity, where the petitioner did not cite the local rule to the decision maker, but instead requested a continuance only under ORS 197.763(6), which applies only to the initial evidentiary hearing. Pliska v. Umatilla County, 61 Or LUBA 429 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Arguments that a permit applicant failed to raise any issue concerning a refund of permit fees in his appeal of the permit denial provide no basis for a motion to dismiss. Waiver of issues for failure to raise those issues in a local proceeding or prior LUBA appeals may affect LUBA's scope of review, but such waiver does not affect LUBA's jurisdiction to review a decision that qualifies as a land use decision. Sperber v. Coos County, 61 Or LUBA 477 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a permit applicant claims in his appeal of a county permit decision on the merits that he is entitled to a refund of his permit application fees under ORS 215.427(8) based on the county's failure to take timely action in his application for permit approval, and LUBA rejects that claim, the permit applicant's appeal of a subsequent county decision that denies his request for a refund of his permit application fee under the statue is not precluded where LUBA concluded in petitioner's appeal of the permit on the merits that the challenged initial permit decision took no position regarding whether petitioner was entitled to a refund of his permit application fee under ORS 215.427(8). Sperber v. Coos County, 61 Or LUBA 477 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When a local government argues in its response brief that a petitioner is precluded from advancing particular assignments of error because the local government ruled below that the issues presented in those assignments of error were not preserved for the local appeal, a petitioner may file a reply brief responding to the potentially "new matter" that the assignments of error are waived, but a petitioner may not use the reply brief as a vehicle to allege that the local government erred in limiting the issues it considered during the local appeal. Citizens for Responsible Development v. City of The Dalles, 60 Or LUBA 12 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the petitioner submits written testimony that the proposal is inconsistent with Goal 16, an argument that presumes Goal 16 is applicable, and the planning commission responds to that testimony with a finding that Goal 16 is inapplicable, the issue of whether Goal 16 is applicable has been sufficiently raised for purposes of ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3). The petitioner is not required to anticipate how the local government will respond in its findings to issues raised below. Sommer v. Douglas County, 60 Or LUBA 32 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When a petitioner waits until the rebuttal portion of oral argument to respond to an argument that issues were waived under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3) and provides only a general response that does not include citations to the record, LUBA will rule on the waiver argument as if there had been no response at all. Boucot v. City of Corvallis, 60 Or LUBA 57 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an issue arises whether a petitioner waived his right to raise an issue at LUBA regarding whether a county erroneously found that land is not "other lands" that are suitable for farm use considering the factors set out at OAR 660-033-0020(1)(a)(B), a petitioner may not respond that the applicant raised that issue by addressing those factors below. The only issue raised by the applicant was whether the land does not qualify as such lands; the applicant did not raise the issue of whether the land does qualify as such other land. Just v. Linn County, 60 Or LUBA 74 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government's findings rely heavily on particular factors set out in OAR 660-033-0020(1)(a)(B) to conclude that land does not qualify as "other lands" that are suitable for farm use under OAR 660-033-0020(1)(a)(B), and petitioner waived his right to challenge the findings concerning those particular factors because petitioner raised no issue below concerning those particular factors, LUBA will deny an assignment of error that challenges the adequacy of the county's OAR 660-033-0020(1)(a)(B) findings. Just v. Linn County, 60 Or LUBA 74 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner is not precluded by Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), and ORS 197.825(2) from raising issues at LUBA merely because he failed to list local appeal issues in the proper location on a local appeal form, when the local code does not specify that such failure is a jurisdictional defect or results in a waiver of the right to raise those issues at LUBA. Zeitoun v. Yamhill County, 60 Or LUBA 111 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When the issue raised in the petition for review is whether existing ponds could eliminate or reduce the need for a water system that is listed in an expert study on the costs of farming, merely raising the issue that the ponds could meet some of the livestock watering needs is not sufficient to give fair notice to the county and thus the issue may not be raised at LUBA for the first time. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 60 Or LUBA 131 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government makes an explicit finding that a particular issue has been waived or is otherwise not properly before the local government, but as a precaution adopts alternative findings addressing the merits of the issue, a petitioner cannot invoke LUBA's review authority to challenge the alternative findings on the merits unless the petitioner assigns error to the explicit finding that the issue was waived or otherwise not properly before the local government, and demonstrates that the finding is erroneous. McGovern v. Crook County, 60 Or LUBA 177 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When the state administrative rules applicable to a comprehensive plan amendment are amended during the local proceedings, raising the issue of compliance with the old administrative rules is not sufficient under ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3) to raise the issue of whether the application complies with the new provisions of the amended rules. Walker v. Josephine County, 60 Or LUBA 186 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Although ORS 197.835(4) provides an exception to the "raise it or waive it" rule, it only allows a petitioner to raise new issues based upon applicable criteria that were omitted from the notice. A local provision that tentative approval will expire if not completed and the ORS 227.178(5) limit on the number of days an applicant may extend the deadline for a local government to make a final decision on an application are not "applicable criteria." Therefore, a petitioner may not raise issues concerning the statutes and local provision for the first time at LUBA, even though they were not listed in the notice. Oh v. City of Gold Beach, 60 Or LUBA 356 (2010).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Testimony that the applicant has not shown why a parcel formerly part of a larger ranch cannot be used in conjunction with adjacent and nearby farm properties is sufficient to raise the issue of compliance with OAR 660-033-0030(3), notwithstanding that the petitioner failed to cite the rule. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 58 Or LUBA 101 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a city denies a partition application based on a code provision that was not listed as an approval standard in the notice of hearing and not discussed until late in the hearing, the petitioner's failure to raise issues below regarding application of that code provision does not preclude petitioner from challenging denial under that code provision before LUBA. Stewart v. City of Salem, 58 Or LUBA 605 (2009).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a county adopts both irrevocably committed and physically developed exceptions to the statewide planning goals, but the only issues raised below were directed at the physically developed exceptions, ORS 197.763(1) precludes the petitioner from challenging the irrevocably committed exceptions for the first time at LUBA. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 56 Or LUBA 408 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. While the distinction between "issues" and "arguments" is somewhat imprecise, where a petitioner raises an issue regarding the alleged adequacy of public facilities to satisfy annexation approval standards, raising that issue is not sufficient to also raise an issue regarding the adequacy of the application to meet permit application information requirements. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 56 Or LUBA 504 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the issue petitioners raised a city concerned the adequacy of public facilities to serve an annexed area when it urbanized, petitioners may not raise an issue for the first time at LUBA concerning whether existing public services are adequate to serve the limited level of development that will be permitted prior to the time the annexed property is planned and zoned for urban development. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 56 Or LUBA 504 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners' arguments to LUBA that a local government failed to give notice of its annexation decision within the deadlines specified by statute and by a regional government provide no basis for reversal or remand, where petitioners raised no issue below concerning the adequacy of the notice and petitioners do not allege that the claimed late notice prejudiced petitioners' substantial rights. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 56 Or LUBA 504 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner raises issues regarding compliance with code sidewalk provisions, ORS 197.763(1) does not require the petitioner to anticipate that the city would respond to those issues by "overriding" those code provisions based on recommendations in a transportation study, in order to challenge the city's reliance on the transportation study. Soares v. City of Corvallis, 56 Or LUBA 551 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners adequately raise the issue of compliance with an approval criterion governing groundwater impacts where they argued below that the proposed development should be denied due to groundwater impacts and in response to those arguments the county identifies the approval criterion as applicable and adopts findings addressing it. Gardener v. Marion County, 56 Or LUBA 583 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A statement in the staff report that the subject property is located within a "woodland transition" area and therefore does not require an exception to Goal 4 to rezone it for non-forest use raises no cognizable "issue" under ORS 197.763(1) that the property's elevation and location within the watershed actually places it in a "principal forest land environment" subject to Goal 4. Lofgren v. Jackson County, 55 Or LUBA 126 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A county counsel's memorandum answering a staff question regarding whether the comprehensive plan rural residential designation requires an exception to Goal 4 notwithstanding that the land is not protected by Goal 4 is insufficient to raise the issue of whether a Goal 4 exception is required by other, unrelated comprehensive plan provisions. Lofgren v. Jackson County, 55 Or LUBA 126 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where planning staff recognize an ambiguity in an approval standard, and request and receive a written interpretation from the local government's legal counsel, an issue has been raised regarding the meaning of that approval standard and arguments challenging the local government's view of that standard are not waived under ORS 197.763(1). Lofgren v. Jackson County, 55 Or LUBA 126 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Arguments that the county road is inadequate are insufficient to raise with sufficient specificity an argument that the road cannot be improved without amending the county's transportation system plan. Lofgren v. Jackson County, 55 Or LUBA 126 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument that a party is a "permit holder" and thus entitled to initiate a declaratory ruling request under one subsection of the city's code is insufficient to also raise the issue that the party is a "property owner" entitled to initiate a declaratory ruling under a different subsection of the code. Cushman v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 234 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where respondents argue that issues that are raised in the petition for review were not raised below and for that reason are waived, petitioner should respond to such waiver arguments in a reply brief or in their opening argument at oral argument. Pete's Mtn. Home Owners Assoc. v. Clackamas County, 55 Or LUBA 287 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government objects that a petitioner at LUBA waived an issue by failing to raise that issue before the local government, and the petitioner does not identify where the issue was raised below, either in a reply brief or at oral argument, LUBA will sustain the objection and find that the issue was waived. Citizens Against Annexation v. City of Florence, 55 Or LUBA 407 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Unless a petitioner at LUBA raised some issue before the local government concerning whether a proposed rezoning complies with rezoning criteria, that petitioner may not challenge the adequacy of the local government's findings in support of the rezoning decision in an appeal at LUBA. Citizens Against Annexation v. City of Florence, 55 Or LUBA 407 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The date that a land use decision becomes final for purposes of appeal to LUBA and the date that a land use decision becomes effective need not be the same. Citizens Against Annexation v. City of Florence, 55 Or LUBA 407 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) recommends that conditions of approval be imposed requiring the improvements identified in a traffic impact analysis, and the city's decision states that it will impose the conditions but in fact does not, the petitioner may assign error to the city's failure to impose the conditions, notwithstanding that the petitioner raised no issues below regarding the improvements or the conditions, because ODOT adequately raised the issue. Nygaard v. City of Warrenton, 55 Or LUBA 648 (2008).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A letter from city transportation staff stating that a traffic study and an agreement about timing and cost responsibilities for transferring a private road to the city must be in place prior to city acceptance of the dedication is not sufficient to raise issues regarding the adequacy of a 2004 traffic study of the road. Broken Top Community Assoc. v. Deschutes County, 54 Or LUBA 84 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A hearings officer errs in concluding that an issue was first raised in a letter that was submitted at a stage of the local proceedings where new issues could not be raised, where the same issue was fairly raised earlier in the local proceedings, albeit less clearly and less precisely than in the later letter. Meadow Neighborhood Assoc. v. Washington County, 54 Or LUBA 124 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A member of the decision making body is not a "participant before the local hearings body" for purposes of the raise it or waive it rule at ORS 197.763(1), and questions asked by a city councilor during deliberations regarding application of a floor-area ratio (FAR) standard do not permit petitioners to raise issues regarding the FAR standard for the first time at LUBA. Fleming v. City of Albany, 54 Or LUBA 168 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A staff statement that staff had reached agreement with the applicant with respect to a particular method of demonstrating compliance with a code floor-area ratio (FAR) standard is insufficient to "raise" an issue regarding that method or allow petitioners to challenge it before LUBA, where the statement was presented as a resolved, agreed-upon issue, and no participant questioned that agreement or raised any issue regarding how FAR should be calculated. Fleming v. City of Albany, 54 Or LUBA 168 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(1) requires a party to have raised an issue regarding a proposal's compliance with an approval criterion with sufficient specificity to afford other parties the opportunity to respond. But ORS 197.763(1) does not require a party to raise the precise argument below that they assert on appeal to LUBA. Friends of Linn County v. Linn County, 54 Or LUBA 191 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A local government errs in finding that an appeal of a denial of a sign permit involves only a "request for interpretation" rather than a "permit" to which the provisions of ORS 227.175(10) applied to require a de novo hearing that is not limited to issues raised by the appellant in an appeal statement. Lamar Advertising Company v. City of Eugene, 54 Or LUBA 295 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner is not required to have personally raised an issue below in order to preserve the right to raise that issue at LUBA, provided the issue was raised by someone else below. Where a local government argues the issue was waived, however, the petitioner must identify where in the record the issue was raised by someone else in order to raise the issue at LUBA. Santiam Water Control District v. City of Stayton, 54 Or LUBA 561 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A local government is not required to list statutory or administrative rule criteria in the notice of a quasi-judicial land use hearing required by ORS 197.763(3)(b). Rhinhart v. Umatilla County, 53 Or LUBA 402 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA will consider the issues that a petitioner raises on appeal where no party argues that petitioner waived those issues by failing to raise them below, even if it is not clear that petitioner raised those issues below. Ettro v. City of Warrenton, 53 Or LUBA 485 (2007).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The waiver principle in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), applies to require that a petitioner at LUBA have raised an issue in the local notice of appeal, notwithstanding that the issue may have been raised earlier in the local land use proceeding. That waiver principle does not apply where consideration of a local application for land use approval does not include a local right of appeal. Wasserburg v. City of Dunes City, 52 Or LUBA 70 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument in an intervenor-respondent's brief that the challenged decision must be reversed based on alleged error is, in essence, an assignment of error or cross-assignment of error. However, LUBA will decline to address such arguments where intervenor-respondent fails to demonstrate that the issues raised under such arguments were raised during the proceedings below. Krishchenko v. City of Canby, 52 Or LUBA 290 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the issue raised at LUBA is the adequacy of a city's findings to address specific planning requirements of LCDC's Goal 9 rule, but no party mentioned the Goal 9 rule or otherwise raised any issues regarding the substantive requirements of the Goal 9 rule, that issue was waived and may not be raised for the first time at LUBA. Cornelius First v. City of Cornelius, 52 Or LUBA 486 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When a respondent argues that an issue raised in an assignment of error was not raised below and the petitioner does not respond to the argument or identify in the record where the issue was raised, LUBA will not search the record on the petitioner's behalf and will deny the assignment of error. Williamson v. City of Salem, 52 Or LUBA 615 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a notice of local appeal appeals related subdivision and planned unit development (PUD) approvals, but refers to "residential subdivision" in challenging the type of residential use allowed under both approvals, the local government errs in concluding that the appeal raises issues only with respect to the subdivision and not the PUD, under the reasoning in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 283 (2003). Concerned Homeowners v. City of Creswell, 52 Or LUBA 620 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an intervenor-respondent accurately describes the issue that forms the basis for a petitioner's assignment of error and argues that the issue was not raised below, and petitioner's only answer to the waiver argument is not responsive to that argument and petitioner does not identify where the issue was raised below, the issue is waived under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3). Holloway v. Clatsop County, 52 Or LUBA 644 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner may not fail to assign error to a finding that certain issues were not preserved and are not within the hearings officer's scope of review, and instead on appeal to LUBA, simply assign error with respect to the same issues that the hearings officer found were not preserved. Franzke v. Tigard, 52 Or LUBA 761 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners arguments during the city's local proceedings were all directed a preliminary public facility agreement and whether that agreement had expired making preliminary subdivision plan approval impossible, petitioners may not argue for the first time in their appeal to LUBA that the final public facility agreement is a requirement of preliminary subdivision plan approval. Lockwood v. City of Salem, 51 Or LUBA 334 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where no statute or other authority provides otherwise, a code provision that limits local appeal issues to those issues raised in the notice of local appeal also limits the issues that can be raised before LUBA. Ray v. Josephine County, 51 Or LUBA 443 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.835(4)(a) allows a petitioner to raise new issues before LUBA, notwithstanding petitioner's failure to raise those issues below, but only new issues that relate to applicable criteria omitted from notices required under ORS 197.195 or 197.763. Ray v. Josephine County, 51 Or LUBA 443 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioner bears the burden of establishing that an issue was raised during the local proceedings, and where a respondent argues that petitioner failed to raise an issue during the local proceedings, petitioner may not merely state, without citation to the record, that she recalls raising the issue. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 51 Or LUBA 699 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a city's notice preceding annexation makes no mention that the annexation will result in repeal of all county comprehensive plan and land use regulations that apply to the annexed property, the notice does not reasonably describe the final action and petitioners may raise issues that were not raised during the local proceedings before the city. Friends of Bull Mountain v. City of Tigard, 51 Or LUBA 759 (2006).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A letter from the Oregon Department of Transportation agreeing with county staff's proposal to require the applicant to provide a bond to pay for needed transportation improvements does not raise any issue regarding whether the affected intersection can be made "adequate in a timely manner." City of Damascus v. Clackamas County, 50 Or LUBA 514 (2005).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. To comply with ORS 197.763(3)(b), a notice of hearing must identify the applicable approval criteria by code number or similar means of identification sufficient to direct the recipient to the actual code or plan provisions that the city deems to be approval criteria. Reference to a code provision that itself merely requires "conformance with the comprehensive plan" is insufficient to provide effective notice of any comprehensive plan provisions. Kingsley v. City of Sutherlin, 49 Or LUBA 242 (2005).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The city's failure to list certain plan policies as approval criteria in the notice of hearing does not allow petitioner to raise new issues regarding those plan policies under ORS 197.835(4)(a), where two staff reports and a planning commission decision address the plan policies as approval criteria and petitioner is given ample constructive notice that the city believed the policies to be approval criteria. Kingsley v. City of Sutherlin, 49 Or LUBA 242 (2005).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner wishes to raise an issue concerning an approval criterion that was not listed in the notice of local hearing, the final sentence in ORS 197.835(4)(a) requires that LUBA consider whether, notwithstanding the local government's failure to list the criteria that give rise to an issue a petitioner seeks to raise for the first time at LUBA, the petitioner nevertheless could have raised that issue and, for that reason, should not be allowed to raise the issue at LUBA. Burke v. Crook County, 48 Or LUBA 23 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where approval criteria are not listed in the notice of local hearing, but those approval criteria are expressly referenced in approval criteria that were listed in the notice, and those references are stated in terms that seem to say the referenced criteria operate as approval criteria, petitioner should have raised an issue concerning the referenced approval criteria below, and under the final sentence of ORS 197.835(4)(a), LUBA will not allow petitioner to raise that issue for the first time at LUBA. Burke v. Crook County, 48 Or LUBA 23 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA will not extend the ORS 197.763(1) "raise it or waive it" requirement to legislative proceedings, and a failure to raise an issue under ORS 197.763 is not correctly characterized as a failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Roads End Sanitary District v. City of Lincoln City, 48 Or LUBA 126 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A party may affirmatively waive an issue by specifically agreeing below that the issue is waived or by expressly abandoning the issue. However, a statement by an application opponent that she is "not opposed to protection of personal property" and a discussion of alternatives is neither a specific agreement that the proposed walls are allowed in the applicable zone, nor an express abandonment of that issue. Moreland v. City of Depoe Bay, 48 Or LUBA 136 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An issue regarding compliance with an approval criterion is waived if not raised below, unless the petitioner demonstrates that the local government failed to list the criterion in the notice of hearing under ORS 197.835(4). However, LUBA will not address an issue under ORS 197.835(4) where the petitioner fails to explain why the notice of hearing is defective. Staus v. City of Corvallis, 48 Or LUBA 254 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An assertion in a local notice of appeal that the planning commission erroneously interpreted the comprehensive plan to require preservation of an overlay zoning on the subject property is sufficient to raise an issue, under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), regarding whether the overlay zone had expired. Staus v. City of Corvallis, 48 Or LUBA 254 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.763(1), an objection that a traffic impact analysis is not necessary to demonstrate compliance with a code provision governing the "orderly extension of key urban facilities" is insufficient to raise the issue of whether transportation facilities are "key urban facilities." Knutson Family LLC v. City of Eugene, 48 Or LUBA 399 (2005).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Language in a subarea plan that allows submittal of master plan application with fewer than all of the owners of affected property and requires a particular planning focus for property not controlled by the applicant is a mandatory approval criterion that must be listed in the hearing notice because the city could deny or require modification of the application based on that language. Lowery v. City of Keizer, 48 Or LUBA 568 (2005).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where language in master plan that is a mandatory approval criterion was not listed in the hearing notice, no criterion listed in the notice reasonably would have led petitioners to that language, and petitioners otherwise could not have anticipated the issue because the city's final decision was the first notice petitioners had that the master plan language applied, petitioners did not waive the issue by failing to raise it at the local level. Lowery v. City of Keizer, 48 Or LUBA 568 (2005).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.835(4) does not excuse petitioner's failure to raise issues of compliance with a code approval standard based on the city's failure to list that standard in the notice of hearing, where the staff report and planning commission decision both cite and quote the standard as an applicable approval criterion, and petitioner offers no reason why issues of compliance with that standard could not have been raised before the city. Cove at Brookings Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Brookings, 47 Or LUBA 1 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Testimony that the city's tree cutting ordinance will ensure that any tree removal that occurs under a proposed conditional use permit modification will be consistent with the tree cutting ordinance falls far short of alerting the city that petitioners believe that the tree cutting ordinance will protect adjoining property from windthrow and runoff to the same extent as the original permit. Wiper v. City of Eugene, 47 Or LUBA 21 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Testimony criticizing the city's determination that commercial zoning regulations apply to a proposed highway project in a commercially zoned area that borders on or includes a small portion of residentially zoned land is insufficient to raise an issue as to whether the highway project is a prohibited use in the residential zone. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 47 Or LUBA 38 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A city's alleged misinterpretation of a code provision does not provide a basis for reversal or remand, where the only significance petitioner attaches to the misinterpretation relates to an issue that was not raised below and is therefore beyond LUBA's review. Comrie v. City of Pendleton, 47 Or LUBA 38 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioner testified in opposition to a fish channel associated with a proposed mining expansion, but failed to raise any issue below regarding whether (1) the fish channel is a permitted accessory use or (2) the fish channel is itself a mining activity prohibited in the applicable zone, those issues are waived. Wynn v. Polk County, 47 Or LUBA 73 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Although a petitioner waived its right to challenge a decision for failure to apply Goal 12 (Transportation) or the Transportation Planning Rule, LUBA will consider the legal arguments that the petitioner presents under that assignment of error when LUBA considers petitioner's arguments concerning nearly identically worded county code transportation standards under a different assignment of error. Concerned Citizens v. Malheur County, 47 Or LUBA 208 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under the Beck v. City of Tillamook waiver principle, issues that have been conclusively resolved at a prior point in a single continuous land use proceeding are not reviewable for a second time by LUBA or an appellate court at a later point in that proceeding. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 470 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioner filed a local appeal statement that raised issues that were accompanied by statements sufficient to enable a reasonable decision maker to understand the nature of those issues, those issues are not waived. Friends of Yamhill County v. Yamhill County, 47 Or LUBA 508 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner may not argue at LUBA that a county erred by applying a 25-foot setback rather than a setback that is derived from an individualized multi-factor site investigation, where both planning staff and petitioner discussed the adequacy of the 25-foot buffer and petitioner did not argue before the county that the setback must be based on an individualized site investigation. Willhite v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 340 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. In applying a standard that requires that development within 100 feet of a wetland minimize wildlife impacts, a county commits no error in finding that it is uncertain whether there are wetlands present and imposing a condition of approval that the subdivision applicant prepare a wetlands study and demonstrate that the standard is satisfied in a subsequent quasi-judicial administrative review before final plat approval. Willhite v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 340 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument that unspecified land use regulations and siting standards must be complied with prior to approving a church on EFU-zoned lands is insufficient to apprise the decision maker that petitioner believes that the county must consider an exception to the administrative rule prohibition on churches on high-value farmland before considering whether that prohibition is inconsistent with federal law. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a tie vote of a committee at the conclusion of a de novo appeal of a permit decision under ORS 227.175(10)(a)(A) and (D) occurs after the evidentiary hearing is closed and after the public portion of the local appeal has concluded, and the committee relies on a committee rule to deny the local appeal based on the tie vote, the local appellant did not have an opportunity to object to the rule and may challenge the rule at LUBA. Under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3), that local appellant is not required to anticipate that the final vote might be a tie, and enter a precautionary objection, to preserve its right to challenge the committee rule at LUBA. Hayden Island, Ltd. v. City of Portland, 46 Or LUBA 439 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Before the "raise it or waive it" provisions now codified at ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3) were adopted, LUBA required that a petitioner who asserts procedural error at LUBA must have raised the procedural error below. While the obligation to object locally to procedural errors overlaps with ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3), it exists independently and may require that a petitioner enter an objection after the close of the final evidentiary hearing. Hayden Island, Ltd. v. City of Portland, 46 Or LUBA 439 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. That a committee entertained questions from the public during its deliberations after the close of its final evidentiary hearing does not mean the committee would have allowed a legal challenge to its reliance on a committee rule, or that it would have reconsidered its decision to rely on that rule to deny a local appeal. A petitioner's failure to object to the rule at that stage does not mean the issue is waived in a subsequent LUBA appeal. Hayden Island, Ltd. v. City of Portland, 46 Or LUBA 439 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.763(1), 197.835(3) and ORS 197.825(2), failure to raise an issue in a notice of local appeal of a permit decision means that issue may not be raised in a LUBA appeal of that permit decision. Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003). McKeown v. City of Eugene, 46 Or LUBA 494 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 227.175(10)(a)(E)(ii), which was adopted in response to the Court of Appeals' decision in Johns v. City of Lincoln City, 146 Or App 594, 933 P2d 978 (1997), and specifically provides that a de novo appeal of a permit decision under 227.175(10)(a) may not be limited to issues raised in the local notice of appeal, does not apply to appeals of limited land use decisions. McKeown v. City of Eugene, 46 Or LUBA 494 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument that a county must verify the existence of alleged nonconforming uses, with specific reference to the location of certain structures within a setback, in the course of approving a site plan to expand an existing tourist facility, is insufficient to raise issues regarding (1) the alleged need to follow a separate procedure for verifying nonconforming uses and (2) alleged nonconforming commercial activities on the property. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 46 Or LUBA 509 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party fails to raise any issue during local proceedings regarding a subdivision applicant's proposal not to include removal of dead or dying trees in computing the applicant's mitigation obligation under a tree removal ordinance, that issue is waived and may not be raised at LUBA. The city arborist's isolated comment that it might not be appropriate to omit dead or dying trees in computing the mitigation obligation is not sufficient to preserve the issue for appeal. Miller v. City of Tigard, 46 Or LUBA 536 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party is present at a rezoning hearing where a county commissioner discloses that he and a county planner made a site visit to the subject property, and that party testifies after the disclosure without objecting to the site visit, the planner's attendance at the site visit or the adequacy of the county commissioner's disclosure of the site visit, that party waives his right to assign error based on the site visit in an appeal at LUBA. Mattson v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 552 (2004).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a city fails to provide petitioner the notice of hearing required by ORS 197.763(3), it cannot argue that a petitioner waived his right to argue that an annexation decision violates the city's comprehensive plan by failing to raise that issue during the local proceedings. Morsman v. City of Madras, 45 Or LUBA 16 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. In order to preserve the right before LUBA to challenge the adequacy of findings addressing an approval criterion and the supporting evidence, a petitioner must demonstrate that the proposal's compliance with that criterion was raised below accompanied by statements or evidence sufficient to afford other parties an adequate opportunity to respond. Bruce Packing Company v. City of Silverton, 45 Or LUBA 334 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Arguments made during the local proceedings that a proposed mining operation is not compatible with residential and school related uses located in a nearby city are not sufficient to raise an issue with respect to compatibility of the mining operation with other existing and allowed uses within the farm and forest zone in which the mining operation will be located. Laurance v. Douglas County, 45 Or LUBA 393 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners waive their opportunity to raise issues regarding compliance with city comprehensive plan policies, where petitioners were put on notice during the local proceedings that the city may impose right-of-way requirements that may implicate those policies and petitioners did not identify a conflict with the right-of-way requirements and the comprehensive plan policies as an issue that the city must address. Martin v. City of Dunes City, 45 Or LUBA 458 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Opponents' argument below that a proposed plant nursery should be viewed as a "commercial activity in conjunction with farm use" is not properly limited to an argument that a "retail" plant nursery should be viewed in that manner, and the opponents do not waive their right to argue in an appeal to LUBA that a wholesale nursery should be viewed as a "commercial activity in conjunction with farm use." Lorenz v. Deschutes County, 45 Or LUBA 635 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners may not assign error to a city's failure to adopt findings that address particular statutes, statewide planning goals, comprehensive plan policies or ordinance criteria, where petitioners fail to demonstrate that they raised any issue during the local proceedings concerning those statutes, goals, policies or criteria. Durham v. City of Philomath, 45 Or LUBA 648 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The Oregon Department of Transportation's (ODOT's) general observation during local proceedings that it did not believe the city had adequately addressed the requirements of OAR 660-012-0060, which was followed up with specific concerns that the city addressed to ODOT's satisfaction, is not sufficient to allow a petitioner at LUBA to raise for the first time on appeal specific issues other than the specific concerns identified by ODOT. Thomas v. City of Veneta, 44 Or LUBA 5 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an applicant identifies groundwater as a "discharge" to be considered as a conflict pursuant to OAR 660-023-0180(4)(b)(A), that applicant may not argue on appeal to LUBA that (1) groundwater is not a "discharge" within the meaning of that rule; or (2) that the impact of mining on groundwater may only be considered under OAR 660-023-0180(4)(b)(D) if the mining site is located within a critical groundwater area and is designated as such on the county's Goal 5 inventory of significant Goal 5 sites. Eugene Sand and Gravel, Inc. v. Lane County, 44 Or LUBA 50 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A staff report suggesting that "future development" may require review of traffic impacts from multiple access onto city streets from a large site is insufficient to raise an issue that a proposed parking lot that uses two existing access points from the site to city streets violates a city standard limiting each site to one access point. Bagnell v. City of Corvallis, 44 Or LUBA 284 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A party's contention that an alternative setback must either satisfy Goal 18 or an exception must be taken to that goal is not sufficient to raise an issue regarding whether application of an alternative oceanside setback criterion requires that the city first find the standard oceanside setback is "further from the westerly property line than is required for the protection of the Foredune Management Area." Slepack v. City of Manzanita, 44 Or LUBA 301 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioner's evidentiary challenge to a city's conclusion that an applicable criterion is satisfied provides no basis for reversal or remand, where the challenge is based on petitioner's interpretation of what the criterion requires, and that interpretation was not presented during the local proceedings. Slepack v. City of Manzanita, 44 Or LUBA 301 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where six criteria are clearly identified as applicable permit approval criteria but a planning commission decision fails to address five of those criteria, and petitioner does not identify the planning commission's failure to adopt findings addressing all six criteria in its local appeal to the city council and does not raise any issue concerning the planning commission's failure to adopt such findings prior to the close of the final evidentiary hearing before the city council, the issue of the city's failure to adopt findings addressing all six criteria is waived under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3). Miles v. City of Florence, 44 Or LUBA 411 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a city council specifically asks a local appellant to identify a legal basis for overturning a planning commission decision approving an industrial subdivision and the local appellate fails to do so, the local appellant may not thereafter appeal the decision to LUBA and for the first time argue that the subdivision approval violates specific local code, administrative rule and statutory requirements. Baida v. City of Medford, 44 Or LUBA 473 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. To the extent a local code requirement can be read to preclude petitioners from raising issues before LUBA that were raised before the local government prior to the close of the record following the final evidentiary hearing, such preclusion is inconsistent with ORS 197.763(1). petitioner's appeal is sufficient to allege prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. Shaffer v. City of Happy Valley, 44 Or LUBA 536 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an applicant elects to proceed exclusively under one theory for approval and indicates that it chooses not to proceed on an alternative theory, the applicant has affirmatively waived any issue regarding the alternative theory, and cannot argue to LUBA that the local government should have approved the application under that theory. Beaver State Sand and Gravel v. Douglas County, 43 Or LUBA 140 (2002).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A statement that a party assumes for the sake of argument that a proposed mining area is subject to a Goal 5 rule governing lands that consist of more than 35 percent soils classified as Class I or II is insufficient to raise, with the required specificity, an issue regarding whether the proportion of Class I or II soils may be less than 35 percent, and therefore that the rule does not apply to the proposed mining area. Beaver State Sand and Gravel v. Douglas County, 43 Or LUBA 140 (2002).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The raise it or waive it provisions of ORS 197.763(1) apply only where the local government provides a hearing at which issues may be raised. Where the county did not provide a hearing where petitioners could raise issues, petitioners may raise issues before LUBA in the first instance. Dead Indian Memorial Rd. Neigh. v. Jackson County, 43 Or LUBA 511 (2003).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. While ORS 197.835(4) operates as a limited defense to a waiver challenge under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3), it does not obviate the requirement that a party given the opportunity to object to a procedural error below must do so in order to seek reversal or remand based on that error. Confederated Tribes v. City of Coos Bay, 42 Or LUBA 385 (2002).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Local appeal provisions that require an appellant to specify issues in its notice of appeal to the city council have a preclusive effect on subsequent review only where the council recognizes and imposes that effect. Where the governing body appears to view petitioners' failure to specify an issue in the notice of appeal as giving the governing body the option to address or reject the issue, and the issue is then addressed, LUBA will not presume that the governing body assigned preclusive effect to petitioners' violation of the issue-specification provision. Pearl District Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 40 Or LUBA 436 (2001).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An argument that a county fails to comply with a requirement that a community center be operated primarily by the residents of the local rural community is waived where (1) the only argument below dealt with whether the community center would be operated primarily for the residents of the local rural community; and (2) no one at the local level challenged the applicant's reliance on city employees to staff a major use within the community center. Hendrix v. Benton County, 40 Or LUBA 362 (2001).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The purpose of the ORS 197.763(1) "raise it or waive it" requirement is to prevent unfair surprise. Neither the applicant nor the county should be surprised at petitioner's contention before LUBA that certain local code provisions govern the county's decision, where the application itself addresses those provisions as applicable criteria and proposes findings of compliance with those criteria. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 129 (2001).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a permit application identifies ORS 215.275 as a criterion applicable to the county's decision approving a cellular communications tower on EFU-zoned land and proposes findings of compliance with the statute, the issue of compliance with the statute was raised below and the county's failure to address the statute can be assigned as error, notwithstanding petitioners' failure to raise that issue below. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 129 (2001).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.835(3), LUBA's scope of review includes issues raised below "by any participant." An applicant's written assertions that local code provisions are applicable approval criteria suffice to raise an issue regarding the local government's failure to address such criteria, notwithstanding that opponents to the application did not raise that issue below. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 111 (2001).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Although a petitioner need not raise the precise argument during local proceedings that the petitioner attempts to raise at LUBA, the petitioner must have raised the issue below. Although the distinction between "issues" and "arguments" is imprecise, what is required is fair notice to parties and decision makers so that a reasonable person would know that the issue must be addressed. Reagan v. City of Oregon City, 39 Or LUBA 672 (2001).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The predicate to application of the "raise it or waive it" principle in ORS 197.835(3) is a local proceeding pursuant to ORS 197.195 or 197.763. That principle does not apply to proceedings to vacate county roads under ORS 368.346. Mekkers v. Yamhill County, 39 Or LUBA 367 (2001).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a city determines that revisions to easements within a previously approved subdivision require a replat, verbal testimony and a letter submitted by the applicants' attorney noting that the applicants will comply with the city's determination but consider a replat unnecessary under the statutes cited by the city are sufficient to preserve the issue for appeal to LUBA, notwithstanding that the applicants did not expressly submit the disputed replat application under protest. Haber v. City of Gates, 39 Or LUBA 137 (2000).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Testimony that approving aggregate extraction would compromise an inventoried Goal 5 groundwater resource in the area is sufficient to raise an issue regarding compliance with local provisions designed to protect the county's inventoried Goal 5 resources, notwithstanding that the testimony does not specifically cite those provisions. Jorgensen v. Union County, 37 Or LUBA 738 (2000).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. After the petition for review is filed, petitioner must respond to allegations that issues that are raised in the petition for review were not raised during the local proceedings. If petitioner fails to do so, those issues are waived. However, petitioner is not initially obligated to specify in the petition for review where the issues that are raised in the petition for review were raised below. Robinson v. City of Silverton, 37 Or LUBA 521 (2000).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners' argument during local proceedings that OAR 660-023-0180 does not prohibit a county from applying its land use regulations to a proposed mining operation is not sufficient to raise an issue that LCDC's adoption of OAR 660-023-0180 is inconsistent with other statutory requirements. Turner Community Association v. Marion County, 37 Or LUBA 324 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local decision maker discloses during a local proceeding that one of the parties is her veterinarian and serves on an animal rights organization with her, petitioner's failure to explore concerns about ex parte contacts with that party or possible bias precludes an evidentiary hearing at LUBA to explore such concerns. Tri-River Investment Co. v. Clatsop County, 36 Or LUBA 743 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A notice of hearing that fails to describe any proposed uses that could be authorized by a decision to amend the zoning of property from residential to industrial is "different from the proposal described in the notice to such a degree" that the notice does not "reasonably describe the local government's final action" and thus petitioner may raise new issues pursuant to ORS 197.835(4)(b) notwithstanding petitioner's failure to raise those issues during the proceedings below. Mulford v. Town of Lakeview, 36 Or LUBA 715 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioner may raise new issues before LUBA regarding plan provisions that were not considered by the county where the notice of hearing did not list any applicable comprehensive plan provisions. Petitioner is not obligated by ORS 197.835(4)(a) to comb through the entire comprehensive plan looking for applicable provisions omitted from the notice, in order to avoid a finding that issues regarding applicable plan provisions could have been raised below. City of Newberg v. Yamhill County, 36 Or LUBA 473 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A letter from an ODOT employee regarding negotiations between ODOT and the county does not constitute an affirmative waiver of issues related to minimum street width standards under OAR 660-012-0045(7), where it is unclear what was resolved between the parties and whether the county implemented the parties' resolution. Even if petitioner ODOT had waived that issue, such waiver would not apply to petitioner DLCD. Dept. of Transportation v. Douglas County, 36 Or LUBA 131 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners' argument at LUBA that using agricultural land for a golf course buffer violates the ORS 215.296(1) prohibition against forcing a significant change in farm practices on surrounding lands devoted to farm use was waived, where petitioners' arguments during the local proceedings concerning the proposed buffers were not sufficient for the decision maker to understand and respond to that issue. DLCD v. Jackson County, 36 Or LUBA 88 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(3)(b) only requires that the notice of hearing list the applicable criteria from the local government's ordinance and comprehensive plan. The failure of the notice to list applicable statutory provisions is not a violation of ORS 197.763(3), and does not excuse petitioner from the obligation to raise the issue of compliance with those statutes during the local proceedings. Van Dyke v. Yamhill County, 35 Or LUBA 676 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the record shows petitioner knew or should have known of the existence and potential applicability of criteria in the county ordinance and comprehensive plan that were omitted from the notice of hearing, LUBA will conclude pursuant to ORS 197.835(4)(a) that petitioner could have raised the applicability of those criteria during the local proceedings below, and thus petitioner cannot raise new issues before LUBA regarding those criteria. Van Dyke v. Yamhill County, 35 Or LUBA 676 (1999).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner would not likely have noticed an arguably relevant plan provision where the plan provision was located in a different section of the plan from the plan provisions identified as relevant by the local government in their notice of hearing. Petitioner is therefore not barred by ORS 197.835(4)(a) from raising an issue concerning compliance with the plan provision. Visher v. City of Cannon Beach, 35 Or LUBA 74 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.835(3) does not require a petitioner to raise issues concerning a condition of approval, where the condition of approval first appeared in the final decision. Deal v. City of Hermiston, 35 Or LUBA 16 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioner adequately raised the issue of whether a street would continue to function as a local street, failure to specify the TPR or comprehensive plan provision that required that the street continue to function as a local street does not result in waiver of the issue. Hannah v. City of Eugene, 35 Or LUBA 1 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.835(3) and 197.763 require that petitioners at LUBA have raised the issues they wish to raise at LUBA during the local proceeding. However, this statutory restriction does not apply to individual arguments regarding those issues. DLCD v. Tillamook County, 34 Or LUBA 586 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioner did not specifically raise the issue of compliance with the Fair Housing Act (FHA) in the proceedings below, statements that his clients are disabled and that the property needs to be identified for emergency response services are not sufficient under ORS 197.763 to raise an issue that denial of the requested variance would constitute a failure to make a "reasonable accommodation" under the FHA. Andrusko v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 493 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A decision maker's reference to the Fair Housing Act in a context that is unrelated to the issue that petitioner seeks to raise on appeal does not demonstrate that the issue was raised in the local proceedings with the specificity required by ORS 197.763. Andrusko v. Clackamas County, 34 Or LUBA 493 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioner only provides a bare reference to "equal protection" as a constitutional claim, that is not sufficient to afford the local government and the opposing parties an adequate opportunity to respond to the issue pursuant to ORS 197.763(1). Yontz v. Multnomah County, 34 Or LUBA 367 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner at LUBA challenges an interpretation that first appeared in the challenged decision, petitioner need not have raised an issue concerning that interpretation during the local proceedings. Tenly Properties Corp. v. Washington County, 34 Or LUBA 352 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where LUBA remands a decision to a local government to adopt an interpretation of its plan and petitioner participates in those proceedings on remand but fails to raise any issue about the city council's authority to interpret the plan without referring the matter to the planning commission, petitioner waives her right to raise that issue in a subsequent appeal of the city council's decision on remand to LUBA. Jebousek v. City of Newport, 34 Or LUBA 340 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Comments during local proceedings expressing opinions about low-income residents do not adequately raise issues concerning unlawful segregation, violation of the Fair Housing Act or violation of the equal protection clause for purposes of preserving the right to raise those issues on appeal to LUBA. St. Johns Neighborhood v. City of Portland, 34 Or LUBA 46 (1998).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(1) requires the proponent of an evidentiary hearing to demonstrate that the reason facts are missing from the record is not due to the proponent's failure to submit information sufficient to afford the local governing body the opportunity to respond. St. Johns Neighborhood Assn v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 836 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an issue is adequately raised below, ORS 197.763 does not limit particular arguments related to that issue on appeal. DLCD v. Curry County, 33 Or LUBA 728 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3), all petitioner must do is raise the issue before the final evidentiary hearing record is closed to enable petitioner to raise an issue before LUBA. Central Bethany Dev. Co. v. Washington County, 33 Or LUBA 463 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner failing to respond to a local government's request to make his general objections more detailed fails to afford the city an opportunity to respond, may not make those objections more detailed for the first time at LUBA and waives the right to appeal based on those objections. Arnett v. City of Lake Oswego, 33 Or LUBA 384 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A decision maker's finding that a petitioner has not raised an issue below with sufficient statements and evidence to enable the decision maker to respond does not compel LUBA to reach the same conclusion. . Arnett v. City of Lake Oswego, 33 Or LUBA 384 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a city fails to list a code criterion on a notice of hearing but the criterion precedes and is on the same page as one that was listed, and both pertain to variances, ORS 197.835(4)(b) makes it appropriate for LUBA to refuse to allow a petitioner to raise issues related to the unlisted criterion, particularly when the petitioner does not contend it was unaware of the existence of the unlisted criterion. Tandem Development Corp. v. City of Hillsboro, 33 Or LUBA 335 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioner's general references to issues during local proceedings on remand from LUBA are sufficient to avoid waiver on those issues in a subsequent LUBA appeal, where petitioner raised those issues with specificity during the initial local proceeding, the LUBA remand decision was based on them, and the county's findings on remand discussed them in detail. DLCD v. Curry County, 33 Or LUBA 313 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Although a local government may narrow its own scope of review in local appeals, it cannot narrow LUBA's scope of review over issues raised at any time below. Laurance v. Douglas County, 33 Or LUBA 292 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.835(4)(a), petitioners may raise new issues before LUBA if the city failed to follow applicable local procedures as required by ORS 197.195(3)(a). If the local code requires a public hearing as an applicable procedure, the city's failure to follow that procedure would allow petitioners to raise the issue before LUBA. Venable v. City of Albany, 33 Or LUBA 1 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the city's application form requests a written narrative, but petitioner does not identify an applicable legal standard or criterion that requires its submission, petitioner may not raise new issues as a result of the city's failure to include such a criterion on the notice of hearings. Design Home Construction v. City of Silverton, 32 Or LUBA 452 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners contend a decision fails to address an applicable approval criterion that was not identified in the local government's hearing notice as required by ORS 197.763(3)(b), and respondents contend petitioners cannot raise this issue because they failed to raise it below, LUBA must decide whether the provision in question establishes an approval criterion for the subject application, in which case petitioners may raise the new issue before LUBA pursuant to ORS 197.835(4)(b). Wicks-Snodgrass v. City of Reedsport, 32 Or LUBA 292 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. If a notice of hearing does not mention a potentially applicable code provision and the participants below were therefore unaware of its existence or possible applicability, petitioners may raise new issues associated with that provision before LUBA. DeBates v. Yamhill County, 32 Or LUBA 276 (1997).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The 1995 amendment to ORS 197.763(1) adds a requirement that issues not only be raised, but also be accompanied by statements or evidence sufficient to afford the local decision maker an opportunity to respond. What is "sufficient" still depends upon whether the governing body, planning commission, hearings body or hearings officer, and the parties are afforded an adequate opportunity to respond to each issue. Lett v. Yamhill County, 32 Or LUBA 98 (1996).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where defining the relevant area is an essential, stated component of the stability standard for nonfarm dwellings, petitioner must object below to the area selected by the county in order to avoid waiving the objection on appeal. Lett v. Yamhill County, 32 Or LUBA 98 (1996).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners' general statement in the local proceedings that the proposed use was inappropriate for the area did not sufficiently raise the issue of whether the definition of a solid waste disposal site could include a yard waste composting facility. Under ORS 197.835(3), petitioners waived their right to raise that issue before LUBA. Richards-Kreitzberg v. Marion County, 32 Or LUBA 76 (1996).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party contends petitioners have waived their right to raise a certain issue on appeal by failing to raise it below, and petitioners neither cite to the local record where that issue was raised, nor establish a violation of ORS 197.763(3)(b) related to the issue they wish to raise, petitioners have waived their right to raise the issue. Friends of Indian Ford v. Deschutes County, 31 Or LUBA 248 (1996).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA does not have authority to review a variance request that was never considered by the city council. Main Auto Body v. City of Salem, 30 Or LUBA 194 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When a petitioner was explicitly provided the opportunity to raise certain issues regarding compliance with the local zoning ordinance before the city, but did not do so, ORS 197.835(3) precludes her from doing so for the first time on appeal. Noble v. City of Fairview, 30 Or LUBA 180 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners' general references during the local proceedings to the density and appropriate zoning of the site were not sufficiently specific to put the governing body on notice that petitioners objected to the applicability and validity of an urban fringe management agreement between the city and the county. Friends of Neabeack Hill v. City of Philomath, 30 Or LUBA 46 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party contends petitioners have waived certain issues, and petitioners neither cite to the local record where those issues were raised nor establish they may raise new issues under ORS 197.835(2)(a) or (b), petitioners have waived their right to raise those issues on appeal. Wakeman v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 521 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. When the notice of an evidentiary hearing on a local appeal is so vague that petitioners cannot understand the proposal under review, and when the decision on the local appeal is substantially different from the administrative decision being appealed, under ORS 197.835(2)(b) petitioners may raise new issues for the first time before LUBA. Collier v. Marion County, 29 Or LUBA 462 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party contends petitioner has waived certain issues, and petitioner neither cites where in the local record those issues were raised nor contends it may raise new issues under ORS 197.835(2)(a) or (b), those issues have been waived. Pend-Air Citizen's Comm. v. City of Pendleton, 29 Or LUBA 362 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. If the local government did not hold a land use hearing, subject to the requirements of ORS 197.763, before making the challenged decision, petitioners cannot waive the right to raise issues for the first time on appeal to LUBA, because they were not provided the forum in which to raise such issues at the local level. Leathers v. Washington County, 29 Or LUBA 343 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. There is no meaningful difference between ORS 197.195(3)(c)(B) and 197.763(1) "raise it or waive it" requirements. Clark v. City of Albany, 29 Or LUBA 325 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners could have raised an issue prior to the close of the evidentiary hearing before the local governing body, but failed to do so, that petitioners were precluded from raising the issue during the earlier evidentiary hearing before the planning commission does not mean petitioners can raise the issue for the first time before LUBA. O'Rourke v. Union County, 29 Or LUBA 303 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Local government failure to list any applicable comprehensive plan or ordinance criterion in the written and oral notices required by ORS 197.763(3)(b) and (5)(a) constitutes a violation of ORS 197.763 which allows parties to raise new issues before LUBA, regardless of whether the new issues relate to the omitted criterion. Mission Bottom Assoc. v. Marion County, 29 Or LUBA 281 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where respondent contends petitioner has waived issues concerning compliance with certain legal standards, and petitioner neither cites places in the local record where compliance with those legal standards was discussed, or their operative terms were cited, nor contends she may raise new issues under ORS 197.835(2)(a) or (b), the issues have been waived. Cox v. Yamhill County, 29 Or LUBA 263 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Even though petitioner did not raise the issue of compliance with a particular approval criterion below, the issue was not waived if it was raised sufficiently by other parties to the local proceedings. Mitchell v. City of Medford, 29 Or LUBA 158 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where, during the local proceedings, no party referred to the Equal Privileges and Immunities Clause of Article I, section 20, of the Oregon Constitution, or the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, by name, article and section or amendment number, or their operative terms, petitioner is precluded from raising violation of these constitutional provisions as an issue in an appeal to LUBA. ORS 197.763(1); 197.835(2). Craven v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 125 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. If issues were not raised during the local government proceedings, under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2), petitioner may not raise in an appeal to LUBA the local government's failure to address those issues in its findings. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 29 Or LUBA 39 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Because a local code enforcement proceeding does not involve an "application" or an "applicant" in the sense those terms are used in ORS 197.763, the "raise it or waive it" provisions of ORS 197.763 and 197.835(2) do not apply to such proceedings. Sanchez v. Clatsop County, 29 Or LUBA 26 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(1), 197.830(10) and 197.835(2) do not limit the issues which may be raised before LUBA in an appeal of a local government legislative land use decision. Opus Development Corp. v. City of Eugene, 28 Or LUBA 670 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. If respondents fail to claim or demonstrate that all petitioners affirmatively waived an issue, the principle of affirmative waiver does not apply. Opus Development Corp. v. City of Eugene, 28 Or LUBA 670 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners never had an opportunity to participate in the local process utilized for adopting the decision on remand, petitioners had no opportunity to raise issues during the remand proceedings and, therefore, are not limited by "raise it or waive it" rules. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 28 Or LUBA 591 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the local government's notice of its first evidentiary hearing before the planning commission failed to list the applicable standards, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(b), petitioners may raise issues at LUBA even though such issues may not have been raised during the local proceedings. However, this procedural error provides no basis for reversal or remand of the decision where petitioners fail to establish the error caused prejudice to their substantial rights. Shapiro v. City of Talent, 28 Or LUBA 542 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where during the local proceedings petitioners affirmatively waived their right to request a continuance, petitioners cannot raise the local government's failure to provide such a continuance as a basis for reversal or remand in an appeal to LUBA. Shapiro v. City of Talent, 28 Or LUBA 542 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An applicant that cites certain statutes during local proceedings, and states that those statutes do not affect the burden of proof, waives its right to argue in an appeal at LUBA that those statutes preempt local standards. Louks v. Jackson County, 28 Or LUBA 501 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government fails to list a single applicable approval criterion in its notice of initial evidentiary hearing, issues may be raised at LUBA even though they were not raised during the local proceedings. Lamm v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 468 (1995).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the challenged decision includes a determination that a nonconforming use of the subject property exists, but the notice of hearing indicated the only issue to be addressed was an expansion of an existing nonconforming use, the notice of hearing failed to adequately describe the nature of the application, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(a), and failed to reasonably describe the county's final action under ORS 197.835(2)(b). Either of these deficiencies means petitioners may raise issues before LUBA regardless of whether they were raised below. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under the "raise it or waive it" statute, LUBA's review is limited to arguments raised during the local proceedings only where the local government complies with the requirements of ORS 197.763. Neuman v. City of Albany, 28 Or LUBA 337 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Although a local government is free to adopt local code provisions narrowing the scope of review in local appeal proceedings, such local code provisions do not have the legal effect of limiting LUBA's scope of review. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 28 Or LUBA 263 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA's review of limited land use decisions is limited to issues raised before the local government, unless (1) the local government did not satisfy the procedural requirements of ORS 197.195, or (2) the limited land use decision adopted differs significantly from the proposal described in the local notice of proposed action. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 28 Or LUBA 263 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where, during local comprehensive plan map amendment and zone change proceedings, petitioner advised the local government that Statewide Planning Goal 5 requires an analysis regarding only a nearby aggregate operation, petitioner affirmatively waived any Goal 5 issues unrelated to the nearby aggregate operation. DLCD v. Curry County, 28 Or LUBA 205 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Prior to the filing of the petition for review, LUBA cannot tell whether all issues a petitioner potentially may raise in the petition for review are barred by the "raise it or waive it" provisions of ORS 197.763 and 197.835(2). Scholes v. Jackson County, 28 Or LUBA 728 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.830(10) and 197.835(2), LUBA's review of both land use decisions and limited land use decisions is limited to issues raised below, unless (1) the local government did not satisfy the procedural requirements of ORS 197.763 or ORS 197.195, or (2) the land use decision or limited land use decision adopted differs significantly from what was described in the local government's notice. Tri-County Metro. Trans. Dist. v. City of Beaverton, 28 Or LUBA 78 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the relevant local government notices did not list the applicable approval criteria, as required by both ORS 197.763(3)(b) and 197.195(3)(c)(C), then regardless of whether the challenged decision is a land use decision or limited land use decision, issues may be raised before LUBA irrespective of whether they were raised during the proceedings below. Tri-County Metro. Trans. Dist. v. City of Beaverton, 28 Or LUBA 78 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(1) does not require petitioners to raise with specificity, prior to the close of the evidentiary hearing, issues regarding aspects of a condition of approval that were not imposed until the governing body adopted the local government's final decision. Beck v. City of Happy Valley, 27 Or LUBA 631 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party is entitled to and requests a continuance under ORS 197.763(4), and the local government decision maker does not respond to the request or grant a continuance prior to the close of the evidentiary hearing portion of a quasi-judicial land use proceeding, the party does not waive its right to allege failure to grant the continuance as error in a LUBA appeal by failing to repeat the continuance request at subsequent local government meetings held to adopt a final written decision. Historical Development Advocates v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 617 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government mistakenly believes it is adopting a limited land use decision, and for that reason fails to follow the notice and hearing requirements of ORS 197.763, no issues petitioner wishes to raise at LUBA were waived because they were not raised below. ORS 197.835(2)(a). Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 480 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA applies statutory waiver requirements to limited land use decisions the same way it applies them to land use decisions. LUBA's review of limited land use decisions is limited to issues raised below unless (1) the local government did not satisfy the procedural requirements of ORS 197.195, or (2) the limited land use decision adopted differs significantly from that described in the local notice of proposed action. Barrick v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The ORS 197.195(3)(c)(B) provision that only issues raised "with sufficient specificity" below may be raised before LUBA in an appeal of a limited land use decision requires only that an issue be raised sufficiently to afford the local government and other parties an opportunity to respond. Barrick v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where respondents argue petitioners may not raise an issue in their petition for review because they failed to raise the issue below, and petitioners make no attempt to identify where in the record the issue was raised, LUBA will not consider the issue. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 27 Or LUBA 243 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners questioned how much of the subject property was utilized for rock quarrying purposes and how much rock was quarried during the relevant period of time, during local proceedings to determine whether a rock quarry qualifies as a nonconforming use, this is adequate to enable a reasonable decision maker to understand issues were raised concerning the size and scope of quarrying activities and the adequacy of the evidence relating to those issues. Mazeski v. City of Mosier, 27 Or LUBA 100 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. If a party contends an issue petitioners seek to raise before LUBA in an appeal challenging a limited land use decision was not raised during the local proceedings, and petitioners neither identify where in the record the issues were raised below nor claim the local government failed to follow the procedures required by ORS 197.195, petitioners may not raise the issue for the first time before LUBA. Dorgan v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 64 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where respondents argue in their briefs that issues raised in a petition for review are waived under ORS 197.835(2) because they were not raised below, a petitioner may point out where in the record such issues were raised, or assert any defenses that may be available under ORS 197.835(2)(a) or (b) in response to the waiver argument, either at oral argument or in a reply brief. Zippel v. Josephine County, 27 Or LUBA 11 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(5)(a) requires that a statement listing the applicable substantive criteria from the local government comprehensive plan and code be made at the beginning of a quasi-judicial land use hearing. Where such a statement is not made, or other requirements of ORS 197.763 are not met, petitioners may raise new issues in an appeal to LUBA. Eppich v. Clackamas County, 26 Or LUBA 498 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.763, so long as issues are sufficiently raised locally to give the local government and other parties an opportunity to respond, those issues may be raised at LUBA. Citizens for Resp. Growth v. City of Seaside, 26 Or LUBA 458 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party contends that issues petitioners seek to raise before LUBA were not raised during the local proceedings, and petitioners neither identify where in the record the issues were raised below nor claim the local government failed to follow the procedures required by ORS 197.763, petitioners may not raise the issues for the first time before LUBA. Pacific Rivers Council, Inc. v. Lane County, 26 Or LUBA 323 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where an applicant specifically agreed during local proceedings that the local government could impose certain conditions of approval, the applicant may not later challenge those conditions of approval in an appeal of the local government's decision at LUBA. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 26 Or LUBA 247 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(7) does not preclude a local government from reopening an evidentiary record for limited purposes after it has been closed. It simply provides that if the record is reopened, new issues may be raised in an appeal to LUBA with regard to the evidence accepted after the record is reopened. Sorte v. City of Newport, 26 Or LUBA 236 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners allege that a procedural error occurred after the close of the record following the final local government evidentiary hearing on an application, it is not possible for petitioners to raise the error below "as provided by ORS 197.763" and, therefore, ORS 197.835(2) does not preclude petitioners from raising the issue before LUBA. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2) do not supersede LUBA's prior rulings that where a party has an opportunity locally to object to a procedural error, at any stage of the local government proceedings, but fails to do so, that error cannot be assigned as grounds for reversal or remand of the local government's decision in an appeal to LUBA. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners reasonably relied on a local code provision and hearing notice stating the governing body's review is limited to the evidentiary record before the planning commission, and were unaware that materials not in the planning commission record were placed before the governing body, petitioners do not waive their right to assert this error before LUBA by failing to object to it below. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Local government failure to comply with ORS 197.763(3) notice of hearing requirements (1) means that under ORS 197.835(2)(a), LUBA may consider issues that were not raised below; and (2) is a procedural error which, under ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B), provides a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision only if such error prejudices petitioners' substantial rights. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. In order to preserve the right to challenge at LUBA the adequacy of the adopted findings to address a relevant criterion, or the evidentiary support for such findings, a petitioner must challenge the proposal's compliance with that criterion during the local proceedings. However, the particular findings ultimately adopted or evidence ultimately relied on by the decision maker need not be anticipated and specifically challenged during the local proceedings. Lucier v. City of Medford, 26 Or LUBA 213 (1994).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners contend that under ORS 197.835(2)(a), they may raise new issues before LUBA because the local government failed to comply with ORS 197.763, and petitioners allege specific respects in which the local government failed to follow the procedural requirements of ORS 197.763, the local government or other respondents must demonstrate that the local government complied with the relevant requirements of ORS 197.763. Cummings v. Tillamook County, 26 OR LUBA 139 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the local government's notice of hearing did not include the list of applicable criteria or the explanation of the rights to request a continuance and to keep the record open that are required by ORS 197.763(3)(b) and (j), petitioners may raise issues in their appeal to LUBA irrespective of whether they were raised during the proceedings below. Cummings v. Tillamook County, 26 OR LUBA 139 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Once a local government identifies the relevant approval standards in a local quasi-judicial land use proceeding, a party may not fail to argue certain identified standards are advisory rather than mandatory, and later in an appeal to LUBA claim it could not have anticipated the local government would apply one or more of the identified standards to deny the party's request for land use approval. Eskandarian v. City of Portland, 26 Or LUBA 98 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. A petitioner may challenge a local government's interpretation of its regulations without having raised an issue during the local proceedings concerning that interpretation, where the interpretation first appears in findings prepared and adopted after the final local evidentiary hearing. Eskandarian v. City of Portland, 26 Or LUBA 98 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where testimony below does not refer to ORS 215.296 by its statutory citation, title or any recognized abbreviation for either, and does not employ any of the operative terms of the statute, a reasonable local decision maker would not have understood that compliance with ORS 215.296 was raised below, and petitioner may not raise this issue before LUBA. Spiering v. Yamhill County, 25 Or LUBA 695 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Because ORS 197.835(2) states that issues raised before LUBA "shall be limited to those raised by any participant before the local hearings body," as long as a particular issue was raised below by some participant, petitioners may raise that issue before LUBA. Spiering v. Yamhill County, 25 Or LUBA 695 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where ORS 197.763 was not in effect at the time the subject application was submitted to the local government, LUBA's scope of review is not limited to issues raised during the local proceedings. Choban v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 572 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. While a local government has authority to regulate the conduct of local proceedings, including the conduct of local appeals, it may not limit LUBA's review authority in ways not authorized by statute. Choban v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 572 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under the "raise it or waive it" provisions of ORS 197.763 and ORS 197.835(2), a local government's failure to list a single relevant criterion means petitioner need not have raised an issue locally as a prerequisite for raising that issue before LUBA, even where the issue pertains to plan or land use regulation criteria that were listed in the notice required by ORS 197.763(3)(b). Weuster v. Clackamas County, 25 Or LUBA 425 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA's scope of review is limited by ORS 197.835(2) and 197.763(1) to issues raised during the local government proceedings, only where the local government complies with the requirements of ORS 197.763. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 25 Or LUBA 411 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. LUBA will not consider allegations that a "similar use" ruling should have been sought below, where the local government alleges no issue was raised below concerning the necessity for such a "similar use" ruling and petitioner provides no citations to the record showing the issue was raised below. Cooley v. Deschutes County, 25 Or LUBA 350 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a letter submitted below makes several statements arguing that a proposed dwelling is not "necessary for" forest use of the subject property, but mentions only in passing the "accessory to" portion of the local government "necessary for and accessory to a permitted forest use" standard, the "accessory to" issue was not raised specifically enough to give respondents a reasonable opportunity to respond and, therefore, is waived. DLCD v. Coos County, 25 Or LUBA 158 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners referred several times during local proceedings to a nonconforming parking lot as having only 22 spaces, petitioners did not waive their right to challenge a city decision approving changes in the nonconforming parking lot to allow 32 spaces. Glisan Street Assoc., Ltd. v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 116 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Local government provisions narrowing the scope of review during local appeals do not similarly narrow LUBA's scope of review under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2). Davenport v. City of Tigard, 25 Or LUBA 67 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners contend a decision fails to address an applicable approval criterion that was not identified in the local government's hearing notice as required by ORS 197.763(3)(b), and respondents contend petitioners cannot raise this issue because they failed to raise it below, LUBA must decide whether the provision in question establishes an approval criterion for the subject application, in which case petitioners may raise the new issue before LUBA pursuant to ORS 197.835(2)(a). O'Mara v. Douglas County, 25 Or LUBA 25 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Because a constitutional taking claim is not dependent upon a local government's adoption of a particular interpretation of an ordinance, in that denial of an application for development approval is a reasonably foreseeable possibility, a petitioner is required to raise taking claims during the local proceedings or waive the right to raise those issues at LUBA. Larson v. Multnomah County, 25 Or LUBA 18 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the characterization of an alleged nonconforming use is the primary issue during the local proceedings, to preserve for eventual appeal to LUBA the issue of whether the alleged nonconforming use includes sales of equipment, a petitioner must do more than state in passing during the local proceedings that he maintained equipment he had a right to sell. Rhine v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 557 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners could not reasonably have known a local government would adopt a particular interpretation of local ordinances, petitioners are not required by ORS 197.835(2) and 197.763(1) to have challenged the interpretation during the local proceedings below in order to challenge the interpretation before LUBA. Larson v. Multnomah County, 24 Or LUBA 629 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Because a constitutional taking claim is not dependent upon a local government's adoption of a particular interpretation of an ordinance, in that denial of an application for development approval is a reasonably foreseeable possibility, a petitioner is required to raise taking claims during the local proceedings or waive the right to raise those issues at LUBA. Larson v. Multnomah County, 24 Or LUBA 629 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. While a local government is not obliged to respond to a taking claim raised during the local proceedings, the local government should, in the first instance, have an opportunity to respond to a taking issue during the local proceedings. Where there is more than one possible interpretation of the local approval standards, the local government should at least have the opportunity, if possible, to adopt an interpretation that is constitutional. Larson v. Multnomah County, 24 Or LUBA 629 (1993).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government fails to adopt any findings addressing apparently applicable statewide planning goal, administrative rule and comprehensive plan criteria, the local government may not avoid a remand by arguing petitioner failed to preserve its ability to raise the issue of compliance with those provisions by not raising the issue with sufficient specificity during the local proceedings. In such circumstances, it is the failure to adopt findings that necessitates remand. ODOT v. City of Waldport, 24 Or LUBA 344 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the petition for review has not yet been filed, LUBA will not, in ruling on a motion to dismiss, determine whether issues that may be raised in the petition for review were waived under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2). Glisan Street Assoc. v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 600 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local planning official refuses to accept petitioner's local appeal of a hearings officer's decision on a permit application, but another local appeal of the same decision is processed, the refusal is either (1) a final land use decision, in which case a NITA must be timely filed with LUBA; or (2) part of the ongoing local proceedings on the subject application, in which case in an appeal of the local government's final decision, LUBA can only consider issues concerning the refusal to accept petitioner's appeal if those issues were raised below. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 98 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.830(10) and 197.835(2) do not limit the issues which may be raised before LUBA in an appeal of a local government legislative land use decision. DLCD v. Columbia County, 24 Or LUBA 32 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where respondents contend petitioners did not raise an issue in the local proceedings, and petitioners cite nothing in the record establishing they raised the disputed issue in the local proceedings, petitioners may not raise that issue for the first time in an appeal to LUBA. Larson v. Wallowa County, 23 Or LUBA 527 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the local government fails to identify the relevant plan and land use regulation standards in the notice of hearing, a petitioner is free to raise noncompliance with those standards in an appeal to LUBA, even though compliance with such standards was not raised as an issue below. Ruff v. Harney County, 23 Or LUBA 521 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. An issue is waived if it is not sufficiently raised below to enable a reasonable decision maker to understand the nature of the issue. Where no party below ever referred to OAR 660-12-060 by its title, rule number or by any recognized abbreviation of either, a reasonable local decision maker would not have understood that the applicability of OAR 660-12-060 had been raised as an issue. ODOT v. Clackamas County, 23 Or LUBA 370 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where the local code contains separate sections imposing an identical standard on decisions approving farm dwellings on existing parcels and decisions approving partitions creating new farm parcels, a petitioner who raised an issue concerning compliance with that standard during local proceedings does not waive its right to raise that issue in an appeal at LUBA simply because petitioner cited the wrong code section. DLCD v. Yamhill County, 23 Or LUBA 361 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government's notice of hearing does not comply with ORS 197.763(3)(b) because it fails to identify an applicable statewide planning goal as an approval criterion, petitioners may raise the local government's failure either to comply with or to adopt an exception from that goal as an issue in a LUBA appeal proceeding. Murray v. Marion County, 23 Or LUBA 269 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2), if a party does not raise issues concerning a local government's authority or jurisdiction to render the challenged decision during the local proceedings, LUBA lacks authority to review such issues. Neste Resins Corp. v. City of Eugene, 23 Or LUBA 55 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government contends an issue was not raised below, and the petitioner fails to cite any portions of the record which he contends demonstrate that he raised the issue during the local proceedings, under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2) that issue may not be raised in an appeal to LUBA. Coyner v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 79 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner failed to raise below any issue concerning a local government's obligation to coordinate its decision with other jurisdictions under ORS 92.044(1)(c), petitioner may not raise the issue for the first time in an appeal to LUBA. Southwood Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Philomath, 22 Or LUBA 742 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners had the opportunity to object to alleged procedural errors in the local proceeding in an appeal to the governing body, but did not do so, they may not assign the alleged procedural errors as a basis for reversal or remand by LUBA. Simmons v. Marion County, 22 Or LUBA 759 (1992).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party alleges petitioners failed to raise an issue during the local proceedings, and petitioners neither contend they raised the issue below nor claim the local government failed to follow the procedures required by ORS 197.763, petitioner may not raise the issue for the first time at LUBA. ORS 197.763(1); 197.835(2). Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 198 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Petitioners cannot raise the issue of whether the subject proposal constitutes a "new structure" prohibited by the local code, when testimony below did not cite the relevant code provision, use its operative terms or otherwise afford the other parties an opportunity to respond to this issue. Broetje-McLaughlin v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 198 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government contends issues were not raised during the local proceedings, and petitioner fails to provide record citations establishing that the disputed issues were raised below, LUBA will not review the disputed issues. Cummins v. Washington County, 22 Or LUBA 129 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The issue of whether the local government must consider impacts of all uses potentially allowed by a plan and zone map amendment was adequately raised during local proceedings pursuant to ORS 197.763(1), where petitioners informed the local government that they believed any use allowable under the proposed plan and zone designations could occur on the subject site, notwithstanding petitioners' failure to explain below what they believed the legal consequences of this theory to be. Brown & Cole, Inc. v. City of Estacada, 21 Or LUBA 392 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Read together, ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2) provide a two-step analysis for determining whether an issue is raised locally for purposes of an appeal on that issue to LUBA. First, issues must be raised "no later than the close of the record at or following the final evidentiary hearing on the proposal before the local government." Second, issues need only be raised before one of the local decision makers listed in ORS 197.763(1) sufficiently to enable the parties and the decision maker to respond to the issue. Tice v. Josephine County, 21 Or LUBA 371 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Expressions of general concerns about street system safety during local proceedings are not adequate to raise issues concerning compliance with local code standards governing right-of-way and street pavement widths with "sufficient specificity so as to afford the governing body * * * and the parties an adequate opportunity to respond to each issue." ORS 197.763(1). Southwood Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Philomath, 21 Or LUBA 260 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local code standard which petitioners allege is violated by the challenged decision was not identified as an applicable standard in the local government's notices of hearing, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(b), petitioners may raise the issue of compliance with that local code standard in a LUBA appeal, even though they did not raise the issue during the local proceedings. ORS 197.835(2)(a). Southwood Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Philomath, 21 Or LUBA 260 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763(1) does not require that arguments identical to those in the petition for review have been presented during local proceedings, but rather that the arguments presented in the local proceedings sufficiently raise the issue sought to be raised in the petition for review, so that the local government and other parties had a chance to respond to that issue in the local proceedings. Hale v. City of Beaverton, 21 Or LUBA 249 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a party alleges petitioner failed to raise an issue during local proceedings, and petitioner neither contends he raised the issue below nor claims the local government failed to follow the procedures required by ORS 197.763, petitioner may not raise the issue for the first time at LUBA. ORS 197.763(1); 197.835(2). Wethers v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 78 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a particular interpretation of certain code provisions was advanced in the applicant's proposed findings, but was not discussed during the local proceedings, and was not adopted by the local government prior to the challenged decision, petitioners could not reasonably have known the local government would adopt the disputed interpretation and, therefore, are not required by ORS 197.763(1) to have challenged that interpretation below in order to challenge it before LUBA. Washington Co. Farm Bureau v. Washington Co., 21 Or LUBA 51 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. The purpose of the "raise it or waive it" requirement of ORS 197.763(1) is to prevent the unfair surprise that would result if a petitioner did not raise issues locally and then raised those issues for the first time at LUBA. However, ORS 197.763(1) does not require that petitioners have presented precisely the same arguments during local proceedings that they present at LUBA. Boldt v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 40 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners used the operative term contained in a code criterion in their testimony, and the local government understood that the code criterion applied and adopted findings addressing that criterion, petitioners did not waive their right to raise the issue of compliance with that criterion at LUBA by failing to cite the code criterion specifically by number Boldt v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 40 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where petitioners fail to cite anything in the local proceedings which shows that an issue was raised concerning compliance with a particular code criterion, petitioners may not argue for the first time at LUBA that the challenged decision violated that criterion. Boldt v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 40 (1991).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government's notice of hearing, rather than listing applicable approval criteria, states the applicable criteria "are attached to this notice," but the record does not include any such attachment, LUBA will conclude the notice does not comply with the requirement of ORS

197.763(3)(b) to list applicable criteria and will review issues raised by petitioners regardless of whether they were raised below. Thormahlen v. City of Ashland, 20 Or LUBA 218 (1990).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a local government's notice of hearing did not comply with ORS 197.763(3)(b), in that it failed to identify an approval criterion relevant to the proposed development, petitioners may raise the local government's failure to require compliance with that approval criterion as an issue in a LUBA appeal proceeding. ORS 197.835(2)(a). Neuenschwander v. City of Ashland, 20 Or LUBA 144 (1990).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. ORS 197.763 and 197.835(2) represent a quid pro quo, whereby local governments are required to give broader and more detailed notice of quasi-judicial land use hearings and make staff reports available in advance of such hearings, in exchange for participants being required to raise an issue during the local proceedings in order to be able to raise that issue before LUBA. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Benton County, 20 Or LUBA 7 (1990).

28.6.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Proceedings. Where a petitioner did not raise an issue during local proceedings and does not contend the notice given by the local government fails to comply with the notice requirements of ORS 197.763 or 197.835(2)(b) or that the other procedural requirements of ORS 197.763 were not observed, the issue is waived and not within LUBA's scope of review. ORS 197.835(2). Keudell v. Union County, 19 Or LUBA 394 (1990).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review - Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where on remand a city accepts new evidence and adopts new findings regarding a planned unit development (PUD) approval standard, the issue of whether the new findings conflict with re-adopted but unchanged findings addressing other standards was not, and could not have been, resolved in the appeal of the city's initial PUD approval, and thus the "law of the case" principle under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), does not preclude a petitioner from raising that issue on appeal of the remand decision. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 69 (2018).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review - Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. A petitioner may challenge new findings adopted on remand, but is precluded by the "law of the case" principle in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), from challenging long-settled interpretations of approval standards that are embodied in unchanged, re-adopted findings from the initial proceeding. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 69 (2018).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review - Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. A county decision interpreting a condition of approval to be satisfied by an agreement between the county and only one of two owners of a common tract is not a "collateral attack" on a prior LUBA decision, in which LUBA assumed, but did not decide, that the same condition of approval would be satisfied by an agreement between the two current owners of the common tract. Kuhn v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 190 (2016).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. The "law of the case" doctrine described in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), does not apply to bar consideration of an issue raised on appeal of a decision on remand, if the issue is substantially the same as an issue raised in an unresolved assignment of error in the appeal of the original decision. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hood River, 72 Or LUBA 1 (2015).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Issue preclusion bars relitigation of an issue in subsequent proceedings when the issue has been determined by a valid and final determination in a prior proceeding, but issue preclusion only applies if all of the five requirements set out in Nelson v. Emerald People's Utility Dist., 318 Or 99, 103, 862 P2d 1293 (1993) are met. Those five factors are as follows: (1) the issue in the two proceedings is identical; (2) the issue was actually litigated and was essential to a final decision on the merits in the prior proceeding; (3) the party sought to be precluded had a full and fair opportunity to be heard on that issue; (4) the party sought to be precluded was a party or was in privity with a party to the prior proceeding; and (5) the prior proceeding was the type of proceeding to which preclusive effect will be given. Widgi Creek Homeowners Association v. Deschutes County, 71 Or LUBA 321 (2015).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. In an appeal of a decision modifying a permit approval, a petitioner's arguments that prior unappealed decisions extending that permit approval were wrongly decided are viewed as collateral attacks on decisions that were not before the local government in processing the modification, and are not before LUBA on appeal of that modification decision. McLaughlin v. Douglas County, 70 Or LUBA 314 (2014).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Even if prior permit extension decisions are not land use decisions that could have been appealed to LUBA, they are nonetheless final decisions to extend the permit, not intermediate or interlocutory decisions that can be challenged in an appeal of a subsequent decision modifying the permit. McLaughlin v. Douglas County, 70 Or LUBA 314 (2014).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where the only issue that was resolved in an initial LUBA appeal was whether the record included any evidence concerning whether the effluent to be generated by a proposal would be residential strength, and the applicant thereafter collects evidence concerning the effluent from one of the two sources that were discussed in the first LUBA appeal, LUBA will reject the applicant's contention that parties are estopped from arguing in the second appeal that the applicant's evidence from one source is inadequate and that evidence from the other source is required. Teen Challenge v. Lane County, 67 Or LUBA 300 (2013).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), to preserve an issue on appeal, the issue must be raised at all stages in the appeal proceedings where it can be raised, and failure to raise the issue during the first appeal proceedings precludes LUBA's review of that issue. The Beck waiver doctrine is not limited to issues actually raised and resolved in the initial appeal proceedings. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 265 (2012).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. The waiver doctrine articulated in Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), applies both to legislative and quasi-judicial land use decisions. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 265 (2012).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Even if all of the assignments of error challenging a decision on remand are barred from relitigation or waived under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), and thus not within LUBA's scope of review, that only means LUBA will affirm the decision, not that the decision on remand is not within LUBA's jurisdiction. Hatley v. Umatilla County, 66 Or LUBA 427 (2012).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where in its initial decision the county applies the old Goal 5 rule at OAR chapter 660, division 016, instead of the new Goal 5 rule, and no issue was raised about that position in the first appeal to LUBA, the county is arguably constrained on appeal of its decision on remand from arguing that the old Goal 5 rule does not apply and instead the new Goal 5 rule applies. Setniker v. Polk County, 63 Or LUBA 38 (2011).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Under Beck v. City of Tillamook, 313 Or 148, 831 P2d 678 (1992), a party at LUBA fails to preserve an issue for review if, in a prior stage of a single proceeding, that issue is decided adversely to the party or that issue could have been raised and was not raised. Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. When an issue has been decided in a prior proceeding, the prior decision on that issue may preclude relitigation of the issue in a subsequent proceeding if the five requirements set out at Nelson v. Emerald People's Utility Dist., 318 Or 99, 103, 104, 862 P2d 1293 (1993), are met. Those requirements are: (1) the issue in the two proceedings is identical; (2) the issue was actually litigated and was essential to a final decision on the merits in the prior proceeding; (3) the party sought to be precluded had a full and fair opportunity to be heard on that issue; (4) the party sought to be precluded was a party or was in privity with a party to the prior proceeding; and (5) the prior proceeding was the type of proceeding to which preclusive effect will be given. Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. In two decisions LUBA has concluded that issue preclusion does not apply in the land use context, based on the fifth factor in Nelson v. Emerald People's Utility Dist. However, the Court of Appeals reserved its opinion on that issue in Lawrence v. Clackamas County, 180 Or App 495, 504, 43 P3d 1192 (2002). Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Under the second of the five factors that must be present for there to be issue preclusion in an administrative proceedings under Nelson v. Emerald People's Utility Dist., 318 Or 99, 103, 104, 862 P2d 1293 (1993), an issue must have been "actually litigated and * * * essential to a final decision on the merits in the prior proceeding." Where a 2003 conditional use permit merely imposed a condition of approval that the home occupation authorized by that permit must be operated in compliance with county limits on home occupations, whether the approved home occupation in fact complied with county and statutory limits on home occupations was not "actually litigated" and for that reason issues regarding whether an expanded home occupation under a 2010 conditional use permit complies with county and statutory limits on home occupations are not precluded by issue preclusion. Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Under the first of the five factors that must be present for there to be issue preclusion in an administrative proceedings under Nelson v. Emerald People's Utility Dist., 318 Or 99, 103, 104, 862 P2d 1293 (1993), the issue in the two proceedings must be "identical." Where a 2003 conditional use permit authorizes a home occupation that hosts weddings and other events on EFU-zoned property, and a 2010 conditional use permit authorize the home occupation to host additional events on different days, the issues raised by the 2003 and 2010 CUP are not identical and issue preclusion does not operate to bar a petitioner from raising issues in an appeal of the 2010 conditional use permit simply because those issues may be similar to issues that could have been raised in the 2003 conditional use permit proceeding. Green v. Douglas County, 63 Or LUBA 200 (2011).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where a local government denies an application based on one approval criterion, and LUBA remands the decision in part for the local government to consider whether additional approval standards apply, it is possible that in determining that additional approval standards apply the local government could identify additional bases for denial under the additional criteria, even if such additional bases for denial were not cited in the original decision. Easterly v. Polk County, 59 Or LUBA 417 (2009).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where LUBA affirms a county's decision that a proposed church will require a reasons exception and, in dicta, rejects the applicant's claim under the equal terms provision of the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA), that dicta does not preclude the applicant from challenging the county's subsequent denial of the applicant's request for a reasons exception as being inconsistent with the RLUIPA equal terms provision. Young v. Jackson County, 58 Or LUBA 64 (2008).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. While a local government may expand the scope of its remand proceedings to include issues in addition to those that formed the basis for remand, it cannot revisit issues that were conclusively resolved on appeal. Where an unappealed LUBA decision concludes that a code provision does not apply to the proposed development, on remand the hearings officer errs in denying the application based on a new theory as to why the code provision applies. Curtain v. Jackson County, 56 Or LUBA 649 (2008).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. An unappealed LUBA decision holding that a county cannot deny a proposed cell tower for noncompliance with county site design standards necessarily resolves the issue of whether the county can apply the site design standards at all, even in approving the tower. Seeberger v. Yamhill County, 56 Or LUBA 656 (2008).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. An applicant's failure to appeal a partition approval does not bar that applicant from later filing an application to modify a condition of partition approval, based on changed factual circumstances. Krishchenko v. City of Canby, 52 Or LUBA 290 (2006).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where a petitioner's broad interpretation of a code provision requiring protection of trees was rejected in an earlier LUBA appeal and petitioner's challenge to the adequacy of a proposal for cutting and saving trees was rejected in that earlier appeal, those issues are resolved and may not be raised again in a subsequent appeal of the local government's decision on remand. However, where some trees that were to be saved in the prior proposal are now to be removed and some trees that were to be cut in the proposal are now to be saved, the issue of the adequacy of the new proposal was not resolved in the prior appeal and may be raised in the second appeal to LUBA. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 50 Or LUBA 226 (2005).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where LUBA determines that a city acts within its interpretive discretion in interpreting a code provision that requires that 20 percent of a development site be landscaped to allow open space to be left in its natural state to count toward the 20 percent landscaping requirement, that interpretation may not be challenged in a subsequent appeal of a modified version of the proposal that led to the first appeal. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 50 Or LUBA 226 (2005).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. A Land Conservation and Development Commission (LCDC) periodic review order that merely makes assumptions about a local ordinance, but does not attempt to resolve an ambiguity, is not identical to an issue before LUBA regarding the proper interpretation of that ambiguous ordinance, and issue preclusion does not bar LUBA's consideration of the interpretive issue. Flying J. Inc. v. Marion County, 49 Or LUBA 28 (2005).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. A minor dispute, which was withdrawn before a decision was made, regarding the zoning of 2.2 acres in a Land Conservation and Development Commission (LCDC) periodic review order concerning the rural community designation of a large interchange area is not essential to a final decision on the merits in the order. Therefore, issue preclusion does not bar LUBA's consideration of the issue. Flying J. Inc. v. Marion County, 49 Or LUBA 28 (2005).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. When an earlier decision was remanded by LUBA based on issues regarding the safety of a proposed road design, and the local government specifically limits the remand proceedings to the issues remanded by LUBA, petitioners may not challenge the proposed road's location under the local government's transportation system plan when that locational issue could have been, but was not raised, in the earlier appeal. McCulloh v. City of Jacksonville, 49 Or LUBA 345 (2005).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where LUBA affirms a county's findings that it may authorize repairs and replacements to existing structures without reviewing the nonconforming use status of those structures, but remands the decision for other reasons, on remand petitioners cannot raise issues regarding the nonconforming use status of structures that were resolved in LUBA's prior decision. Friends of the Metolius v. Jefferson County, 48 Or LUBA 466 (2005).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Under the Beck v. City of Tillamook waiver principle, issues that have been conclusively resolved at a prior point in a single continuous land use proceeding are not reviewable for a second time by LUBA or an appellate court at a later point in that proceeding. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 470 (2004).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. When LUBA remands a decision, the issues before the local government include any new issues that are presented as a result of the remand, but any old issues that were conclusively resolved in earlier proceedings are not before the local government. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 470 (2004).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where the question of whether a property qualifies as agricultural land, so that it cannot be considered for a comprehensive plan Rural Use map designation, is governed by the same legal standard that governed a prior local government finding in an earlier decision on the same application that the subject property does not qualify as agricultural land subject to Goal 3, the same issue is presented. If that issue was conclusively resolved in the earlier decision, a different resolution of that issue in the later decision is barred by the Beck v. City of Tillamook waiver principle. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 470 (2004).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where the question of whether a property qualifies as forest land so that it may not be considered for a comprehensive plan Rural Use map designation is not governed by the same legal standard that governed the county's finding in a prior decision on the same application that the subject property does not qualify as forest land subject to Goal 4, the same issue is not presented. Therefore, even if the Goal 4 issue was conclusively resolved in the earlier decision, a different decision concerning whether the property qualifies as forest land in the second decision is not barred by the Beck v. City of Tillamook waiver principle. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 470 (2004).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where the issue of whether a property qualified as agricultural land under Goal 3 or forest land under Goal 4 in a local government's first decision on an application was legally irrelevant, that issue was not dispositively resolved in the first decision and a local government's different conclusion about whether land qualifies as agricultural land or forest land in a second decision on the same application is not barred by the Beck v. City of Tillamook waiver principle. Rutigliano v. Jackson County, 47 Or LUBA 470 (2004).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Generally, issues that were conclusively resolved in a final discretionary land use decision, or that could have been but were not raised and resolved in that earlier proceeding, cannot be raised to challenge a subsequent application for permits necessary to carry out the earlier final decision. Safeway, Inc. v. City of North Bend, 47 Or LUBA 489 (2004).

28.6.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Issues Conclusively Resolved in Prior Appeal. Where a final discretionary permit approval resolved issues regarding how "lot area" is determined for purposes of calculating the number of parking spaces for proposed development, those issues cannot be revisited and applied as a basis to deny a subsequent parking lot application that is consistent with the earlier final discretionary decision. Such a denial is an impermissible collateral attack on the earlier decision. Safeway, Inc. v. City of North Bend, 47 Or LUBA 489 (2004).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Failure to meet the preservation requirement of ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3) and the exhaustion requirement of ORS 197.825(2)(a) and Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), rev den, 336 Or 615 (2004), removes issues from the scope of LUBA's review; it does not deprive LUBA of jurisdiction to review final land use decisions. Nehmzow v. Deschutes County, 81 Or LUBA 571 (2020).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where a governing body concludes that a proposed hotel complies with a comprehensive plan provision requiring that such proposals have "no adverse impact" on the function of a nearby wildlife refuge, arguments at LUBA that the governing body improperly focused on impacts related to the operation of the hotel and did not consider impacts associated with demolition of an existing motel and construction of the new hotel provide no basis for reversal or remand where the petitioner did not clarify why demolition and construction were relevant or specify the adverse impacts of concern in their local appeal statement. Oregon Coast Alliance v. City of Bandon, 81 Or LUBA 285 (2020).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where a petitioner is the prevailing party before an initial local decision-maker, Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 510, 79 P3d 382 (2003), does not compel the petitioner to file contingent or precautionary local appeals in order to preserve issues for LUBA's review in the event that the final local decision-maker reverses the initial decision. ODFW v. Lake County, 81 Or LUBA 300 (2020).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where the petitioner's local appeal statement did not address an access easement and did not address, either by citation or reference to the operative language, a local code provision at all but, rather, included general statements regarding the petitioner's concern with the increased traffic that a development would create, the principle of exhaustion-waiver articulated in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), rev den, 336 Or 615 (2004), precludes petitioner from raising the issues raised in those assignments of error at LUBA. Sanga v. City of Eugene, 81 Or LUBA 236 (2020).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. An argument below that a proposed building was similar to an industrial building and an inappropriate size, and that the area would need to be rezoned, does not fairly raise any issue regarding whether the proposed use meets the definition of "residential facility" in the local code for purposes of ORS 197.763(1) and ORS 197.835(3). Eagle-Eye v. City of Veneta, 81 Or LUBA 1 (2020).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where the staff reports that were available to the public accepted the applicant's premise that a proposed building is a "residential facility," as defined in the local code, and where the petitioners do not explain why they could not have raised the issue of whether the proposed building is a "residential facility" prior to the close of the initial evidentiary hearing, LUBA will refuse to allow that issue to be raised on appeal under ORS 197.835(4)(a), even assuming that the definitions section of the local code was an applicable approval criterion that the local government should have, but did not, identify in its notices. Eagle-Eye v. City of Veneta, 81 Or LUBA 1 (2020).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. The issue that proposed dwellings do not qualify for historic preservation incentives on the merits is a different issue than whether the proposed dwellings are even eligible for consideration for an award of historic preservation incentives. And raising the first issue does not give fair notice to decision makers regarding a need to address the second issue. Friends of Canemah v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 434 (2018).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Arguments that a city erred by failing to adopt findings that address particular spacing and orientation guidelines provide no basis for remand, where petitioners failed to raise any issue concerning those guidelines before the close of the evidentiary record and failed to identify those guidelines in their local notice of appeal. Friends of Canemah v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 434 (2018).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where a petitioner appeals two local decisions to the planning commission, but the planning commission decision addresses only one decision, and on appeal of the planning commission decision to the governing body, the petitioner fails to specify any issues regarding the second decision, the petitioner's failure to do so means that all issues regarding the second decision are beyond LUBA's scope of review under the reasoning in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003). Eng v. Wallowa County, 76 Or LUBA 432 (2017).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), rev den 336 Or 615, 90 P3d 626 (2004), a petitioner must specify the issues it wishes to raise in a local notice of appeal to preserve those issues for an appeal to LUBA if land use regulations require that a notice of local appeal set out the issues on appeal. If the relevant local land use regulations do not impose that requirement, the Miles requirement to specify issues to preserve them for review at LUBA does not apply. Rawson v. Hood River County, 75 Or LUBA 200 (2017).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. The exhaustion/waiver principle articulated in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500 (2003), requires the petitioner to identify issues in the local appeal to the local appeal body, regardless of whether the appeal body conducts a hearing or whether the local appeal proceeding is on the record or de novo. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 540 (2016).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where the local appeal statement raises no issues regarding whether a particular zoning diagram should be considered in determining whether proposed zoning is consistent with the comprehensive plan map, the issue is waived under the exhaustion/waiver principle articulated in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500 (2003). Laurel Hill Valley Citizens v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 140 (2016).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. An issue that was raised in a timely filed local appeal is not waived under the exhaustion/waiver principle of Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500 (2003), notwithstanding that the decision-maker approved a version of the local appeal statement in which that issue was redacted, where the decision-maker also accepted a revised version that included the issue, with the apparent intent of recognizing that the issue had been preserved. Laurel Hill Valley Citizens v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 140 (2016).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where a local appeal statement states issues only in general terms, such as the appealed decision failed to address all applicable standards, requiring the local appeal body and other parties to speculate which standards the appellant believes were not addressed, the local appeal has failed to exhaust or preserve any issues for purposes of appeal to LUBA, under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 506-07, 79 P3d 382 (2003). Dion v. Baker County, 72 Or LUBA 307 (2015).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. While the issues following a LUBA on remand are often fewer and smaller in scope, in order to exhaust or preserve issues for LUBA's review under the reasoning in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 506-07, 79 P3d 382 (2003), local appeals of decisions on remand must still identify the issues for local appeal with sufficient specificity that the local government and other parties have reasonable notice of those aspects of the underlying decision on remand the local appellant wishes to challenge. Dion v. Baker County, 72 Or LUBA 307 (2015).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. A petitioner does not waive her right to assign error to a hearings officer's conclusion that a structure qualifies as a nonconforming use, and the hearings officer's approval of an alteration of that nonconforming use, where the applicant did not apply for verification of a nonconforming use or an alteration of a nonconforming use and the notices of hearing did not identify the county's nonconforming use regulations as applicable criteria for the decision. Kaimanu v. Washington County, 70 Or LUBA 217 (2014).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where an "Article" of the community development code includes 373 single spaced pages of land use regulations made up of 44 separate sections devoted to a variety of topics, a notice of hearing that identifies that article of the community development code as an applicable standard is not sufficient, under ORS 197.763(3), to provide notice of an eight-page section of that article devoted to nonconforming uses. Kaimanu v. Washington County, 70 Or LUBA 217 (2014).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where a cross petition for review challenges the local government's application of a standard to a proposal for needed housing on the basis that the city may not apply the standard because it is not a "clear and objective standard" within the meaning of ORS 197.307(4), the cross petition for review may assign error to the city's application of the standard only if the issue was raised in the applicant's appeal statement appealing the hearings officer's decision to the planning commission, under ORS 197.825(2)(a) and the reasoning in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003). SE Neighbors Neighborhood Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 68 Or LUBA 51 (2013).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. ORS 197.825(2)(a) and Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), do not limit the issues before LUBA to those issues specified in the local appeal to the governing body, where the local government's appeal regulations do not require specification or limitation of issues for that type of local appeal, and the governing body allowed and considered all issues raised by any party during the appeal proceeding. White v. Lane County, 68 Or LUBA 423 (2013).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. To preserve the issue of whether the statewide planning goals apply to a rezoning decision and thus whether notice of hearing must be provided to DLCD under ORS 197.610, the issue must be raised during the proceedings below to avoid waiver under ORS 197.763(1) and, additionally, specified in the local notice of appeal to avoid waiver under the exhaustion/waiver principle in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500 (2003). Conte v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 326 (2012).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. On appeal of a planning commission decision, the issue of the city's failure to impose a condition is waived under the reasoning in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500 (2003), where the underlying hearings official's decision also failed to impose the disputed condition, and petitioner did not specify that failure as a ground for appeal in the local notice of appeal to the planning commission. Conte v. City of Eugene, 65 Or LUBA 326 (2012).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. The principle of exhaustion/waiver set out in Miles v. v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), does not require a party that prevailed before the planning commission to appeal the planning commission decision to the governing body, in order to preserve or exhaust issues that the planning commission did not address and could not have been raised in the opposing party's local appeal of the planning commission decision. Olstedt v. Clatsop County, 62 Or LUBA 131 (2010).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where the local notice of appeal fails to identify any issue regarding whether a proposed farm relative dwelling is "necessary," that issue cannot be raised on appeal to LUBA, pursuant to ORS 197.825(2)(a) and Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003). Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. The main purpose of the exhaustion/waiver doctrine articulated in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003) is to ensure that the final decision maker has the initial opportunity to address issues that may become the basis for appeal to LUBA. Miles is not concerned that findings are adopted addressing approval criteria, and the fact that the final decision includes a finding of compliance with an approval criterion is not sufficient to allow the petitioner to raise the issue of compliance with that criterion to LUBA, if that issue was not identified in the local notice of appeal. Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. A statement in the local notice of appeal that the planning commission "has not followed the law" is insufficient to identify any particular issue for purposes of the exhaustion/waiver doctrine articulated in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003). Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Even assuming LUBA has authority to reject an otherwise meritorious exhaustion/waiver challenge based on the argument that the county is equitably estopped from asserting exhaustion/waiver due to alleged erroneous advice from county planning staff in accepting the local notice of appeal, the argument fails where based on petitioners' affidavits the best that can be said with confidence is that there was mutual misunderstanding and miscommunication regarding the sufficiency of the local notice of appeal and what issues petitioners wished to raise therein. Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. A petitioner is not precluded by Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), and ORS 197.825(2) from raising issues at LUBA merely because he failed to list local appeal issues in the proper location on a local appeal form, when the local code does not specify that such failure is a jurisdictional defect or results in a waiver of the right to raise those issues at LUBA. Zeitoun v. Yamhill County, 60 Or LUBA 111 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Issues raised before LUBA are waived under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 283 (2003), where a county code requires that the local notice of appeal specify the grounds for appeal, and the local notice of appeal makes no mention of the issues that petitioner wishes to raise before LUBA. Sommer v. Douglas County, 60 Or LUBA 32 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. An assertion in the local notice of appeal that the proposal is inconsistent with Goals 16 and 17, with reference to the appellant's written testimony on those issues that was submitted to the planning commission, is sufficient to inform the governing body and other participants of the specific grounds the appellant wishes to raise on appeal, and avoid waiver of those issues under the reasoning in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 283 (2003). Sommer v. Douglas County, 60 Or LUBA 32 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. When a petitioner was required to raise local appeal issues below pursuant to Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), raising the issue that approval of a nonfarm dwelling would significantly increase the cost of farming practices is not sufficient to raise any issue concerning impacts on the stability of the overall land use pattern, and the petitioner may not raise the stability standard at LUBA. Zeitoun v. Yamhill County, 60 Or LUBA 111 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Raising in the local notice of appeal the issue of compliance with OAR 660-012-0065(3)(a) and (b) regarding transportation improvements that are allowed or conditionally allowed under certain statutes or rules is not sufficient to raise the issue of compliance with 660-012-0065(3)(o) regarding other transportation facilities, services, or improvements that serve local travel needs. Therefore, the issue may not be raised at LUBA. Sepulvado v. Douglas County, 60 Or LUBA 364 (2010).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Where a local code requires a notice of review to contain "the specific grounds relied on in the petition request for review," and petitioners challenged a planning commission decision on the grounds that the county failed to identify other available industrially zoned properties throughout the county, petitioners may not on appeal to LUBA challenge the decision on different grounds that the county did not properly identify available industrially zoned lands within the specific rural community in which the applicant proposes the plan amendment. Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 506-507, 79 P3d 382 (2003). Kinnett v. Douglas County, 59 Or LUBA 293 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003), did not overrule or modify Colwell v. Washington County, 79 Or App 82, 91, 718 P2d 747 (1986), and similar cases holding that the ORS 197.825(2)(a) exhaustion requirement does not require a petitioner to file a local appeal of a lower body's initial comprehensive plan amendment decision to the governing body, because applicable statutes require the governing body to conduct a hearing on the amendment in any event. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 58 Or LUBA 638 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Notwithstanding that a county's code provides that the planning commission's decision on a comprehensive plan amendment is "final" unless a local appeal is filed, under ORS 215.060 the county governing body must hold a public hearing on the plan amendment and take final action, and therefore the planning commission's initial decision on the plan amendment is not "final" in any meaningful sense. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 58 Or LUBA 638 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Even where a county's code provides for local appeal as one of three possible paths by which a governing body will review the planning commission's initial decision on a comprehensive plan amendment, because ORS 215.060 requires the governing body to hold a public hearing on a plan amendment at which testimony and issues can be raised, in that circumstance a petitioner before LUBA is not required to file a local appeal and specify issues in a notice of local appeal in order to exhaust administrative remedies or avoid waiver under Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 382 (2003). Wetherell v. Douglas County, 58 Or LUBA 638 (2009).

28.6.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Waiver of Issues – Failure to Raise in Local Appeal. Even if the reasoning in Miles v. City of Florence, 190 Or App 500, 79 P3d 283 (2003), extends to the proceedings on remand and requires the petitioner to raise below on remand the issues that are presented to LUBA on remand, that requirement is satisfied where the issues before LUBA are the same issues in the first appeal and on remand the petitioner submitted a letter to the city renewing the arguments made in the first appeal. Coquille Citizens for Resp. Growth v. City of Coquille, 55 Or LUBA 155 (2007).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where the Court of Appeals determines that LUBA's decision was "unlawful in substance" pursuant to ORS 197.850(9)(a) because LUBA affirmed the city's interpretation of Goal 8, Policy 1, and according to the court, the city's interpretation of Goal 8, Policy 1 is not affirmable under ORS 197.829(1) because the city's interpretation does not "plausibly account for the text and context of the policy," the appropriate disposition according to OAR 661-010-0071(2)(d) is for LUBA to remand the decision to the city for further proceedings, specifically for the city to adopt a sustainable interpretation of Goal 8, Policy 1, and apply that policy, as interpreted to the application before it. Crowley v. City of Hood River, 79 Or LUBA 77 (2019).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. When the Court of Appeals remands a LUBA decision that affirmed a local government decision requiring a condition of approval that petitioner argued constituted an unconstitutional exaction of property prohibited by the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution, because the Court of Appeals agreed with petitioner that the dedication is unconstitutional unless the hearings officer finds that the impacts of the proposed development would substantially impede the governmental interest advanced by the city's standards which the conditions of approval were imposed to meet, LUBA will remand that portion of the decision to the hearings officer for reconsideration where the hearings officer adopted no findings on that point. Hill v. City of Portland, 78 Or LUBA 334 (2018).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where a petitioner's challenge to a hearings officer's finding that a mitigation plan submitted in support of a request for approval of a destination resort is specific enough for review relies almost entirely on reasoning that LUBA adopted in remanding a prior county decision, and that LUBA reasoning was effectively rejected or qualified by the Court of Appeals in an appeal of LUBA's first decision, petitioner's challenge to the hearings officer's finding in the second appeal provides no basis for reversal or remand. Central Land and Cattle Company, LLC v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 326 (2016).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. LUBA has statutory authority only to dismiss, affirm, reverse or remand a land use decision, and probably lacks statutory or inherent authority to "vacate" a previously issued final opinion and order on remand from the Court of Appeals, based solely upon the parties' stipulation. Conte v. City of Eugene, 66 Or LUBA 479 (2012).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where on remand from the Court of Appeals the parties stipulate to "vacate" LUBA's original final opinion and order and "reinstate" the underlying local government decision, the parties' intent can be given effect consistent with LUBA's dispositional authority by issuing a final opinion and order that either dismisses the appeal or affirms the local government decision. Conte v. City of Eugene, 66 Or LUBA 479 (2012).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where the Court of Appeals remands a decision to LUBA to address the proper application of the Transportation Planning Rule (TPR), at OAR 660-012-0060, and on remand to LUBA the parties dispute the meaning of a TPR provision, LUBA need not resolve that dispute when during the pendency of the appeal the TPR is amended to delete the disputed TPR provision, and the TPR as amended will govern the local proceedings on remand from LUBA. Setniker v. Polk County, 65 Or LUBA 49 (2012).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. When the Court of Appeals reverses and remands a LUBA decision that affirmed a local government decision, but the Court leaves open the possibility that the offending ordinance could be amended to address the problems identified by the court, LUBA will remand rather than reverse the local government's decision. Friends of Eugene v. City of Eugene, 48 Or LUBA 608 (2005).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. When the Court of Appeals affirms LUBA's final opinion but does not decide all issues presented in the appeal, LUBA is not precluded from reconsidering issues that are not addressed by the Court of Appeals. Durig v. Washington County, 40 Or LUBA 1 (2001).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where the Court of Appeals directs LUBA to consider on remand an assignment of error directed at the local government's application of a policy that is not a land use regulation or otherwise a land use standard, LUBA will consider the policy to be "applicable law" for purposes of LUBA's scope of review under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(D). Carlsen v. City of Portland, 39 Or LUBA 93 (2000).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. On remand from the Court of Appeals, petitioners may not advance bases for reversal or remand before LUBA beyond those stated in the original petition for review. Carlsen v. City of Portland, 39 Or LUBA 93 (2000).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where an issue is resolved in a prior appeal, a petitioner in a subsequent appeal of a city's decision on remand may not raise that issue again. Schwerdt v. City of Corvallis, 38 Or LUBA 174 (2000).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. A petitioner does not waive any rights to present argument in a subsequent LUBA appeal by failing to appeal a prior LUBA decision and assign error to conclusions in that prior LUBA decision, where the conclusions were dictum and would not have provided a basis for appeal. Jackson County Citizens League v. Jackson County, 38 Or LUBA 37 (2000).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. A county is not barred by law of the case from taking a position in its decision on remand that is inconsistent with a position it took in its initial decision, where the county also adopted the inconsistent position in an alternative finding in its original decision. Carlson v. Benton County, 37 Or LUBA 897 (2000).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where a decision is withdrawn for reconsideration following appeal to LUBA and a new ordinance is adopted without following the applicable local adoption procedures, such a procedural error provides no basis for reversal or remand where petitioner was given an opportunity for meaningful participation and there was no prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. Barnard Perkins Corp. v. City of Rivergrove, 34 Or LUBA 660 (1998).

28.7 LUBA Scope of Review – After Remand by Court. Where a local government denies a permit application following remand from the Court of Appeals and specifies more than one basis for the denial, in reviewing a subsequent appeal of the denial on remand LUBA need only review and sustain one of the bases for denial. Johns v. City of Lincoln City, 34 Or LUBA 594 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Arguments that a local code provision required the local government to deny an application when it concluded that another local code provision was not met provide no basis for reversal or remand absent a challenge to the local government's primary conclusion that it could not, consistent with the Fifth Amendment, deny the application for failure to meet the second provision. Southwest Hills Residential League v. City of Portland, 81 Or LUBA 778 (2020).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA concludes that a local government's conclusion that an application did not meet an applicable approval criterion was a valid basis for denial, although any error committed with respect to alternative or independent bases for denial would generally not provide a basis for reversal or remand, remand is nonetheless required where LUBA also concludes that the local government failed to address a threshold argument from the applicant that, if correct, would prevent the local government from applying criteria that would prohibit approval of the application. M & T Partners, Inc. v. City of Salem, 80 Or LUBA 221 (2019).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Local governments are not required to condition approvals rather than deny noncompliant applications. H2D2 Properties, LLC v. Deschutes County, 80 Or LUBA 528 (2019).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where an argument is derivative of other arguments made by the petitioner, the derivative argument provides no independent basis for reversal or remand. Underwood v. Clackamas County, 80 Or LUBA 542 (2019).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where an applicant proposes to vacate an existing right-of-way and construct a replacement, and where approval criteria require that the vacation "not create an access configuration which violates present development standards," arguments that the proposed replacement (1) is adjacent to a private street which is in noncompliance with development standards requiring curbs and sidewalks, a planter strip with trees, and on-street parking, or (2) connects to an existing sidewalk and crosses an existing driveway which are in noncompliance with development standards regulating their width and the length, provide no basis for reversal or remand because neither the vacation nor the proposed replacement cause or create the noncompliance. Similarly, arguments that the proposed replacement violates development standards regulating fencing and requiring that certain pedestrian connections be identified by more than striping alone provide no basis for reversal or remand because those standards have nothing to do with access configurations. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 79 Or LUBA 1 (2019).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Remand is necessary where petitioners argue that a boundary line adjustment application is governed by a county ordinance addressing the "Sale or Transfer of Land to an Adjacent Owner * * *," under the section on nonconforming uses that apply to "Designated Resource Areas," where the subject parcels are designated for agricultural and forest uses and are zoned exclusive farm use – grazing (FG) and where respondents filed no response brief. Because there is no local interpretation of the applicability of the ordinance, LUBA will remand the decision for the county to interpret the ordinance in the first instance. Friends of Douglas County v. Douglas County, 78 Or LUBA 11 (2018).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Remand, rather than reversal, is the appropriate remedy when the board of county commissioners did not address an argument or adopt findings in response to the argument on appeal. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 78 Or LUBA 38 (2018).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. While remand of a local government decision approving a permit means that the permit decision is no longer "effective," that does not necessarily mean the permit application is no longer "approved" by the local government. Remand of a decision can occur for any number of reasons having little to do with the substance of an approval. Conte v. City of Eugene, 78 Or LUBA 289 (2018).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA sustains petitioner's assignment of error and remands a local government's decision denying petitioner's application, LUBA will address an intervenor's contingent cross assignments of error in a cross petition for review, where those cross-assignments of error raise issues that might provide additional bases for remanding the decision, in order to correct other alleged errors on remand. Blu Dutch LLC v. Jackson County, 78 Or LUBA 495 (2018).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A petitioner's argument that an application to modify a site plan to replace a previously approved produce stand with a coffee kiosk cannot be processed as a modification, but instead requires a new site plan application, does not provide a basis for remand, where the local government adopted findings rejecting that argument, and the petitioner does not challenge those findings. Aboud v. City of Stayton, 77 Or LUBA 300 (2018).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA's review of an historic review board decision resulted in LUBA remanding the decision for the historic review board to answer threshold jurisdictional questions, but no issue was presented to LUBA regarding who the decision maker on remand should be, the city council does not err by addressing and answering those threshold jurisdictional questions on remand, instead of allowing the historic review board to answer those questions. McLoughlin Neighborhood Association v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 377 (2018).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners seek reversal or remand of the city's decision pursuant to OAR 661-010-0071, and LUBA's decision agrees with petitioners that the city's decision improperly construed the municipal code and was not supported by substantial evidence in the record, but it is possible on remand that the petitioner's proposal could demonstrate compliance with the municipal code without significant changes to the proposed development, remand is the appropriate remedy. McMonagle v. City of Ashland, 76 Or LUBA 1 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a comprehensive plan policy requires the city to provide information to allow public participation in land use proceedings, and the city does not respond to a request for information for over a month, that delay is not a basis for remand where petitioner's request was broad, did not express any urgency and did not say the request was submitted with regard to any particular proceeding. In that circumstance, the city's delay in responding and its requirement that petitioner submit a public records request to more clearly identify the scope of the request was not error. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 75 Or LUBA 38 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioner's allegations that applicants for quasi-judicial land use approval purchased property from the city and helped elect the mayor and city councilors falls far short of demonstrating disqualifying bias under Fasano v. Washington Co. Comm., 264 Or 574, 507 P2d 23 (1973). Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 75 Or LUBA 38 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In evaluating a bias challenge, LUBA is to limit its consideration to the quasi-judicial matter where the bias challenge is raised and may not consider actions by the decision maker that are unrelated to that matter. Columbia Riverkeeper v. Clatsop County, 267 Or App 578, 341 P3d 790 (2014). Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 75 Or LUBA 38 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In considering whether new comprehensive plan and zoning map designations are consistent with statewide planning goal, comprehensive plan and code requirements of adequate and safe transportation facilities, a city does not err by concluding the new designations will have no impact on those facilities because the new designations include a condition that development under the new designations be suspended as soon as it generates the same traffic impact that would be generated under the existing acknowledge comprehensive plan and zoning map designations. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 75 Or LUBA 38 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the local code contains separate standards for on-site versus off-site storm water quality management, and an applicant relies solely on on-site management to satisfy code provisions regarding storm water quality and does not propose any off-site management, it is clear by implication that the applicant did not believe that the standards governing off-site storm water quality management applied. Nonetheless, when the hearings officer apparently believed that the applicant proposed off-site management, the issue of whether off-site storm water quality management standards applied was "raised in the record" before the hearings officer. Rockbridge Capital v. City of Eugene, 75 Or LUBA 364 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA has affirmed a local government's primary interpretation of a comprehensive plan policy, supporting the local government's decision to deny the application, LUBA need not resolve challenges to independent, alternative interpretations supporting denial. Kine v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 419 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA has no express statutory authority to summarily reverse or remand a decision without reviewing the merits of the appeal, absent the written stipulation of all parties. Conte v. City of Eugene, 75 Or LUBA 532 (2017).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will not affirm a hearings officer's decision based on a legal theory that application of a rural industrial zone to rural property does not require an exception to Goal 14, where the hearings officer did not adopt that theory and instead approved an exception to Goal 14 to apply the rural industrial zone. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 74 Or LUBA 156 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA need not determine whether a city council erred by approving a dwelling because the dwelling's prior DEQ septic system permit has expired and a septic system does not qualify as a "required public facility" under the code, where a sewer improvement district boundary was expanded to include the dwelling thus allowing the dwelling to be connected to the public sewer system, the expansion decision was not challenged, and the city council changed its decision following a LUBA remand of its initial decision to require that the dwelling connect to the public sewer system. Evans v. City of Bandon, 74 Or LUBA 418 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. When called upon to determine the applicability or meaning of a statute, LUBA is not limited to the parties' arguments. Kaplowitz v. Lane County, 74 Or LUBA 386 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a hearings officer does not take the position that his inability to verify the nature and extent of certain aspects of a prior concrete batch plant makes it impossible to determine whether an application to alter that prior nonconforming concrete batch plant will result in a more intensive use or result in greater adverse impact on the surrounding neighborhood, but intervenor does not file a cross-petition for review to assign error to that aspect of the hearings officer's decision, LUBA will not consider whether that position could provide an independent basis for denying the requested alteration. Meyer v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 1 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners concede that a hearings officer was not legally obligated to develop conditions of approval that would make an application for alteration of a nonconforming use approvable, and petitioners proposed no conditions of approval themselves that would have permitted the hearings officer to approve the alteration, petitioners fail to demonstrate error in the hearings officer's decision. Meyer v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 1 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a hearings officer concludes that an application for nonconforming use verification does not include a request to approve alterations to the nonconforming use, but the hearings officer also observes that future applications for alterations are unlikely to be approved under the county code standards that apply to alterations, the observation is dicta, and not a basis for reversal or remand. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 73 Or LUBA 27 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In some circumstances a local government may have to provide some interpretation or findings explaining its understanding of a subjective standard such as a requirement to adopt buffers that "ensure compatibility" between urban and rural agricultural uses. However, in the context of a legislative proceeding to adopt regulations for such buffers there is no inherent obligation to adopt an interpretation of the standard, and the failure to adopt an interpretation is not in itself a basis for reversal or remand. Forest Park Neighborhood Assoc. v. Washington County, 73 Or LUBA 193 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A county finding that wind turbines are a conditional use in a commercial zone is not reversible error, even though wind turbines are not listed as a conditional use in the zone, where the balance of the decision clearly demonstrates the county in fact utilized its authority to approve uses that are similar to listed permitted and conditional uses in the zone to approve the wind turbines. Burgermeister v. Tillamook County, 73 Or LUBA 291 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where an assignment of error can be read to advance a "literal" interpretation argument, but that argument is not clearly stated and is undeveloped, LUBA will not consider the argument. Burgermeister v. Tillamook County, 73 Or LUBA 291 (2016).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a decision that rezoned property specifically authorized development of the rezoned property in advance of adoption of a concept plan for the area, in an appeal of a subsequent decision approving development of the property, LUBA's scope of review does not permit review of an argument that the concept plan must be adopted before development may be approved for the rezoned property. Raising a legal issue in the development approval decision that was resolved in the rezoning decision constitutes an improper collateral attack on the rezoning decision. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 72 Or LUBA 25 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An assignment of error that argues that the county erred in failing to impose the same conditions of approval that it imposed more than five years earlier in a decision approving the same proposal that has since become void provides no basis for reversal or remand of the decision, where the petitioner does not identify any requirement in the county code or state law or regulation that obligates the county to carry over previously imposed conditions of approval simply because they were imposed five years earlier. Devin Oil Co., Inc. v. Morrow County, 72 Or LUBA 240 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city council adopts alternative interpretations of a disputed standard that allows building height increases, and approves a proposed building height increase under both interpretations, the city's decision must be affirmed where the petitioner at LUBA only assigns error to one of the city council's interpretations. Preserve the Pearl, LLC v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 261 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An assignment of error that assigns error to a county's finding that land does not qualify as "wildlife habitat" as that term is defined at OAR 660-023-0110(1)(b) provides no basis for reversal or remand, where the challenged decision only takes the position that the subject property is poor quality wildlife habitat in justifying a decision under OAR 660-023-0050(c) to fully allow uses that conflict with the poor quality wildlife habitat. ODFW v. Crook County, 72 Or LUBA 316 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A city council's occasional erroneous reference to a "Definition of Village Character" as a "purpose statement" is not a basis for remand, where it is clear that the city council simply refused to interpret the definition as a mandatory permit approval standard that required the city to compare proposed development with existing development to determine if the proposed development is "small scale." LO 138 LLC v. City of Lake Oswego, 71 Or LUBA 195 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where respondents respond to petitioner's argument that a proposed development violates comprehensive plan standards by arguing in their response brief that the challenged decision is a "limited land use decision" and the plan policies therefore do not apply under ORS 197.195(1) because the plan policies have not been incorporated into the city's land use regulations, and petitioner does not respond to that argument at oral argument or seek permission to respond in a reply brief, petitioner's assumption that the plan policies apply is inadequate to state a basis for reversal or remand. LO 138 LLC v. City of Lake Oswego, 71 Or LUBA 195 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That a local government may have erroneously found that a natural gas pipeline is not a water-related use provides no basis for reversal or remand, where the county does not rely on that finding in denying the application for permit approval for the pipeline. Oregon Pipeline Company v. Clatsop County, 71 Or LUBA 246 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Absent any developed argument as to why a facility used to board horses is an "agricultural building" as defined in Chapter 4 of the Uniform Building Code and is not a "stable" as defined in the county's zoning and development ordinance, LUBA will affirm the county's conclusion that the building is a stable and not an agricultural building. Stavrum v. Clackamas County, 71 Or LUBA 290 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. No statute or local code provision prohibits a party from submitting an application for a conditional use permit to settle an ongoing enforcement matter and subsequently arguing during the proceedings on the application that the proposed use is not a conditional use, but rather is a permitted use in the zone. Stavrum v. Clackamas County, 71 Or LUBA 290 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Issue preclusion bars relitigation of an issue in subsequent proceedings when the issue has been determined by a valid and final determination in a prior proceeding, but issue preclusion only applies if all of the five requirements set out in Nelson v. Emerald People's Utility Dist., 318 Or 99, 103, 862 P2d 1293 (1993), are met. Those five factors are as follows: (1) the issue in the two proceedings is identical; (2) the issue was actually litigated and was essential to a final decision on the merits in the prior proceeding; (3) the party sought to be precluded had a full and fair opportunity to be heard on that issue; (4) the party sought to be precluded was a party or was in privity with a party to the prior proceeding; and (5) the prior proceeding was the type of proceeding to which preclusive effect will be given. Widgi Creek Homeowners Association v. Deschutes County, 71 Or LUBA 321 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In a variety of contexts both the Court of Appeals and LUBA have held that decisions rendered in early stages of a multi-stage approval process can be final (appealable) land use decisions. In such cases, issues that could have been raised, but were not raised in early stages, and issues that were raised and resolved adversely to a petitioner in early stage decisions that were not appealed, generally may not be raised by that petitioner in appeals of a later stage decision. In rejecting arguments in appeals of subsequent stage land use decisions that in reality are a belated challenge to earlier stage land use decision, LUBA has sometimes referred to those arguments as a "collateral attack" on those earlier stage land use decisions. Widgi Creek Homeowners Association v. Deschutes County, 71 Or LUBA 321 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A challenge to a decision that grants tentative subdivision plan approval for a 24-lot subdivision is not a collateral attack on prior decisions that (1) granted site plan approval for a 42-unit condominium project, or (2) approved a 26-lot subdivision, because the proposed 24-lot subdivision is not a subsequent phase of a multi-phase process but rather an application for a new development proposal. Widgi Creek Homeowners Association v. Deschutes County, 71 Or LUBA 321 (2015).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will affirm a local government's conclusion that an application to modify a condition of approval imposed in a prior decision does not propose dredging or filling, where no ground disturbing activity of any kind is proposed that differs from the ground disturbing activity approved in the prior decision. McCaffree v. Coos County, 70 Or LUBA 15 (2014).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will not entertain arguments based on equitable estoppel unless the proponent first provides a sufficient basis to conclude that the legislature granted LUBA the authority to reverse or remand a land use decision based on equitable doctrines. Macfarlane v. Clackamas County, 70 Or LUBA 126 (2014).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Even if application requirements have not been satisfied, that failure does not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the decision where the alleged failure to comply with the application requirements has not resulted in noncompliance with any approval standards. Hess v. City of Corvallis, 70 Or LUBA 283 (2014).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner's entire argument is that the location of a drywell and a sedimentation manhole are shown in opposite locations on the approved plan and a later operation and maintenance plan are reversed and the locations shown on the operation and maintenance plan appear to be an inadvertent labeling error, the cited plan differences provide no basis for remand. Beaumont-Wilshire Neighbors v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 393 (2013).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a local government adopts one approach over another for achieving overlapping and generally worded planning goals, LUBA will rarely be in a position to second guess the local government's choice. Stevens v. Clackamas County, 68 Or LUBA 490 (2013).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An assignment of error that challenges a local government's rejection of a legal theory that petitioner does not assert on appeal would normally provide no basis for remand, even though the challenge is meritorious. However, where the local government in rejecting that legal theory decides a legal issue that is properly decided by a circuit court rather than the county, LUBA will sustain the assignment of error. Willamette Oaks, LLC v. City of Eugene, 67 Or LUBA 43 (2013).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A notice of decision's characterization of a decision as legislative when it is actually a quasi-judicial decision does not, in itself, warrant remand so long as the relevant criteria were applied and there were no procedural errors that prejudiced petitioner's substantial rights. Warren v. Josephine County, 67 Or LUBA 74 (2013).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a county code requires that bias challenges be filed at least 48 hours before the public hearing on a quasi-judicial matter, and there is no reason why the challenge could not have been filed before or during that hearing, petitioner's challenge filed three days before board of commissioners meeting where the board approved the written decision and findings comes too late. Warren v. Josephine County, 67 Or LUBA 74 (2013).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where contract consents to annexation have been executed and recorded and there is nothing on the face of the contract consents that calls their validity into question, LUBA does not have authority under ORS 197.835 to consider the contract consent parties' claims that the contract consents were invalidly coerced or that those contract consents have been unilaterally revoked. Claims that the contract consents are invalid or have been revoked must be pursued in circuit court. Roads End Water District v. City of Lincoln City, 67 Or LUBA 452 (2013).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Notwithstanding that a city erroneously determined that a particular section of the development code exempted a permit applicant from development code buffer requirements, where another section of the development code cited by the petitioner clearly does exempt the permit applicant from the buffer requirements, LUBA will affirm the city's decision. ORS 197.835(11)(b). Nielsen v. City of Gresham, 66 Or LUBA 24 (2012).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the county land use regulations at issue are 38 pages long and the city land use regulations at issue are 69 pages long, a petitioner's undeveloped argument that the city regulations that will apply to the uses authorized by the zoning district the city applied to property will not "most closely approximate" the county zoning it replaced, when compared to another city zone, is not sufficiently developed for review and will be rejected for that reason. Mintz v. City of Beaverton, 66 Or LUBA 118 (2012).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That a city may have posted an inaccurate copy of its comprehensive plan on its website during permit proceedings does not provide a basis for remand of the decision that followed those permit proceedings. Rosenzweig v. City of McMinnville, 66 Or LUBA 164 (2012).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where an assignment of error does not challenge the reasoning that led a county to conclude a post-acknowledgment plan amendment would be necessary to mine a particular mineral, an assignment of error that asks LUBA to remand the decision because the decision maker might change its mind about whether the post acknowledgment plan amendment is necessary, based on LUBA's disposition of another assignment of error, presents no basis for remand. Mark Latham Excavation Inc. v. Deschutes County, 65 Or LUBA 32 (2012).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will not consider a petitioner's argument that a vacation decision that was initiated by a city council violates a statutory vacation standard where petitioner omits and fails to address in her petition for review statutory language that suggests the cited statutory standard applies only to vacation decisions that are initiated by petition rather than by city council initiative. Heitsch v. City of Salem, 65 Or LUBA 187 (2012).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. ORS 215.030, which provides that no more than two voting members of a county planning commission can be principally engaged in real estate sales or development, does not specify that a planning commission decision is invalid or subject to reversal or remand because the planning commission membership violates the statute. ORS 215.030 is silent regarding the consequences and potential remedies for violation of the membership requirement. O'Brien v. Lincoln County, 65 Or LUBA 286 (2012).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the decision before LUBA is a governing body decision based on the recommendation of a planning commission, that the planning commission membership may have violated the requirements of ORS 215.030 limiting the number of members principally engaged in real estate sales or development does not provide a basis to reverse or remand the governing body's decision. O'Brien v. Lincoln County, 65 Or LUBA 286 (2012).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In a county code enforcement proceeding before a hearings officer, petitioner's complaints that a county code enforcement officer improperly interfered with pending civil litigation between petitioner and his neighbor and improperly contacted the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife regarding the county hearings officer's decision in the code enforcement proceeding after the hearings officer's decision was entered provide no basis for reversing or remanding the hearings officer's decision. The alleged improprieties by the county code enforcement officer may be actionable in a different forum, but they provide no basis for remanding the county hearings officer's decision. Wigen v. Jackson County, 63 Or LUBA 490 (2011).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. The exclusive remedy for an alleged failure by a county code enforcement officer to produce requested public records is to petition the county district attorney for relief under ORS 192.460. Where the disputed photographs and the substance of the disputed field notes were made part of the record before a hearings officer in a land use code enforcement proceeding and petitioner was permitted to submit contrary evidence and cross examine the code enforcement officer in the hearing before the hearings officer, there was no prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights and no basis for remand. Wigen v. Jackson County, 63 Or LUBA 490 (2011).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a hearings officer's order appears to require that a property owner submit a plan to the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife to replant a significant area of petitioner's property with native vegetation and the factual and legal basis for that requirement is not apparent in the hearings officer's decision, the decision must be remanded so that the hearings officer may explain the factual and legal basis for the order. Wigen v. Jackson County, 63 Or LUBA 490 (2011).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city's stated rationale for its 20-year employment projections in its economic opportunities analysis is the OAR 660-024-0040(9)(a) safe harbor, the city may not adopt an alternative legal rationale for the 20-year employment projections for the first time in its brief at LUBA. Friends of Yamhill County v. City of Newberg, 62 Or LUBA 5 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a county's decision that land is not suitable for commercial forest use misapplies the test that LUBA determined must be applied in an earlier appeal, but the county also properly applies and adequately explains why the land does not qualify as suitable for commercial forest uses under the correct test, the county's misapplication of the test does not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Anderson v. Coos County, 62 Or LUBA 38 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A hearing official's failure to require that the applicant for a group care home show exactly where the proposed home would be located within a proposed 7,700-square-foot footprint, how large the home would be and what it would look like provides no basis for reversal or remand, where the applicable approval standard only requires that the home not have significant adverse impacts, and the hearing official explains that the potential number of residents and other operational characteristics of the home are known and the impacts of the home are more likely to be attributable to the operational characteristics than the design, size and location of the home. Phillips v. Lane County, 62 Or LUBA 92 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) decision to adopt an interchange area management plan that calls for closure of a particular access without the additional formal review that is called for in an intergovernmental agreement between ODOT and a city may constitute a violation of the intergovernmental agreement, but it does not provide a basis for reversing or remanding ODOT's decision to adopt the an interchange area management plan. Parker Johnstone Wilsonville Honda v. ODOT, 62 Or LUBA 116 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Under common law a property owner has a right of access to public thoroughfares. However, that common law right of access does not extend to a right to access of a particular type or at a particular location. Parker Johnstone Wilsonville Honda v. ODOT, 62 Or LUBA 116 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Absent permit approval criteria requiring otherwise, a petitioner cannot challenge an earlier unappealed decision extending a permit approval for 18 months, in the context of an appeal of a later decision modifying the permit. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 329 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Even assuming LUBA has authority to reject an otherwise meritorious exhaustion/waiver challenge based on the argument that the county is equitably estopped from asserting exhaustion/waiver due to alleged erroneous advice from county planning staff in accepting the local notice of appeal, the argument fails where based on petitioners' affidavits the best that can be said with confidence is that there was mutual misunderstanding and miscommunication regarding the sufficiency of the local notice of appeal and what issues petitioners wished to raise therein. Wellet v. Douglas County, 62 Or LUBA 372 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner fails to challenge all the reasons a hearings officer gives for finding that a proposed wind turbine facility will not force a significant change in or significantly increase the cost of accepted farm practices on nearby farms, petitioner's challenge to the adequacy of one of the reasons the hearings officer gave provides no basis for reversal or remand. Falls v. Marion County, 61 Or LUBA 39 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will not consider an assignment of error that is presented only in a footnote. Falls v. Marion County, 61 Or LUBA 39 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a local government's reasoning is difficult to follow and based on LUBA's understanding of that reasoning the local government should have required measures to screen mining from surrounding uses but failed to do so, remand is appropriate so that the local government can clarify its reasoning or require screening. Hoffman v. Deschutes County, 61 Or LUBA 173 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner does not challenge a hearings officer's finding that petitioner's use of his property for a wedding event required review and county approval under one code provision, and petitioner does not allege his wedding event received county review and approval, petitioner's arguments that the use could have been approved under a different code provision provide no basis for reversal or remand. Reed v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 253 (2010).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In considering an application for a three-parcel partition, the failure of an existing intersection that is not adjacent to the property to satisfy local zoning ordinance standards that apply to the design and construction of a new road or intersection does not provide a basis for the county to deny an application for a partition, where no new roads or intersections are proposed as part of the partition. Pelz v. Clackamas County, 59 Or LUBA 219 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Under OAR 661-010-0073, LUBA will reverse a decision where "[t]he decision violates provision of applicable law and is prohibited as a matter of law." However, where a decision was prohibited as a matter of law on the date it was rendered, but is no longer prohibited as a matter of law on the date of LUBA's decision, remand rather than reversal is appropriate. Remington Ranch, LLC v. Crook County, 59 Or LUBA 361 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA remands a decision by sustaining one or more assignments of error, it does not necessarily mean that LUBA agreed with every argument or sub-argument the petitioner advanced in the sustained assignments of error, or that on remand the local government must address every argument in the petition for review under those assignments of error. Instead, the local government must address the issues described in the portion of LUBA's opinion remanding the decision. Easterly v. Polk County, 59 Or LUBA 417 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city does not rely on the ORS 836.640 through 836.642 "through the fence" pilot program to adopt an Airport Related zoning district that authorizes airpark residential development with through the fence access to an airport, arguments that ORS 836.640 through 836.642 do not authorize the kind of through the fence access that is permitted in the city's new Airport Related zoning district provide no basis for reversal or remand. Port of St. Helens v. City of Scappoose, 58 Or LUBA 122 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A city's legislative decision to adopt a new Airport Related zoning district without applying the new zoning district to any property is not reversible where petitioner fails to demonstrate that the zone could in no circumstances be applied to property in the future without violating applicable legal standards. Port of St. Helens v. City of Scappoose, 58 Or LUBA 122 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An argument that a county erred by changing a proposed zoning ordinance text amendment approximately a month before the change was adopted provides no basis for reversal or remand where a detailed explanation of the proposed change was provided shortly after the change was introduced, many written comments were received and one of the petitioners submitted detailed comments opposing the proposed change. Carver v. Deschutes County, 58 Or LUBA 323 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner argues that a comprehensive plan amendment is inconsistent with a comprehensive plan policy, but the cited comprehensive plan policy has been repealed, petitioner provides no basis for reversal or remand. Carver v. Deschutes County, 58 Or LUBA 323 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In challenging a local government's finding that a permit applicant failed to carry its burden to demonstrate the application complies with applicable approval criteria, a petitioner must assign error to all the local government's bases for that finding. If a petitioner fails to assign error to any independent basis for denying a permit application, the decision must be affirmed. Delta Property Company v. Lane County, 58 Or LUBA 409 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where arguments in support of an assignment of error are not sufficiently developed to demonstrate error, LUBA will summarily reject those arguments. Kipfer v. Jackson County, 58 Or LUBA 436 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA sustains an assignment of error and remands a county decision, and the county hearings officer adopts approximately two pages of findings on remand addressing that assignment of error, it is the hearings officer's reasoning in rejecting the assignment of error that is before LUBA in a subsequent appeal. Where a petitioner merely re-alleges the assignment of error and makes no meaningful attempt to challenge the hearings officer's reasoning in rejecting the assignment of error, LUBA will deny the assignment of error. Kipfer v. Jackson County, 58 Or LUBA 436 (2009).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Assignments of error that consist of a single sentence alleging error and that include no argument explaining why the local government erred in the manner alleged are undeveloped and do not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Kane v. City of Beaverton, 56 Or LUBA 240 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An argument that is insufficiently developed for review provides no basis for reversal or remand of a land use decision. Hermanson v. Lane County, 56 Or LUBA 433 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Arguments that are directed at a concept plan that is in the process of being adopted provide no basis for reversal or remand of separate annexation decision. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 56 Or LUBA 504 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA determines that three county findings regarding the significance of an aggregate site are not supported by substantial evidence, are inadequately explained, or fail to appreciate the significance of certain evidence in the record, remand is required where LUBA cannot assume the findings were minor or unimportant parts of the county's ultimate decision that the applicant failed to demonstrate that the aggregate site qualifies as "significant," under OAR 660-023-0180(3). Westside Rock v. Clackamas County, 56 Or LUBA 601 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where it is undisputed that an application meets all other approval criteria, and the only basis for the county's second denial of the application is a code provision that the county is precluded from applying, LUBA will reverse rather than remand the decision. Curtain v. Jackson County, 56 Or LUBA 649 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city's decision explains how its zoning ordinance assigns floor area ratios to properties and that the past, present or future use of property does not affect a property's assigned floor area ratio, a petitioner's argument that property that will shortly be developed as a park should not have any floor area ratio provides no basis for reversal or remand. Trinkaus v. City of Portland, 56 Or LUBA 771 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An isolated statement by a design review commission member that an application is "a poster-child for floor-area transfer" is not sufficient to show he prejudged an application for permit approval. And even if it was, it would provide no basis for reversal or remand where (1) the design review commissioner did not participate in the decision on the permit, and (2) the decision on appeal to LUBA is a city council decision that affirmed the design review commission decision and there is no basis for imputing any prejudgment by the design review commissioner to the city council. Trinkaus v. City of Portland, 56 Or LUBA 771 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA sustains an assignment of error because the county's approval of the subdivision application is "prohibited as a matter of law," reversal rather than remand is the appropriate disposition. Dunn v. Yamhill County, 55 Or LUBA 206 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA's rules do not authorize LUBA to affirm a decision in part and reverse or remand that decision in part. 7th Street Station LLC v. City of Corvallis, 55 Or LUBA 321 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A local code provision that allows the city and county to consider amendments to a UGB using "the latest Annual Development Report * * * as a guide" does not require the city and county to prepare such a report, and an assignment of error based on the failure to prepare such a report provides no basis for reversal or remand. Sommer v. City of Grants Pass, 55 Or LUBA 400 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner's only challenge to the decisions being appealed is based on an argument that the decisions fail to satisfy criteria that are not applicable to the challenged decisions, petitioner's challenge provides no basis for reversal or remand. Sommer v. City of Cave Junction, 55 Or LUBA 423 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A hearings officer's conclusion that a deed had the effect of aggregating separate lots within a subdivision was correct given the totality of the circumstances surrounding the execution of the deed, including a condition of approval in a previous decision requiring aggregation of the lots and the absence of any statute or other applicable law governing lot aggregation. McKeel v. Multnomah County, 55 Or LUBA 608 (2008).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In a LUBA appeal, petitioners' challenges to local government decisions other than the decision that is the subject of the appeal provide no basis for reversal or remand. Robson v. City of La Grande, 54 Or LUBA 10 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An equipment shed may or may not be allowed as part of a utility, where the zoning ordinance defines a "building," in part, as a "structure" and allows utilities in all zones but prohibits such utilities from including a "building." Because the zoning ordinance distinguishes between "structures" and "accessory structures," the issue becomes whether the equipment shed qualifies as an "accessory structure" and whether the prohibition is limited to "structures" and does not extend to "accessory structures." Skyliner Summit at Broken Top v. City of Bend, 54 Or LUBA 316 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A county's interpretation of a local code provision as allowing the construction and use of a motorcycle track without review is incorrect where that provision requires site plan review for development of land, the code defines "development" broadly to include making a physical change in the land, and evidence in the record indicates that a bulldozer was used to develop a large portion of the land with a track and jumps. Love v. Klamath County, 54 Or LUBA 410 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A county does not commit error in approving a reduced minimum lot or parcel size in a portion of its exclusive farm use zone simply because it did not require the applicant to supply an accurate map of the affected area, where the record includes an accurate metes and bounds description of the affected area and an assessors map that shows the affected tax lots. Thompson v. Umatilla County, 54 Or LUBA 531 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a local government finds that there is a lack of evidence that vacant buildable lands inside an urban growth boundary are available for development, the local government impermissibly avoids the burden placed on it by Goal 14 and the applicable administrative rules to demonstrate that additional land is needed inside the urban growth boundary for urban development. Hildenbrand v. City of Adair Village, 54 Or LUBA 734 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner challenges a city council's findings concerning a screening and buffering criterion, but fails to challenge a finding that the city council adopted by reference, and that finding addresses and finds that the proposal complies with that criterion, LUBA will deny the assignment of error. Ettro v. City of Warrenton, 53 Or LUBA 485 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A party who assigns error to the city's failure to find that the lot sizes in a proposed subdivision are compatible with the lot sizes of adjacent properties must establish that such a finding is legally required. Where a party does not explain why the statutes, local code provisions, and comprehensive plan provisions that the party cites apply or have any bearing on the disputed decision, the assignment of error fails to state a basis for reversal or remand. Douglas v. City of Salem, 53 Or LUBA 567 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city's alternative theory for affirming a decision does not appear in the city's findings, LUBA will remand the decision. Douglas v. City of Salem, 53 Or LUBA 567 (2007).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA does not have authority to declare a city permit decision "moot, void or invalid" simply because the applicant corporation failed to renew its corporate registration on time. O'Brien v. City of Portland, 52 Or LUBA 113 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will reject a petitioner's argument that a city adjustment committee erred by failing to find that the zoning of a property reverted to its prior zoning because a rezoning condition of approval was violated, where petitioner fails to cite any authority to contradict the city's position that the adjustment committee lacks authority to question the zoning shown on the city's official zoning map. O'Brien v. City of Portland, 52 Or LUBA 113 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners' arguments under an assignment of error largely ignore the three-part rationale set out in a city's findings concerning the approval criteria at issue under that assignment of error, and petitioners instead erroneously characterize a city agency's "suggestion" as an essential basis for the agency's support for the requested adjustment, petitioners' assignment of error will be denied. O'Brien v. City of Portland, 52 Or LUBA 113 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Arguments that the planning commission erred in denying a variance request based on concerns regarding traffic levels do not provide a basis to reverse or remand the challenged decision, where the challenged decision is the city council's, and the city council did not deny the variance based on traffic levels. Krishchenko v. City of Canby, 52 Or LUBA 290 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners may not ignore a hearings officer's findings that particular adjustment/variance criteria do not apply in a particular circumstance and then argue only to LUBA that the proposal violates those adjustment/variance criteria. Bickford v. City of Tigard, 52 Or LUBA 301 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners' assignment of error challenging a hearings officer's decision to consider whether the adjustment/variance criteria that had been applied from the beginning during the local proceedings were the correct adjustment/variance criteria will be denied, where petitioners fail to assign error to the hearings officer's explanation for why he reconsidered whether those criteria were the correct criteria to apply and petitioners make no effort to argue that the hearings officer's explanation is faulty in some way. Bickford v. City of Tigard, 52 Or LUBA 301 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A petitioner may not fail to assign error to a finding that certain issues were not preserved and are not within the hearings officer's scope of review, and instead on appeal to LUBA, simply assign error with respect to the same issues that the hearings officer found were not preserved. Franzke v. Tigard, 52 Or LUBA 761 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners appeal a planning commission decision that grants variances and subdivision approval both to LUBA and to the city council, but petitioners do not appeal the city's subsequent decision that there is no right of local appeal to appeal the planning commission decision to the city council, petitioners may not challenge the city's decision that there is no right of local appeal in their LUBA appeal of the planning commission decision. The LUBA appeal is limited to the planning commission decision. Lockwood v. City of Salem, 51 Or LUBA 334 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where all parties believed that a two-variance subdivision proposal was before the planning commission, the planning commission voted to approve the two-variance subdivision, but the planning commission's final written decision approved a prior, withdrawn three-variance subdivision proposal with a slightly different lot configuration, remand is required so that the city can adopt a written decision that approves the two-variance subdivision that the planning commission intended to approve. Lockwood v. City of Salem, 51 Or LUBA 334 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That a proposal was called an expansion of an existing site at the beginning of local deliberation and was later referred to as a new mining site, in and of itself, provides no basis for reversal or remand. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 51 Or LUBA 383 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners must do more than argue that a county erroneously relied on a noise study that assumed that the DEQ standards for existing noise sources apply; petitioners must identify which new noise source standards they believe apply and why. Lindsey v. Josephine County, 51 Or LUBA 383 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner appeals the city council's determination that a local appeal of a planning commission decision was untimely filed, petitioner's allegation that members of the planning commission are biased does not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Jacobsen v. City of Winston, 51 Or LUBA 602 (2006).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In an appeal of a land use decision that applies an acknowledged comprehensive plan policy a petitioner may not challenge the validity of the acknowledged comprehensive plan policy. Sommer v. Josephine County, 49 Or LUBA 134 (2005).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A county's error in finding that ORS 215.253 imposes an absolute bar on adopting and applying local land use regulations to farm uses provides no basis for remand of land use decision approving a feedlot, where petitioners identify no existing, applicable local land use regulations that apply to county approval of a feedlot. Friends of Jefferson County v. Jefferson County, 48 Or LUBA 107 (2004).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A petitioner's expression of disagreement with the substance of a new design review ordinance is, in and of itself, insufficient to provide a basis for reversal or remand. Dobson v. City of Newport, 47 Or LUBA 267 (2004).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Arguments that (1) the notice that preceded the public hearings on a post-acknowledgment land use regulation amendment did not separately list every proposed change, and (2) the local government made additional modifications to the proposed amendments after the final evidentiary hearing provide no basis for remand, where the petitioner cites no legal authority that the notice of hearing must specifically list every proposed change or that the proposed amendments may not be modified following the final evidentiary hearing. Dobson v. City of Newport, 47 Or LUBA 267 (2004).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner's challenge to a conditional use permit allowing 45 cubic yards of fill in a wetland is based on the mistaken premise that the conditional use permit also authorized many more cubic yards of fill that were not placed in wetlands and the fill placed outside the wetlands did not require a conditional use permit, petitioner's challenge provides no basis for reversal or remand. Bonnett v. Deschutes County, 46 Or LUBA 318 (2004).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An assignment of error that is based on a mistaken assumption about the reason why a local appellant's appeal was rejected provides no independent basis for remand. Burke v. Crook County, 46 Or LUBA 413 (2004).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An adjoining property owner who faces loss of his only current access in the future and assigns error to a city council's decision not to require a subdivision applicant to provide access presents no basis for reversal or remand, where the city council interprets a local code provision that requires subdivision applicants to provide access to adjoining properties not to apply where the adjoining properties currently have access and the property owner fails to demonstrate how the city council's interpretation is erroneous under ORS 197.829(1). McFall v. City of Sherwood, 46 Or LUBA 735 (2004).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A city may not approve a modification to a site plan for one property that has the effect of altering the approved site plan of a second property, unless the owner of the second property agrees to the modification. Farrer v. City of Grants Pass, 45 Or LUBA 117 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Administrative rules promulgated by the Environmental Quality Commission (EQC) that set out the policies the EQC will apply when considering capital funding requests do not constitute applicable approval standards that a city must apply when considering an annexation request. Just v. City of Lebanon, 45 Or LUBA 162 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Unless the requirements of a periodic review remand order are embodied in a city's comprehensive plan or other applicable regulations, an allegation that a proposed comprehensive plan amendment and zone change are inconsistent with that periodic review remand order is not a basis for reversal or remand. Friends of Marion County v. City of Keizer, 45 Or LUBA 236 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Even if a city erroneously applied its zoning ordinance standards for lots or parcels to an applicant's request for a lot line adjustment, that error provides no basis for reversal or remand where the city's decision to deny the lot line adjustment request was not based on those standards. Smith v. City of St. Paul, 45 Or LUBA 281 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city's interpretation that a broadcast radio tower may be allowed in a residential zoning district as a "private utility" and a "utility substation and related facilities" includes a number of erroneous interpretations of the city's zoning ordinance, but LUBA identifies a potentially sustainable interpretation of relevant zoning ordinance terms that would appear to permit approval of the radio tower, remand is nevertheless required where there are reasons why the city might not agree with LUBA's interpretation. Citizens for Env. Resp. Dev. v. City of Beaverton, 45 Or LUBA 378 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a county's findings adequately explain its conclusion that a buffer is not necessary to protect adjoining properties from impacts from a hunting preserve, an adjoining property owner's disagreement with that conclusion provides no basis for reversal or remand of the county's decision. Underhill v. Wasco County, 45 Or LUBA 566 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That a county may have required hunting preserve buffers in other decisions that approve hunting preserves does not necessarily mean that the county errs in not requiring a hunting preserve buffer in an appealed decision, where there may have been factual differences or different evidence in the proceedings that led to the appealed decision that explain the different results. Underhill v. Wasco County, 45 Or LUBA 566 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An assignment of error that challenges a county's failure to apply code criteria governing zoning map amendments provides no basis for reversal or remand where the assignment of error contends the zoning code criteria should have been applied to a comprehensive plan map amendment. Doherty v. Morrow County, 44 Or LUBA 141 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A city commits no error in denying a request for a fence height variance based on the application as submitted, without taking into account changes to the fence that the applicant stated he was willing to make, where the applicant was invited to submit an amended application and declined to do so. Finkle v. City of Portland, 44 Or LUBA 484 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will not attempt to resolve a largely hypothetical dispute between a petitioner and a county over the degree of incidental social activity that might be permissible at an existing airport in conjunction with any particular activity that the county must allow under ORS 836.616(2). Landsem Farms v. Marion County, 44 Or LUBA 611 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. An assignment of error challenging the evidentiary support for an alleged finding that a private bridge is not available to serve a proposed residential development provides no basis for remand where the decision is not based on the alleged finding and petitioner fails to challenge the findings that the city did make in support of its decision. Oregon Diverse Industries v. City of Jacksonville, 43 Or LUBA 135 (2002).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA finds that a local government correctly determined that a particular conditional use approval criterion applies, but LUBA disagrees with the local government's reasons for concluding that the criterion applies, the local government's erroneous reasons for correctly concluding that the criterion applies provide no basis for reversal or remand. Dundas v. Lincoln County, 43 Or LUBA 407 (2002).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In determining that an applicant failed to carry his burden to demonstrate that a proposed home occupation would be carried out inside a building and in a manner that would not unreasonably interfere with other uses, the county did not err by considering existing and past conditions on the property. Hick v. Marion County, 43 Or LUBA 483 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the response brief does not respond to the merits of the petitioners' assignments of error, and LUBA cannot resolve those merits absent some assistance from the respondent, LUBA will remand the decision to the county to address petitioner's assignments of error. Dead Indian Memorial Rd. Neigh. v. Jackson County, 43 Or LUBA 511 (2003).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioner's argument that the county failed to address negative impacts resulting from a UGB expansion provides no basis for reversal or remand where petitioner fails to allege below that negative impacts existed. Friends of Linn County v. Linn County, 41 Or LUBA 342 (2002).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A city council finding that corrects a local appellant's citation to a city code provision provides no basis for reversal or remand where the correction has no effect on the city council's disposition of the merits of the local appellant's challenge. Sattler v. City of Beaverton, 41 Or LUBA 295 (2002).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A petitioner's challenge to a finding because it is more responsive to one code criterion than to another provides no basis for reversal or remand where the city's findings as a whole show that both criteria have been met. Sattler v. City of Beaverton, 41 Or LUBA 295 (2002).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A decision to revoke a permit is similar to a denial in that only one basis for revocation, supported by substantial evidence, is necessary to support a city's decision. A petitioner's challenge to only one of three bases for a city's decision to revoke a permit does not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Howard v. City of Madras, 41 Or LUBA 122 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Any error that may have been committed by failing to provide a proposed comprehensive plan amendment to DLCD 45 days before the first evidentiary hearing was corrected on remand by offering to provide the proposal to DLCD more than 45 days before the evidentiary hearing on remand, where there is no contention that DLCD failed to receive the proposal or failed to provide notice of the proposal in accordance with ORS 197.610(1) and DLCD advises the county that it does not oppose the proposal. Donnell v. Union County, 40 Or LUBA 455 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Assignments of error that are directed at a decision other than the decision that is the subject of the LUBA appeal provide no basis for reversal or remand. Robson v. City of La Grande, 40 Or LUBA 250 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city planner expresses an opinion in a transmittal letter, but the city council decision that is transmitted with the letter clearly does not express that opinion, the expression of opinion is not reviewable by LUBA in an appeal of the city council's decision. Robson v. City of La Grande, 40 Or LUBA 250 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A lengthy delay in filing the local record with LUBA does not substantially prejudice petitioner's right to the speediest practicable review, where the delay was partially attributable to petitioner's failure to bring the local government's noncompliance to LUBA's attention. Petersen v. Columbia County, 39 Or LUBA 799 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A county is not estopped from denying an expansion of a nonconforming use because it required improvements to a shop building to satisfy building code requirements, where petitioner does not demonstrate how the county's actions concerning the building permit translate into approval of the expanded uses within the structure. Hal's Construction, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 39 Or LUBA 616 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. While a development may have to eventually comply with federal laws, such as the Endangered Species Act, unless local approval criteria or federal law provisions require that the local decision that approves the development also demonstrate compliance with federal law, the decision need not do so. McNern v. City of Corvallis, 39 Or LUBA 591 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. When petitioner disagrees with a local government's interpretation of its own ordinance but fails to acknowledge or challenge that interpretation, petitioner establishes no basis for determining that the interpretation is clearly wrong. McNern v. City of Corvallis, 39 Or LUBA 591 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city adopts findings addressing issues raised by petitioner during local proceedings, petitioner presents no basis for reversal or remand by repeating those issues at LUBA without challenging the findings the city adopted to address those issues. Adams v. City of Medford, 39 Or LUBA 464 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a city's finding that a zoning map amendment will not significantly affect transportation facilities is based on a lengthy transportation impact study, and petitioner attacks that finding based on other evidence of questionable relevance without developing any arguments challenging the transportation impact study, petitioner provides no basis for reversal or remand. Adams v. City of Medford, 39 Or LUBA 464 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will not consider assignments of error challenging a city's findings of compliance with the wrong approval criteria, where the decision must be remanded in any event for the city to apply the correct approval criteria and the issues presented in the assignments of error may not arise on remand. Willhoft v. City of Gold Beach, 39 Or LUBA 353 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the notice of intent to appeal challenges a governing body's decision determining that petitioner has no standing to file a local appeal of a planning director's decision, but the petition for review assigns error only to the planning director's decision, the petition for review provides no basis to reverse or remand the governing body's decision. Doob v. Josephine County, 39 Or LUBA 301 (2001).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner challenges a variance condition on the basis that it improperly delegates approval of a retaining wall to the public works director, but petitioner fails to demonstrate how the condition of approval implicates any of the variance approval standards, petitioner's argument concerning the condition provides no basis for remand. Bates v. City of Cascade Locks, 38 Or LUBA 349 (2000).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Unless a local code requires the governing body to remand a decision to the planning commission if it finds that the decision is unsupported by findings, the governing body's decision to modify the planning commission's decision rather than remand it provides no basis for reversal or remand. Dutchuk v. City of Prineville, 38 Or LUBA 323 (2000).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the local government's findings fail to quantify the impacts of the proposed development with sufficient particularity to justify the exactions it imposed, remand is appropriate, because on remand the city may be able to adopt findings to justify some or all of the exactions it imposed. McClure v. City of Springfield, 37 Or LUBA 759 (2000).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petitioner expresses disagreement with a local government about whether a zoning text amendment violates a comprehensive plan policy, without attempting to demonstrate error in the local government's findings that interpret and apply the comprehensive plan policy, petitioner states no basis for reversal or remand. Marine Street LLC v. City of Astoria, 37 Or LUBA 587 (2000).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Imposition of an ineffective condition as part of a comprehensive plan map amendment may result in remand where the condition is necessary to ensure compliance with a relevant approval criterion. However, such an ineffective condition does not provide a basis for reversal or remand where it is not shown that the condition is necessary to ensure compliance with plan map amendment approval criteria. Neighbors for Livability v. City of Beaverton, 37 Or LUBA 408 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In considering whether a farm management plan has been substantially complied with, a county is not required to consider issues that could have been presented in a prior, unappealed decision that authorized a property line adjustment for the two parcels that were the subject of the farm management plan. Rochlin v. Multnomah County, 37 Or LUBA 237 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. When the scope of a "planning action," as that term is used in the city's code, is uncertain and subject to multiple interpretations, LUBA will remand to allow the city to decide the scope in the first instance. Davis v. City of Ashland, 37 Or LUBA 224 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will remand rather than reverse a decision approving partitions in conjunction with a nonfarm dwelling, notwithstanding that the resulting partitions violate the minimum parcel size at ORS 215.780(1), where the decision expressly preserves an issue regarding whether the county's 20-acre minimum parcel size was adopted under one of the exceptions to ORS 215.780(1), and thus LUBA cannot determine whether the approval is prohibited as a matter of law. Alliance for Responsible Land Use v. Deschutes Co., 37 Or LUBA 215 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners do not establish that a land use regulation standard is violated as it is interpreted by the city council, petitioners establish no basis for reversal or remand. Freedom v. City of Ashland, 37 Or LUBA 123 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. ORS 197.835(10)(a)(A) mandates that LUBA reverse a land use decision where a "local government decision is outside the range of discretion allowed the local government under its comprehensive plan and implementing ordinances[.]" If a decision is reversed under ORS 197.835(10)(a)(A), ORS 197.835(10)(b) requires that LUBA award attorney fees to the applicant. However, those statutes do not apply to a land use decision that is reversed because it is outside the discretion allowed under an LCDC administrative rule. Morse Bros., Inc. v. Columbia County, 37 Or LUBA 85 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA does not have statutory authority to dismiss an appeal of a land use decision and direct that particular actions be taken by the city following such dismissal. Genstar Land Company Northwest v. City of Sherwood, 36 Or LUBA 787 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where parties stipulate that LUBA may dismiss an appeal or a petitioner withdraws the notice of intent to appeal, LUBA's decision dismissing the appeal expresses no position on the legal effect of actions that may have been taken or may yet be taken pursuant to an agreement entered into by parties to the appeal. Genstar Land Company Northwest v. City of Sherwood, 36 Or LUBA 787 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In deciding whether to grant a request for voluntary remand over petitioner's objection, LUBA considers whether (1) all issues presented in the petition for review will be considered on remand and (2) the proceedings on remand will be capable of providing the petitioner with everything he would be entitled to from LUBA. In such circumstances, LUBA will grant a motion for voluntary remand over a petitioner's objection unless LUBA concludes that its review to narrow the issues is more important or that the motives for the motion for voluntary remand are improper. Quest International, Inc. v. City of Silverton, 36 Or LUBA 259 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioner's assignment of error will not be rejected solely because petitioner failed to challenge alternative findings that state law might preempt the county regulations at issue in the assignment of error, where the hearings officer's alternative finding does not clearly conclude that state law preempts. Neels v. Clackamas County, 36 Or LUBA 54 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a hearings officer's findings are inadequate to explain why a proposed use that qualifies as a permitted use as a "household" does not also fall within the definition of a "nursing home," which is only allowed as a conditional use, a remand would normally be required. However, where the facts are not disputed, and LUBA is presented with a straightforward question of law, it may consider whether the proposed use falls within the definition of "nursing home." Neels v. Clackamas County, 36 Or LUBA 54 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A motion for voluntary remand will be denied where the local government does not propose to address arguments that the challenged decision is prohibited as a matter of law or arguments that the local government improperly shifted the burden of proof. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 35 Or LUBA 732 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In determining whether to reverse or remand a land use decision, the question is whether it is the land use decision or the land use proposal that is defective. Angius v. Washington County, 35 Or LUBA 462 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA concludes on review that a local decision approving a proposed subdivision cannot be corrected unless the subdivision is first revised by modifying the original application or submitting a new application, reversal rather than remand is appropriate. Angius v. Washington County, 35 Or LUBA 462 (1999).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA does not duplicate the role of a local hearings officer. Where the evidence is conflicting such that a reasonable decision maker could reach different conclusions based on that evidence, the choice of which evidence to believe and which conclusion to reach is for the hearings officer. River City Disposal v. City of Portland, 35 Or LUBA 360 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner fails to assign error to detailed findings explaining why certain acknowledged comprehensive plan provisions constitute "specific policies" that, under ORS 197.835(7)(b), make it unnecessary for the city to demonstrate compliance with statewide planning goals when amending city land use regulations to implement those policies, LUBA will reject an assignment of error alleging the city erred by failing to demonstrate that the new and amended land use regulations comply with the statewide planning goals. Rogue Valley Assoc. of Realtors v. City of Ashland, 35 Or LUBA 139 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. When the only decision appealed is a decision changing the required sequence of PUD phases, and the assignments of error provide no basis for reversing or remanding that decision, the decision will be affirmed. LUBA will reject assignments of error that challenge other related decisions that were not appealed. Claus v. City of Sherwood, 35 Or LUBA 120 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a county gives adequate assurances that it will comprehensively review petitioner's assignments of error, LUBA will grant a motion for voluntary remand and will not assume the motion for voluntary remand is motivated by delay or other improper reasons simply because there has been a lengthy course of litigation in the matter. Murphy Citizens Advisory Committee v. Josephine Co., 35 Or LUBA 117 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the petition for review does not identify the ordinance standard that is allegedly violated or what the ordinance requires, petitioners' argument is not sufficiently developed for LUBA review. Lodge v. City of West Linn, 35 Or LUBA 42 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner alleges a decision violates an ambiguous land use regulation provision, LUBA must first determine whether the decision includes a reviewable interpretation that is entitled to deference under ORS 197.829(1). Botham v. Union County, 34 Or LUBA 648 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA is only required to defer to a local government's express or implied interpretation where the interpretation is adequate for review. Botham v. Union County, 34 Or LUBA 648 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where an interpretation cannot be implied by the way the code was applied and cannot be implied to resolve an irreconcilable conflict between code provisions, the decision lacks an implied interpretation. Botham v. Union County, 34 Or LUBA 648 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where there is no express or implied interpretation of an ambiguous local code provision, LUBA may interpret the code in the first instance. Botham v. Union County, 34 Or LUBA 648 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the purpose of an ambiguous code provision is not clear and the provision is subject to more than one sustainable interpretation, it is appropriate for LUBA to remand the decision to the local government to interpret its land use regulation in the first instance. Botham v. Union County, 34 Or LUBA 648 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner fails to articulate in what respects a local government's findings are inadequate or lacking in evidentiary support, LUBA will not establish petitioner's legal justification. Larvik v. City of La Grande, 34 Or LUBA 467 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner contends that findings are inadequate and not supported by substantial evidence, but fails to identify any particular criterion and only expresses disagreement with the city's evaluation of the evidence, petitioner provides no basis for reversal or remand. Kelley v. City of Cascade Locks, 34 Or LUBA 374 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A county is not bound by "issue" or "claim" preclusion to a prior finding of noncompliance with an approval criterion in a prior land use proceeding. Femling v. Coos County, 34 Or LUBA 328 (1998).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner appeals a decision granting a conditional use permit that petitioner applied for, but does not assign error to any aspect of the decision other than to contend the conditional use permit should not have been required in the first place, petitioner states no basis for reversal or remand. Recovery House VI v. City of Eugene, 33 Or LUBA 327 (1997).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A county's decision is subject to remand when the county may be able to correct the defects in its decision. Reversal is appropriate only when the decision is erroneous as a matter of law. Roberts v. Crook County, 33 Or LUBA 267 (1997).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Only actions undertaken by the city prior to the date of the final decision being appealed are relevant to LUBA's review. Assignments of error that relate to actions undertaken by the city after the date of its final decision will be denied. Tucker v. City of Adair Village, 31 Or LUBA 382 (1996).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a county has never made a decision to partition a parcel, the county's approval of a lot line adjustment, which is premised on the assumption that a partition has occurred, must be reversed. Higgins v. Marion County, 30 Or LUBA 426 (1996).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners fail to develop an argument sufficient for LUBA's review when they dispute a conclusion of compliance with relevant approval standards by summarily incorporating arguments from other assignments of error. Canby Quality of Life Committee v. City of Canby, 30 Or LUBA 166 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. When petitioners raise concerns about compliance with "applicable standards," but do not specify in their brief what standards or approval criteria are at risk of being violated, petitioners' argument is insufficiently developed to provide a basis for reversal or remand. Marcott Holdings, Inc. v. City of Tigard, 30 Or LUBA 101 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Whether LUBA has the authority to reverse a local government decision based on the doctrine of equitable estoppel is unclear. Sparks v. City of Bandon, 30 Or LUBA 69 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Because LUBA's review is limited to the record of an appealed decision, LUBA cannot rely on a determination in another case that a proposed golf course is not a commercial use to support a determination, in the case on appeal, that a proposed golf driving range is not a commercial use. Moore v. Clackamas County, 29 Or LUBA 372 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners provide no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision where they fail to establish the proposed development violates any legal standard. Nalette v. City of Klamath Falls, 28 Or LUBA 709 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner simply asserts the challenged decision ignores her solar access rights, and the challenged decision contains detailed findings on local solar access requirements, petitioner provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Sullivan v. City of Ashland, 28 Or LUBA 699 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners cannot raise a new basis for reversing or remanding a challenged decision for the first time in a post oral argument motion for evidentiary hearing unless they demonstrate that they seek to present facts unknown to them at the time the petition for review was filed. Salem Golf Club v. City of Salem, 28 Or LUBA 561 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a proposed transportation facility includes open space and pedestrian and bicycle facilities to satisfy comprehensive plan policies implementing Goal 8, petitioner's speculation that those facilities might be eliminated in the future in favor of more traffic lanes provides no basis for reversal or remand. Such changes would require a plan amendment and a demonstration that the altered facility complies with the plan policies. Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 477 (1995).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In the absence of an interpretation of the applicability of zone code regulations to the challenged decision, LUBA cannot determine whether a city council decision approving a road improvement is a statutory land use decision. Carlson v. City of Dines City, 28 Or LUBA 411 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA is not authorized to remand a challenged decision to a local government for the local government to conduct evidentiary hearings, without first resolving the assignments of error raised by a petitioner. ORS 197.835(9)(a). Tri-County Metro. Trans. Dist. v. City of Beaverton, 28 Or LUBA 78 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioner cannot allege for the first time in the petition for review that a document included in the local record was not actually placed before the local decision maker and, consequently, assign the decision maker's reliance on that document as error. Bates v. Josephine County, 28 Or LUBA 21 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A petitioner's allegations that an existing fill violates the civil law rule limiting the right of an upland owner to artificially alter discharge of surface waters onto adjoining properties may provide a basis for a cause of action for interference with petitioner's property rights, but does not provide a basis for reversal or remand of a local government decision approving a permit for the fill. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 480 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner does not contend a challenged decision is inconsistent with an applicable plan policy, but rather that the decision is unnecessary to implement that policy, petitioner's argument provides no basis for reversal or remand. Rea v. City of Seaside, 27 Or LUBA 443 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That a local government's final written order may not accurately reflect oral comments made by the local decision maker during its deliberations provides no basis for reversal or remand of a challenged decision. Barrick v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Although the substance of particular objections by neighbors may lead to a conclusion that one or more local code adjustment criteria are violated, the fact that one or more neighbors object has no legal significance. Edwards v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 262 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners repeat the same arguments that were rejected in a prior LUBA appeal, and make no effort to explain why those arguments ought to be sustained in a second LUBA appeal, the arguments will be rejected. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 27 Or LUBA 243 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA will reject an assignment of error where petitioners fail to adequately identify the issues they believe the local government failed to respond to and fail to challenge findings which address the general area of concern identified by petitioners. Davenport v. City of Tigard, 27 Or LUBA 243 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That newly elected members of the local decision making body decided not to participate in local proceedings on remand from LUBA, because they were not members of the decision making body at the time the original local proceedings were conducted and are unfamiliar with the record, provides no basis for reversal or remand of the local government decision on remand. Rhine v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 86 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners do not demonstrate that the issue raised in an assignment of error is relevant to compliance with any legal standard applicable to the challenged decision, LUBA will deny the assignment of error. Dorgan v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 64 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. A petitioner's assignment of error will be rejected where it simply alleges code violations, without supplying any supporting argument, or alleges inconsistent findings and lack of substantial evidence, without identifying the challenged findings. Draganowski v. Curry County, 26 Or LUBA 420 (1994).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA determines a condition of approval was erroneously imposed, but rejects all other assignments of error, a remand rather than reversal nevertheless is required, if LUBA is unable to determine whether the local government relied on the erroneous condition of approval in concluding that all applicable approval criteria are met. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 26 Or LUBA 247 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. The exclusive forum for enforcement of public meetings laws is circuit court. That public meetings law violations may have occurred during the land use decision making process does not, of itself, provide a basis for reversal or remand. Sorte v. City of Newport, 26 Or LUBA 236 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That a proposed partition of land within a PUD may violate private covenants, conditions and restrictions, provides no basis for reversal or remand of a challenged land use decision. Long v. Marion County, 26 Or LUBA 132 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner fails to cite any applicable law violated by the challenged decision, petitioner's assignment of error provides no basis for reversal or remand. Long v. Marion County, 26 Or LUBA 132 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA reviews the local government's final written order. That the final written order may not accurately reflect oral comments made by the local decision maker during its deliberations provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Derry v. Douglas County, 26 Or LUBA 25 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner's notice of intent to appeal identifies the challenged decision as the governing body's decision to dismiss his local appeal, but his petition for review alleges error in the planning commission's decision to approve the subject application, rather than the governing body's decision dismissing his appeal, LUBA will affirm the challenged decision. Churchill v. Tillamook County, 26 Or LUBA 22 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners fail to identify any applicable standard arguably limiting the validity of a local government's initial PUD development plan approval to a particular period of time, the local government's failure to address the issue of whether the PUD development plan expired does not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Gage v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 449 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA can grant relief only if petitioners demonstrate that an applicable legal standard is violated by the challenged decision. Frankton Neigh. Assoc. v. Hood River County, 25 Or LUBA 386 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioner's assignment of error expresses no more than disagreement with the local government's decision, such disagreement provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Neuharth v. City of Salem, 25 Or LUBA 267 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where parties object that petitioner failed to properly perfect its local appeal, but the local government nevertheless allows the local appeal, petitioner satisfies the requirement that it exhaust available administrative remedies, as ORS 197.825(2)(a) requires. Although the local government may have committed reversible error in considering the local appeal, LUBA has jurisdiction to review the local government's final decision. Miller v. Washington County, 25 Or LUBA 169 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. After acknowledgment, unless a challenged local government land use decision is an amendment to an acknowledged comprehensive plan or land use regulation or a new land use regulation, LUBA has no authority to reverse or remand the decision for failure to comply with the statewide planning goals. O'Mara v. Douglas County, 25 Or LUBA 25 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. It is a local government's final written decision that is subject to LUBA's review. That conditions imposed in the local government's final written decision were not discussed in the decision maker's deliberations does not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Terra v. City of Newport, 24 Or LUBA 438 (1993).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA does not apply land use decision making approval criteria in the first instance. It is the local government's responsibility to consider the evidentiary record, identify the applicable standards, make the decision in the first instance and explain the basis for its decision in its findings. ODOT v. City of Waldport, 24 Or LUBA 344 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Reversal of a local government land use decision approving a permit application means the subject application cannot be approved under the applicable criteria as a matter of law, and that a new or amended permit application is required to correct at least one allegation of error sustained in LUBA's final opinion. Seitz v. City of Ashland, 24 Or LUBA 311 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. The local government record does not include evidence that is specifically rejected by the local government during the local proceedings. That such evidence may have been erroneously rejected may provide a basis for reversal or remand, but it has no bearing on the contents of the record. Glisan Street Assoc. v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 600 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA reviews the final written decision of the local government decision making body, not statements that may have been made during the local proceedings by individual decision makers. Linebarger v. City of The Dalles, 24 Or LUBA 91 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. General expressions of disagreement with a land use decision provide no basis for reversal or remand. Reed v. Benton County, 23 Or LUBA 486 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In reviewing local government decisions, LUBA's role as an appellate tribunal is to review the local government's explanation of why it believes its decision satisfies relevant approval standards. LUBA's function is not to identify the relevant approval standards or to interpret relevant code and plan language in the first instance. Warren v. City of Aurora, 23 Or LUBA 507 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA reviews challenged land use decisions for compliance with applicable approval standards, not for consistency with prior local government decisions. Sterling Mine Properties v. Jackson County, 23 Or LUBA 18 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners must include sufficient argument in the petition for review to explain the basis for their allegations of error. Petitioners may not fail to make a specific challenge to the findings supporting a decision or the evidentiary support for those findings and rely solely on expressions of disagreement with the challenged decision. Camp v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 6 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a petition for review contains no argument in support of petitioner's assignments of error, the assignments of error will be denied. Camp v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 6 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Expressions of disagreement with a local government's decision, which are unrelated to the local government's findings or the legal standards applicable to a request for land use approval, are inadequate to constitute a basis for reversal or remand. Simmons v. Marion County, 22 Or LUBA 759 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners fail to identify any applicable legal standard which they contend is violated by an alleged defect in the local government's decision, LUBA cannot grant relief. Schellenberg v. Polk County, 22 Or LUBA 673 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. It is petitioners' responsibility to develop their legal argument sufficiently to establish a basis for reversal or remand. Kane v. City of The Dalles, 22 Or LUBA 608 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where petitioners are afforded a de novo evidentiary hearing before a hearings officer, and where petitioners had an adequate opportunity to explain to the hearings officer why the planning department decision appealed from was wrong, that the planning department decision may have been based on erroneous assumptions provides no basis for reversal or remand of the hearings officer's decision. Ralston v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 573 (1992).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. When LUBA's decision on the merits of an appeal will be without practical effect, LUBA will dismiss the appeal as moot. LUBA does not have authority in these circumstances to remand the challenged decision to the local government with instructions to dismiss the local proceedings as moot. Barr v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 504 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That the governing body made a decision different from the recommendation of the hearings officer, and adopted findings inconsistent with those adopted by the hearings officer, is not in itself a basis for reversal or remand of the governing body's decision. Brandt v. Marion County, 22 Or LUBA 473 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In establishing actual bias or prejudgment on the part of a local government decision maker, the burden is on petitioner to show the decision maker was biased or prejudged the application and did not reach its decision by applying applicable standards based on the evidence and argument presented. Oregon Worsted Company v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 452 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. That the initial administrative decision maker was not impartial would be insufficient grounds to reverse or remand a challenged decision, where petitioner was afforded a de novo review of the administrative decision, including a public hearing, by a hearings officer. Oregon Worsted Company v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 452 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where there are oral statements during local proceedings suggesting confusion about who has the burden of proof in a local appeal, but there is nothing in the written decision to suggest the local government made an erroneous allocation of the burden of proof, LUBA will not assume the burden of proof was erroneously assigned to the opponents of the application. Coonse v. Crook County, 22 Or LUBA 138 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioners' argument that the city failed to submit a sludge management plan to DEQ provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, where petitioners cite no approval standard requiring the submission of a sludge management plan to DEQ and do not explain how a sludge management plan is relevant to compliance with applicable code provisions. Sitsler v. City of Mill City, 22 Or LUBA 125 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. While the requirement that local governments carrying out public land development projects grant land use approvals to themselves presents inherent appearance of bias problems, such appearance problems, in and of themselves, present no basis for reversal or remand. Holladay Investors, Ltd. v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 90 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA's review is limited to the local government's written final decision and does not include review of statements made by individual members of the local government's decision making body during local proceedings. Holladay Investors, Ltd. v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 90 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Petitioner's argument that an approved residential care facility is really a correctional facility provides no basis for remand where (1) the code definition of residential care facility appears to be broad enough to include correctional facilities, (2) the local government found the proposal satisfies the code definition of residential care facility, and (3) petitioner does not challenge the local government's findings. Wentland v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 15 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a local government imposes an improper condition in granting land use approval, but does not rely on the improper condition in finding applicable approval criteria are met, LUBA will reverse the condition and otherwise affirm the decision granting land use approval. Olson Memorial Clinic v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 418 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Without a showing by petitioner that an applicable legal criterion has been violated, LUBA cannot grant relief. Reynolds v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 412 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. If a challenged plan and zone map amendment was adopted in compliance with the applicable criteria, it cannot be considered arbitrary and, therefore, is not invalid "spot zoning." Where petitioners fail to show an applicable standard is violated by the city's decision, no basis for reversal or remand is established. Brown & Cole, Inc. v. City of Estacada, 21 Or LUBA 392 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Erroneous expressions of plan or code interpretation by the decision maker, whether expressed before or after the decision is reduced to writing and becomes final, provide no basis for reversal, if such erroneous expressions are not included in the written decision or findings supporting the written decision. Waker Associates, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 21 Or LUBA 588 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Without a showing that an applicable approval criterion has been violated by the local government's decision, LUBA cannot grant relief. Hale v. City of Beaverton, 21 Or LUBA 249 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where LUBA cannot determine from the local record on what basis the proposed use was approved by the local government, or on what basis the proposed use could be approved by the local government under the applicable zoning district, LUBA cannot say the local government's decision approving the proposed use is prohibited as a matter of law and, therefore, will remand the challenged decision. OAR 661-10-07192)(b). McKay Creek Valley Assoc. v. Washington County, 21 Or LUBA 66 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the local record indicates a petitioner was not allowed to speak at a hearing because his testimony would include new evidence, the acceptance of which would indisputably have been improper, and petitioners do not claim that his testimony would not have included new evidence, petitioners fail to identify a basis upon which LUBA may grant relief. White v. City of Oregon City, 20 Or LUBA 470 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Unless petitioners demonstrate that an applicable legal criterion or standard has been violated by the appealed decision, LUBA cannot grant relief. 19th Street Project v. City of The Dalles, 20 Or LUBA 440 (1991).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where a governing body erroneously construed the legal effect of its failure to reach the merits in a de novo review, LUBA will remand rather than reverse, to allow an abstaining member of the governing body to consider whether abstention is required and to allow an absent governing body member an opportunity to participate so that a decision on the merits may be reached. Strawn v. City of Albany, 20 Or LUBA 344 (1990).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. In order to establish bias on the part of the decision maker, petitioner must show that the decision maker either has a personal stake in the outcome of the proceeding or has prejudged the matter. LUBA will not infer the existence of bias on the part of a decision maker. Kittleson v. Lane County, 20 Or LUBA 286 (1990).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. LUBA reviews a local government's final written decision. The oral comments of individual members of the local decision making body are not relevant to LUBA's review, and do not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Neuenschwander v. City of Ashland, 20 Or LUBA 144 (1990).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Expressions of disagreement with a local government's decision, which are unrelated to the local government's findings or the legal standards applicable to a request for land use approval, are inadequate to constitute a basis for reversal or remand. McCarty v. City of Portland, 20 Or LUBA 86 (1990).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Without a showing that an applicable legal criterion or standard has been violated by the county's decision, LUBA cannot grant relief. Weist v. Jackson County, 18 Or LUBA 627 (1990).

28.8.1 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Generally. Where the record shows the ex parte contacts alleged by petitioner were disclosed during local hearings, such ex parte contacts provide no basis for reversal or remand. Douglas v. Multnomah County, 18 Or LUBA 607 (1990).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Pursuant to ORS 197.835(2), LUBA may make its own factual findings as to whether an appeal was timely filed, which is a jurisdictional question. Accordingly, LUBA may consider evidence outside the record for the limited purpose of resolving disputes regarding whether an appeal was timely filed, even in the absence of a motion to take evidence outside the record under OAR 661-010-0045. Leyden v. City of Eugene, 79 Or LUBA 151 (2019).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Remand, rather than reversal, is the appropriate remedy when the board of county commissioners did not address an argument or adopt findings in response to the argument on appeal. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 78 Or LUBA 38 (2018).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Where a provision of the local code prohibits the filing of a new application for at least one year after an application is denied and the local government denies an application, a local government exceeds its authority in accepting and approving a new application within one year of the original denial. Hood River Valley Residents' Committee v. Hood River County, 77 Or LUBA 1 (2018).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Standard Insurance Co. v. Washington County, 17 Or LUBA 647 (1989), holds that a local government lacks jurisdiction to modify a decision that is currently on appeal to LUBA or the Court of Appeals. However, Standard Insurance Co. does not prohibit a local government from commencing local proceedings to modify a condition of approval of a decision that is on appeal to LUBA, as long as the final decision adopting the modification is issued after all appeals of the original decision have been concluded. Foland v. Jackson County, 70 Or LUBA 247 (2014).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Where nothing in the county's code supports a claim that payment of a local appeal fee is a jurisdictional requirement, failure to pay the appeal fee is not grounds for dismissal of the appeal at the local level. Ratzlaff v. Polk County, 56 Or LUBA 740 (2008).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. LUBA has jurisdiction to review land use decisions and limited land use decisions, and the fact that there may not be reviewable issues merely limits the Board's scope of review; it does not eliminate the Board's jurisdiction over the appeal. Papst v. Clackamas County, 53 Or LUBA 344 (2007).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Regional plan provisions that limit regional planning to a designated region are not violated or improperly amended by non-regulatory expressions of interest in a city parks, recreation and open space plan concerning parks outside the region and city in the county, where the city's plan makes it clear that the county's plan is the controlling planning document for such parks. Home Builders Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 52 Or LUBA 341 (2006).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Where petitioners fail to establish that any statute obligates a county to provide petitioners notice of a building permit decision that modifies a condition of partition approval, the "knew or should have known" standard at ORS 197.830(3)(b) applies rather than the "actual notice" standard at ORS 197.830(3)(a), in determining whether an appeal is timely filed under that statute. Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. The 21-day deadline to file an appeal under ORS 197.830(3)(b) begins on the date petitioners knew or should have known of the "decision," i.e., that the local government had approved development on the subject property. It is not necessary that petitioners know the particular detail of the proposed development that offends them, such as its exact location on the property, before the 21-day deadline begins running. Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Where the petitioners are provided written notice of an application for a proposed height variance for an already approved dwelling, the petitioners are placed on at least "inquiry notice" that the county has previously approved a dwelling on the subject property. Given that information, it is incumbent on petitioners to make timely inquiries to discover the decision that approved the dwelling, such as investigating the planning file, and failure to make such inquiries within 21 days of being placed on inquiry notice means that the deadline to appeal the decision to LUBA under ORS 197.830(3)(b) begins on the date of inquiry notice. Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. An appeal that is filed four to five weeks after the petitioners learned that the local government had approved the challenged decision is untimely filed under ORS 197.830(3)(b). Neelund v. Josephine County, 52 Or LUBA 683 (2006).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. A local government exceeds its jurisdiction where it issues a decision on a withdrawn application. Accordingly, OAR 661-010-0071(1)(a) compels reversal of the decision. Early LUBA cases indicating that dismissal of the appeal is the appropriate disposition in such circumstances are overruled. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 50 Or LUBA 344 (2005).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Where a LUBA decision that remands a city resolution is on appeal to the Court of Appeals, the city lacks jurisdiction to amend that resolution. But the city has jurisdiction to adopt a comprehensive plan amendment that LUBA found the city should have adopted at the time it adopted the resolution. Rhodes v. City of Talent, 50 Or LUBA 415 (2005).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Concern about the potential for conversion of industrially planned and zoned lands to commercial and office uses is a legitimate area of metropolitan concern within the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan Service District. City of Sandy v. Metro, 48 Or LUBA 363 (2005).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. A county has authority or jurisdiction to deny a permit application on its merits, where the permit applicant fails to demonstrate he was authorized to submit the permit application but the code limitations on who can submit permit applications do not impose a "jurisdictional" requirement. Base Enterprises, Inc. v. Clackamas County, 38 Or LUBA 614 (2000).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Metro may adopt a functional plan with site-specific requirements without necessarily exceeding its authority under ORS 268.030(3) to "provide for those aspects of land use planning having metropolitan significance." Commercial Real Estate Economic Coalition v. Metro, 37 Or LUBA 171 (1999).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. A combined application for a plan map amendment, zone change and annexation request does not convert a local government's recommendation regarding the annexation request into a binding decision where the local government lacks decisional authority over annexation requests. Copper Basin, Inc. v. Umatilla County, 37 Or LUBA 147 (1999).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. A county hearings officer is not legally bound to defer to a board of county commissioners' determination that a particular site is necessary for a proposed utility facility, where the board of county commissioners adopted its determination in its capacity as the governing body of a service district. Clackamas Co. Svc. Dist. No. 1 v. Clackamas County, 35 Or LUBA 374 (1998).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. Where a challenged local government decision finds the subject property is entirely within the local government's boundaries, and those findings are supported by substantial evidence in the record, the local government did not exceed its jurisdiction in approving the subject development application. ONRC v. City of Seaside, 29 Or LUBA 39 (1995).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. That the electorate may have exceeded its authority in adopting land use legislation by initiative, is a question bearing on the merits of an appeal from such a decision, not on LUBA's jurisdiction to review the appealed decision. Riverbend Landfill Company v. Yamhill County, 24 Or LUBA 607 (1992).

28.8.2 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Lack of Jurisdiction. A city ordinance rezoning property located outside the city's municipal boundaries exceeds the city's jurisdiction and must be reversed. Hofmann v. City of Seaside, 24 Or LUBA 183 (1992).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Petitioner fails to establish a basis for reversal or remand under Article I, section 20, of the Oregon Constitution where there is no evidence that other city-approved applications for a zone change to residential are factually identical to his application. Carroll v. City of Malin, 80 Or LUBA 298 (2019).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. When the Court of Appeals remands a LUBA decision that affirmed a local government decision requiring a condition of approval that petitioner argued constituted an unconstitutional exaction of property prohibited by the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution, because the Court of Appeals agreed with petitioner that the dedication is unconstitutional unless the hearings officer finds that the impacts of the proposed development would substantially impede the governmental interest advanced by the city's standards which the conditions of approval were imposed to meet, LUBA will remand that portion of the decision to the hearings officer for reconsideration where the hearings officer adopted no findings on that point. Hill v. City of Portland, 78 Or LUBA 334 (2018).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Where a city code provides that a property owner must, as a condition of permit or partition approval, either provide the improvements or pay into an improvement fund if a street adjoining property without direct access to the street does not have standard full-width improvements, and petitioner argues that the code provision is not applicable to his proposed property partition, LUBA will sustain, in part, petitioner's challenge upon remand from the Court of Appeals, where the arguments on appeal have evolved and it is apparent that remand is necessary for the hearings officer to adopt findings regarding LUBA's underlying conclusion that the hearings officer was correct in concluding that the condition requiring a waiver of remonstrance against a street or stormwater facility improvement was justified under Clark v. City of Albany, 31 Or LUBA 375, 380, aff'd, 144 Or App 192, 924 P2d 877 (1966), and did not constitute a taking. Hill v. City of Portland, 78 Or LUBA 334 (2018).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. While the county presumably has a legitimate governmental interest in preserving wildlife migration corridors, under RLUIPA, 42 USC § 2000cc et seq., the county cannot treat religious assemblies in the wildlife area (WA) Overlay zone on less favorable terms than non-religious assemblies with similar impacts on wildlife. Accordingly, the board of county commissioners correctly concluded that the express exclusion of churches in the county code from the WA overlay zone, while allowing nonreligious assemblies and institutions as conditional uses, violates the so-called Equal Terms provision of RLUIPA because churches are not treated equally. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 78 Or LUBA 516 (2018).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Where the county found that county code provisions, which expressly exclude churches in the wildlife area (WA) Overlay zone, while allowing nonreligious assemblies and institutions as conditional uses, violate the Equal Terms provision of RLUIPA, 42 USC § 2000cc et seq., under the Article VI of the United States Constitution, the Supremacy Clause, a county would almost certainly lack authority to deny applications for a proposed church located on property within the WA overlay zone, based on nonconformance with local or state regulations that the county had concluded cannot be applied to the proposed use consistently with RLUIPA. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 78 Or LUBA 516 (2018).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Where LUBA concludes a county provision violates the so-called Equal Terms provision of RLUIPA, 42 USC § 2000cc et seq., which focuses on protecting religious assembly from unequal treatment, petitioner's argument that intervenors' religious use of their dwelling does not qualify as a "church," and therefore that ORS 215.441 does not apply to authorize activities customarily associated with the practice of the religious activity, does not provide a basis for us to remand the decision. Even if intervenors' religious use of their dwelling and property does not constitute a "church" for purposes of ORS 215.441 or ORS 215.283(1)(a), that has no bearing on whether the county is obligated, under the Equal Terms provision, to treat religious assemblies and institutions no less favorably than secular assemblies and institutions. Central Oregon Landwatch v. Deschutes County, 78 Or LUBA 516 (2018).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. ORS 197.835(2)(b) and OAR 661-01-0045(1) authorize LUBA to consider evidence outside the record where the proponent demonstrates that there are disputed allegations in the parties' briefs regarding the "unconstitutionality of the decision." However, where petitioners do not intend to argue that a city's decision is unconstitutional, but rather that the city erred in failing to comply with its city charter requirement for a vote, based on the city's reliance on a statute that petitioners believe unconstitutionally infringes on the city's charter authority, LUBA will deny petitioners' motion to take evidence because evidence on the constitutionality of a statute is not one of the bases for taking evidence outside the record under ORS 197.835(2)(b) and OAR 661-010-0045(1). Renken v. City of West Linn, 78 Or LUBA 1070 (2018).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. No unconstitutional exaction of private property occurs when a city requires an applicant to improve to the width, grade and materials standards designated by the city engineer a newly created pathway that was approved and required as part of a previously approved partition of the property. Such a requirement does not run afoul of Koontz v. St. Johns Water Management District, 570 US 595, 133 S Ct 2586, 186 L Ed 2d 697 (2013), because requiring the pathway to be improved makes it usable by the occupants of the dwellings on the newly created parcels and by the public. Locke v. City of Portland, 76 Or LUBA 423 (2017).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. LUBA need not address assignments of error alleging that a condition of approval requiring an applicant seeking a four-lot subdivision to construct a road violates the needed housing statutes or the Takings Clause of the U.S. Constitution, where LUBA has already concluded on sub-statutory and sub-constitutional grounds that the city erred in imposing the condition. Tokarski v. City of Salem, 74 Or LUBA 124 (2016).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. ORS 475B.340(2) and ORS 475.500(2) allow local governments to adopt "reasonable regulations" on marijuana production, processing, and sales. Absent any argument that establishes a protected First Amendment interest in marijuana production, cases that address the reasonableness of restrictions on protected First Amendment activity have no relevance to interpreting the phrase "reasonable regulation" used in ORS 475B.340(2) and ORS 475.500(2). Diesel v. Jackson County, 74 Or LUBA 286 (2016).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Where constitutional limitations placed on the city by the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution do not allow the city to require dedication of more than one-half of a new street that is required by the local code to total 45 feet in width, a petitioner fails to demonstrate that that local code provision or any other authority allows the city to require dedication of more than one-half of the required street. Oakleigh-McClure Neighbors v. City of Eugene, 70 Or LUBA 132 (2014).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. A street connection study that reflects a portion of a possible hammerhead turnaround on property adjacent to a proposed PUD is not a taking of the property without just compensation under the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, where the street connection study does not require any adjacent property to be dedicated or the possible hammerhead turnaround to ever be built. Oakleigh-McClure Neighbors v. City of Eugene, 70 Or LUBA 132 (2014).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Standing to appeal a post-acknowledgment plan amendment to LUBA is governed by ORS 197.620(1), which requires only that the petitioner participate in the proceedings below. No statute governing LUBA requires that petitioners who wish to advance a facial constitutional challenge to an ordinance at LUBA must first demonstrate that the ordinance injures their legally protected interests. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. To advance a facial challenge under the Takings Clause of the Oregon Constitution to an ordinance that allegedly requires an uncompensated physical invasion of private property and acquisition of a property easement, a petitioner need not demonstrate that the mere enactment of the ordinance effects a physical invasion or acquisition of property. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. LUBA does not have the authority to apply the doctrine of severance to sever unconstitutional provisions from an ordinance and thereby affirm the ordinance on appeal. Barnes v. City of Hillsboro, 61 Or LUBA 375 (2010).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Regional plan amendments that will require a city to amend its zoning ordinance to include specific provisions to protect industrial land from being converted to office and commercial use do not violate a city's constitutional home rule authority. City of Sandy v. Metro, 48 Or LUBA 363 (2005).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Because Congress intended the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA) to subject land use regulations to at least the same level of scrutiny as would apply under the Free Exercise Clause of the U.S. Constitution, analysis of whether an administrative rule prohibition on churches on high-value farmland violates RLUIPA is also dispositive of the same claim under the Free Exercise Clause. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Prohibiting uses that are inconsistent with agriculture on high-value farmland, such as churches, while allowing agricultural-supportive structures and uses on high-value farmland, such as barns, wineries and farm stands, is rationally related to the policy of preserving high-value farmland for agricultural use, and neither treats religious assemblies on unequal terms with nonreligious assemblies nor discriminates against assemblies on the basis of religion in violation of the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA). 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Prohibiting establishment of new uses on high-value farmland, such as churches or golf courses, while allowing expansion of existing churches or golf courses on high-value farmland does not treat religious assemblies on unequal terms with nonreligious assemblies or discriminate against assemblies on the basis of religion in violation of the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA). 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. The Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA) does not require local governments to provide for churches in all zones within its jurisdiction, or prohibit local governments from excluding churches from some zoning districts. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Whether a zoning prohibition on churches imposes a "substantial burden" on religious exercise under the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA) depends on whether the jurisdiction's zoning scheme as a whole fails to provide adequate opportunity to site a church within the jurisdiction. 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. The actual financial circumstances of a religious assembly, its financial ability to acquire land zoned for a church, and the existence of market-based constraints that apply equally to religious and non-religious land users, have no bearing on whether exclusion of churches in some zones within a jurisdiction imposes a "substantial burden" on religious exercise under the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA). 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Evidence that a church is unable to acquire land with desired characteristics at a desirable price within an urban growth boundary is insufficient as a matter of law to demonstrate that an administrative rule prohibiting churches on high-value farmland owned by the church imposes a "substantial burden" on the church's free exercise rights, under the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act (RLUIPA). 1000 Friends of Oregon v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 375 (2004).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. A city commits no error in proceeding with a decision on an application for a subdivision, and does not violate a subdivision opponent's due process rights, where a quiet title action is pending to resolve an ownership dispute between the opponent and the subdivision applicant, but the applicant is the record fee owner of the property. McFall v. City of Sherwood, 44 Or LUBA 493 (2003).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. That conditional use permit applicants for approval of a bed and breakfast home occupation may not have been aware that the conditional use permit would be conditioned on the applicants terminating a special events business that the county concluded was not allowed in the county's EFU zone does not violate the applicants' rights to due process where they were allowed: (1) to challenge the administrative decision in a quasi-judicial hearing before a hearings officer, (2) to appeal the hearings officer's decision to the board of county commissioners, (3) to appeal that decision to LUBA, and (4) would be entitled to seek judicial review of LUBA's decision. Cookman v. Marion County, 44 Or LUBA 630 (2003).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. A conditional use permit condition of approval that the applicants terminate a special events business that was operated as part of a permitted bed and breakfast inn does not unconstitutionally impose an overbroad or vague limit on the bed and breakfast owners' constitutionally protected religious activity and speech. Cookman v. Marion County, 44 Or LUBA 630 (2003).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Because a letter from city planning director and county memorandum setting out circumstances surrounding a compromise is not sufficient to establish an agreement between the parties establishing rights and obligations, the Contracts Clause, Article I, section 21, of the Oregon Constitution, is not applicable. City of Sherwood v. Washington County, 38 Or LUBA 656 (2000).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Even if immunity provisions of ORS 467.131 and 467.133 violate the remedies clause, Article I, section 10, of the Oregon Constitution, that infirmity does not implicate the limited preemption provisions of ORS 467.136 or the total preemption provisions of ORS 166.170 through 166.176. City of Sherwood v. Washington County, 38 Or LUBA 656 (2000).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. When finding a statute unconstitutional would not provide an independent basis for reversal or remand, LUBA will not consider the constitutionality of the statute. City of Sherwood v. Washington County, 38 Or LUBA 656 (2000).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Where, during the local proceedings, no party referred to the Equal Privileges and Immunities Clause of Article I, section 20, of the Oregon Constitution, or the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, by name, article and section or amendment number, or their operative terms, petitioner is precluded from raising violation of these constitutional provisions as an issue in an appeal to LUBA. ORS 197.763(1); 197.835(2). Craven v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 125 (1995).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Petitioner's claim that his business was treated differently from another business, in violation of Article I, section 20, of the Oregon Constitution, because the other business was granted an "exemption" from a restrictive ordinance requirement, provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision where the decision does not purport to grant an "exemption" to any business. Kaady v. City of Cannon Beach, 26 Or LUBA 424 (1994).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. LUBA will not consider claims of constitutional violations that are not supported by legal argument. Poddar v. City of Cannon Beach, 26 Or LUBA 429 (1994).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Federal preemption of local authority to regulate is not presumed. Rather it is necessary to determine whether preemption was the "clear and manifest purpose of Congress." Skydive Oregon v. Clackamas County, 25 Or LUBA 294 (1993).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Nothing in the federal regulatory scheme relating to the regulation of parachute jumping purports to foreclose state and local land use regulation of the ground based impacts of parachuting. Skydive Oregon v. Clackamas County, 25 Or LUBA 294 (1993).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Because a constitutional taking claim is not dependent upon a local government's adoption of a particular interpretation of an ordinance, in that denial of an application for development approval is a reasonably foreseeable possibility, a petitioner is required to raise taking claims during the local proceedings or waive the right to raise those issues at LUBA. Larson v. Multnomah County, 25 Or LUBA 18 (1993).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. The choice between achieving the public purpose of encouraging forest uses by police power regulation or eminent domain lies with the county, absent some showing that the police power regulation selected by the county is in fact a public conservation easement for which compensation must be paid. Lardy v. Washington County, 24 Or LUBA 567 (1993).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Because a constitutional taking claim is not dependent upon a local government's adoption of a particular interpretation of an ordinance, in that denial of an application for development approval is a reasonably foreseeable possibility, a petitioner is required to raise taking claims during the local proceedings or waive the right to raise those issues at LUBA. Larson v. Multnomah County, 24 Or LUBA 629 (1993).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Where a petitioner alleges a land use decision results in a taking under Article I, section 18, of the Oregon Constitution, but relies entirely on arguments advanced in support of allegations that the decision constitutes a taking under the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, LUBA will limit its review to petitioner's federal taking claim. Nelson v. Benton County, 23 Or LUBA 392 (1992).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Where the maximum penalty for each separate violation of an ordinance is 500 dollars, and there is no possibility of imprisonment for violating the ordinance, the penalties provided by the ordinance are civil, not criminal, in nature. Therefore, a vagueness challenge based solely on the constitutional vagueness analysis applied where criminal sanctions are possible, provides no basis for reversal or remand of such ordinance. Cope v. City of Cannon Beach, 23 Or LUBA 233 (1992).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Because a local government is not required to consider whether denying a request for land use approval would constitute an unconstitutional taking of private property without just compensation, a local government's findings on such constitutional issues provide no basis for reversal or remand. Dodd v. Hood River County, 22 Or LUBA 711 (1992).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Unlike a local government, LUBA is specifically required by statute to consider arguments that a local government decision is unconstitutional and to reverse or remand an unconstitutional decision. Therefore, procedural errors a local government may have committed in considering constitutional issues during local proceedings are harmless errors. Dodd v. Hood River County, 22 Or LUBA 711 (1992).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. In view of the Oregon Supreme Court's explicit reservation of judgment concerning whether it will look to U.S. Supreme Court Fifth Amendment "takings" jurisprudence to further develop the appropriate tests to be applied in considering Article I, section 18, takings claims under the Oregon Constitution, LUBA will not do so. Dodd v. Hood River County, 22 Or LUBA 711 (1992).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Petitioners must seek relief from application of a velocity flooding overlay designation to the subject property through the variance process provided in the local government's flood damage prevention ordinance, before they may obtain LUBA review of any constitutional "taking" claims. Alexiou v. Curry County, 22 Or LUBA 639 (1992).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Undeveloped claims of unconstitutionality provide an insufficient basis for LUBA to reverse or remand a challenged decision. Cummins v. Washington County, 22 Or LUBA 129 (1991).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Personal bias sufficiently strong to disqualify a public official must be clearly demonstrated. A petitioner has the burden of demonstrating that the public official was incapable of making a decision based on the evidence and argument before him. Schmaltz v. City of Hood River, 22 Or LUBA 115 (1991).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. If a challenged plan and zone map amendment was adopted in compliance with the applicable criteria, it cannot be considered arbitrary and, therefore, is not invalid "spot zoning." Where petitioners fail to show an applicable standard is violated by the city's decision, no basis for reversal or remand is established. Brown & Cole, Inc. v. City of Estacada, 21 Or LUBA 392 (1991).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Different treatment under the law does not necessarily amount to a violation of constitutional rights to equal protection under the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution or equal privileges and immunities under Article I, section 20, of the Oregon Constitution. Where petitioners fail to explain why the different treatment amounts to a violation of those constitutional provisions, petitioners' constitutional challenges will be rejected. Seto v. Tri-Met, 21 Or LUBA 185 (1991).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. Petitioner's claim that the city erroneously refused to provide a transcript of proceedings before a hearings officer for his appeal of the hearings officer's decision to the city council will be denied where petitioner (1) identifies no code section requiring the city to provide a transcript, and (2) fails to develop an argument in support of his contention that due process requires that a transcript be provided. Vestibular Disorders Consult. v. City of Portland, 19 Or LUBA 94 (1990).

28.8.3 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Unconstitutionality. When alleging that their rights to due process under the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution were violated because of bias by the local decision maker, petitioners must show that the local decision maker was incapable of making a decision on the basis of the evidence and argument before it. Eckis v. Linn County, 19 Or LUBA 15 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government requires opponents to be represented at a hearing by one spokesperson, their attorney, and prohibits oral testimony from the opponents themselves, and where the local government makes express and repeated findings that the opponents' written testimony is not credible or not supported when viewed through the "obscured" lens of the local government's judgement of the opponents' attorney's credibility, LUBA will conclude that the local government's procedure prejudiced the opponents' substantial rights to submit their case and to receive a full and fair hearing. Schrepel v. Yamhill County, 81 Or LUBA 895 (2020).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local ordinance requires the county to notify property owners within 500 feet of any application for a similar use determination for a specific property, failure to issue such individualized notice when the application includes the address of a specific property and the signature of the property owner constitutes a procedural error that prejudices the substantial rights of the neighboring property owners, requiring remand. Jones v. Clackamas County, 81 Or LUBA 438 (2020).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In general, a local government's failure to list some of the applicable approval criteria in its notice does not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the decision but may allow a party to raise issues related to missing approval criteria that were not raised prior to the conclusion of the initial evidentiary hearing. Marek v. City of Corvallis, 81 Or LUBA 91 (2020).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Arguments that the local government's notice failed to list the applicable criteria with sufficient specificity to allow parties to prepare for a hearing and that it was not clear from the notice what criteria the hearings officer intended to apply to an application do not establish that the notice prejudiced the petitioner's substantial rights to prepare and present its case to the hearings officer where the petitioner had sufficient opportunity to review the applicable criteria identified in a planning director decision and prepare its presentation in its local appeal to the hearings officer, where the petitioner does not identify any applicable criteria that the hearings officer failed to apply, and where the hearings officer did not apply any standards that were not raised by the parties. Buffalo-Bend Associates, LLC v. Clackamas County, 81 Or LUBA 66 (2020).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's erroneous statement in the findings that it was not required to consider the petitioner's testimony does not establish that the local government committed procedural error where other findings establish that the local government did consider that testimony. ODOT v. Grant County, 80 Or LUBA 192 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where "new evidence" enters the record during a non-evidentiary remand proceeding but plays no role in the decision, such procedural error provides no basis for reversal or remand pursuant to ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) because it could not possibly have "prejudiced the substantial rights of the petitioner." Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 79 Or LUBA 1 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county approves a "forest template dwelling" under ORS 215.750(1)(c), arguments that the county relied on units of land that were unlawfully created through partition approval, rather than subdivision approval, provide no basis for reversal or remand since any procedural error the county committed in approving the land division cannot be collaterally attacked in an appeal of a subsequent decision that depends on the prior approval. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 79 Or LUBA 65 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the county planning director processed a similar use determination under the county's Type II review to determine whether an electrical transmission line is allowed in a particular zone, the board of county commissioners reviewed the director's similar use determination in a consolidated appeal under a Type III process, and petitioners argue that the county erred by not providing an intermediate decision by a decisionmaker other than the county governing body, that alleged procedural error provides no basis for reversal or remand because that alleged error does not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights. Tilla-Bay Farms, Inc. v. Tillamook County, 79 Or LUBA 235 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county determines an electrical transmission line is a "similar use" authorized in a particular zone pursuant to the county's "similar use determination" process, which allows a similar use "[w]here a proposed use is not specifically identified by [the code], or [the code] is unclear as to whether the use is allowed in a particular zone," petitioners' argument that the county may make a similar use determination only if the proposed use is not specifically identified anywhere in the county's code is without merit. A similar use determination is not necessary or appropriate where the use is specifically permitted or prohibited in the subject zone. In adopting the similar use determination process, the county contemplated instances where a use is specifically identified as an allowed use in some zones but not specifically identified as an allowed use in the subject zone. Tilla-Bay Farms, Inc. v. Tillamook County, 79 Or LUBA 235 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners argue that the county made inadequate findings that a proposed electrical transmission project is consistent with general use priorities for estuary zones because the county did not address certain code provisions addressing estuary zones, LUBA is not required to remand the decision to the county for it to interpret its local code provisions in the first instance; LUBA may make its own determination of whether the local government decision is correct. ORS 197.829(2). Where the county determined that the code provision in question is a general priority statement, which does not constitute mandatory approval criteria, LUBA will uphold the county's decision where the provision provides an inclusive list of general use priorities for estuarine resources and value, and where, in the alternative, the county addressed those impacts to the estuarine resources and values in other applicable parts of the county's code. Tilla-Bay Farms, Inc. v. Tillamook County, 79 Or LUBA 235 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. While the "raise it or waive it" requirement of ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3) does not apply to legislative proceedings, where a party has an opportunity to object to a procedural error during a legislative proceeding, the party must do so in order to seek remand based on that error. McCaffree v. Coos County, 79 Or LUBA 512 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A party asserting a procedural error must demonstrate that the procedural error was objected to during the proceedings below, if there was an opportunity to lodge an objection. Accordingly, where a dispute may exist regarding whether petitioners objected to the county's process during the proceedings below, LUBA will allow a motion to take evidence outside the record to consider a document for the limited purpose of allowing petitioners to cite to that document to establish, if the point is disputed in a response brief, that petitioners attempted to lodge objections to the county's process. Eng v. Wallowa County, 79 Or LUBA 1024 (2019).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Remand is necessary where petitioners argue that a boundary line adjustment application is governed by a county ordinance addressing the "Sale or Transfer of Land to an Adjacent Owner * * *," under the section on nonconforming uses that apply to "Designated Resource Areas," where the subject parcels are designated for agricultural and forest uses and are zoned exclusive farm use – grazing (FG) and where respondents filed no response brief. Because there is no local interpretation of the applicability of the ordinance, LUBA will remand the decision for the county to interpret the ordinance in the first instance. Friends of Douglas County v. Douglas County, 78 Or LUBA 11 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will remand a decision by the county planning department approving conversion of a portion of an existing church into a "parsonage," a term which is undefined by state or local law, but which includes a kitchen, bedroom, and bathroom for the use by the church's pastor, where the county's decision fails to identify any land use standards that apply to the proposed use, and did not provide notice or an opportunity for a hearing or otherwise follow the procedures in ORS 215.416(11) without apparent explanation, and LUBA determines that the application for the proposed parsonage is an application for a "permit" as defined in ORS 215.402(4). Wetherell v. Douglas County, 78 Or LUBA 33 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although it is not clear a proposed "parsonage," which is a portion of a church to include a bedroom, kitchen and bathroom for use by the church's pastor, must be evaluated and approved or denied under the criteria that apply to a nonfarm dwelling under the county's land use ordinance implementing ORS 215.284, those land use standards require the exercise of discretion in approving the development of land. Further, it is possible, even probable, that any application for a proposed residential use associated with a church must be evaluated under the standards at ORS 215.441, and accordingly the county must process such an application according to its procedures that apply to permits. Wetherell v. Douglas County, 78 Or LUBA 33 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county's notice described a proposed project as a bed and breakfast inn and campground, but the county only approved the bed and breakfast inn but not the campground, petitioners had an inadequate opportunity to object to the alleged procedural error because they could not know until the county issued its decision that the final decision would approve something different than the proposal that was noticed. Elenes v. Deschutes County, 78 Or LUBA 483 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 197.830(3) operates to potentially allow a petitioner a delayed period of time to file a LUBA appeal, but it is not a source of procedural requirements that a local government approved development that differs from the development described in the notice of hearing is not procedural error. Elenes v. Deschutes County, 78 Or LUBA 483 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A proposed land use that requires a conditional land use permit must be processed under quasi-judicial, rather than legislative, procedures where the applicable county code provision specifies that conditional uses in the exclusive farm use zone are subject to conditional use criteria and "shall be reviewed" according to the county's quasi-judicial review procedures. Further, according to Strawberry Hill 4-Wheelers v. Board of Comm., 287 Or 591, 602-03, 601 P2d 769 (1979), the Oregon Supreme Court established a three-factor test to determine whether a land use matter is quasi-judicial or legislative, and where all three factors indicate that the county's action is quasi-judicial in nature, the county also erred in processing the application under its legislative rather than its quasi-judicial procedures. VanDyke v. Yamhill County, 78 Or LUBA 530 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A criterion that requires a county to determine whether a proposed short term rental home occupation will not "unreasonably interfere" with other uses permitted in the zone requires the exercise of discretion, and a decision applying that criterion is a decision on a permit as defined in ORS 215.402(4). A county errs in failing to process the short term rental home occupation application according to the procedures for permits in the local code. Hood River Valley Residents' Committee v. Hood River County, 77 Or LUBA 7 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. It is not sufficient for petitioners to simply point out that the sound study that was prepared to develop a Statewide Planning Goal 5 program to protect an aggregate resource site does not measure noise in precisely the manner required by the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) rules, without any attempt to show that any deviations from required sound measuring locations could have the effect of allowing noise levels that violate DEQ standards. Where the applicant's expert took the position that the selected sound measuring locations did not have the effect of inflating the ambient noise level or otherwise rendering those sound measurements inaccurate, at least some effort to challenge the expert's position is required to show the deviations may have led to inaccurate sound readings for purposes of determining if DEQ noise standards will be met. Save TV Butte v. Lane County, 77 Or LUBA 22 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Remand for new proceedings to allow the petitioner to present new evidence to respond to an allegedly new, unanticipated interpretation of an approval standard is not warranted under Gutoski v. Lane County, 155 Or App 369, 963 P2d 145 (1998), where the allegedly new interpretation is consistent with the position for which the petitioner argued and presented supporting evidence during the initial proceedings below. Conte v. City of Eugene, 77 Or LUBA 69 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county code limits administrative review to applications that do not require interpretation or the exercise of policy or legal judgment, and requires quasi-judicial review with notice to nearby property owners for all other applications, the county commits procedural error that is prejudicial to property owners within the notice area by administratively processing without notice an application for a floodplain development permit that requires the exercise of legal judgment. Rogue Advocates v. Jackson County, 77 Or LUBA 181 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county failed to provide petitioners adequate Ballot Measure 56 (codified at ORS 215.503) notice of a proposed ordinance that proposed to limit the size of, or in some cases prohibit entirely, a use – the growing of cannabis – that was previously allowed in the applicable zone, causing some petitioners to only be able to participate at the final hearing before the board of county commissioners on the proposed ordinance by submitting written comments prior to the record closing, such last-minute participation at the last of many hearings is not "an adequate opportunity to prepare and submit their case and a full and fair hearing" and therefore "prejudiced the substantial rights" of the petitioners. ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B). Cossins v. Josephine County, 77 Or LUBA 240 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner's argument that the city erred in processing the application as a minor rather than major site plan modification does not provide a basis for remand, where the city adopted findings that the only difference between a major and minor modification is procedural, and the petitioner does not argue that the procedures the city provided, including a hearing that petitioner attended, prejudiced petitioner's substantial rights. Aboud v. City of Stayton, 77 Or LUBA 300 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where local law does not dictate the historic review board must be the decision maker that decides whether it has jurisdiction to proceed with a historic land mark designation proposal after the property owner has refused to consent to the historic designation under ORS 197.772(1), a city council does not err by deciding those jurisdictional questions following a LUBA remand of a historic review board decision that failed to address those jurisdictional questions. McLoughlin Neighborhood Association v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 377 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city might be obligated to reopen the evidentiary record to accept relevant local legislative history in interpreting local law in an on-the-record hearing, but where petitioner never took the position that it had relevant legislative history to offer and at LUBA merely suggested that such legislative history might exist, the city did not err by limiting its remand proceedings to the evidentiary record that was submitted to LUBA in the appeal that led to remand. McLoughlin Neighborhood Association v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 377 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Dictionary definitions consulted to resolve legislation ambiguity are not properly viewed as "evidence," and may be submitted and considered at an on-the-record hearing. Rawson v. Hood River County, 77 Or LUBA 415 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A printout of the results of a Google Search that includes links to both dictionary definitions and to evidentiary materials is properly viewed as new evidence, and a local government does not err by refusing to accept the printout at an on-the-record hearing. Rawson v. Hood River County, 77 Or LUBA 415 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a city council erroneously rejected a letter that was submitted to the city council by someone other than petitioners—because the city council mistakenly believed that person had not appeared during a prior proceeding before the city's historic review board, but petitioners had no reason to believe the person had made the required appearance before the historic review board—the petitioners' failure to object does not preclude petitioners from assigning procedural error to the city council's rejection of the letter. Friends of Canemah v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 434 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a city council's consideration of an appeal of a historic review board's decision is on the record, the city council's erroneous rejection of a letter submitted by a person other than petitioners in a subsequent LUBA appeal does not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights where the city council would not have considered any new evidence in the letter and petitioners themselves could have made any legal arguments that were included in the letter. Friends of Canemah v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 434 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners take the position that historic review and site plan review approval standards are so incompatible that site plan review entirely displaces historic review, but the city council's interpretation of its code that both reviews are possible and that historic review may be completed before site plan review is plausible, LUBA must defer to the city council's interpretation. Friends of Canemah v. City of Oregon City, 77 Or LUBA 434 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city council's uneven enforcement of time limits on oral presentations to give permit opponents more time than they were entitled to provides no basis for remand where petitioner was given as much time as he wanted for rebuttal and petitioner did not object to the enforcement of time limits until after the public hearing closed. A petitioner's belated general complaint during the city council's deliberations after the evidentiary phase of the proceeding had closed that opponents were given more time to argue was inadequate and untimely. Gu v. City of Bandon, 77 Or LUBA 535 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Just as the non-prevailing party in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding has no right to object to or rebut a proposed written final decision and supporting findings that are prepared by the prevailing party in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding, the non-prevailing party has no right to participate in that process and no right to notice that the prevailing party is working with planning staff to prepare a proposed final decision and supporting findings for the local decision maker to adopt. Rawson v. Hood River County, 77 Or LUBA 571 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Speculation by the non-prevailing party in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding that there may have been ex parte contact between the prevailing party's attorney and the local governing body which may have resulted in bias, based solely on the fact that prevailing party's attorney prepared drafts of the decision and findings as well as the final decision and findings that the local governing body adopted falls considerably short of establishing a substantial reason to believe that the prevailing party's attorney had ex parte contacts with the local governing body. Rawson v. Hood River County, 77 Or LUBA 571 (2018).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner alleges a local government failed to meet its obligations under ORS 227.186 to provide notice of a comprehensive plan amendment, a zone change, or a change in a land use regulation that may affect the permissible uses of property to be mailed to the owner of each lot or parcel that the ordinance proposes to rezone or that would be affected by a change in the permissible uses of the property, petitioner fails to allege a basis for reversal or remand when petitioner fails to allege the "procedural error" prejudiced petitioner's "substantial rights." Deumling v. City of Salem, 76 Or LUBA 99 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner does not waive his right to assign procedural error at LUBA by failing to object to the procedural error below, where the alleged procedural error occurred after the close of the evidentiary record, and the city council meeting to adopt the final decision did not include an opportunity for parties to lodge procedural objections. Grahn v. City of Yamhill, 76 Or LUBA 258 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will remand a decision approving seven property line adjustments based on procedural error where the respondent does not dispute that the county failed to provide the notice and hearing required under the county's code for applications that propose multiple property line adjustments. Sarett v. Lane County, 76 Or LUBA 308 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county does not err in failing to process an application to vacate a public easement as a modification of a condition of approval for the subdivision in which the easement is located, where the easement was not required as a condition of subdivision approval, but instead stemmed from a private agreement between the developer and others. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 76 Or LUBA 319 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if the petitioner is correct that an application to vacate a public easement is a "development permit" because it eliminates a "right of access," and therefore that the county erred in failing to process the application under procedures that govern a "development permit," the error is a procedural error, and warrants remand only if the petitioner establishes that the procedural error prejudiced the petitioner's substantial rights. Where the vacation procedures the county followed provided for a public hearing at which the petitioner attended and presented evidence, the petitioner has not established that remand is warranted to follow a different procedure that would simply duplicate the hearing that the petitioner has already received. Neighbors for Smart Growth v. Washington County, 76 Or LUBA 319 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city is obligated to allow a party to submit new evidence if (1) a party reasonably relies on its notice of hearing to believe that he or she is entitled to submit new evidence at that hearing, and (2) denying the party the right to submit new evidence could prejudice that party's substantial rights. However, where the notice of hearing is not clear that testimony before the city commission may include new evidence, the notice references a code requirement that the city commission will be limited to the planning commission evidentiary record, and more than one planning staff report made it clear that the city commission consideration would be limited to the planning commission's evidentiary record, the city commission does not err by rejecting new evidence that was not presented to the planning commission. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 75 Or LUBA 38 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where LUBA sustains an assignment of error that a city councilor failed to disclose ex parte communications, but the city councilor is no longer on the city council, and the decision must be remanded for other reasons which will require a new decision adopted by a new city council, LUBA will decline to expand the scope of remand to require the former councilor to disclose the substance of the ex parte communications. J4J Misc PAC v. City of Jefferson, 75 Or LUBA 120 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if a local government errs in failing to place a letter from the applicant to the city attorney into the public record of the application, the procedural error does not prejudice the petitioner's substantial right or provide a basis for remand under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B), where the letter was never placed in front of or relied upon by the final decision maker, and the letter includes no arguments or evidence intended to demonstrate compliance with approval criteria. J4J Misc PAC v. City of Jefferson, 75 Or LUBA 120 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city may err in introducing a copy of the application into the record after the close of the evidentiary record before the city council, the final decision maker. However, the procedural error does not provide a basis for remand under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) where the petitioner does not demonstrate that the procedural error played a role in the final decision, or otherwise prejudiced the petitioner's substantial rights. J4J Misc PAC v. City of Jefferson, 75 Or LUBA 120 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. While it might constitute procedural error for a local government to accept new evidence late in the proceedings without providing other parties a reasonable opportunity to respond to that new evidence, no error occurs where the alleged new evidence was introduced early in the final hearing, and the petitioner had an opportunity to respond to that evidence during the hearing. J4J Misc PAC v. City of Jefferson, 75 Or LUBA 120 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 197.763(6)(b) or (c), where a party requests in writing the opportunity to respond to new evidence submitted at a continued hearing or during an open record period, any such opportunity is limited to responses to new evidence submitted during the continued hearing or the first open record period. A hearings officer is not compelled by ORS 197.763(6)(b) or (c) to allow a party to submit, during a second open record period, responses to evidence submitted during the initial evidentiary hearing. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 75 Or LUBA 302 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer does not violate "due process" or commit procedural error in (1) rejecting new evidence from opponents at a time in the proceedings when the opponents had no right to submit any evidence or responses at all, but (2) accepting new evidence from the applicant in the applicant's final evidentiary submittal that arguably exceeded the scope of permissible responsive evidence, and providing opponents an opportunity to respond to that new evidence, given the different circumstances governing the two evidentiary submissions. Landwatch Lane County v. Lane County, 75 Or LUBA 302 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Testimony that consists of argument by the applicant that takes the position that evidence already in the record supports a determination that the local government's code requirements are satisfied or can be met through conditions of approval is not new "evidence," as defined by ORS 197.763(9)(a), and the planning commission does not err in accepting and considering that testimony. Rockbridge Capital v. City of Eugene, 75 Or LUBA 364 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A planning commission staff report that summarized past interpretations of an applicable local code provision is not new "evidence," as defined by ORS 197.763(9)(a), but rather something closer to citation to authority. Even if some of the challenged statements qualify as "facts, documents, data or other information[]" pursuant to ORS 197.763(9)(a), a procedural error has not occurred where planning staff appears to have offered them to demonstrate the city does not have authority to apply the code provision to the application, and not to demonstrate compliance or noncompliance with the standards applicable to the application. Rockbridge Capital v. City of Eugene, 75 Or LUBA 364 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a hearings officer denies an application on multiple grounds, it may be prudent and appropriate for governing body, when affirming one basis for denial, to address all other bases for denial. However, absent authority that requires the governing body to address all issues raised on local appeal, or to address and resolve all bases for denial, the governing body commits no error in failing to address all bases for denial identified in the hearings officer's decision. Kine v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 407 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. While ORS 215.422(4) exempts communication between staff and decision-makers from the scope of ex parte contacts that must be disclosed under that statute, nonetheless, a county can commit procedural error if a staff communication to a decision-maker includes new evidence outside the record that is relied upon to approve or deny the application. However, a petitioner must offer more than speculation that staff communications with a local decision-maker included new evidence outside the record to establish procedural error requiring remand. Kine v. Deschutes County, 75 Or LUBA 419 (2017).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the city code requires a "Type III" procedure for a land division that includes four or more lots, but defines "lots" to exclude "tracts," the city correctly rejects arguments that a division that creates three lots and two open space tracts must be processed under the "Type III" procedure. Frewing v. City of Portland, 74 Or LUBA 59 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will reject arguments that a hearings officer committed procedural error in not returning a subdivision application to the neighborhood association for additional review based on minor changes that staff requested to the subdivision plat, where the petitioner identifies nothing in the city code that requires additional review by the neighborhood association when the subdivision plat is amended during the proceedings before the hearings officer. Frewing v. City of Portland, 74 Or LUBA 59 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the Metro Code requires that a city give Metro notice 35 days before the first hearing on a comprehensive plan or land use regulation amendment, and a city fails to do so, but that hearing was continued twice and Metro was given notice more than 35 days before the continued hearing, any error was not prejudicial. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 176 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government arguably erred by refusing to accept certain evidence, but the local government also takes the position that the evidence is irrelevant, and a petitioner at LUBA assigns error only to the local government's refusal to accept the evidence without also challenging the local government's finding that the evidence is irrelevant, any error the county may have made in refusing to accept the evidence is harmless. Wood v. Crook County, 74 Or LUBA 278 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's notices of a remand hearing that do not specifically reference one of many issues to be addressed during the hearing do not amount to procedural error, particularly where petitioners allege prejudice to the substantial rights of "the public" and not to "the petitioner," which ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) requires petitioners to establish. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 488 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's notices of a remand hearing that do not specifically reference one of many issues to be addressed during the hearing do not amount to procedural error, particularly where petitioners allege prejudice to the substantial rights of "the public" and not to "the petitioner," which ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) requires petitioners to establish. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 488 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Arguments that a local government incorrectly refused to accept documents for the record and that the local government was not sufficiently clear about which documents it was refusing to accept for the record are properly presented as assignments of error in a petition for review, and are not a basis for a record objection. Nicita v. City of Oregon City, 74 Or LUBA 633 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer's error in identifying 1984 instead of 1962 as the date a composting operation became nonconforming did not prejudice the applicant's substantial rights to present evidence regarding the lawful existence of the use prior to the date the use became nonconforming. Any remand to correct the erroneous citation to 1984 would focus on the correct date of nonconformity, 1962, and the applicant had a full opportunity to present evidence that the operation lawfully existed in 1962. Grabhorn v. Washington County, 73 Or LUBA 27 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 197.763(6)(a) through (c), prior to the conclusion of the initial evidentiary hearing any party may request an opportunity to present additional evidence. In that event, the hearing body must either continue the hearing or leave the record open to receive the additional evidence, and failure to do so is a procedural error. However, where the party making the request appeals and is given a de novo hearing before the local appellate body at which it is allowed to submit additional evidence, the hearings body's error did not result in prejudice to the party's substantial rights and therefore provides no basis for LUBA to remand. Pinnacle Alliance Group, LLC v. City of Sisters, 73 Or LUBA 169 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA's conclusion that a planning commission's procedural error in failing to grant the continuance or open record period dictated by ORS 197.763(6)(a) through (c) provides no basis for reversal or remand, where the city council took corrective action to avoid prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights, does not improperly insert missing text into a development code that duplicates ORS 197.763(6)(a) through (c). Pinnacle Alliance Group, LLC v. City of Sisters, 73 Or LUBA 169 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will deny an assignment of error that the local government committed a procedural error in failing to provide material submitted after the record closed to the final decision maker, where nothing in the local code or any other statute or rule requires the local government to provide to the final decision maker a document that was submitted after the evidentiary record closed. Trautman v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 209 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Parties opposing an application for a permit do not have the right to surrebuttal of rebuttal evidence submitted by an applicant during the rebuttal period. Trautman v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 209 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. An attempt by one petitioner to incorporate procedural assignments of error that are presented in a different petition for review would not result in remandable error unless the procedural error prejudiced the substantial rights of the petitioner who filed the petition for review that is attempting incorporation, because a petitioner's assertion of prejudice to another person's substantial rights does not provide a basis for remand. Trautman v. City of Eugene, 73 Or LUBA 209 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer commits a procedural error that prejudices a party's substantial rights to a full and fair hearing when he fails to consider, during proceedings on remand from LUBA, relevant evidence that was a part of the record of the previous decision because it was not cited in the manner that was preferred by the hearings officer, where that preference was not clearly communicated to any parties to the proceeding. Del Rio Vineyards, LLC v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 301 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Without clear instructions during the remand proceedings that a hearings officer would not consider evidence that was not presented by a specific citation method, failing to consider that evidence is a procedural error that prejudices a party's substantial rights. Del Rio Vineyards, LLC v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 301 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer improperly shifts the burden of proof to opponents of a mine to prove that the source of dust that is alleged to have a "significant impact" on adjacent farms emanates from a haul road that provides access to the mine, where the findings do not explain why the evidence that was submitted by the mine operator demonstrates that the source of the dust is not the haul road. Del Rio Vineyards, LLC v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 301 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer improperly shifts the burden of proof to opponents of a mine to show that source of dust depicted in photographs of the mining area is from mining activities. It is the applicant's burden of proof to show that either the source of the dust depicted in the photographs is not from the mining activities, or that it can minimize or has minimized the dust from those activities so that the hearings officer can conclude that the mining activities do not significantly contribute to the cumulative dust problem in the protected viewshed. Del Rio Vineyards, LLC v. Jackson County, 73 Or LUBA 301 (2016).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city commits procedural error that prejudiced the applicants' substantial rights when it failed to provide the applicants with a reasonable opportunity to respond to new evidence regarding compliance with tree preservation requirements that was submitted one day prior to the city's denial of the application for failure to demonstrate compliance with those requirements, based on the new evidence. Sage Equities, LLC v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 163 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Remand rather than reversal is the appropriate disposition when LUBA sustains an assignment of error to correct the city's procedural error in failing to provide petitioners with an opportunity to propose conditions in response to new evidence. Sage Equities, LLC v. City of Portland, 72 Or LUBA 163 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A mistaken reference to prior review and decision by the city's design review board, when in fact the city's planning commission actually conducted the prior review, is not reversible procedural error within the meaning of ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B), where the petitioner fails to establish that the mistake in the notice caused the petitioner to fail to prepare for and submit his case to the city council in person, and the evidence in the record demonstrates that previous commitments caused the petitioner to fail to attend the city council hearing in person. Harrison v. City of Cannon Beach, 72 Or LUBA 182 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A party seeking remand based on claims that new evidence was submitted after the close of the evidentiary record must, on appeal to LUBA, adequately identify the new evidence, explain why it constitutes new evidence, and offer some substantial reason to believe that the evidence had some effect on the final decision. Where on appeal to LUBA the petitioners identify statements in expert letters submitted as part of final written argument that the final decision-maker cited and relied upon, that burden is met. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 72 Or LUBA 275 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where planning staff enter a letter including new evidence into the record just prior to the governing board entering into deliberations, the possibility that the petitioner might have raised a "point of order" objecting to the letter does not demonstrate that the petitioner had a reasonable opportunity to object to the procedural error, but failed to, because at that point in the proceeding there was no formal opportunity for participants to speak, present testimony or raise objections. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 72 Or LUBA 275 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner adequately demonstrates that the final decision-makers relied upon the contents of a letter from a natural gas company regarding safety issues that was improperly received after the close of the evidentiary record, notwithstanding that the findings do not cite or expressly rely on the letter, where the minutes of the proceeding indicate that the decision-makers discussed the letter and appeared to rely on it to conclude that there were no natural gas safety issues. Rogue Advocates v. Josephine County, 72 Or LUBA 275 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county's failure to give written notice to a party is not rendered harmless error simply because the governing body is given discretion under the code not to allow that party to participate at the hearing. ODFW v. Crook County, 72 Or LUBA 316 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a party would have had at least 10 days to prepare for a hearing, giving that party the right to share 30 minutes with two other persons to present evidence at the end of the hearing is not sufficient to avoid prejudice to the party's substantial rights. ODFW v. Crook County, 72 Or LUBA 316 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although it is not a statutory requirement, LUBA requires that a party who wishes to assign procedural error at LUBA must have entered an objection to the procedural error before the local government, if the party was given an opportunity to object. ODFW v. Crook County, 72 Or LUBA 316 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Remand would almost certainly be required if a party who was entitled to written notice of a hearing was not given written notice and did not attend the hearing. But where that party learns of the hearing, attends the hearing, and was given an opportunity to object to the county's failure to give the required written notice of hearing and failed to object, that party may not assert the procedural error as a basis for remand at LUBA. ODFW v. Crook County, 72 Or LUBA 316 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner was not given required written notice of hearing but learned of the hearing and appeared at the hearing and participated, he may not assign error to the failure to give notice where he had an opportunity to object to the notice failure and did not do so. That failure to object constitutes a waiver of the issue under ORS 197.763(1) and a failure preserve the right to assign procedural error. Pennock v. City of Bandon, 72 Or LUBA 379 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. After determining that a proposal to remove 500,000 cubic yards of rock constituted mining and that mining was not listed as an allowable use in the applicable zoning district, a city does not commit reversible or remandable error by then proceeding to consider whether the proposal could be allowed under development code standards that allow approval of unlisted uses. S. St. Helens LLC v. City of St. Helens, 71 Or LUBA 30 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B), LUBA may reverse or remand for procedural error only if the petitioner demonstrates that the error prejudiced the substantial rights of the petitioner in the appeal before LUBA rather than the substantial rights of a different petitioner in a separate appeal before LUBA that is consolidated with petitioner's appeal. Mackenzie v. City of Portland, 71 Or LUBA 155 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner fails to establish the requisite prejudice to her substantial rights necessary to sustain a procedural assignment of error regarding the way the city processes her appeal when she appeals a city administrator's decision, the city grants her an appeal hearing, and she presents evidence to support her appeal at the appeal hearing. Smith v. City of Gearhart, 71 Or LUBA 184 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's failure to provide a party who is entitled to notice under the city's code with notice of (1) a hearings officer's decision and (2) an appeal hearing on another party's appeal of the hearings officer's decision prejudices the party's right to participate in the planning commission appeal hearing and remand is required. Oakleigh-McClure Neighbors v. City of Eugene, 71 Or LUBA 317 (2015).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer's decision to recognize an existing structure as a nonconforming structure and to approve a new school use of that structure as an alteration of a nonconforming use, where there was no prior notice that the local government's nonconforming use regulations would be applied, constitutes a procedural error that prejudiced petitioner's substantial rights. Kaimanu v. Washington County, 70 Or LUBA 217 (2014).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county code requires that the application be deemed denied on a tie vote, unless the planning commission members present at the hearing vote to reschedule the deliberation, but the planning commission does not vote to reschedule the deliberation until a subsequent hearing which does not include all of the same members present at the initial hearing, the planning commission may have committed procedural error. However, absent code language to the contrary, that procedural error does not deprive the planning commission of jurisdiction or authority to conduct a second vote on the application. McLaughlin v. Douglas County, 70 Or LUBA 314 (2014).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If a planning commission's vote to reschedule deliberations and conduct a new vote after a tie vote that would otherwise result in denial constitutes procedural error, that error is a basis for remand under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) only if the error prejudices the substantial rights of the petitioner. The substantial rights referenced in ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) include an adequate opportunity to prepare and submit evidence, and a full and fair hearing, but do not include a right to a specific outcome. McLaughlin v. Douglas County, 70 Or LUBA 314 (2014).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The remedy for correcting a planning commission error in accepting new evidence in an on the record appeal is not to remand the decision to allow an evidentiary free for all in the form of new rebuttal evidence to the improperly accepted evidence, but to remand the decision for the planning commission to make its decision without relying on any new evidence. SE Neighbors Neighborhood Assoc. v. City of Eugene, 68 Or LUBA 51 (2013).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. City council statements that a proposed plan and zoning map amendment to allow higher density would be "a partial answer to global warming" and generate "affordable housing" and expressions of confidence that a good outcome could be negotiated between opponents and the applicant in design review provide no basis for reversal or remand even though they may have no bearing on whether applicable approval criteria are satisfied. Generally LUBA review is limited to the final, written decision and does not extend to comments that may be made during the proceeding that lead to that final written decision. Lowery v. City of Portland, 68 Or LUBA 339 (2013).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure of a city council to vote on a valid challenge to the impartiality of a city council member, as required by city code, prejudices the substantial rights of the challenger, regardless of whether the vote would result in the disqualification of the city council member or whether the member's alleged bias influenced other decision makers. STOP Tigard Oswego Project, LLC v. City of West Linn, 68 Or LUBA 360 (2013).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government accepts opponent evidence that goes beyond the stated scope of a seven-day open record period, but grants the applicant final argument and evidentiary rebuttal, the applicant's substantial rights are not prejudiced and the local government's error in accepting the opponent evidence does not provide a basis for remand. Warren v. Josephine County, 67 Or LUBA 74 (2013).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county code requires that bias challenges be filed at least 48 hours before the public hearing on a quasi-judicial matter, and there is no reason why the challenge could not have been filed before or during that hearing, petitioner's challenge filed three days before board of commissioners meeting where the board approved the written decision and findings comes too late. Warren v. Josephine County, 67 Or LUBA 74 (2013).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a quasi-judicial land use decision maker fails to disclose any ex parte contacts, a petitioner does not waive its right to assign error to that failure at LUBA by failing to object below to the failure to disclose ex parte contacts. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Hood River, 67 Or LUBA 332 (2013).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure to make a staff report available during the entire minimum period required by ORS 197.763(4)(b) is not a basis for remand, where petitioners had the opportunity during the subsequent hearing to adequately respond to any issues raised or evidence presented in the staff report. Poe v. City of Warrenton, 66 Or LUBA 108 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The fact that a city believed it was making a decision on the last day allowed by the ORS 227.181 for a decision after remand does not absolve the city from following the procedures applicable to quasi-judicial hearings, including giving all parties the opportunity to respond to new evidence submitted at the hearing. The city could have rejected the new evidence and avoided the procedural conundrum that it apparently believed it faced or could have left the record open to respond to the new evidence under ORS 197.763(4)(b). Poe v. City of Warrenton, 66 Or LUBA 108 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Parties to a land use proceeding have the right to review and respond to substantive changes in the application that occur during the proceedings. If such a change occurs after the close of the record or hearing, the local government may be required to re-open the record to allow other parties a reasonable opportunity to submit responsive testimony and evidence. Failure to do so can be procedural error and a basis for remand, if the petitioners demonstrate the error prejudiced their substantial rights. Conte v. City of Eugene, 66 Or LUBA 334 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Remand is warranted, where a city's procedural error in rejecting the petitioner's request to submit evidence to respond to a substantive change in the application after the close of the record prejudiced the petitioner's substantial rights to respond to the changed application. Conte v. City of Eugene, 66 Or LUBA 334 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 197.763 sets out the minimum procedures the county is required to follow in the conduct of quasi-judicial land use hearings under ORS Chapter 215, and ORS 197.763 does not require that the county provide an applicant with prior copies or notice of the evidence that the county submits at the initial evidentiary hearing on a permit application. Emmert v. Clackamas County, 65 Or LUBA 1 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where ex parte contacts were disclosed and a petitioner was given the opportunity to object to the adequacy of the disclosure but failed to do so, LUBA will deny an assignment of error that argues that the disclosures were inadequate to explain the substance of the contacts. Housing Authority of Jackson County v. City of Medford, 65 Or LUBA 295 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The failure by a member of the decision making body to disclose ex parte contacts that occurred after the hearing at which the decision making body initially voted to deny an application and before the next meeting at which the decision making body adopted the order denying the application violates ORS 227.180(3). Housing Authority of Jackson County v. City of Medford, 65 Or LUBA 295 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The remedy for violation of ORS 227.180 is not to require an entire rehearing on an application. An adequate remedy is a remand to the city that allows interested persons the opportunity to prepare and present evidence and argument in response to the substance of the ex parte contact. Housing Authority of Jackson County v. City of Medford, 65 Or LUBA 295 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer's existing contractual relationship as an independent part time hearings officer for a local government who is an applicant for a permit from a different jurisdiction, and his participation as an independent hearings officer for the decision-making jurisdiction does not create an appearance that he was biased in the proceedings on the applications. Newell v. Clackamas County, 65 Or LUBA 384 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will not infer bias based on an argument that a hearings officer's decision did not modify any conditions of approval that the county's planning staff suggested or add any additional conditions. Newell v. Clackamas County, 65 Or LUBA 384 (2012).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where local law does not require adherence to the notice and hearing or notice and local appeal procedures that apply to statutory permits, a local government does not err by adhering to those statutory notice and hearing or notice and local appeal procedures when it discovers that the decision it is being asked to adopt may qualify as a statutory permit. Bard v. Lane County, 63 Or LUBA 1 (2011).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the planning commission makes an oral decision on an application but fails to reduce that oral decision to writing as required by the local code, and petitioner appeals the planning commission's oral decision to the city council, the planning commission's failure to reduce its oral decision to writing is not error that prejudices the petitioner's substantial rights where the city council holds a de novo evidentiary hearing on the application at which petitioner presented evidence and testimony regarding the application. Poe v. City of Warrenton, 63 Or LUBA 20 (2011).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Whether a criterion that was not listed in the notice of hearing is an "applicable" criterion or not, there is no procedural error that would warrant reversal or remand where petitioner were given an opportunity to present argument on the criterion. Siegert v. Crook County, 63 Or LUBA 379 (2011).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In a county code enforcement proceeding before a hearings officer, petitioner's complaints that a county code enforcement officer improperly interfered with pending civil litigation between petitioner and his neighbor and improperly contacted the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife regarding the county hearings officer's decision in the code enforcement proceeding after the hearings officer's decision was entered provide no basis for reversing or remanding the hearings officer's decision. The alleged improprieties by the county code enforcement officer may be actionable in a different forum, but they provide no basis for remanding the county hearings officer's decision. Wigen v. Jackson County, 63 Or LUBA 490 (2011).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The exclusive remedy for an alleged failure by a county code enforcement officer to produce requested public records is to petition the county district attorney for relief under ORS 192.460. Where the disputed photographs and the substance of the disputed field notes were made part of the record before a hearings officer in a land use code enforcement proceeding and petitioner was permitted to submit contrary evidence and cross examine the code enforcement officer in the hearing before the hearings officer, there was no prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights and no basis for remand. Wigen v. Jackson County, 63 Or LUBA 490 (2011).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The procedure a city is bound to follow in its land use public hearings is dictated in part by the notice of hearing that it gives. Where the notice of hearing represents that written evidence may be submitted for the first time at the hearing and makes no mention of the city council's general rules and guidelines that state written evidence may not be considered if not submitted at least 10 days before the public hearing, it is error for the city to rely on the general rules and guidelines to refuse to accept written testimony that is submitted for the first time at the public hearing. Friends of Yamhill County v. City of Newberg, 62 Or LUBA 5 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's erroneous refusal to accept a two-page letter at a public hearing results in no prejudice and provides no basis for reversal or remand where the author of the letter was given sufficient time to read the letter into the record. A city's erroneous refusal to accept a 10-page letter at a public hearing results in prejudice and provides a basis for reversal or remand, where the author was given only 10 minutes to testify orally and when the 10 minutes expired was told to "wrap it up" before the author had time to read the entire letter. Friends of Yamhill County v. City of Newberg, 62 Or LUBA 5 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Limiting a party to 10 minutes for oral testimony in a quasi-judicial land use hearing before a design review board, while allowing unlimited written testimony, and limiting an appeal of the design review board to the city council to an on-the-record review does not violate the party's right to due process. Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 62 Or LUBA 142 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's failure to provide adequate notice that it had recharacterized the application from an application to modify an existing permit to an application for a new permit might constitute procedural error, but that error does not prejudice the petitioner's substantial rights, where the recharacterization was in response to petitioner's arguments, the applicable criteria are the same whether it is a modification or new application, and petitioner had ample opportunity to submit evidence and argument after it became clear that the city was treating the application as one for a new permit. Brodersen v. City of Ashland, 62 Or LUBA 329 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. It is harmless error to rely on new evidence that is accepted after the close of the record regarding water quality impacts of a proposed alteration to a nonconforming use, where the hearings officer also denied the proposed alteration based on fire safety impacts, and the petitioner/applicant does not challenge that basis for denial. Campers Cove Resort v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 62 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county's alleged failure to process a permit application under "Type II" procedures, which provide for a de novo hearing on appeal of an administrative decision, does not provide a basis for remand, where the county initially processed the application under "Type I" procedures that provide for a hearing limited to the issues raised in the appeal petition, but in fact the county provided a de novo hearing on the appeal not limited to the issues raised in the appeal petition. Jensen Properties v. Washington County, 61 Or LUBA 155 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county's failure to include in its decision notice of a right to appeal to LUBA, as required by ORS 215.416(13), results in no prejudice to petitioner and provides no basis for remand, where petitioner files a timely appeal of the decision with LUBA. Reed v. Jackson County, 61 Or LUBA 253 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the comprehensive plan and land use regulation standards that a county relies on in its decision to deny an application for partition approval were not identified in the notice of hearing, in the planning staff report or in the hearing, the applicant's substantial rights were prejudiced by the county's error in failing to provide notice of relevant approval standards and remand is required. MEK Properties, LLC v. Coos County, 61 Or LUBA 360 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to inquire whether any hearing participants wish to submit a written request for a continued hearing, as required by its local procedural rules, does not provide a basis for remand, where the petitioner's representative was present at the hearing, had the opportunity to object to the decision-maker's failure to make the inquiry, but failed to object. Pliska v. Umatilla County, 61 Or LUBA 429 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under Young v. Crook County, 224 Or App 1, 197 P3d 48 (2008), in an "as applied" challenge of the appeal fee the county charged petitioners to appeal a planning commission decision that approved a destination resort, petitioners have the burden to establish a prima facie case that the appeal fee violates ORS 215.422(1)(c) by exceeding the average cost of such appeals. A county governing body errs by refusing to reopen the record to allow petitioners to supplement the evidentiary record of that local appeal with the planning staff memo that the county relied on in adopting the appeal fee schedule. Petitioners are not required to anticipate that the planning commission decision will be unfavorable and make an anticipatory and potentially unnecessary evidentiary showing regarding the appeal fee before the planning commission. Eder v. Crook County, 60 Or LUBA 204 (2009).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Just as a local government errs by refusing to accept relevant evidence, a local government errs if it accepts relevant evidence that is submitted in accordance with local law and then fails to provide that relevant evidence to the local decision maker. Montgomery v. City of Dunes City, 60 Or LUBA 274 (2010).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the applicable process for review of an application requires notice and an opportunity for a hearing, the local government fails to provide such notice and provides no opportunity for a hearing, and those failures prejudice a party's substantial rights, including the right to participate in the decision, those failures constitute a procedural error that provides a basis for remand. Johnson v. Jackson County, 59 Or LUBA 94 (2009).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 197.835(4) allows a petitioner at LUBA to raise issues that were not raised below and that a petitioner would otherwise be precluded from raising under ORS 197.763(1) regarding applicable criteria that were omitted from the notice. A mere allegation that the notice omitted applicable criteria does not, in itself, provide a basis to reverse or remand a decision absent an allegation that the failure to list all applicable criteria in the notice resulted in prejudice to the petitioner's substantial rights. Knapp v. City of Corvallis, 59 Or LUBA 285 (2009).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county board of commissioners adopts a tentative decision approving an application, but requests that the opponents provide comments on a proposed condition of approval, it is not procedural error for county counsel to discuss the opponents' comments with the commissioners rather than place the written comments in front of the commissioners for their direct review, where the motion that led to tentative approval did not specify how the commissioners wished to receive the comments. Western Land & Cattle, Inc. v. Umatilla County, 58 Or LUBA 295 (2009).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Procedural errors a city may have committed might provide a basis for reversal or remand, if there is a timely appeal of a land use decision. However, any such procedural errors do not have the legal effect of preventing a land use decision from becoming final or delaying the date of finality. Reeves v. City of Wilsonville, 58 Or LUBA 545 (2009).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 197.830(5) gives additional appeal rights to parties where a local government makes a decision that is different from the proposal described in the notice. That statute does not require notice of a change to an application. Welch v. Yamhill County, 56 Or LUBA 166 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. When local approval criteria are amended after an application is filed and the local ordinance requires that the notice state the applicable criteria, it is not a procedural error for the local government to list the older approval criteria that are applicable to the application rather than the amended approval criteria that are not applicable. Painter v. City of Redmond, 56 Or LUBA 264 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. There is no prejudice to a party's substantial rights when a notice of a hearing does not list the applicable criteria if the staff report that was available before the hearing lists the applicable criteria, the party was aware of the applicable criteria, and the party had an adequate opportunity to address the applicable criteria. Painter v. City of Redmond, 56 Or LUBA 264 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Opponents of land use approval have no legal right to comment on the findings that a city adopts to support its decision to grant land use approval, and opponents similarly have no legal right to comment on amended findings that a city adopts after it withdraws a decision following an appeal to LUBA under 197.830(13)(b). Loprinzi's Gym v. City of Portland, 56 Or LUBA 358 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioners' arguments to LUBA that a local government failed to give notice of its annexation decision within the deadlines specified by statute and by a regional government provide no basis for reversal or remand, where petitioners raised no issue below concerning the adequacy of the notice and petitioners do not allege that the claimed late notice prejudiced petitioners' substantial rights. Graser-Lindsey v. City of Oregon City, 56 Or LUBA 504 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where nothing in the county's code supports a claim that payment of a local appeal fee is a jurisdictional requirement, failure to pay the appeal fee is not grounds for dismissal of the appeal at the local level. Ratzlaff v. Polk County, 56 Or LUBA 740 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if a local government's decision to hold an ad hoc hearing before an application for permit approval was filed constituted procedural error, that error would not provide a basis for reversal or remand where petitioner was allowed to participate in the ad hoc hearing and made no attempt to show how that ad hoc hearing prejudiced his substantial rights. Trinkaus v. City of Portland, 56 Or LUBA 771 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The substantial rights that parties in a land use proceeding have under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) are the rights to prepare and submit their case and to a full and fair hearing. Those rights are not preserved by allowing another party to testify and assuming that other parties would have nothing to add to that testimony. Siporen v. City of Medford, 55 Or LUBA 29 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government erroneously decides that certain parties may not participate regarding certain issues in public hearings following a LUBA remand, but then nevertheless allows those parties to participate fully, the initial error would likely not result in prejudice to the parties' substantial rights. However, where the record in fact supports a conclusion that the parties' testimony on the disputed issues was not considered, the parties' substantial rights were prejudiced. Siporen v. City of Medford, 55 Or LUBA 29 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a hearings officer's authority to issue a declaratory ruling has not been properly invoked, the hearings officer has no authority to issue the ruling, and the erroneous exercise of that authority is not accurately characterized as a mere procedural error that may be overlooked absent a demonstration of prejudice to the petitioner's substantial rights. Cushman v. City of Bend, 55 Or LUBA 234 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where evidence was introduced at a city council hearing by the mayor and a city councilor, but that evidence was not directed at any approval criterion and the city did not deny the application on any grounds that were based on or related to the improperly generated evidence, their actions did not demonstrate that they were incapable of making a decision based on the evidence before them. Taylor v. City of Canyonville, 55 Or LUBA 658 (2008).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the purpose of a zoning code requirement that a permit application be initiated in one of six specified ways is to ensure that the current property owner or purchaser of the affected property knows about and agrees with the application, and the record establishes that the current property owner agrees with the application, the county's procedural error in allowing the permit application to be initiated in other than one of the six ways specified in the zoning code could not prejudice a permit opponent's rights and provides no basis for reversal or remand. Womble v. Wasco County, 54 Or LUBA 68 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county's procedural error in providing a permit opponent notice of a planning commission decision on the permit rather than a copy of the permit decision itself could result in prejudice to the opponent's substantial rights, where it prevented the opponent from being able to file a timely appeal to the board of county commissioners. However, where the opponent was nevertheless able to file a timely local appeal, there was no prejudice to the opponent's substantial rights, and the county's failure provides no basis for reversal or remand at LUBA. Womble v. Wasco County, 54 Or LUBA 68 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's argument that all of petitioner's assignments of error should be denied for failure to argue that the alleged errors prejudiced petitioner's substantial rights will be rejected where non-procedural errors need not prejudice a petitioner's substantial rights and petitioner's assignments of error allege substantive rather than procedural errors. Caster v. City of Silverton, 54 Or LUBA 441 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That a conditional use permit application is deemed complete under ORS 227.178 does not necessarily mean that the application is supported by substantial evidence that demonstrates compliance with all applicable approval criteria. Caster v. City of Silverton, 54 Or LUBA 441 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government errs in accepting new information into the record after the public hearing on a matter is closed without allowing other parties an adequate opportunity to respond to the new evidence. Gunzel v. City of Silverton, 53 Or LUBA 174 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county does not err by interpreting a development code compatibility standard for the first time in its written decision, where the interpretation was not beyond the range of interpretations that could reasonably have been anticipated during the evidentiary phase of the county's proceedings, and petitioners do not demonstrate (1) that there is specific evidence that they could present that differs in substance from the evidence that they already submitted or (2) that the new evidence is directly responsive to the county's interpretation. Gutoski v. Lane County, 155 Or App 369, 963 P2d 145 (1998). Clark v. Coos County, 53 Or LUBA 325 (2007).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although local governments frequently attempt to advise permit applicants regarding the scope and nature of evidence that will be required to demonstrate that a proposal complies with applicable land use approval criteria, it is not the local government's burden to accurately predict in advance all of the evidence that may ultimately be needed to obtain approval of a land use application. Gillette v. Lane County, 52 Or LUBA 1 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer's refusal to leave the record open to allow the petitioners to respond to alleged "new evidence" that was submitted during the final evidentiary hearing is not a basis to reverse or remand the decision, where petitioners fail to establish that in fact "new evidence" was submitted or that there is anything to rebut under the hearings officer's unchallenged interpretation of the applicable code provision. Angius v. Washington County, 52 Or LUBA 222 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a hearings officer reopens the evidentiary record to allow parties to present arguments and evidence concerning whether a different adjustment/variance criterion than had been applied before should be applied to an application for an adjustment/variance, and petitioners do not argue that the hearings officer's actions failed to provide petitioners with an adequate opportunity to present their arguments on the merits concerning which adjustment/variance criterion should apply, petitioners fail to demonstrate that the hearings officer's action resulted in prejudice to their substantial rights or that any substantive error on the hearings officer's part was not harmless error. Bickford v. City of Tigard, 52 Or LUBA 301 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Given the Department of Land Conservation and Development Commission's (DLCD's) critical role in the plan amendment review process, complete failure to provide notice of post-acknowledgment plan amendments to DLCD may be a "substantive" error that obviates the requirement to show that the procedural error prejudiced the petitioner's substantial rights. However, it does not follow that failure to provide other types of notice to other parties in other contexts is also a "substantive" error obviating the ORS 197.835(9) requirement that the petitioner show prejudice. Bollam v. Clackamas County, 52 Or LUBA 738 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In making limited land use decisions, it is error for local governments to consider evidence submitted after the close of the comment period. By requesting and accepting a mini traffic study from the applicant that the decision maker relied upon after the close of the comment period, without giving petitioners an opportunity to review and respond to the study, the local government violates petitioners' substantial rights. Delk v. City of Salem, 51 Or LUBA 123 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In order to prevail on a claim of procedural error, a petitioner must do more than allege his substantial rights were prejudiced; he must also identify the procedure that was allegedly violated. Stoloff v. City of Portland, 51 Or LUBA 560 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where an applicant submits a traffic impact analysis on the day the last public hearing closes, and an opponent thereafter asks the city planning department to provide him with a copy of all the applicant's traffic materials within the 7-day period the record remained open for opponents to submit additional evidence, the city's failure to provide the opponent with a copy of the traffic impact analysis is a procedural error that prejudiced the opponents' substantial rights. Jaffer v. City of Monmouth, 51 Or LUBA 633 (2006).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. When new evidence is submitted after the close of the comment period during limited land use proceedings, as with land use decisions, the local government must either (1) reopen the record to allow participants an opportunity to respond to the new evidence or (2) reject the new evidence as untimely. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Oregon City, 50 Or LUBA 87 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure to post notice of a hearing as required under the local government's code is not a basis for reversal or remand, where the petitioner nonetheless knew of the hearing and attended. Gordon v. Polk County, 50 Or LUBA 502 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The time to reject or accept new evidence that is submitted after the close of the evidentiary record is before the decision maker deliberates and reaches a tentative decision. A local government cannot accept such untimely evidence, reach a tentative decision based on the entire record, and then adopt a final written decision that belatedly rejects or purports not to rely on the evidence. Ploeg v. Tillamook County, 50 Or LUBA 608 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's failure to make a staff report available 15 days prior to a hearing as required by the local code prejudices a petitioner's substantial rights where the staff report is made available only 7 days before the hearing and the application is particularly complex. Hammons v. City of Happy Valley, 49 Or LUBA 38 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The failure of a local government to provide LUBA with the entire local record does not in itself require remand. However, where the record is so inadequate that LUBA cannot adequately review the decision, the local government's failure to provide the whole record may result in remand. McCulloh v. City of Jacksonville, 49 Or LUBA 345 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where LUBA can understand a party's presentation and arguments, the local government's failure to provide oversized exhibits for use at oral argument does not prejudice the party's substantial rights. McCulloh v. City of Jacksonville, 49 Or LUBA 345 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city may not accept a revised planned unit development plan the day before an appeal without providing the local parties an opportunity to review and respond to the revised plan. Baker v. City of Garibaldi, 49 Or LUBA 437 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although a city may not take procedural short-cuts that it knows or reasonably should know will prejudice one or more party's substantial rights and thereby provide a reasonably certain basis for an appeal to and remand by LUBA, ORS 197.835(10)(a)(B) or ORS 227.178 do not prohibit a city from expediting its local review process to meet the 120-day deadline, provided that expedited process does not require one or more parties to sacrifice their substantial right to fully and fairly present their position on the merits of the application. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Central Point, 49 Or LUBA 472 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The ORS 227.178(1) requirement that a city render a final decision on a permit application within 120 days is not satisfied by a pro forma denial. To comply with ORS 227.178(1) and comply with the ORS 197.835(10)(a)(B) requirement that the city not take action to avoid the requirements of ORS 227.178, the city's decision must be a real decision that is made in good faith, in the sense that the decision is supported by findings and is based on an evidentiary record that the city could reasonably believe are adequate to allow that decision to be defended in the event of an appeal to LUBA. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Central Point, 49 Or LUBA 472 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Neither the text of ORS 197.835(10)(a)(B) nor contextual statutes dictate that any deviation by a city from its procedures to render a timely final decision within the 120-day deadline imposed by ORS 227.178(1) necessarily constitutes an "action [taken] to avoid the requirements of ORS * * * 227.178," within the meaning of ORS 197.835(10)(a)(B). Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Central Point, 49 Or LUBA 472 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The actions taken to avoid the requirements of ORS 227.178, which may provide a basis for reversal by LUBA under ORS 197.835(10)(a)(B), are not limited to a city's final action. Actions the city takes before adopting its final decision may also violate the statute. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Central Point, 49 Or LUBA 472 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioners are in no position to fault the city for accepting new evidence during a non-evidentiary hearing, where petitioners were the only persons who testified and were the persons who submitted the new evidence. That the city accepted petitioners' evidence did not convert the hearing into an evidentiary hearing, or require the city to renotice the hearing and provide additional opportunities to present evidence. Patterson v. City of Independence, 49 Or LUBA 589 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner's failure to object to untimely disclosure of a site visit and to request the opportunity to rebut the site visit precludes assigning error to that disclosure, where the disclosure was made 10 days prior to the hearing at which the local government adopted the final decision, and petitioner could have entered an objection at any time during those 10 days or during the final hearing, but did not. Carrigg v. City of Enterprise, 48 Or LUBA 328 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where statutory notice of hearing requirements are not jurisdictional, failure to comply with those statutory requirements is reviewed under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B), which establishes LUBA's scope of review for procedural errors. Kneeland v. Douglas County, 48 Or LUBA 347 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a notice for the required second hearing on formation of a special district corrects certain errors in the notice of the first hearing, any defects in the first notice are cured. Kneeland v. Douglas County, 48 Or LUBA 347 (2005).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where applicable criteria require that the applicant and city identify the intended use and evaluate its impacts, a city errs when, in a combined role as applicant and decision-maker, it substantially changes a "intended use" of property proposed for rezoning after the close of the evidentiary hearing without providing the petitioner an opportunity to present argument and evidence with respect to the new intended use. Nielson v. City of Stayton, 47 Or LUBA 52 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A citizen participation requirement for appointment of a three-person citizens' advisory committee when considering major land use regulation amendments is a procedural requirement. A petitioner who wishes to assign error to the local government's failure to appoint such a committee must have objected to that failure during the proceedings below. Dobson v. City of Newport, 47 Or LUBA 267 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. An ambiguous statement that could be understood to refer to ex parte contacts, but could also be understood to refer to contacts that were not ex parte contacts might be sufficient to warrant an evidentiary hearing to clarify the meaning of the reference, but is not sufficient to support a conclusion that there were improper undisclosed ex parte contacts. Frewing v. City of Tigard, 47 Or LUBA 331 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA is unable to perform its review function and remand is required where the county rejects, without any explanation, evidence that is arguably relevant to an applicable criterion. Nez Perce Tribe v. Wallowa County, 47 Or LUBA 419 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 215.422(4), which excludes certain contacts between planning staff and the local decision maker from the definition of ex parte contacts, does not authorize a decision maker to rely on evidence provided by planning staff that it specifically refuses to include in the record, after the close of the record, without providing an opportunity for rebuttal. Nez Perce Tribe v. Wallowa County, 47 Or LUBA 419 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Assuming, without deciding, that it is reversible error to combine a unitary legislative proceeding with a geographically and otherwise unrelated site-specific proposal, a city decision that applies a height bonus to a particular property that is within a 535-acre study area subject to a number of legislative plan and land use regulation amendments is not geographically or otherwise unrelated to the legislative proceeding. NWDA v. City of Portland, 47 Or LUBA 533 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Any prejudice to petitioners' substantial rights that might have resulted from late filing of a staff report and late evidentiary submissions prior to a final hearing was avoided by providing petitioners an opportunity to submit additional evidence and testimony after that hearing. McCulloh v. City of Jacksonville, 46 Or LUBA 267 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. When neither the notice, nor the staff report, nor the local government's public discussion, nor the decision ever mentions the applicable criteria, a local government commits procedural errors that prejudice a petitioner's substantial rights. Naumes Properties, LLC v. City of Central Point, 46 Or LUBA 304 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Before the "raise it or waive it" provisions now codified at ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3) were adopted, LUBA required that a petitioner who asserts procedural error at LUBA must have raised the procedural error below. While the obligation to object locally to procedural errors overlaps with ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3), it exists independently and may require that a petitioner enter an objection after the close of the final evidentiary hearing. Hayden Island, Ltd. v. City of Portland, 46 Or LUBA 439 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That a committee entertained questions from the public during its deliberations after the close of its final evidentiary hearing does not mean the committee would have allowed a legal challenge to its reliance on a committee rule, or that it would have reconsidered its decision to rely on that rule to deny a local appeal. A petitioner's failure to object to the rule at that stage does not mean the issue is waived in a subsequent LUBA appeal. Hayden Island, Ltd. v. City of Portland, 46 Or LUBA 439 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city does not err in approving a subdivision applicant's tree protection plan with a condition that the applicant provide the city arborist with construction documents so that the arborist can determine whether additional trees must be removed. While that condition could be viewed as an improper deferral of a finding concerning the adequacy of the tree protection plan, it does not do so where the condition does not specify that the tree protection plan may be revised without additional public hearings and the condition simply creates a more structured approach for computing the mitigation that would be required in any event without the condition. Miller v. City of Tigard, 46 Or LUBA 536 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a party is present at a rezoning hearing where a county commissioner discloses that he and a county planner made a site visit to the subject property, and that party testifies after the disclosure without objecting to the site visit, the planner's attendance at the site visit or the adequacy of the county commissioner's disclosure of the site visit, that party waives his right to assign error based on the site visit in an appeal at LUBA. Mattson v. Clackamas County, 46 Or LUBA 552 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner's argument that a city's erroneous notice regarding the date it would reconsider a decision following remand from LUBA provides no basis for reversal or remand, where petitioner's entire argument is based on an erroneous assumption that an evidentiary hearing was required on remand and that the notice the city gave did not comply with ORS 197.763(2). McFall v. City of Sherwood, 46 Or LUBA 735 (2004).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government does not err in failing to provide an evidentiary hearing on remand to accept updated information regarding the current status of petitioner's property, where LUBA's remand did not require the local government to conduct additional evidentiary hearings, and petitioner fails to identify any authority that requires the local government to conduct an additional evidentiary hearing to accept updated information. Manning v. Marion County, 45 Or LUBA 1 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city commits no error by processing a lot line adjustment as a quasi-judicial land use matter before the planning commission rather than as a ministerial matter before the planning department, where the lot line adjustment decision requires that the city exercise significant legal and factual judgment. Smith v. City of St. Paul, 45 Or LUBA 281 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioners do not have a right to rebut recitations of fact in adopted findings, and such findings do not constitute "evidence," although if adopted findings of fact that are not supported by the record, that lack of evidentiary support may be a basis for reversal or remand under ORS 197.835(9)(a)(C). Bruce Packing Company v. City of Silverton, 45 Or LUBA 334 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. An assignment of error that alleges that petitioners' substantial rights were prejudiced by a city's failure to provide notice of an applicable approval criterion provides no basis for reversal or remand, where (1) the record shows that the criterion was identified at a public hearing as being applicable; (2) petitioners had an opportunity to respond to the assertion that the criterion was applicable; and (3) petitioners' attorney responded to the assertion by contending that the criterion was not applicable. Martin v. City of Dunes City, 45 Or LUBA 458 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If a county rejects evidence that was submitted after the close of the record, and does not consider that evidence in making its decision, the county's refusal to permit rebuttal of that late submittal does not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Sheppard v. Clackamas County, 45 Or LUBA 507 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where it is clear that a decision maker considered evidence that was submitted after the close of the record, and that the decision maker may have relied on that evidence in making its decision, the decision maker errs in refusing to allow rebuttal to that evidence, notwithstanding a statement in the final decision document that the disputed evidence was rejected. Sheppard v. Clackamas County, 45 Or LUBA 507 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Providing only 22 days' notice of hearing to DLCD of a post-acknowledgment plan amendment, rather than the full 45 days' notice required by ORS 196.610(1), is not reversible error, where both petitioner and DLCD participated in the proceedings, and there is no attempt to demonstrate that short notice prevented any other person that might rely on the notice from participating in the local government's proceedings. Bryant v. Umatilla County, 45 Or LUBA 653 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Alleged statements made by a decision maker at a social function that the decision maker would listen to the evidence and testimony regarding an application for a plan amendment and zone change, but would nevertheless vote to approve the application are not sufficient to establish prejudgment bias where the accuracy of those statements were disputed and the decision maker stated that he had considered the testimony and evidence and was prepared to make a decision based on that testimony and evidence. Roberts v. Clatsop County, 44 Or LUBA 178 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The absence of required information or analysis in an application is not necessarily viewed as a procedural error, and may be a basis for reversal or remand even without a showing of prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights, where the information or analysis is necessary to determine compliance with approval criteria. Bauer v. City of Portland, 44 Or LUBA 210 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city commits no error in proceeding with a decision on an application for a subdivision, and does not violate a subdivision opponent's due process rights, where a quiet title action is pending to resolve an ownership dispute between the opponent and the subdivision applicant, but the applicant is the record fee owner of the property. McFall v. City of Sherwood, 44 Or LUBA 493 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner's substantial rights include the right to a final written decision by the final decision maker on petitioner's local appeal. An allegation that the city council failed to adopt a final written decision on petitioner's appeal is sufficient to allege prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. Shaffer v. City of Happy Valley, 44 Or LUBA 536 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner fails to demonstrate that he was entitled to an evidentiary hearing before the local government following a remand from LUBA under Gutoski v. Lane County, 155 Or App 369, 963 P2d 145 (1998), where the arguments petitioner sought to present in that evidentiary hearing on remand were legal arguments rather than an expanded evidentiary presentation. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 44 Or LUBA 698 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That certain documents may not have been provided to the planning commission provides no basis for remand, where the planning commission decision was appealed to the city governing body, the governing body adopted the city's final decision and there is no contention that the disputed documents were provided to the city governing body. Lord v. City of Oregon City, 43 Or LUBA 361 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioners fail to establish that they are entitled to a new evidentiary hearing to respond to an interpretation setting an unanticipated evidentiary standard, where petitioners do not describe what additional evidence responsive to the unanticipated interpretation they would produce, or how that evidence differs in substance from evidence already in the record. Stahl v. Tillamook County, 43 Or LUBA 518 (2003).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will not remand a decision based on an allegation that the decision maker failed to follow the consultation and coordination requirements of OAR 340-252-0060, where the record makes clear that all parties required by the rule to be consulted were aware of and actively participated in the process leading to the challenged decision, and any failure to follow the procedures set out by the rule was attributable to someone other than the decision maker. Witham Parts and Equipment Co. v. ODOT, 42 Or LUBA 435 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. While ORS 197.835(4) operates as a limited defense to a waiver challenge under ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(3), it does not obviate the requirement that a party given the opportunity to object to a procedural error below must do so in order to seek reversal or remand based on that error. Confederated Tribes v. City of Coos Bay, 42 Or LUBA 385 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure to complete a conditional use application on city forms created for that purpose will not result in reversal or remand absent some argument from petitioners that the lack of a formal application prejudiced their substantial rights. Monogios and Co. v. City of Pendleton, 42 Or LUBA 291 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government departs from the procedures for continuing a hearing set out in ORS 197.763(6)(a) to (c), the revised procedures must be clearly communicated to all parties and, preferably, reduced to writing. Hawman v. Umatilla County, 42 Or LUBA 223 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the circumstances under which oral testimony would be allowed at a continued hearing are not clearly defined, and petitioners allege that they were prejudiced by being denied an opportunity to present oral testimony at the continued hearing based on the ambiguity of the procedures, remand is appropriate to ensure that petitioners receive an opportunity to present that oral testimony. Hawman v. Umatilla County, 42 Or LUBA 223 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Decision maker bias in a land use matter must be deduced from the totality of the circumstances. Where a decision maker is a member of a church congregation and the church is an applicant for a land use permit, the decision maker's church membership does not, in itself, require the decision maker's recusal for bias. Friends of Jacksonville v. City of Jacksonville, 42 Or LUBA 137 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a land use decision maker is a member of a church congregation and the church has applied for a land use permit, and the decision maker has expressed concern regarding the impact proposed conditions of approval would have on church operations but nevertheless declares that she is able to render a decision regarding the church's application based on the facts and law before her, that decision maker has not impermissibly prejudged the application. Friends of Jacksonville v. City of Jacksonville, 42 Or LUBA 137 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a land use decision maker is a member of a church congregation and the church has applied for a land use permit, and the decision maker has (1) testified as an individual in favor of the application prior to his election to the decision making body; and (2) stated that he did not believe he had to be objective regarding the application and would support the application "all the way to the Supreme Court," the decision maker has impermissibly prejudged the church's application and, absent some need for his participation in order to reach a decision, recusal is required. Friends of Jacksonville v. City of Jacksonville, 42 Or LUBA 137 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to comply with the notice requirements of OAR 660-018-0040(1) provides DLCD and other parties subject to notice under ORS 197.615 an opportunity to appeal the county's decision beyond the deadline established in ORS 197.830. It does not provide an independent ground for reversal or remand, in the absence of an argument that the failure to comply with the standard prejudiced petitioner's substantial rights. Doty v. Coos County, 42 Or LUBA 103 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a city provides notice that it will provide a hearing to comment on a proposed expedited annexation if a hearing is requested, and petitioner requested a hearing, the city errs in approving the expedited annexation without providing the requested hearing. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 41 Or LUBA 515 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Notwithstanding a city's procedural error in failing to provide a hearing on a proposed expedited annexation, petitioner's substantial rights were not thereby violated where petitioner was nevertheless allowed to appear before the city council and present his comments before the city council approved the expedited annexation. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 41 Or LUBA 515 (2002).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city council's failure to adopt required findings explaining why it allowed a partial de novo appeal hearing, rather than an on-the-record review, provides no basis for reversal or remand where petitioner does not show that the city council's failure to adopt the required findings prejudiced his substantial rights. Dimone v. City of Hillsboro, 41 Or LUBA 167 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. An allegation that a city mischaracterized its decision as a limited land use decision does not itself provide a basis for reversal or remand, absent a further allegation that the city failed to follow the procedures applicable to the decision and that petitioners' substantial rights were prejudiced by that failure. Crowley v. City of Bandon, 41 Or LUBA 87 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Whatever prejudice to petitioners' substantial rights might have occurred before the initial decision maker, when the city arguably failed to provide petitioners an adequate opportunity to comment before the planning commission on whether a proposed design complied with applicable criteria, was cured by providing petitioners an opportunity to present testimony directed at applicable criteria in a subsequent appeal to the city council. Crowley v. City of Bandon, 41 Or LUBA 87 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where new evidence is improperly submitted as part of an applicant's final legal arguments, but that evidence has no bearing on the relevant approval criteria, the error in accepting the new evidence results in no prejudice to other parties' substantial rights and provides no basis for reversal or remand. Farrell v. Jackson County, 41 Or LUBA 1 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Any error that may have been committed by failing to provide a proposed comprehensive plan amendment to DLCD 45 days before the first evidentiary hearing was corrected on remand by offering to provide the proposal to DLCD more than 45 days before the evidentiary hearing on remand, where there is no contention that DLCD failed to receive the proposal or failed to provide notice of the proposal in accordance with ORS 197.610(1) and DLCD advises the county that it does not oppose the proposal. Donnell v. Union County, 40 Or LUBA 455 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where an applicant's final legal rebuttal under ORS 197.763(6)(e) is not limited to legal arguments and includes factual assertions, but petitioner fails to demonstrate that the factual assertions concerned a legally relevant issue, such factual assertions provide no basis for reversal or remand. Donnell v. Union County, 40 Or LUBA 455 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if evidence is improperly accepted by the local government, remand is not appropriate where petitioners fail to demonstrate that the improperly accepted evidence is potentially relevant to an approval criterion. Evidence regarding development of a neighborhood plan, ownership patterns in the neighborhood, and whether a proposed hotel can meet height limitations is not potentially relevant to a criterion that requires a proposed hotel to be consistent with regard to "building size, height, color, material and form" with other structures in the neighborhood. Terra v. City of Newport, 40 Or LUBA 286 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That petitioner was mailed notice of a hearing only 10 days prior to the hearing is not reversible error. The fact that petitioner was not available to receive the given notice does not demonstrate substantial prejudice. Hausam v. City of Salem, 40 Or LUBA 234 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner knew or should have known of the county's procedural error in omitting local code criteria from the notice of hearing, but failed to object to that procedural error and request appropriate relief, the county's procedural error provides no basis to seek remand of the county's decision. Central Klamath County CAT v. Klamath County, 40 Or LUBA 111 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Any procedural error by a local government in failing to provide written notice of a proposed annexation decision to persons other than petitioner resulted in no prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights, and therefore provides no basis for reversal or remand of the annexation decision, where petitioner learned of the proposal and made a written appearance opposing the proposal. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 40 Or LUBA 78 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Reference to "a portion of Sunset Highway" in a notice of proposed annexation decision is likely insufficient to provide reasonable notice of the decision under applicable code and statutory requirements. However, where a petitioner nevertheless was able to determine the nature and scope of the proposal and submit written opposition to the proposal, the petitioner may not successfully assert possible injury to other persons' substantial rights as a basis for reversal or remand. Cape v. City of Beaverton, 40 Or LUBA 78 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioner does not demonstrate an actual conflict of interest, as that term is defined in ORS 244.020, on the part of two decision makers who own homes in a PUD where uses allowed on commonly held property are subject to a land use appeal. Halvorson Mason Corp. v. City of Depoe Bay, 39 Or LUBA 702 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city councilor has prejudged an application and must recuse himself from participating in a decision on the application where the councilor, prior to the time a land use matter came before the city council, actively opposed an application, and sent correspondence to the other city councilors in which he advocated in opposition to the application, stating that the law and evidence point to denial of the application. Halvorson Mason Corp. v. City of Depoe Bay, 39 Or LUBA 702 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The bias of one decision maker may warrant reversal or remand of a land use decision pursuant to ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B), where participation of that decision maker prevented petitioner from receiving a full and fair hearing, one of petitioner's substantial rights. Halvorson Mason Corp. v. City of Depoe Bay, 39 Or LUBA 702 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county's error in providing notice of a planning commission hearing to property owners within 500 feet of the subject property, rather than to those within 750 feet of the subject property as required by local legislation, is a procedural error and provides no basis for reversal or remand unless petitioner's substantial rights are violated by the error. Where petitioner received notice of the planning commission hearing and the proper notice was given prior to a subsequent hearing by the board of county commissioners, there was no prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. Donnell v. Union County, 39 Or LUBA 419 (2001).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure to provide proper notice pursuant to ORS 197.763(3) is a procedural error and does not provide a basis for reversal or remand unless the error prejudices a party's substantial rights. Lange-Luttig v. City of Beaverton, 39 Or LUBA 80 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners appeared below and testified about the uses that would be authorized by a conditional use permit, petitioners may not claim that their substantial rights were prejudiced by a local government's failure to specifically identify all proposed uses in the notice of the hearing. Lange-Luttig v. City of Beaverton, 39 Or LUBA 80 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A lack of supporting information in an application does not provide a basis for reversal or remand when the missing information is not necessary to determine compliance with a specific approval standard. Roth v. Jackson County, 38 Or LUBA 894 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Absent a state or local provision to the contrary, once the local record is closed to new evidence the local government is not compelled to reopen the record to accept new evidence, no matter how relevant that evidence is to the local government's decision. Utsey v. Coos County, 38 Or LUBA 516 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city does not violate an applicant's right to due process by denying its request to cross-examine witnesses, where the local code provides no right of cross-examination and the applicant fails to explain why an alternative process offered by the city in place of cross-examination would be insufficient to protect the applicant's right to due process. Oregon Entertainment Corp. v. City of Beaverton, 38 Or LUBA 440 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's failure to provide notice that it considered a particular comprehensive plan goal to be an approval criterion is a procedural error, and where that failure denies the applicant an opportunity to present argument and evidence concerning that plan goal, the procedural error prejudices the applicant's substantial rights. Oregon Entertainment Corp. v. City of Beaverton, 38 Or LUBA 440 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure to list applicable criteria in a pre-hearing notice in violation of ORS 197.763(3)(a) allows petitioner to raise issues at LUBA relating to the omitted criteria without having raised those issues before the local government. However, failure to list applicable criteria does not, in itself, provide a basis for reversal or remand. Ashley Manor Care Centers v. City of Grants Pass, 38 Or LUBA 308 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner fails to allege that it was entitled to written notice of hearing under Ballot Measure 56, a local government's failure to provide written notice of hearing under Ballot Measure 56 did not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights and provides no basis for reversal or remand. Homebuilders Association v. City of Portland, 37 Or LUBA 707 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A condition of approval that is suggested by the applicant after the close of the evidentiary hearing in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding is not "new evidence," within the meaning of ORS

197.763(6)(e), and there is no legal requirement that parties be given a right to rebut such a proposed condition of approval. Marine Street LLC v. City of Astoria, 37 Or LUBA 587 (2000).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where LUBA remands a decision for additional proceedings requiring that the current members of the county board of commissioners review the record compiled before the previous board, such remand cures the procedural error, if any, resulting from the fact that, due to an intervening election, only one of the three commissioners who signed the final written order attended the evidentiary hearings and participated in the oral vote on the merits of the application. Greer v. Josephine County, 37 Or LUBA 261 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county lacks decisional authority over annexation requests, it exceeds its jurisdiction in denying an annexation that is part of a combined application for a plan map amendment and zone change over which the county has co-adoption authority. Copper Basin, Inc. v. Umatilla County, 37 Or LUBA 147 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government elects to conduct additional hearings prior to making a decision following remand of a decision by LUBA, all parties to the LUBA appeal that led to the remand are entitled to some form of individualized notice of the proceedings on remand, and a local government's failure to provide notice to one of those parties is procedural error. DLCD v. Crook County, 37 Or LUBA 39 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A party's right to appeal a local decision that is adopted following a remand by LUBA does not eliminate prejudice to that party's substantial rights caused by the local government's failure to provide notice of its proceedings on remand. The rights the party has in seeking LUBA review of the decision on remand are much more circumscribed that the rights the party has during a local land use hearing. DLCD v. Crook County, 37 Or LUBA 39 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a decision maker discloses the existence but not the substance of ex parte communications at the beginning of the public hearing, and despite being given an opportunity to do so petitioner fails to object to the inadequacy of the decision maker's disclosure, petitioner has waived the right to raise the decision maker's inadequate disclosure of ex parte communications before LUBA as a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Mulford v. Town of Lakeview, 36 Or LUBA 715 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city commits procedural error where it fails to identify the relevant approval criteria in its notice of hearing or in its oral statement at the beginning of the hearing on a conditional use request. The city also commits procedural error where the staff report that identifies the relevant approval criteria is not made available seven days before the hearing and the report is only provided to the city council at the hearing. Where these errors contribute to confusion about the nature of the use for which approval is requested and the city's legal theory for approving the request, petitioners' substantial rights are prejudiced by the city's procedural errors and remand is required. Latta v. City of Joseph, 36 Or LUBA 708 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where LUBA rejects as a matter of law a county's erroneous interpretation of its comprehensive plan as imposing a 2.3-acre minimum residential density, procedural errors the county may have committed in considering evidence outside the record in reaching that erroneous interpretation provide no additional basis for remand. Columbia Hills Development Co. v. Columbia County, 36 Or LUBA 691 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure to observe statutory notice and hearing requirements prior to making a permit decision will result in remand by LUBA where petitioner's substantial rights were prejudiced because petitioner was entirely prevented from participating in the decision making process. Friends of the Creek v. Jackson County, 36 Or LUBA 562 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Failure to observe statutory notice and hearing requirements prior to making a permit decision will result in remand by LUBA, where petitioner's substantial rights were prejudiced because petitioner was entirely prevented from participating in the decision making process. Friends of Clean Living v. Polk County, 36 Or LUBA 544 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's procedural error in failing to send notice of a hearing at which zone changes affecting petitioner's property would be considered does not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights, where petitioner nonetheless participated in the hearing and the city continued the hearing to allow petitioner an adequate time to prepare. Herman v. City of Lincoln City, 36 Or LUBA 521 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county's failure to explain in its notice of hearing that all evidence and the staff report would be available for review seven days before the hearing provides no basis for reversal or remand, where petitioner did not object to the adequacy of the notice, does not claim he was surprised by anything in the staff report and does not explain how his substantial rights were violated by the inadequate notice. Woods v. Grant County, 36 Or LUBA 456 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the county's notice of hearing failed to include notice of the procedures to be followed at the hearing, but petitioner did not object below to the inadequate notice and does not explain how his substantial rights were violated by the defective notice, the notice defect provides no basis for reversal or remand. Woods v. Grant County, 36 Or LUBA 456 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner does not waive his right to object to the county's failure to list the applicable criteria governing permit revocation in the notice of hearing by failing to object below, where it was not clear until the end of the hearing what criteria would be applied or that the decision makers intended to revoke petitioner's permit. Woods v. Grant County, 36 Or LUBA 456 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner was provided a local appeal and hearing before the county governing body, the failure of the planning commission to give notice before its hearing of the criteria that it intended to apply or that it intended to revoke petitioner's permit provides no basis for reversal or remand, where petitioner does not explain why the appeal to the governing body was inadequate to avoid any prejudice to his substantial rights. Woods v. Grant County, 36 Or LUBA 456 (1999).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a decision is withdrawn for reconsideration following appeal to LUBA and a new ordinance is adopted without following the applicable local adoption procedures, such a procedural error provides no basis for reversal or remand where petitioner was given an opportunity for meaningful participation and there was no prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. Barnard Perkins Corp. v. City of Rivergrove, 34 Or LUBA 660 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Consideration of a legislative action more than once within a 12-month period despite a code requirement that such actions be considered only once in a 12-month period provides no basis for reversal or remand, where all parties were given a full opportunity to participate in the proceedings and there was no prejudice to a party's substantial rights. Barnard Perkins Corp. v. City of Rivergrove, 34 Or LUBA 660 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government decision maker commits a procedural error by failing to require a transcript of the proceedings below, but petitioner fails to demonstrate that failure prejudiced his substantial rights, the procedural error provides no basis for remand. Johns v. City of Lincoln City, 34 Or LUBA 594 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city council's procedural error in failing to require preparation of a transcript of proceedings on remand before the planning commission cannot have any bearing on whether the challenged decision is supported by substantial evidence, where the proceedings on remand were on the record. Johns v. City of Lincoln City, 34 Or LUBA 594 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Procedural errors before a lower-level local decision maker provide no basis for reversal or remand at LUBA where the errors are cured by de novo review by a higher-level local decision maker. Rouse v. Tillamook County, 34 Or LUBA 530 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if a local government's notice is not sufficiently specific to identify all approval criteria, petitioner fails to establish any prejudice to its substantial rights when the approval criteria are identified in a staff report and petitioner was in fact made aware of and addressed the criteria in the proceedings below. Northwest Aggregates Co. v. City of Scappoose, 34 Or LUBA 498 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the notice of a hearing fails to list all of the criteria required for approval of an application, that procedural error does not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights where all of the applicable criteria were raised and addressed at the public hearing. Turrell v. Harney County, 34 Or LUBA 423 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If the city committed a procedural error by approving final subdivision and PUD plans without providing a hearing or opportunity for local appeal, such error provides no basis for remand where the petitioner at LUBA was allowed to submit 65 pages of comments to the city prior to its decision. Rochlin v. City of Portland, 34 Or LUBA 379 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the comprehensive plan requires that the planning commission forward findings and a report to the city council for consideration with a proposed plan amendment, the planning commission commits a procedural error by not forwarding the required findings and report. Fogarty v. City of Gresham, 34 Or LUBA 309 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A planning commission's error in not forwarding findings and a report to the city council with a proposed legislative plan amendment provides no basis for remand where petitioner does not specify any arguments he was prevented from making due to the error. Alleged inability to "bolster" petitioner's arguments is not sufficient to demonstrate petitioner's substantial rights were prejudiced. Fogarty v. City of Gresham, 34 Or LUBA 309 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The city's failure to provide any notice of the hearing at which the challenged ordinance was adopted was procedural error that prejudiced petitioners' substantial rights to participate in the process, notwithstanding that petitioners had participated in earlier proceedings leading to the challenged decision. Casey Jones Well Drilling, Inc. v. City of Lowell, 34 Or LUBA 263 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The local government may be required to reopen the evidentiary hearing where the local government (1) changes to a significant degree an established interpretation of an approval standard; (2) the change makes relevant a different type of evidence that was irrelevant under the old interpretation; and (3) the party seeking to submit evidence responsive to the new interpretation identifies what evidence not already in the record it seeks to submit. Gutoski v. Lane County, 34 Or LUBA 219 (1998).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a revised site plan is introduced after the close of the record, and evidence exists that petitioner was aware of the addition but did not object below, that procedural error does not justify reversal or remand by LUBA. Brown v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 700 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If a local government determines an ex parte contact that is prohibited by local code occurred during local proceedings, other parties must be allowed the opportunity to rebut the substance of the ex parte contact. Opp v. City of Portland, 33 Or LUBA 654 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. There is no legal requirement that decision makers disclose the substance of their site observations and provide an opportunity for rebuttal where the decision is legislative rather than quasi-judicial. Valerio v. Union County, 33 Or LUBA 604 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A county errs in not requiring a scaled drawing of a proposed dwelling as required by local code, where the drawing is necessary to determine that the proposed dwelling complies with applicable height and roof pitch standards, and the missing information is not otherwise in the record. Pekarek v. Wallowa County, 33 Or LUBA 225 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's error in converting an appeal of a quasi-judicial decision into a de novo legislative proceeding is substantive rather than procedural, and its decision is prohibited as a matter of law. Anderson v. City of Shady Cove, 33 Or LUBA 173 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. To demonstrate prejudice to substantial rights as a result of a procedural error, a petitioner must explain with some specificity what would have been different or more complete had the correct procedures been followed. LUBA requires more than general assertions that the petitioner's case would have been better presented had there been no procedural violations below. Concerned Citizens v. Jackson County, 33 Or LUBA 70 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a continuance required by ORS 197.753(4)(b) to allow opponents to respond to new evidence was not granted before the city and county planning commissions made their recommendation to the city council and county commissioners, a procedural error occurred, but that error is no basis for remand when the opponents submitted a detailed rebuttal during the year-long interim between the date of the recommendation and the decision of the governing bodies, who considered additional evidence and testimony as part of a de novo review of the applications. Concerned Citizens v. Jackson County, 33 Or LUBA 70 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners do not explain how the city's failure to conduct a public hearing (if one was required under local code) prejudiced their substantial rights, there is no basis for reversal or remand pursuant to ORS 197.828(2)(d). Venable v. City of Albany, 33 Or LUBA 1 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. When a hearing audio tape is inadvertently destroyed, the city cannot include it in the record. However, the city's failure to include the tape in the record does not require remand unless LUBA cannot perform its review function as a result. Village Properties, L.P. v. City of Oregon City, 32 Or LUBA 475 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners are qualified participants in a local appeal, but are denied the opportunity to respond to issues raised in the local appeal, their substantial rights are prejudiced and the challenged decision must be remanded. Spencer Creek Neighbors v. Lane County, 32 Or LUBA 349 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The city's failure to provide petitioner with the notice of hearing to which she was entitled under ORS 197.763(2) effectively denied petitioner the right to participate in the hearings process and to present evidence, thereby violating her substantial rights. Wicks-Snodgrass v. City of Reedsport, 32 Or LUBA 292 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a party has the opportunity to object to a procedural error before the local government, but fails to do so, that error cannot be assigned as grounds for reversal or remand of the local government's decision in an appeal to LUBA. Wicks-Snodgrass v. City of Reedsport, 32 Or LUBA 292 (1997).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Because the county's violation of ORS 215.422 is not a procedural error, petitioner is not required to show that his substantial rights were prejudiced by the county's error in order to obtain a remand. Brown v. Union County, 32 Or LUBA 168 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if petitioner was not afforded an opportunity below to present argument and rebuttal on the issue of how the city should proceed on remand, petitioner has not demonstrated prejudice to its substantial rights where it was provided both an adequate opportunity to prepare and submit a case and a full and fair hearing. Prineville Properties, Inc. v. City of Prineville, 32 Or LUBA 139 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although the county's refusal to permit a party below to participate in a hearing on remand prejudiced that party's substantial rights, ORS 197.835(9)(a)(B) permits remand only where the failure to satisfy applicable procedural requirements prejudiced the substantial rights of the petitioner. Fraley v. Deschutes County, 32 Or LUBA 27 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the proceedings on remand were limited to argument and the petitioner was allowed to present argument, the county's improper refusal to allow another party to present argument did not prejudice the substantial rights of the petitioner. Fraley v. Deschutes County, 32 Or LUBA 27 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The county's failure to provide adequate notice of a proposed goal exception under ORS 197.732(5) is a procedural error that will not result in reversal or remand where the record demonstrates that petitioners' substantial rights were not prejudiced. Middleton v. Josephine County, 31 Or LUBA 423 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The city's violation of the notice requirements of ORS 197.763(3) does not justify reversal or remand absent a showing by petitioners that their substantial rights were prejudiced as a result of the improper notice. Tucker v. City of Adair Village, 31 Or LUBA 382 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA reviews the final decision made by the county board of commissioners, not the decision of the planning commission. A procedural violation by the planning commission is not ground for reversal or remand unless petitioner establishes that the board of commissioners did not correct the violation. Simonds v. Hood River County, 31 Or LUBA 305 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The requirement of ORS 197.763(4)(b) that a staff report be available seven days prior to a land use hearing is a procedural requirement; under ORS 197.835(9)(c), its violation is ground for reversal or remand only if petitioner demonstrates that his substantial rights were prejudiced. Simonds v. Hood River County, 31 Or LUBA 305 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Statements by city staff at a local appeal hearing regarding evidence already in the record do not give petitioner a right to rebuttal. Thornton v. City of St. Helens, 31 Or LUBA 287 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the county allows the applicants to provide a requisite septic system evaluation after the final hearing, and petitioners are provided seven days to respond, petitioners' procedural rights are not violated. Friends of Indian Ford v. Deschutes County, 31 Or LUBA 248 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A memorandum from planning staff to the city council concerning interpretation of the city code is not evidence. Therefore, that petitioners had no opportunity to rebut the substance of staff's memorandum at a continued hearing provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Sullivan v. City of Woodburn, 31 Or LUBA 192 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 197.763(6)(b), oral evidence submitted at a continued hearing provides no basis for a request that the record be left open for a response. Therefore, that petitioners had no opportunity to rebut the substance of testimony given at a continued hearing provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Sullivan v. City of Woodburn, 31 Or LUBA 192 (1996).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA may reverse or remand a local decision based on a local government's failure to comply with applicable notice requirements only if the defect prejudices a petitioner's substantial rights. Thomas v. Wasco County, 30 Or LUBA 142 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The existence of procedural error resulting from defects in a notice of final decision fails to establish prejudice to substantial rights in the absence of a causal relationship between the defects and petitioner's failure to participate in the process. Thomas v. Wasco County, 30 Or LUBA 142 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner's failure to file a timely local appeal resulted from his absence during the appeal period, and not from the failure of the notice of decision to include required findings of fact, the necessary relationship between the procedural defects and petitioner's substantial rights was not established. Thomas v. Wasco County, 30 Or LUBA 142 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 12.270, a boundary alteration, initiated and purported to be effective, is conclusively presumed effective one year after the purported effective date, notwithstanding procedural defects in adoption. Carlson v. City of Dunes City, 30 Or LUBA 129 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A procedural error is grounds for remand or reversal only when a party establishes the violation prejudices its substantial rights. LUBA will not search the record to find evidence to support the alleged procedural error. Wakeman v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 521 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners contend a local government's notice of hearing on a conditional use permit application did not comply with the requirement of ORS 197.763(3)(a) to explain the nature of the application and the uses that could be authorized, but do not contend their substantial rights were prejudiced by the alleged error, petitioners provide no basis for reversal or remand. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B). Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 29 Or LUBA 391 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to comply with the requirements of ORS 197.763(3)(h) and (i) that its notice of hearing state the staff report and applicant's materials are available for inspection and that copies will be provided at reasonable cost is a procedural error, and does not provide a basis for reversal or remand unless petitioners explain how their substantial rights were prejudiced by the error. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 29 Or LUBA 391 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners do not move for an evidentiary hearing, and the only undisputed fact alleged by petitioners is that a petitioner was required to pay 14 dollars for the local government's 14-page staff report, petitioners fail to establish the local government's failure to provide a copy of the staff report at a reasonable cost, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(i), violated petitioners' substantial rights. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 29 Or LUBA 391 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the challenged decision is that of the governing body, made on appeal from a planning commission decision, allegations of procedural error in the manner in which the planning commission adopted its order and findings do not provide a basis for reversal or remand. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 29 Or LUBA 391 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners are denied the opportunity to rebut evidence that is potentially relevant to applicable approval standards in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding, their substantial rights are prejudiced and the challenged decision must be remanded. Jackman v. City of Tillamook, 29 Or LUBA 391 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B), LUBA may reverse or remand a challenged decision because the decision maker failed to follow applicable procedural requirements, including notice requirements, only if that failure prejudiced the substantial rights of the petitioner. Moore v. Clackamas County, 29 Or LUBA 372 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners allege the planning commission denied them an opportunity to submit evidence relevant to a proposed comprehensive plan amendment, but petitioners were able to submit the evidence during a de novo hearing on the proposed plan amendment before the governing body, the alleged error in the planning commission proceedings was cured by the governing body's de novo review. O'Rourke v. Union County, 29 Or LUBA 303 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to provide notice that it was considering a floodplain permit application was a procedural error which prejudiced petitioners' substantial rights because the error deprived petitioners of an adequate opportunity to address floodplain issues relevant to local floodplain permit requirements. Mission Bottom Assoc. v. Marion County, 29 Or LUBA 281 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. When the local government decision maker reviews allegations of procedural irregularities and finds, based on substantial evidence, that no such irregularities exist, LUBA is bound by the finding. Huntzicker v. Washington County, 29 Or LUBA 587 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local governing body improperly accepts potentially relevant new evidence while conducting an on-the-record review of a lower level decision maker's decision, and does not provide petitioners an opportunity to rebut that new evidence, petitioners' substantial rights are prejudiced, and the local government's decision must be remanded. Penland v. Josephine County, 29 Or LUBA 213 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to provide notice of its hearings to persons other than petitioners is a procedural error that does not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights if petitioners received notice of the local government hearings and participated in them. Skrepetos v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 193 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners were allowed to submit evidence to the planning commission, and do not identify any additional evidence they tried to submit which was refused by the governing body, any error by the governing body in conducting its hearing "on the record" did not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights. Skrepetos v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 193 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a party has the opportunity to object to a procedural error before a local government, but fails to do so, that error cannot be assigned as grounds for reversal or remand of the local government decision in an appeal to LUBA. Skrepetos v. Jackson County, 29 Or LUBA 193 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioner's argument that it was denied a meaningful opportunity to rebut evidence presented at a local government hearing does not provide a basis for remand, if petitioner does not identify any evidence relevant to applicable approval standards that was submitted at the hearing and which petitioner was denied an opportunity to rebut. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 29 Or LUBA 90 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner submits detailed argument to the local government regarding the applicability of a particular code provision and whether that code provision is satisfied by the subject application, the local government's failure to list that code provision as an applicable criterion in the notice of its initial evidentiary hearing, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(b), did not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights. ONRC v. City of Oregon City, 29 Or LUBA 90 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners do not argue the challenged decision violates any criterion which they failed to raise below because that criterion was not listed in the local government's notice of initial hearing or proposed action, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(b) or ORS 197.195(3)(c)(C), petitioners fail to show their substantial rights were prejudiced by the error and establish no basis for reversal or remand. Wicks v. City of Reedsport, 29 Or LUBA 8 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where members of a local decision making body disclose, at the beginning of the initial evidentiary hearing, that they made site visits to the subject property, and petitioners fail to object to the adequacy of that disclosure, insufficiency of the disclosure cannot be assigned as grounds for reversal or remand. Wicks v. City of Reedsport, 29 Or LUBA 8 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the local governing body is the final decision maker, after a de novo review of a planning commission decision, failure of members of the planning commission to disclose the substance of observations made during a site visit provides no basis for reversal or remand. Wicks v. City of Reedsport, 29 Or LUBA 8 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The improper exclusion of evidence relevant to an arguably applicable approval standard is a prejudicial procedural error, where LUBA is unable to determine the improperly excluded evidence could not have affected the decision reached. Wicks v. City of Reedsport, 29 Or LUBA 8 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the local governing body improperly accepts new evidence while conducting an on-the-record review of a lower level decision maker's decision, and does not provide petitioners an opportunity to rebut that new evidence, petitioners' substantial rights are prejudiced. Wicks v. City of Reedsport, 29 Or LUBA 8 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local governing body is authorized to limit issues on appeal to issues raised before the planning commission but the local government failed to keep an adequate record of the planning commission proceedings, and LUBA cannot determine whether the governing body correctly limited its review to two particular issues, LUBA will remand the governing body's decision. Andrews v. City of Prineville, 28 Or LUBA 653 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner submitted evidence and argument to the city council during its de novo review of a decision of the city landmarks commission, even if procedural errors were made in the proceeding before the landmarks commission, petitioner's substantial rights were not prejudiced. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 618 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. To obtain reversal or remand of a decision because information required by the local code is missing from the application, petitioner must explain why the missing information is necessary to determine compliance of the proposed development with applicable approval standards, and the missing information must not be found elsewhere in the record. Champion v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 618 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the local government's notice of its first evidentiary hearing before the planning commission failed to list the applicable standards, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(b), petitioners may raise issues at LUBA even though such issues may not have been raised during the local proceedings. However, this procedural error provides no basis for reversal or remand of the decision where petitioners fail to establish the error caused prejudice to their substantial rights. Shapiro v. City of Talent, 28 Or LUBA 542 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if a local government committed a procedural error in following legislative rather quasi-judicial procedures, if the only claimed prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights is inadequate time to prepare its case and LUBA concludes the local government provided petitioner ample time to prepare its case, there is no basis for reversal or remand. Friends of Cedar Mill v. Washington County, 28 Or LUBA 477 (1995).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A code provision prohibiting a hearings officer from taking "notice of any communications * * * or other materials prepared in connection with the particular case unless the parties are afforded an opportunity to contest the material" gives parties a substantial right to an opportunity to rebut materials submitted during a hearings officer's proceeding. Therefore, violation of such a code provision provides a basis for reversal or remand by LUBA. Tylka v. Clackamas County, 28 Or LUBA 417 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the local decision maker conducted a site view, but failed to place on the record the substance of its site observations and failed to provide the parties any opportunity to rebut the evidence obtained from the site view, the decision maker committed procedural errors that prejudiced petitioners' substantial rights. McNamara v. Union County, 28 Or LUBA 396 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Because petitioners do not have a right to seek a referendum on a quasi-judicial land use decision, a local government error in adopting such a decision as an emergency ordinance provides no basis for reversal or remand. Neuman v. City of Albany, 28 Or LUBA 337 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 215.416(5) and 197.763(3)(b) require a county to identify applicable approval standards in its notices of hearing. Where petitioner's right to participate in the local proceedings is impaired by the county's failure to identify relevant standards, the challenged decision must be remanded. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 28 Or LUBA 274 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner may not assert his own ex parte contacts with the decision maker as a basis for reversal or remand, where the contacts were disclosed and petitioner did not object to the adequacy or completeness of the disclosure. Jones v. Lane County, 28 Or LUBA 193 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where (1) a local decision maker makes a procedural error in allowing new evidence to be submitted during an on-the-record review; (2) petitioners object to receipt of that new evidence; and (3) the local decision maker does not provide petitioners with an opportunity to rebut the new evidence; LUBA will remand the challenged decision for the local decision maker to provide the required opportunity for rebuttal. Tucker v. Douglas County, 28 Or LUBA 134 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a party has the opportunity to object to a procedural error before the local government, but fails to do so, that error cannot be assigned as grounds for reversal or remand of a local government decision in an appeal to LUBA. Woodstock Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 146 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner had notice that the applicant revised his subdivision proposal to include cluster housing, and had an opportunity to present and rebut evidence regarding the proposed cluster housing in a de novo evidentiary hearing before the city council, petitioner's substantial rights were not prejudiced simply because the cluster housing proposal was not referred to the hearings officer for hearing. Woodstock Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 146 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If the applicant presented new evidence relevant to the applicable approval standards during the rebuttal period of the local government hearing, and petitioner was denied an opportunity to rebut that evidence, petitioner's substantial rights were prejudiced. Woodstock Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 28 Or LUBA 146 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the record shows petitioner was aware of the applicable approval criteria in the comprehensive plan and participated effectively in the local hearing, a local government's failure to comply with the requirements of ORS 197.763(3)(b) and (j), regarding listing applicable criteria from the plan and explaining hearing procedures in its notice of hearing, does not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights or provide a basis for reversal or remand. Furler v. Curry County, 27 Or LUBA 546 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although a local governing body may be authorized to conduct a de novo review of a development application, its refusal to allow petitioner to submit the planning commission decision and staff report on the subject application into the record as relevant evidence prejudices petitioner's substantial right to submit evidence. Furler v. Curry County, 27 Or LUBA 497 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In order for a petitioner to obtain reversal or remand of a decision because information required by the local code is missing from the application, petitioner must explain why the missing information is necessary to determine compliance of the proposed development with applicable approval standards, and the missing information must not be found elsewhere in the record. Furler v. Curry County, 27 Or LUBA 497 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to follow the notice and hearing requirements of ORS 197.763 provides no basis for reversal or remand, where petitioner neither assigns that failure as error nor explains how his substantial rights were prejudiced by that failure. Fechtig v. City of Albany, 27 Or LUBA 480 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a decision maker improperly refuses to allow relevant testimony, and it is not clear whether the decision maker's later allowance of expanded oral and written testimony rendered the initial error harmless, the decision will be remanded. Salem-Keizer School Dist. 24-J v. City of Salem, 27 Or LUBA 351 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government adjustment committee's failure to adopt written rules of procedure is a procedural error and provides a basis for reversal or remand only if petitioners' substantial rights are violated. Edwards v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 262 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners presented evidence and argument concerning the necessity for a solar height adjustment and argued the relevant standards were not met, the city's procedural error in not providing notice that it would consider approval of the solar height adjustment did not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights and provides no basis for reversal or remand. Edwards v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 262 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to make available all evidence in support of a quasi-judicial land use application at the time the notice of hearing is provided, as required by ORS 197.763(4)(a), is a procedural error. However, if such evidence is made available prior to or at the hearing and the hearing record is left open for seven days to allow time for additional written testimony from the parties, petitioners' substantial rights are not violated. Edwards v. City of Portland, 27 Or LUBA 262 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner alleges that he was not provided with written notice of a city manager's letter, in violation of ORS 197.763(2), but petitioner learned of the city manager's letter and appealed it to the city council, petitioner alleges only procedural error, for which prejudice must be shown for LUBA to reverse or remand the challenged city council decision. Poddar v. City of Cannon Beach, 26 Or LUBA 429 (1994).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Conditioning approval of a farm dwelling on the applicant obtaining a zoning permit with the board of county commissioners acting as initial decision maker on the zoning permit rather than the planning director is at most a procedural error, which provides a basis for reversal or remand only if petitioner's substantial rights are violated. Louisiana Pacific v. Umatilla County, 26 Or LUBA 247 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 197.763(1) and 197.835(2) do not supersede LUBA's prior rulings that where a party has an opportunity locally to object to a procedural error, at any stage of the local government proceedings, but fails to do so, that error cannot be assigned as grounds for reversal or remand of the local government's decision in an appeal to LUBA. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners are denied the opportunity to rebut evidence that is relevant to applicable approval standards in a quasi-judicial land use proceeding, their substantial rights are prejudiced and the challenged decision must be remanded. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B). Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Local government failure to comply with ORS 197.763(3) notice of hearing requirements (1) means that under ORS 197.835(2)(a), LUBA may consider issues that were not raised below; and (2) is a procedural error which, under ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B), provides a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision only if such error prejudices petitioners' substantial rights. Mazeski v. Wasco County, 26 Or LUBA 226 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That a person moving to intervene in an appeal at LUBA failed to object to a local government's decision not to allow that person to present testimony is not fatal to that person's assertion of standing to intervene, where two other persons objected below to the local government's decision to limit testimony. Sorte v. City of Newport, 25 Or LUBA 828 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The failure to initiate a timely local rehearing process is not a procedural defect which LUBA may overlook if no prejudice is shown. Rochlin v. Multnomah County, 25 Or LUBA 637 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That a public hearing may have been conducted erroneously, is at most a procedural error which does not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights to an adequate opportunity to be heard, to prepare and submit their case, and to a full and fair hearing. McInnis v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 376 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In the absence of a local code requirement to the contrary, a local government is not required to allow parties to rebut staff summaries of evidence in the record. McInnis v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 376 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government's staff briefs an absentee decision maker concerning matters in the record and does not impermissibly advocate denial of the application, but rather simply provides administrative support to the decision maker, the fact that petitioners had no opportunity to rebut the substance of that staff briefing provides no basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision. McInnis v. City of Portland, 25 Or LUBA 376 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner failed to object to the board of commissioners concerning the county's failure to comply with the procedural requirements of ORS 197.763 in the notice of, and announcement at, a planning commission hearing, petitioner cannot assign those errors as a basis for reversing or remanding the county's decision. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 312 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In order for a petitioner to obtain reversal or remand by LUBA of a challenged decision because information required by the local code is missing from the subject land development application, petitioner must argue that the missing information is not found elsewhere in the record and explain why the missing information is necessary to determine compliance of the proposed development with applicable approval standards. Murphy Citizens Advisory Comm. v. Josephine County, 25 Or LUBA 312 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government is required to provide parties with an opportunity to rebut evidence submitted during local proceedings on remand from this Board under either ORS 197.763(4)(b) or Fasano. A local government's failure to provide petitioner with such opportunity is a procedural error that prejudices petitioner's substantial rights. Caine v. Tillamook County, 25 Or LUBA 209 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even though a city may have committed error in accepting evidence concerning traffic impacts, if the issue of traffic impacts was not properly before the city, such a procedural error would provide no basis for reversal or remand. Westlake Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Lake Oswego, 25 Or LUBA 145 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will not look past the written decision to determine whether local government decision makers were influenced by improperly accepted evidence, where the written decision takes the position that the issue to which the disputed evidence relates was not subject to review and that determination concerning the local scope of review is not dependent on the disputed evidence. Westlake Homeowners Assoc. v. City of Lake Oswego, 25 Or LUBA 145 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In LUBA's review of alleged procedural errors, the substantial rights referred to in ORS 197.828(2)(d) concerning limited land use decisions are the same rights referred to in ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B) concerning land use decisions. Mannenbach v. City of Dallas, 25 Or LUBA 136 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The post-acknowledgment amendment notice requirements of ORS 197.610(1) and 197.615(1) are procedural in nature. Local government failure to follow these requirements provides a basis for reversal or remand only if such error prejudiced petitioner's rights to an adequate opportunity to prepare and submit its case and a full and fair hearing before the local government. Oregon City Leasing, Inc. v. Columbia County, 25 Or LUBA 129 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioners' allegations that various procedural errors occurred below provide no basis for reversal or remand, unless petitioners establish how such errors prejudiced their substantial rights. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 25 Or LUBA 43 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 197.828(2)(d), in determining whether remand is appropriate where a local government commits procedural error, LUBA must determine whether the substantial rights of the parties were prejudiced by the error. The substantial rights of parties include the rights to an adequate opportunity to prepare and submit their case and a full and fair hearing. Warren v. City of Aurora, 25 Or LUBA 11 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even though a local code requirement for publication of notice 10 days prior to hearing is mandatory, it is a procedural requirement, and any error in failing to provide the required notice provides a basis for reversal or remand only if petitioner's substantial rights were prejudiced by the error. West Amazon Basin Landowners v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 508 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the petitioner is a neighborhood association that did not come into existence until after the local government committed an alleged procedural error, and petitioner and its members participated in hearings held after the alleged procedural error, the error did not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights and provides no basis for reversal or remand. West Amazon Basin Landowners v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 508 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. While a showing of prejudice to substantial rights is generally required in order to secure a remand for procedural error, no such showing is required to secure a remand where the procedural requirements of ORS 215.060 are not followed. West Amazon Basin Landowners v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 508 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That a local governing body ultimately adopts an interpretation of an applicable code standard that is different from that adopted by the hearings officer, and declines to reopen the evidentiary record, does not provide a basis for reversal or remand where (1) there was no "established" local interpretation of the code standard, (2) the governing body's interpretation does not make relevant any new type of evidence, and (3) petitioner does not identify any evidence it wishes to submit if the evidentiary hearing is reopened. Heceta Water District v. Lane County, 24 Or LUBA 402 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In rendering a decision on a permit, a city is required to hold at least one public hearing or provide notice of the decision and an opportunity for an appeal. A city's failure to do so requires that the decision be remanded. Hood River Sand v. City of Mosier, 24 Or LUBA 381 (1993).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA will only reverse or remand a challenged decision on procedural grounds where the error causes prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. A local government's failure to list certain DEQ rules in the notice of hearing does not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights, where petitioner was provided an opportunity to respond to those DEQ rules during the local proceedings. Stockwell v. Clackamas County, 24 Or LUBA 358 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government advised petitioners of the substance of an applicable requirement, but failed to identify the ordinance that is the source of the requirement, this is a procedural error which does not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights. Woosley v. Marion County, 24 Or LUBA 231 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a hearings officer improperly conducted a site visit without providing prior notice and an opportunity for rebuttal, a governing body decision that relies on findings of the hearings officer based on that improper site visit is subject to reversal or remand. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 98 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government decision maker is entitled to consult with its attorney regarding evidence submitted during the evidentiary phase of the local proceeding and interpretive issues. Parties have no right to rebut the substance of a local government attorney's advice to the local government decision maker. Linebarger v. City of The Dalles, 24 Or LUBA 91 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the local code requires that the decision maker give an oral statement at the beginning of a local hearing to the effect that any party may request that the record remain open for a period of seven days, and where such oral statement is not given, petitioners' substantial right to submit their case is thereby prejudiced and this error provides a basis for remanding the challenged decision. Adler v. City of Portland, 24 Or LUBA 1 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners identify no provision of state statute or local ordinance requiring parties to a quasi-judicial land use proceeding to serve documents they submit to the local government on other parties, another party's failure to serve such documents on petitioners does not violate petitioners' Fasano right to rebut evidence. Chauncey v. Multnomah County, 23 Or LUBA 599 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where some of the notices preceding local government quasi-judicial hearings on a land use application failed to identify applicable approval criteria, but the notice of the first hearing identified the applicable approval criteria and the record shows all parties were aware of the applicable criteria, the notice errors are at most procedural errors which did not prejudice the parties' substantial rights. Such errors provide no basis for reversal or remand. Reeder v. Clackamas County, 23 Or LUBA 583 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Rejection of relevant evidence by a local decision maker is, at most, a procedural error. Where a planning commission improperly rejected relevant evidence offered by petitioner, but the governing body conducted a de novo evidentiary hearing and petitioner did not attempt to submit the evidence to the governing body, petitioner's substantial right to submit evidence was not prejudiced. Heiller v. Josephine County, 23 Or LUBA 551 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Poor quality tape recordings of local land use proceedings provide no basis for reversal or remand where petitioner fails to demonstrate that any properly submitted evidence was not considered by the local decision makers. Reed v. Benton County, 23 Or LUBA 486 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. That a hearings officer committed procedural error by conducting a site visit without providing prior notice to the parties, disclosing his observations and providing an opportunity to rebut such observations, does not prejudice petitioners' substantial rights where the final decision on the subject application was made by the governing body, after a de novo review. Wilson Park Neigh. Assoc. v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 708 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. LUBA may only reverse or remand a land use decision on the basis of procedural error, if the error causes prejudice to the petitioner's substantial rights. Seger v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 334 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioners' allegation that the local government failed to provide required notice of local proceedings following LUBA's remand of a land use decision provides no basis for remand, where petitioners do not contend they were in any way prejudiced by the alleged failure to provide the required notice of the local proceedings. Wentland v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 321 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Alleged errors in the manner in which the findings of a lower level local decision maker were adopted, are harmless if the final decision was properly adopted by the final decision maker. Rath v. Hood River County, 23 Or LUBA 200 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Even if a local government erred by failing to provide notice of local hearings following remand from LUBA to persons other than parties in the LUBA appeal, that failure results in no prejudice to the substantial rights of the parties who did receive notice of the local hearings on remand. Bartels v. City of Portland, 23 Or LUBA 182 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Delay in disclosing an ex parte contact until after the close of the public hearing, and failure to make an announcement of the right to rebut the substance of the ex parte communication, as required by ORS 227.180(3)(b), are at most procedural errors. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 23 Or LUBA 159 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If petitioners were present at a local government meeting when an alleged procedural error occurred, petitioners must enter an objection in order to preserve their right to raise that procedural error in an appeal to LUBA, even where the local evidentiary record had previously been closed and there was no scheduled opportunity for public input at the meeting in question. Horizon Construction, Inc. v. City of Newberg, 23 Or LUBA 159 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government improperly rejected relevant evidence during its proceeding below, LUBA must remand the challenged decision. Silani v. Klamath County, 22 Or LUBA 735 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The failure of local notices of hearing to summarize the issues involved in a proposed goal exception, as required by ORS 197.732(5), constitutes procedural error and does not provide a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision in the absence of prejudice to petitioner's substantial rights. Caine v. Tillamook County, 22 Or LUBA 687 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Local government failure to comply with ORS 197.763(3) notice of hearing requirements (1) is a procedural error, which will result in reversal or remand of the challenged decision only if such error prejudices petitioner's substantial rights; and (2) under ORS 197.835(2)(a), allows LUBA to consider issues that were not raised below. Caine v. Tillamook County, 22 Or LUBA 687 (1992).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although under ORS 215.422(3) it may be error for a hearings officer to fail to disclose prior contacts with the planning department, it is a procedural error. LUBA may not reverse or remand on the basis of procedural error unless such error prejudices petitioner's substantial rights. Petitioner's substantial rights are not prejudiced by such error where petitioner was aware of and had an opportunity to respond to the substance of the contacts with the planning department. Marson v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 497 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A petitioner may not assert the occurrence of his own ex parte contacts with the decision maker as a basis for reversal or remand, where the contacts were disclosed and petitioner did not object to the adequacy or completeness of the disclosure of such ex parte contacts. Toth v. Curry County, 22 Or LUBA 488 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to follow the procedures specified in the local code for the adoption of legislative code amendments is an error of procedure. Where the error does not prevent petitioner from fully participating in such code amendment proceedings, petitioner does not demonstrate that the alleged error caused prejudice to his substantial rights, and such error provides no basis for reversal or remand. Smith v. City of Portland, 22 Or LUBA 485 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city permit decision rendered without providing the public hearing or notice of decision and opportunity for local appeal required by ORS 227.175(3) and (10) must be remanded so that the city may comply with the statutory requirements. Citizens Concerned v. City of Sherwood, 22 Or LUBA 390 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where an application for a conditional use permit for a mobile home park includes neither a site plan nor other specific information required under the local code, and the site plan and specific information are relevant to determining compliance with applicable approval criteria, their omission is not a harmless procedural error. Burghardt v. City of Molalla, 22 Or LUBA 369 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where substantive approval standards are the same, a local government error in characterizing a plan map amendment as legislative, rather than quasi-judicial, is procedural in nature and warrants reversal or remand only if petitioners demonstrate their substantial rights were prejudiced because of failure to provide the procedural safeguards required in a quasi-judicial proceeding. Gray v. Clatsop County, 22 Or LUBA 270 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where an application for a residential care facility does not include a vicinity map showing the proposed site in relation to public transportation systems, as required by the local code, but information concerning the location of public transportation is found elsewhere in the record, the failure to include such vicinity map in the application is a procedural error which does not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights. Murray v. Clackamas County, 22 Or LUBA 247 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. ORS 197.763(3)(b) and (5)(a) require a local government to identify the standards it believes to be applicable to an application for quasi-judicial land use approval prior to conducting hearings on the application. LUBA is required to reverse or remand a local government's decision if it failed to follow applicable procedures in a manner that prejudiced petitioner's substantial rights, which include "rights to an adequate opportunity to prepare and submit their case and a full and fair hearing." Bradbury v. City of Independence, 22 Or LUBA 783 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A local government's failure to identify approval standards applicable to a permit application may prejudice petitioner's substantial rights to prepare and submit his case. Bradbury v. City of Independence, 22 Or LUBA 783 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Although the party initiating a challenged zoning ordinance amendment was not clearly identified on the application and notices of local public hearings as required by the local code, such procedural errors provide no basis for reversal or remand where petitioners' substantial rights were not prejudiced. Parmenter v. Wallowa County, 21 Or LUBA 490 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If petitioners were present at a local government meeting when an alleged procedural error occurred, petitioners must make their objections known to the decision making body below in order to assign the procedural error as a basis for reversal or remand by LUBA. Schellenberg v. Polk County, 21 Or LUBA 425 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a county orally voted to grant land use approval with conditions, but later learned one of the conditions was based on an erroneous factual assumption and could not be complied with, and the county thereafter denied the application, the county did not commit procedural error and the petitioner's substantial rights were not violated. Petitioner's substantial rights do not include a right to a particular decision on his request for land use approval. Carsey v. Deschutes County, 21 Or LUBA 118 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The failure of a local government to identify its general procedures for the conduct of hearings in its notice of hearing, as required by ORS 197.763(3)(j), is a procedural error, for which LUBA is empowered to reverse or remand the challenged decision only if such error "prejudiced the substantial rights of the petitioner." ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B). Stefan v. Yamhill County, 21 Or LUBA 18 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a local government failed to identify its 15-minute time limitation on the presentation of oral testimony and argument in its notice of hearing, but allowed additional time at the hearing for the presentation of petitioners' oral argument and a continuance of the hearing, petitioners' substantial rights were not prejudiced. Stefan v. Yamhill County, 21 Or LUBA 18 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. An uncontroverted allegation that a party was provided no opportunity to rebut evidence placed before the decision maker through ex parte contacts and site observations is sufficient to demonstrate prejudice to that party's substantial rights. Angel v. City of Portland, 21 Or LUBA 1 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners failed to take advantage of an opportunity to rebut evidence presented in proceedings below, they did not establish how the local decision maker's alleged procedural error in admitting such evidence caused harm to their substantial rights. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B). White v. City of Oregon City, 20 Or LUBA 470 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the local code vests total discretion to refuse to reconsider a decision with the local decision maker, it is not error for the decision maker to refuse to reconsider a disputed decision. West v. Clackamas County, 20 Or LUBA 433 (1991).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The requirements of ORS 197.763(4)(b) and the local code that staff reports be available a certain number of days prior to land use hearings are procedural requirements; their violation is grounds for reversal or remand of the local government's decision only if petitioner demonstrates prejudice to its substantial rights. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B). Forest Park Estate v. Multnomah County, 20 Or LUBA 319 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Petitioner fails to establish that its substantial rights were prejudiced by a late staff report, where petitioner does not identify ways in which its written and oral responses at the local hearing would have been different or more complete if the staff report had been available earlier. Forest Park Estate v. Multnomah County, 20 Or LUBA 319 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Generally, the failure to send notice of hearing to parties other than petitioner would not prejudice the substantial rights of petitioner, so long as petitioner received proper notice. Forest Park Estate v. Multnomah County, 20 Or LUBA 319 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the record demonstrates that petitioner was fully aware of the criteria applicable to its land use application prior to the local hearing, local failure to comply with the requirement of ORS

197.763(3)(b) that notice of hearing list applicable plan and code approval criteria did not prejudice petitioner's substantial rights. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B). Forest Park Estate v. Multnomah County, 20 Or LUBA 319 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Under ORS 197.763(3)(j), a local government is required to provide in its notice of hearing a general explanation regarding the right under ORS 197.763(6) to request that the record of the initial evidentiary hearing remain open. A local government's failure to provide such notice is a procedural error which, if it prejudiced the parties' substantial rights, would require reversal or remand of the challenged decision. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 20 Or LUBA 246 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioners allege the local government violated the procedural requirements of ORS 197.763, but do not contend that violation is a basis for reversal or remand of the challenged decision, and respondents do not argue that petitioners are precluded from raising any issue raised in the petition for review, LUBA need not determine whether the local government committed a procedural error. Wissusik v. Yamhill County, 20 Or LUBA 246 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where the local code requires physical constraints review to be conducted simultaneously with site review, and approval of a physical constraints review permit requires application of substantive criteria which could result in denial of the proposed development, the city's failure to require a proposed development to obtain a required physical constraints review permit at the time of site review approval is not a mere procedural error. Neuenschwander v. City of Ashland, 20 Or LUBA 144 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. It is not error for a governing body to provide a lower local tribunal with a memorandum in the nature of a declaratory ruling interpreting certain code provisions while an application to which those code provisions apply is pending before the lower tribunal. Even if it were a procedural error, there would be no prejudice if petitioners had an adequate opportunity in a local appeal to address the interpretation and applicability of the code provisions in question before the governing body. Hoffman v. City of Lake Oswego, 20 Or LUBA 64 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A hearings officer's acceptance of evidence submitted after the deadline established by local code provides no basis for reversal or remand where petitioner did not request a continuance, and petitioner fails to explain how he was prejudiced by the hearings officer's action. Reed v. Lane County, 19 Or LUBA 276 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. The planning commission's error in failing to consider the propriety of a commissioner's participation in the decision on the subject application, where the issue was raised before the commission, is procedural and, therefore, petitioner must establish the error caused prejudice to his substantial rights. Murphey v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 182 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. If the governing body holds a de novo hearing on an appeal of the planning commission's decision on the subject application, such hearing cures any prejudice due to a planning commissioner's allegedly improper participation in the planning commission proceedings. Murphey v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 182 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. A city's failure to adopt ordinances specifying the city council's scope of review in appeals of planning commission decisions and providing procedures for hearings on such appeals, as required by ORS 227.170, is a procedural error. Murphey v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 182 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where petitioner was not given notice of the city council's de novo scope of review in appeals of planning commission decisions, but the city council continued its hearing to provide an opportunity for parties to submit evidence, petitioner's substantial rights were not prejudiced by the procedural error. Murphey v. City of Ashland, 19 Or LUBA 182 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where there is no dispute concerning the authenticity or identity of a document a party believes was improperly excluded from the record by the local government, the parties may stipulate that the document be included in the LUBA record for the limited purpose of reviewing the correctness of the local government's decision to exclude the document from the local government record. Alternatively, the document may be attached to a party's brief, and if any party objects to LUBA's consideration of the document, the party offering the document may move for an evidentiary hearing. Von Lubken v. Hood River County, 19 Or LUBA 548 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a party has the opportunity to object to a procedural error before the local government, but fails to do so, that error cannot be assigned as a basis for reversal or remand of the local government's decision in an appeal to LUBA. Torgeson v. City of Canby, 19 Or LUBA 511 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. In order to obtain reversal or remand of a city decision due to a procedural error, petitioners must demonstrate that their substantial rights were prejudiced. ORS 197.835(7)(a)(B). Where the alleged procedural error is participation by a planning commissioner, in violation of a city ordinance, petitioners must demonstrate that the commissioner's participation denied them a fair hearing. Torgeson v. City of Canby, 19 Or LUBA 511 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a city is not required under its code to allow surrebuttal if rebuttal is limited to nonevidentiary testimony and evidence already in the local record, parties asserting city denial of surrebuttal as reversible error must show that the rebuttal included new evidence and that denial of an opportunity to rebut such evidence prejudices their substantial rights. Walker v. City of Beaverton, 18 Or LUBA 712 (1990).

28.8.4 LUBA Scope of Review – Grounds for Reversal/Remand – Procedural Errors. Where a mayor's ex parte contacts were completely disclosed, although late in the deliberations and after an incomplete disclosure earlier in the proceedings, and the mayor invited challenges and inquiries, the remedial purpose of ORS 227.180(3) is nevertheless served. Where petitioners did not object to the timing and manner of the disclosure, and do not show their substantial rights were violated, there is no basis for remand. Walker v. City of Beaverton, 18 Or LUBA 712 (1990).
